FOOD CONTROL BILL PASSED; UP TO SENATE

Wilson Given Power to Curb Prices on Supplies.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—The administration food control bill was passed by the house tonight after amendments had been written into it putting into effect what amounts to nation-wide prohibition for the duration of the war. These amendments provide:

1. No person shall use any foods, foodstuffs, or feeds, except for governmental, industrial, scientific, or sacramental purposes, in the production of alcoholic beverages. Any person who violates this section shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000 or imprisonment for not more than two years, or by both.

2. The president is authorized, if in his opinion, it is necessary, to require any person having control of alcoholic or distilled liquors, to turn them, or any proportion of them necessary, over to the government for use or redistillation for use in the manufacture of munitions or other military or hospital supplies.

NO LIGHT WINES, BEER.

An amendment by Representative Lenroot to permit the manufacture of light wines and beer was defeated, 134 to 124. An amendment adopted knocked out the clause which forbid the use of foodstuffs in making non-alcoholic liquors.

The anti-liquor amendments were adopted by the house while sitting as a comittee of the whole. The vote on the amendment cutting off the manufacture of liquors was adopted, 132 to 114. It was submitted by Representative Barkley of Kentucky, Democrat. The amendment was proposed as a substitute for the committee amendment, which left the prohibition question to the president's discretion.

NO OPPOSITION TO SEIZURE.

On the amendment authorizing government use of distilled spirits there was no roll call. Only a few scattered nays were heard on the viva voce vote. Originally proposed by Representative Webb of North Carolina, it was accepted by Chairman Lever of the agriculture committee and was adopted on his motion.

When the bill came up in the house proper the anti-prohibition faction did not demand that the amendment be voted on again.

ONLY FIVE OPPOSE BILL.

The bill, as a whole, then was passed by the house by a vote of 365 to 5. The only members who voted in opposition were:

DEMOCRATS.

McLemore, Texas.
Slayden, Texas.
Young, Texas.

REPUBLICANS.

Meeker, Missouri.
Ward, New York.

Four members—all Democrats—voted "present." They were Gallagher and Sabath, Illinois; Hulbert of New York, and Gordon of Ohio.

BILL NOW TO SENATE.

The bill now goes to the senate, where it probably will be substituted early next week for a similar measure already under consideration. Leaders hope to get the measure to conference by July 1, the date demanded by the president.

The bill as passed grants to the president the power to control the distribution of food, feed, and fuel, and authorizes the employment of Herbert C. Hoover as food administrator for the period of the war.

It also provides for the licensing of food concerns under regulations to be prescribed by the president, and also contains clauses under which the government will be able to stimulate production and protect the farmers and other producers from a slump in prices. The bill appropriate $152,500,000 for the enforcement of the law and administration of the commissions and bureaus which it creates.

Few important changes were made by the house outside the prohibition section.

COUNCIL COMMITTEE MAKES PLANS TO OUST MAYOR

FOES UNABLE TO BREACH FRONT, FRENCH REPORT

Germans Try a Series of "Feelers"; Fail to Find Weak Spot.

(By the Associated Press.)

GRAND HEADQUARTERS OF THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, June 23.—There are signs on many parts of the French front that the Germans are either nervous concerning the French intentions or are preparing an offensive. A series of "feelers" has been carried out by Field Marshal von Hindenburg at various points, principally around the Laon plateau.

One of the chief of these was an effort to cut a breach in the French line at Vauxaillon, where the German "shock" units temporarily ousted the French from a short trench system on the slopes of Monkey mountain, on which it was important that both armies should possess observatories.

French Regain Lost Ground.

French counter attacks immediately regained all the ground lost except a salient measuring a few yards, in which the German position is most precarious. On this occasion the German shock troops advanced in their shirt sleeves without packs, after a terrific bombardment, in which every yard of the adjacent ground was searched by shells.

The German shockers, as soon as they succeeded in their determined and courageous effort, turned over the trenches they had gained to the Seventy-eighth German infantry division, who, however, failed to hold them when called on for a defensive effort.

The correspondent visited the entire position in this sector today and found the French firmly established, while the Germans on the other side of the hill were deprived of observatories and thus their artillery was blind.

Rivals Clash Head On.

Another lively affair occurred in the vicinity of Mont Carnillet, where the Germans and French attacked almost simultaneously, the former with the object of recovering prominent points they had lost some weeks ago and the latter with the intention of getting freer elbow room.

As it happened, a unit consisting of only sixty-two French grenadiers and portable machine gunners, occupied the position coveted by the Germans and not only drove off the attacking forces, but pursued them and captured a considerable length of German trenches and in doing so killed more than 200 Germans.

On the Chemin-des-Dames also the Germans launched yesterday a number of attacks, some of which resulted in most desperate engagements. In the neighborhood of La Royere farm the ground was covered with German bodies, while the only success the Germans achieved was to gain possession of a short section of a front French trench.

American Aviators Busy.

The intensity of the airmen's activities on the French front is indicated in the week's record of the American Lafayette squadrilla from June 10 to 16.

Fifty-four of their airplanes patrolled over the German lines and fought nine air battles, of which Adjt. Raoul Lufbery, Edwin Parsons and Sergt. Robert Soubiran each fought two and Stephen Bigelow, Sergt. Walter Lowell, and Thomas Hewitt each fought one.

Adjt. Lufbery brought down one of his opponents, winning his tenth victory, while two other German machines were severely damaged. Lufbery is mentioned in a late army order as "a marvelous fighting pilot who is a living example of audacity, coolness, and devotion to his squadrilla."

LEMON EATING REVEALS SECRET OF OAK PARK GIRL

Next Thursday (maybe) THE TRIBUNE will announce the engagement of Miss Mildred Crissey of 162 North Lombard avenue, Oak Park, to somebody of Chicago.

It would be done today only THE TRIBUNE doesn't know who the man is. Neither does Burt W. Crissey, father of Mildred. Neither does Mrs. Crissey, Mildred's mother.

At the annual senior girls' breakfast yesterday at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Miss Crissey ate heartily of the lemon that was served. Only girls engaged to be married are privileged to eat of the lemon. It is an artful and significant custom at Ann Arbor.

"I haven't announced it home yet, so how can you expect me to tell you?" she said. "All I care to say is that he's a Chicago chap."

"Wednesday Mrs. Crissey and I will visit Mildred at Ann Arbor," said Miss Crissey's father yesterday. "As soon as Mildred tells me I'll tell you. I pledge my word of honor."

REVOLT LOOMS IN RUSSIA ON 'PEACE' ISSUE

Armed Anarchists Openly Defiant; Oppose Duma.

Dispatches from Russia last night indicated both a clearing of the situation and in other spots a spread of chaos. In Moscow Elihu Root, the American commissioner, made two addresses to the working classes and soldiers and roused them to an enthusiastic indorsement of the program for continuing the war.

Meantime Petrograd anarchists, who have seized the country home of Gen. Durnovo, refuse to yield possession and will hold an armed demonstration against the government today, the outcome of which is problematical.

(By the Associated Press.)

PETROGRAD, June 23.—The group of anarchists who are entrenched in the country house of Gen. Durnovo in a suburb of Viborg, today informed newspaper correspondents that they are backed by 6,000 fully armed men known as "the people's militia" and several machine gun companies.

The anarchists who were ordered yesterday by Minister of Justice Pereveizeff to evacuate the house which they had seized, said that they also counted upon the active support of several infantry units.

It was reported tonight that the Maximalists are organizing an armed anti-government street demonstration to be held in Petrograd tomorrow.

BACK OF STOLYPIN ATTACK.

The Maximalist organization was responsible, according to the police, for the attempt on the life of Premier Stolypin in 1906. Later the authorities announced that the group had been entirely broken up.

A large meeting of soldiers in sympathy with the Maximalist organization was held here on Thursday, at which it was resolved to organize an armed demonstration for today against the government.

CRY "DOWN WITH DUMA."

On Friday the Maximalists placarded the streets with manifestoes reading:

"The capitalists are continuing the war, increasing hunger and the price of food, causing unemployment and bringing a counter revolution nearer; the provisional government openly supports the power of the imperialists and the bourgeoise; our patience is exhausted and we must by a peaceful demonstration make known our wishes and demands. We therefore invite the soldiers and the workmen to appear on the streets with the watchwords:

"'Down with the duma; down with the ten bourgeoise ministers; down with anarchy; down with war! We want bread, peace, and liberty!'"

COUNTER PARADES.

As a result of this agitation the provisional government officials, after an all night sitting to consider the situation, placarded the streets of the capital this morning with an appeal to the population to remain calm and declaring that any attempt at violence would be rigorously suppressed.

On their part the pan-Russian congress of soldiers and workmen's delegates, the executive of the Petrograd soldiers and workmen's delegates, the executive of the peasants' congress, and the executives of other Socialist and workmen's parties also placarded an appeal urging the troops and workmen not to go on the streets and asking them to abstain from any demonstration during Saturday, Sunday, and Monday.

DEMAND DUMA DISSOLVE.

Dissolution of the council of the empire is demanded in a resolution passed today by the Pan-Russian Congress of Councils of Deputies of Soldiers and Workmen after prolonged debate. The elimination of the duma also is asked.

The resolution was proposed by the Minimalists. It is proposed to abolish the duma by annulling the mandates of the deputies and cutting off the credits voted for the upkeep of that

GEORGE, PENMAN, GOES SOME; HE'S GOING SOME MORE

Writes His Way Into Matrimony and So Into Jail.

George Schoenbeck, barely 22 years old, living with his bride of two days at 3601 South Robey street, laid down his fountain pen and check book last night and sighed. So did two detectives. So did Herman E. Thrun, a saloonkeeper nearby, whose checkbook it was. So did the officials of the Peoples' Stockyards State bank, 1542 West Forty-seventh street, where Thrun had his money.

"Well," said Schoenbeck, "I went some, didn't I?"

"You did," said one of the detectives. "And you are going some more."

"Well," said the bride, "he may be a forger, but I'll be right with him."

So they started for Milwaukee, where Schoenbeck will explain how, with only an ambition and the zeal to write Thrun's name on checks, he was the demon speed boy of the last two months.

His Running Start.

Primarily Schoenbeck was an ironworker, but he preferred the finer metals.

He obtained the raw material in denominations of from $5 to $50—via Thrun's checks. Then he yearned to become a national institution. He bore down on Milwaukee and bought a touring car, giving a check for $750, but this time on a Milwaukee bank. He drove about and took courage.

"Heigh ho!" said he. "I have a fancy to take me a wife."

A Deal in Jewelry.

So he favored the jewelry store of George Duyner to the extent of buying a diamond ring and a stick pin for $77 [payment by bum check], and also an engagement ring, for which Dnyner accepted a check for $375.

Sliding into high with the new motor, Schoenbeck returned to Chicago and laid his heart and also the diamond at the feet of Miss Helen Caser, 19 years old, living at West Forty-sixth and Honore streets. She took both and they drove to Crown Point, where they were married. Coming back the car turned a back somersault and bounced into a ditch, where it grinned at them.

"Silly beast," said George, calling the A. B. C. garage at East Chicago, "leaping into a ditch and all that sort of rot."

Mrs. C. D. Stifler, owner of the garage, sent a man to tow in the acrobatic motor. It was disabled.

Nothing at All.

"It's nothing at all," said Schoenbeck. "Here's a $10 check." He got $5 in change. Then he called a taxicab. They drove to the Robey street address.

"Awfully good of you, you old skeezicks," he said to the chauffeur. "Here's a check." It was for $13 and he got $5 in change. He bought a tire for his car for $35 of the Haynes garage, 1131 East Sixty-third street. Another check.

"And so," said George, kissing his bride and reaching for his hat, "here we go again."

TWO SCHOOLBOYS HIT BY AUTOS; ONE OF THEM DIES

Benedict Moriarty, an 8 year old schoolboy, was struck by an auto truck driven by Silas Shaver yesterday afternoon. The boy, who lived at 4123 Harrison street, was hit while crossing the street in front of his home. He died a few hours later. Shaver was released on $1,000 bail. He is 41 years old and a [illegible]. The inquest will be held tomorrow.

Andrew Provost, an 8 year old schoolboy, 4034 West Taylor street, was struck by an automobile driven by Dr. E. Gould, a dentist living at 3937 Grenshaw avenue, at Crawford avenue and Twelfth street yesterday afternoon. The boy was taken to the St. Anthony hospital, where it was said he will recover. Dr. Gould was released on $1,000 bail. He will be tried tomorrow.

Bishop Says Thompson Should Be Shot as Traitor

Baltimore, Md., June 23.—[Special.]—The Rev. Herbert Kinsolving, Episcopalian bishop of Texas, now in this city, said tonight he was of the opinion that Mayor Thompson of Chicago was guilty of treason and should face a firing squad.

Referring to the proposition to impeach Mayor Thompson Bishop Kinsolving said:

"My idea of what ought to be done is somewhat different from the action of the Chicago people, however, for I think that he is guilty of treason and ought to be shot."

FOUR FANS LOSE AUTOS AS THEY ROOT FOR SOX

Four automobiles were stolen yesterday while their owners were watching the baseball game at Comiskey park. Two were later recoverd by the police after they had ben abandoned. The victims of the thefts are:

DR. BENJAMIN BRAUDE, 1010 South Ashland avenue.

WALLACE T. AUSMAN, 550 East Fiftieth street.

DR. M. S. OLIVER, 5161 Calumet avenpe.

DR. E. K. ARMSTRONG, 5701 Prairie avenue.

The cars of Dr. Oliver and Dr. Armstrong were found in damaged condition. One of the missing cars, belonging to Ausman, had been purchased only one week ago.

GET SPEEDERS BEFORE THEY DIE, CORONER'S PLAN

Hoffman Turns Cop; Will Police Drives Out in County.

Burn not up ye highway, step soft on ye gasse,
For deputy sheriffs are hid in ye
grasse;
Yea, behind every knolle and each telephone polle
A coroner's deputy's waiting for thee.

—Wails of Hoffman.

Peter M. Hoffman, coroner; George Webster, first deputy, and ten deputy coroners, assisted by six deputy sheriffs, will police fifteen miles of cement high way this joyous Sunday, for Coroner Hoffman is roiled. The tempting stretch of speedway lies out Milwaukee avenue, between the city limits and the county limits.

Last Sunday one person was killed out there and eleven were carried to hospitals as the result of the wrecking of $20,000 worth of cars. It is estimated that between 60,000 and 70,000 automobiles passed over that one concrete highway in the day.

A Victim Himself.

"Something's got to be done," said Coroner Hoffman, shifting a bandaged ankle to an easier position. "I got this when a speeder drove his car into a taxi in which I was riding. I'm going out there and I'm going to get 'em before they're dead this time.

"Folks may not know it, but the coroner's got power—more power than the sheriff when he sees life imperiled. I'm going to have men with stop watches posted all along the road and we will arrest every speeder and every intoxicated driver, and we'll give 'em the limit."

Death's Grim Record.

Then the coroner offered the automobile death record of Cook county from Jan. 1, 1914, to date:

	Killed.
1915	249
1916	230
1917 to date	185

"And bear in mind that the crazy season for speed fiends is just opening up," he added. "Last Sunday was only the beginning. Human life is too valuable to be sacrificed to reckless drivers and drunks. I'm warning them—they'll get the limit."

ANTI-DRAFT RIOT BRINGS ARRESTS BY U. S. AGENTS

When government agents from the office of Clinton G. Clabaugh, superintendent of the local branch of the department of justice, attempted to arrest several persons at Taylor street and South Racine avenue last night, after they had attended an anti-draft meeting in the West Side auditorium, a fight started and a riot call was sent to the Maxwell street police station.

Capt. William Russell, Lieut. Michael Lee and a number of detectives hurried to the hall and assisted the government agents in arresting more than a dozen men.

The meeting, which was under the auspices of the Chicago League of Humanity, was said to be for the raising of funds for the defense of Alexander Berkman and Emma Goldman, recently arrested in New York in connection with an anti-conscription plot, but developed into an anti-draft meeting.

After the meeting had been adjourned the government agents saw several men for whom they had been looking and attempted to arrest them. They were then attacked.

THE SCHOOL ROW

The developments of yesterday in the school board row follow:

Poll of council judiciary committee indicates passage of resolution Monday calling for the mayor's resignation, with an appeal to the state's attorney to start ouster proceedings if the first resolution is ignored.

State's Attorney Hoyne draws bill in quo warranto to be filed tomorrow morning to oust the Thompson school board and their appointive aids.

Thompson-Lundin steam roller works as new board holds a meeting.

New board attempts to oust three assistant attorneys with salaries ranging from $2,500 to $4,000.

Mrs. F. E. Thornton joins the ranks of the "solid six."

Ex-Secretary L. E. Larson calls a meeting of the old board for next Wednesday.

Policemen, 70 in number, continue to hold the school fort and control admittance to board rooms.

Anti-administration forces in the city hall and State's Attorney Hoyne in his offices in the Criminal court spent yesterday laying the mines with a view to blowing Mayor Thompson and his newly appointed school board off the pay rolls. Action starts tomorrow morning.

The proposed action against the mayor will be taken in the city council judiciary committee. To State's Attorney Hoyne, by tacit agreement, has been left the attack on the Thompson school board.

Ald. Otto Kerner of the Twelfth ward, backed by a majority of the members of the judiciary committee, will move at a special session at 11 o'clock in the morning to draft a resolution to be presented to the council tomorrow afternoon, calling upon the mayor to resign.

LANGUAGE TO BE PLAIN.

The language of the resolution, according to those in touch with members of the committee, will be of a scorching nature, intended to burn through the sunburned skin of the mayor. It will declare, among other things, that the constituencies of the various aldermen no longer consider William Hale Thompson a fit person to direct the affairs of the city of Chicago, and that they, in obedience to the wishes of the said constituents, sincerely and earnestly request him to get out.

Possibility that a second resolution demanding impeachment proceedings will be framed is the hope of the more radical anti-Thompsonites. They express doubt, however, on the power of the council to conduct the actual trial. Their belief is that the limit of the council's power is to ask the state's attorney to take action in quo warranto to oust the chief executive or to institute criminal action on a charge of malfeasance in office.

WEEK TO ANSWER.

In any case the resignation resolution will be reported out of committee first and a lapse of a week allowed to give the mayor time to answer it.

The lineup of the seventeen members of the judiciary committee on the resignation resolution probably will be 11 to 5, with one alderman "not voting." Nine of the eleven yesterday expressed their intention of voting for the resolution. They were Chairman Otto Kerner, W. E. Rodriguez, John J. Tuohy, John H. Bauler, A. A. McCormick, Walter P. Steffen, James A. Long, Joseph O. Kostner, and John Hrubec.

John N. Kimball and George M. Maypole could not be reached, but on their action in the council meeting Friday afternoon are generally expected to vote with the nine.

Ald. Ross A. Woodhull is inclined to excuse the mayor's action in leaving the council on the ground that he "was exasperated and lost his temper."

Coughlin, Norris, Kunz, Powers, and William J. Lynch—all Democrats with the exception of Ald. Norris—voted solidly to sustain the mayor on Friday. They are expected to stand back of him in committee tomorrow morning.

"In my opinion," said Ald. Kerner, "the judiciary committee will vote favorably on both resolutions referred by the council—the one calling upon the mayor to resign and the other asking us to find some method upon which we can start impeachment proceedings.

CERTAIN OF PASSAGE.

"Certainly the resignation resolution will pass, though it is possible that it may require a lapse of a week to get all the necessary information on the impeachment question. The meeting will open at 11 o'clock and continue until we have worked out a program."

"I hardly think the council has impeaching powers," said Ald. Rodriguez. "I heartily favor the resignation resolution, however, and if there is anything in the statutes to show a way to put through the impeachment I'll find it if I have to stay up from now until Monday to find it. Most certainly the state's attorney has power to proceed in quo warranto or malfeasance if it is shown that the mayor committed an illegal act. His refusal to grant a roll call and high handed adjournment, and his refusal to return to council after the roll call showed us to be still in session, constitute illegal acts enough to start a dozen proceedings."

TOUHY IS EMPHATIC.

"I guess the town knows what I think about Thompson," declared Ald. Touhy. "As to his getting out, or being put out, just show me the way to help do it."

"I don't know just what course the action will take," said Ald. Bauler. "But I think Thompson ought to go, and any action the majority of the committee takes will suit me."

"Give Thompson a chance to resign," was the way Ald. Steffen put it. "Let the judiciary committee report such a resolution, let the council pass it, and then give 'Big Bill' a chance to take the hint. If he doesn't do that—well, then is plenty soon enough to start plans for kicking him out."

"For my part," said Ald. Long, "I have felt for ages and ages that Chicago needed a new mayor. If a resolution calling for a Thompson resignation will do it, let's pass that resolution. If we need something stronger, let's start mixing it."

Kostner's Views.

"The resignation resolution first—then the state's attorney as a reserve battery," said Ald. Kostner.

"That's my idea, too," said Ald. Hrubec when told of Ald. Kostner's stand.

"I don't want to do a lot of talking now," said Ald. A. A. McCormick. "But I'm for the resolution, and any other action that future developments may require."

"The mayor has a temper and he lost it for a time," allowed Ald. Woodhull. "A man without a temper wouldn't be worth his salt, and, on a resignation resolution, based on that one flare-up, I probably would be recorded as not voting."

State's Attorney Hoyne's ouster action against the new Thompson appointees to the school board and against their appointees to executive board of education positions, was determined upon after the new board, under heavy guard of city policemen, held a meeting. School business, under the guard, was carried on as if the council had not revoked the appointments at a meeting Friday. When the state's attorney heard of it the quo warranto bill was drawn. It will be filed in the morning.

MAYERTOMAYOR: BOOZE THE TOPIC

Mayor Thompson yesterday referred to Levy Mayer as "the head legal adviser and organizer of the booze interests," and to Hoyne as "his office boy."

Levy Mayer laughed heartily when told of the statement.

"I think that it was Mr. Thompson's hand that signed the statement, but it was some one else's mind that prepared it," said Mr. Mayer. "I did not know that Thompson was getting into a fight with the city council and I knew nothing about the fight until late Friday afternoon, when two representatives of the press asked whether, in my legal opinion, there was a law providing for the impeachment of the mayor.

Replies to Charge.

"I did not know then what the inquiry was based on. I replied that the mayor could not be impeached under the constitution, but that if the mayor was guilty of violating the law the charter provided that he might be indicted and, if convicted, fined, and that then it would be the duty of the court to remove him. That is all I knew about the situation.

"I cannot, however, let the opportunity go by without paying a little attention to Mr. Thompson's familiar cry of 'booze.' If I wished to refer to Mr. Thompson's habits, and needed an expert, I would know where to get one.

"At the meeting of the council Friday, when the mayor was overthrown, twenty-two members voted to stand by his discredited school trustees. Of these twenty-two the roll calls of the council show that at least eighteen or nineteen are sturdy champions of what Mr. Thompson calls 'booze.' Therefore his only support came from the foe which he says is plotting to destroy him.

Very Amusing.

"I have not seen Mac Hoyne for six months and I have not spoken to him in the same time, so I do not know how he feels about the affair.

"The first word of the council fight came to me, as I have said, from the press, and I had to take some time to find out enough of the situation to enable me to answer their inquiries correctly. So Mr. Thompson really is very amusing."

BLAST IN FORT SHAKES HAVANA

HAVANA, June 23.—An explosion in the magazine of Cabanas fortress, across the bay from Havana, at 9 o'clock tonight shook the entire city. One person is known to be dead and many were injured. It is believed a bomb was exploded.

Among the injured were two persons whose sight was destroyed by the flash. It is said that a bomb had been placed against the magazine.

Several ships in the harbor were damaged by the blowing up of the magazine.

SCHOOL BOARD DEFIANT; MEETS UNDER GUARD

Loeb Registers a Protest as Routine Business Is Handled.

Mayor Thompson's school board defied the council's ouster ruling of Friday and yesterday met under guard of some seventy policemen and detectives and transacted routine business.

The chief activity of the new board was directed to the ousting of three assistant attorneys with salaries ranging from $2,500 to $4,000, but this effort was at least temporarily defeated.

Incidentally, Jacob Loeb, arch enemy of the Teachers' federation, took occasion to escort several federation teachers to the board room when the thick blue line of police guards refused them admittance.

Loeb Registers Protest.

The only protest against the right of the new board to meet was made by Mr. Loeb, who insisted that the session was "illegal and irregular." He kept his seat in the board room, but refused to recognize the right of the Thompson trustees to transact board business. When his name was called on the roll he recorded his presence at "an informal gathering of citizens" and emphasized "citizens."

Anthony Czarnecki did most of the talking and attempted nearly a dozen motions and resolutions aimed at the mayor and his school administration. Every time George B. Arnold moved to table and after a second by Hart Hanson the question was sent to rest by a count of 7 to 3, with Mr. Loeb refusing to vote.

Nearly half of the time of the meeting was taken up with the reading of Corporation Counsel Ettelson's legal opinion, scorned the previous day by the city council.

Ettelson on Job.

Mr. Ettelson sat as the shadow of Mr. Davis, telling the new president to announce that a vote "aye" would be in favor of the motion and a vote "no" would be against it. Before almost every motion Mr. Davis made the announcement, apparently instructing the seven faithful ones.

Some of Mr. Czarnecki's motions, all of which were tabled, were in substance as follows:

To recognize Larson and Shannon as secretary and attorney of the board.

To coöperate with the state's attorney to determine the right of the Thompson board to hold office by reason of the action of the council Friday.

To transact only emergency business until the matter has been settled in the courts.

To pay no salaries to employés whose legal status is in doubt, pending the completion of the case in court.

One Moion Passes.

Mr. Czarnecki made one motion which was passed with all votes except that of Mr. Loeb, who insisted the session was illegal. That was that all employés, including teachers, be assured and guaranteed that their positions would not be taken from them except after charges had been brought and a fair hearing given them. Mr. Arnold seconded the motion.

A little later in the meeting, however, an attempt was made to drop three of Mr. Shannon's assistants. They are: Chauncey Millar, salary $4,000; George Steinbrecher, salary $2,500; John E Foster, salary $2,750.

No attempt to fill the places was made, however, and Mr. Czarnecki succeeded in holding up the effort to remove the three men.

Mr. Arnold then presented a few resolutions. The first was to borrow money on tax anticipation warrants for the payment of school teachers, and was passed. Then Mr. Arnold moved that Attorney Shannon be ordered to turn over to Attorney Francis all school documents in his office and any school money he might have. The stenographic and clerical employés were ordered, also, to report to Mr. Francis at his new office in the board rooms.

Czarnecki Loses Fight.

Mr. Czarnecki attempted to hold up that transfer until the whole question has been settled in the courts, but he was outvoted. Richard C. Gannon and Charles S. Peterson supported Mr. Czarnecki on practically all roll calls. The administration had the votes of Mr. Arnold, Mr. Hanson, Albert H. Severinghaus, Dr. Sadie B. Adair, Mrs. Lulu Snodgrass, Mrs. Thornton, and Mr. Davis.

If there has been any ill feeling on the part of the employés toward the new administration, it was erased to a large extent when a motion to change the hours of work back to a seven hour day was passed. Grins spread over the faces of the employés in the board rooms. Mr. Loeb was responsible for the increase in the working time to eight hours, and later to seven and one-half, at the time the board was facing a deficit of $1,000,000.

The detail of police was increased to seventy for the morning meeting, but no violence was started by the old board. Ralph C. Otis, Edward J. Piggott, and Charles R. Young of the old board were present.

There is an entirely different appearance to the board rooms since the police took charge. Cuspidors, apparently missed more often than not, are scattered around the corridors where formerly there was nothing but the clean mosaic.

MAYOR'S PAPER AGAIN RIPS INTO THE PRESIDENT

Well, here we are again.

The Republican, weekly organ of the city hall, made another attack yesterday on President Wilson. This time, as usual, the entire first page is devoted to the tirade, and among the questions asked are:

"Is Wilson master or servant? Who is the government? Is it the president or the people? Should we not be loyal to America first? Have we a right to be generous with other men's lives."

"What shall it profit an American president though he gain the plaudits of all the kings of earth and lose the lives of his countrymen?" is the way the article winds up.

Talk of Impeachment Is Trick to Cloud the Issue, Says Mayor

Mayor Thompson yesterday issued a formal statement on the school board situation. He announced, when he made it public, that it would be all he would say on the subject during the day. The statement is as follows:

"What motives inspired certain of the aldermen yesterday to commit riot and assault, and protect the thieves who have been looting the school funds of this city for years?

"Who are the beneficiaries of school leases without revaluation clauses that telephoned to certain aldermen yesterday to vote to reconsider confirmation of the school board members contrary to law?

"Who is it that is afraid because the new school board started three independent investigations at its initial meeting, to look into finances, purchases, insurance, leases, text books, and consideration of the cases of discharged teachers?

Why All This Turmoil?

"Why all this turmoil? No member of the present board, with the exception of Loeb, can be charged with pilfering funds that rightfully should be spent for the benefit of the school children.

"Do the records of the school board tell tales that the old school régime do not dare to permit to be made public?

"The idle talk of impeachment of the mayor and ousting of the new school board members is a deception practiced to divert attention from the real issues, and I want to call the attention of the fathers and mothers of Chicago to the leaders of this movement. The head legal advisor and organizer of the booze interests, Levy Mayer, and his errand boy, Maclay Hoyne, have finally come out in the open.

Will Back Trustees.

"The school board will be sustained by the executive authorities of the city in the exercise of their functions, and adequate police details will be provided to protect school property from threatened depredations and secure the vaults against possible looting."

"Here you are, boys," said the mayor, as he handed it out to the newspaper men. "This will be all I'll say today."

"If the council, by resolution, asks you to resign, will you resign?" he was asked.

"My statement is all I care to say at this time," replied the mayor, with a smile.

"How about impeachment proceedings?"

"Now, my statement is all," concluded the mayor.

Has Legal Advice.

The mayor arrived at his office about 11 o'clock and for some time was closeted with Chester E. Cleveland, first assistant corporation counsel, and Anton Zeman, an assistant corporation counsel. After reporters gained entrance the mayor spent some little time looking over the statement, and ordering a few minor changes in it. Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson, who generally sits beside the mayor during interviews, was at the meeting of "one of the boards of education."

A number of aldermen, among them A. A. McCormick, who helped in the rout of the mayor Friday, were informed of his "official word" on the matter.

"I tell you one thing," ventured McCormick. "I wish the mayor would show as much interest in an investigation of some of the departments in the city hall. I think such an interest would be more productive of results."

The corporation counsel's office evidenced great interest in the progress made in the printing of the minutes of Friday. Every few minutes an assistant from Mr. Ettelson's office would go to the city clerk to ask when it would be possible to obtain a printed copy of the record.

"We're so far behind in our regular business, and because of the shortness of time, I don't know positively how soon the journal will be printed and ready for distribution," was City Clerk Igoe's response.

SHOOS AWAY CROWN

Lundin Hadn't Read About Row! Out of Politics—Absolutely! Hasn't Time to Mix with Such Things! Business and Farm Takes All His Time.

With a goose step stride and the wind playing capers with his flowing black tie, Fred Lundin, supervisor-extraordinary of the "little city hall" in the Hotel La Salle, walked south on La Salle street yesterday morning. A reporter caught sight of him.

"Good morning, Mr. Lundin," he ventured, "what do you think about the action of the city council yesterday?"

"I haven't read about it," was the reply, so the reporter told the thrilling details of the session.

"So," commented Lundin. "Well, I don't know anything about it. I am out of politics. Absolutely!"

"Are the schools 'Lundinized,' as has been charged?"

"I haven't read about it," he repeated.

"State's Attorney Hoyne says they are."

"So?"

"Well," he continued, "I take all my time for my business and my farm. I haven't time to mix up with such things."

And here the interview ended.

WANT HIM OUT

Various Citizens, Commenting on Big Bill and His Work, Declare He Should Resign or Be Impeached.

A majority of Chicago citizens interviewed last night expressed the opinion that Mayor Thompson should resign. Others, while expressing themselves as displeasd at the mayor's actions in the Friday council meeting, said they did not desire to enter a political dispute. Here are some of the statements:

THE REV. JOHNSTON MYERS—I know you will not print this, but I do not think that Mayor Thompson has been treated fairly by the public. He has been misrepresented and misunderstood during his entire administration. No doubt the mayor has done many foolish things, but he has received no credit for the good he has accomplished. I do not think impeachment proceedings are necessary. There ought to be some other course that would bring less disgrace on the city.

JENKIN LLOYD JONES—I can't see any one in sight who is worth impeaching. The whole thing is an undignified squabble and they are practically all tarred with the same stick. It is a political scandal, and I am ashamed to have the city mixed up in such an affair. The mayor is childish and Loeb is dogmatic. It seems to me to be a toss up between them. They all ought to be ashamed of themselves. What ought to be done is to wipe the slate clean and start anew.

CHARLES PIEZ—I would hate to have to say what I really think of the way Mayor Thompson has acted. He has behaved badly, to express it mildly. The whole thing is simply unspeakable. I am not familiar with the law points involved, but if Mayor Thompson can be impeached he ought to be.

HAROLD L. ICKES—Without regard for the school question, Mayor Thompson should resign. He has shown himself utterly inadequate as an official and also aside from the fact of his incompetence Chicago is entitled to an American mayor at this time.

JAMES T. IGOE, city clerk—It is only charitable to say that Mayor Thompson is out of his element in public office. If it were possible for him to perform a graceful act, that act would be to resign."

GEORGE E. COLE—Even Lundin would not have dared do these things if the people had attended to business. With referendum and recall the jumble of city affairs would not have happened. The mayor certainly ought to get out.

HARRY OLSON, chief justice, Municipal court—Something ought to be done at once to set the Republican party right with the rank and file of the people. Unless the mayor resigns, he will drag the entire party to defeat with him. You can't blame the mayor, for the people gave him the power.

SOPHONISBA P. BRECKINRIDGE, dean of women, University of Chicago—The greatest public service Mr. Thompson could render would be to resign at once. His incumbency has been one pitiful and grotesque blunder after another. He has humiliated Chicago in the eyes of the nation. Immediate resignation might be a measure of penance.

JOHN S. MILLER, attorney—I think it would be for the best interest of the public of Chicago if Mayor Thompson were to resign immediately.

MRS. KELLOGG FAIRBANK—I would be glad to see Chicago have a better school board than Mayor Thompson has appointed. I do not know enough about the points involved to express an opinion about impeachment. That is a matter for lawyers to decide.

DIVINE RIGHT

Kimball Recommends Readings in English History for His Honor.

ALD. JOHN N. KIMBALL of the Seventh ward delved into history yesterday and discovered that one king at least who tried to usurp the rights of a legislative body was beheaded. Said the alderman:

"If Mayor Thompson would read the 'Petition of Right of 1628' he would learn what rights are possessed by representatives of the people when they are assembled in regular legislative bodies. If he would read the Declaration of Independence he would find that one of the fundamental principles on which this republic was founded was the right of deliberative assembles to be free from interference on the part of executives.

"Mayor Thompson is a good dal like James I. of England, who died of fatty degeneration of the heart before the 'Petition of Right' was formulated and before the theory of the 'divine right' of kings was blotted out by the blood of Charles I., his son. And probably Mayor Thompson feels that the principles enunciated in the Declaration of Independence have no application in the 'sixth largest German city in the world.'"

HOYNE PLANS SUIT TO SETTLE SCHOOL ISSUE

Contemplates an Action Against Capt. Coffin to End War.

State's Attorney Hoyne told THE TRIBUNE last night that he does not regard the move in the council to impeach Mayor Thompson as the proper course to pursue to unseat Big Bill for his conduct at the last council meeting. There are two other methods possible of getting the mayor out, he said.

He made this statement when asked how he believed the mayor should be ousted if an attempt should be made to bring this about. He added that he didn't recall any provision in the state constitution authorizing impeachment of a municipal official like the mayor. He said he believes the law applies only to constitutional and state officers.

Waits Official Report.

"If an attempt should be made to oust the mayor, there are two courses open—prosecution for malfeasance in office or quo warranto proceedings," he said. He added that he still holds the impression, without having seen the official copy of the council proceedings at the Friday uproar, that the mayor is liable to action under either method.

Criminal prosecution for malfeasance means trial by jury, and conviction automatically removes a man from office. Quo warranto proceedings, however, are civil and, according to the prosecutor, punishment is discretionary with the court. Mr. Hoyne, when asked what powers the judge hearing quo warranto proceedings would have, said the court could find against a defendant and temper justice with mercy by simply rebuking him, or the court might decide the defendant had so abused his power that he should be removed from office, and this could be ordered.

May Move Against Coffin.

Earlier in the day Mr. Hoyne announced that he is seriously considering the filing of quo warranto proceedings against Capt. Percy B. Coffin, elected business manager of the new board of education, as a means of settling the merits of the school controversy.

Petitions asking leave to file quo warranto proceedings against "President" Edwin S. Davis, "Attorney" Charles R. Francis, and "Secretary" Miller, elected to these offices by the mayor's "solid six" appointees to the school board, were prepared yesterday. After reading them Mr. Hoyne ordered several changes in them. This may delay the filing of the proceedings until Tuesday. It had been previously decided that they would be filed tomorrow.

Besides the wallop given the mayor by the council, the state's attorney handed another verbal punch to Big Bill's midriff yesterday. The mayor having called Mr. Hoyne an errand boy for the booze interests, the latter retaliated by asserting that the blackest page in Chicago's history has been written during Thompson's administration.

Hoyne's Statement.

When asked about Big Bill's booze effusion, Mr. Hoyne made the following statement:

"So far as I know William Hale Thompson is the only man who was a candidate for mayor and who bound himself in writing over his own signature to stand by booze.

"It will be remembered when he was a candidate for mayor he gave a written pledge to the United Societies that he would not close saloons on Sunday. The photographic copy of that pledge with his signature attached is still in my possession. Of course, Thompson characteristically broke his pledge or rather pretended to soon after he was elected, giving as his excuse to his liquor supporters that he was afraid I might bring about his indictment.

"As mayor he has protected or permitted his heelers in the different wards to discriminate in favor of chosen saloonkeepers who are permitted to operate on Sunday.

Recent Scandals.

"The scandals concerning the revocation of saloon licenses and restorations on the payment of graft is recent history.

"There are a few other things that have not yet been published. For instance, I am informed that the mayor has recently organized a boulevard link club, the members of which are permitted to disgrace themselves by wearing buttons with Mayor Thompson's name upon them. Memberships in this club are procured in the good old fashioned Thompson way. Civil service employés in the city service are told to kick in a dollar apiece, in consideration of which they receive one of said buttons, the cost price of which is about a dime."

THE RECORD

Clerk Igoe's Report of the Proceedings on Friday.

THE record of the council proceedings of Friday—the part on which will be based any impeachment proceedings which may be brought—was obtained in the office of City Clerk Igoe yesterday by "The Tribune." It shows the manner in which the mayor refused to recognize motions and declared "adjournment" as follows:

Ald. Healy moved to approve the minutes of the previous meeting.

Ald. Block moved to take from the table the motion to reconsider the confirmation of the school board appointees made at the previous meeting.

The chair ruled Ald. Block out of order.

Ald. A. A. McCormick appealed from the ruling of the chair. The appeal was ignored by the chair.

The chair then put the question on the motion of Ald. Healy to approve the journal and declared that motion carried.

The chair insisted the clerk proceed with the reading of communications.

Ald. Schwartz moved the council go into a committee of the whole to consider the action of the chair.

The chair ruled Ald. Schwartz out of order.

Ald. Schwartz appealed from the ruling of the chair. The appeal was ignored by the chair.

Ald. McCormick moved that when the council adjourn it adjourn at 6 p. m.

Ald. Cullerton moved the council do now adjourn.

Ald. Iliff raised a point of order, that a motion to adjourn was not debatable. The chair made no ruling.

Ald. McCormick, Block, Schwartz, Lipps, and Kerner demanded a roll call on the motion to adjourn.

The chair put the question on the motion to adjourn to a viva voce vote—ignoring the demands for a roll call—and declared the motion carried.

Ald. McCormick appealed from the decision of the chair.

The mayor thereupon declared the council adjourned and left the chamber.

ROWDIES PERIL SCHOOL MONEYS, SAYS NEW HEAD

Official interview No. 4 was issued by Edwin S. Davis, new president of the board of education, last evening. Mr. Davis' transactions with the reporters are only through signed statements.

Mr. Davis said that "as long as toughs and rowdies threaten violence to school property" he will ask the police to protect the money which has been intrusted to the care of the Thompson board. The statement says:

"I have read the statement of Mayor Thompson appearing in the evening newspapers and coincide with his views as to the motives underlyig the attacks leveled ostensibly at the school trustees and the executive officers of the board, but in reality at the school system itself and its property and funds, in an effort to impede the progress of investigations now on foot which probably will reveal conditions that have made certain interests rich and powerful at the expense of the teachers and school children.

"The trouble is that the school affairs are in the hands of honest, capable trustees as a body loyal to the school system above everything else, who cannot be swerved from the course that is right, which seems to be just what some people do not want.

"The question of police protection at the school board's quarters in the Tribune building is one that I have been asked to define our position upon. As long as toughs and rowdies threaten violence to school property and advocate vandalism to achieve their ends, which is the condition at present, just so long will I request the city's executive to furnish the protection needed to safeguard the property and funds committed to our charge."

Relays of police kept guard against the "toughs and rowdies" all night. Who the "toughs and rowdies" are and what they have threatened could not be learned.

79 COPS ON DUTY IN "LOEB-DAVIS" POLICE STATION

Three Shifts at Board of Education Rooms Are Ever Vigilant.

BY JOHN KELLEY.

[Dean of Chicago Police Reporters.]

Policemen detailed in The Tribune building to guard the rooms of the board of education were resting on their arms when a reporter visited the new station last night.

Lieut. William Coles was in command of the twenty-four patrolmen and three sergeants who were detailed on the middle shift—from 4 p. m. to midnight.

Two other shifts of the same number of men also are assigned at the new station, making in all seventy-two patrolmen, three lieutenants, three sergeants, and one captain.

Little Doing.

The reporter strolled about the "Loeb-Davis" station, as the policemen call it, and found it unlike any other stationhouse he had ever seen. Three floors—the sixth, seventh, and eighth—on which are the rooms of the board of education—are used for station purposes.

"Yes, it is rather quiet tonight," said Lieut. Coles, yawning. "If something doesn't happen pretty soon I don't know what we'll do.

"This is the second night we've been here waiting for an air attack of some kind, but nothing stirring. Say, sergeant [turning to speak to Sergt. Forrell], wake up, there. No sleeping allowed on duty.

"If a fellow could only get out and get a fresh one it wouldn't be so bad," continued the lieutenant. "Nothing doing. I've played pinochle with three or four of the men and beat them out of 10 cents, and now they won't play any more. I never saw such a station."

All Kerry Men on Sixth.

At this juncture Sergt. Thoma, who was in charge of a squad of men on the sixth floor, approached the lieutenant and saluted.

"Say, lute," said the sergeant, "why did you pick out all the Kerry men for my floor? There ain't one of them who can play sixty-six. That's the only game I know, and all they can play is forty-five."

"If somebody would only come upstairs and report a lost kid or a door open it would relieve the monotony," resumed Lieut. Coles. "I'm relieved at midnight by Lieut. Ben Burns. When he comes on he will ask me if there is anything doing.

Can't Even Tie It.

"And when he goes off and is relieved by Lieut. John Hogan he will be asked the same question. Can you beat it? We all have to leave reports to Capt. John Alcock.

"O, if there was only a fight or something to make a fellow forget his loneliness. This awful quiet is getting on my nerves. I wish they'd send me back to my own station."

And the clock struck midnight.

Banks Honor Vouchers Presented by Teachers

School teachers had no trouble in cashing their pay vouchers yesterday in the office of the city treasurer.

As announced yesterday in THE TRIBUNE, Clayton F. Smith, the treasurer, honored all checks, and the banks, aware of his action, did likewise.

It is Mr. Smith's contention that a de facto board was in power when the checks were sent out, but to avoid future complications, he said he would not, for the present, consider vouchers on contracts of the board or other of its matters pertaining to the payment of money.

CAR COMPANY AND MEN AGREE ON COMPROMISE

Union Vote Expected to Avert Disastrous Strike.

One of the greatest victories ever achieved by "let's sit down and talk it over" methods in the history of capital and labor disputes in Chicago was attained yesterday in the controversy arising from the demands of street car and elevated railway operating employés.

Representatives of the two unions involved and the heads of the surface and elevated lines agreed unanimously on a wage increase of 3 cents an hour for the car men of both systems. This amounts to $1,879,000 a year—said by union leaders to be one of the largest awards obtained without a strike or arbitration.

Men Cheer at Meetings.

Last night, after the conferences in the offices of Presidents Busby and Budd at which the agreements were reached, the proposals were put up to the general memberships of the unions at mass-meetings. Outbursts of approval greeted presentation of the new agreements and left but slight doubt that they would be accepted.

Owing to the fact that only a comparatively small portion of the memberships could be assembled in two halls—the street car men at Hodcarriers' hall and the elevated men in the Chicago Federation of Labor auditorium—it was decided unanimously that a referendum vote be taken—the street car men's ballot tomorrow and that of the elevated men on Wednesday. Both votes will be taken at Koch's hall, 234 North Clark street, from 6 a. m. on the days selected to 6 a. m. the following day.

If the street car men accept the agreement, which seems likely, they will have won an increase amounting to $1,454,000 a year. In 1912 they won only $500,000 as an annual increase, and in 1915 $1,000,000.

New Wage Scale.

Figures pertaining to the "L" men's award are proportionately large. They received an increase of $425,000, as against but $150,000 in 1912 and $200,000 in 1915. The increase for both the "L" and street car men amounts to $1,879,000 a year.

Here is the new wage scale for the street car trainmen, by far the majority of the surface lines' employés:

	Present wage per hr.	Proposed wage per hr.
First three months	27c	30c
Second three months	29c	32c
Second six months	30c	33c
Second year	32c	35c
Third year	33c	36c
Fourth year	34c	37c
After fourth year	36c	39c

An increase from $3 to $3.25 is provided for night car runs. Car repairers, placers, and cleaners, and other shop and operating employés also are given increases on the 3 cent basis, whether paid by the day, week, or month.

	Present wage per hr.	Proposed wage per hr.
MINIMUM SCALE.
Motormen	34c	37c
Conductors	28c	31c
MAXIMUM SCALE.
Motormen	38c	41c
Conductors	31c	34c
NIGHT RUNS.
Motormen	39½c	42½c
Conductors	32½c	35½c

As in the surface lines agreement, all other "L" operating employés are to get the straight 3 cent increase. Both agreements are for a period of three years.

Patriotism and loyalty to the country guided the representatives of both unions in every step taken by them in the negotiations with President Busby of the surface lines and President Budd of the Chicago Elevated railways.

Statement by Busby.

President Busby said:

"We have had a very difficult situation to meet. We have been holding almost daily conferences for weeks. At times it looked as if an agreement was impossible, but we always went back to work and finally succeeded in reaching an agreement which carries with it the unanimous approval of the committee representing the union.

"Our employés are facing a heavy increase in the cost of living and the company is facing a heavy increase in the cost of operation, due to the increased cost of material and supplies.

"The new agreement carries with it a wage increase of about $1,500,000 a year. In addition to this the company is obliged to meet a still further increase in operating expenses due to the increased cost of operating material and supplies. This alone will amount to about $500,000 a year.

A Financial Burden.

"This increase is not warranted by the financial condition of the company; in fact, from that standpoint, no increase is warranted at the present time. On the other hand, the management felt it was its duty to meet the issue of increased cost of living fairly and go as far as reasonably possible in helping the men under these difficult conditions. The only way in which the company will be able to carry this heavy burden will be through the loyal coöperation of its employés."

Mahon's Statement.

In presenting the agreement to the street car men last night Mr. Mahon said:

"In the opening up of negotiations your committee realized the situation confronting this organization, owing to the fact that our government is now engaged in a serious war. We realized that it was a situation that called for careful and conservative work upon our part in order to secure an increase in pay and improved conditions for you and at the same time keep out of a strike.

"We realized that to involve Chicago, one of the largest industrial centers of America, in a strike such as would be caused by the suspension of street railway transportation would affect our entire government and possibly in the end bring about a condition detrimental not only to our interests but to that of our entire nation.

"At the opening of these negotiations the company stood firm upon their original offer of 2 cents an hour to the train and barn men in the service, without any consideration to the monthly men and others.

"On the question of wages, we have finally got the company to concede an increase of 3 cents an hour to every member in the service.

A Sacrifice.

"In reaching this proposition we have agreed with the company that we shall say in the preamble of our agreement that it is scarcely enough for us to meet the increased cost of living, but in order to avoid trouble that would in any way complicate or injure the welfare of our government we are making this sacrifice.

"In submitting to you this proposition we ask of you that you carefully consider it. It means an increase of $1,454,000. It is the largest single increase in wages that we have ever received.

"Now, the question before you is whether we shall accept this proposition or take our chance in arbitration. First comes the difficult question of agreeing upon arbitrators, which is liable to lead us into suspension of work before it can be settled. Second, the questions to be arbitrated are another dispute that is serious and might lead to a suspension of work. The company contends that all questions are subject to arbitration. Third, should we secure a board of arbitration, what its award would be no man can tell. The wages might be higher, they might be lower, and we might lose some of our working conditions that are as important to us as wages."

PLAYING HUNCHES

Candidates Tell Why They Would Be Good Operatives in the Secret Service.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23.—If Uncle Sam desired he could have a force of 27,000 secret service agents without half trying, that number having offered their services. To prove that some of the applicants are fitted for the work they said of themselves:

"I read Sherlock Holmes."

"I wear rubber soles and heels."

"I was town constable once."

"I helped a policeman catch a burglar once."

"I just know I can catch German spies."

"I have the sixth sense. When I pass a person I can tell whether he is a spy."

Kenmore Hotel Guest Caught as $1,500 Thief

Lieut. James Walsh and a squad of men from North Halsted street police station surrounded a residence at 2346 Larrabee street in response to a telephone call last night. They caught Edward Szalayo in the house. He had ransacked it and watches and jewelry were found in his pocket.

Szalayo had been living at the Kenmore hotel at Kenmore and Wilson avenues. In his room the police recovered what they declared was $1,500 worth of stolen goods, the loot of a number of north side burglaries. In the plunder were jewelry, silverware, women's silk underwear, revolvers, and a baby's gold garter set with diamonds.

Szalayo implicated as his confederates in robberies William Jennings Bryan Chambers, 1003 Sunnyside avenue, and Carl Wingart, 4657 Malden street, who were arrested and are said also to have confessed.

EXHIBITS FOR THE DEFENSE

Babies in "Baroness'" Nursery, Attacked by Public Safety Commission Head.

"Baroness" Von Eichstaedt and some of her charges

"BLUE RIBBON" BABIES DEFEND CRECHE OWNER

Mothers Protest the Charges Against "Baroness."

Twenty or more mothers yesterday signified their intention of going before the public safety commission to protest the charges made against "Baroness" Frances von Eichstaedt.

The "baroness" conducts a day nursery under the name of the "Home of St. Francis of Rome," at 162 West Elm street. The nursery has been under investigation by Mrs. Bessie W. Bierman of the commission, who charges "negligent and inhuman" treatment in the institution.

"Blue Ribbon" Babies.

The "baroness," who prefers to be known as a plain "Mrs.," denounced the charges as "unfair," "untrue," "ungrateful," and "spiteful." In support of her assertions she produced a miniature "melting pot" of babies. There was Philimenia, Joseph, Elona, Vincent, Rita, Martin, and George as fair samples of her charges. They all appeared to be just the contrary to the indictment contained in the report of Mrs. Bierman. If they had been on exhibition at a baby show, blue ribbons would have been in order.

"Little Dears My Life Work."

"I cannot understand why I am accused of these dreadful things," said the "baroness," who is a matronly woman in her fifties. "These little dears have been my life work. Money? Why, I hardly think of it. There has been one poor mother here with two children for nearly five weeks. I have received exactly $9 from her. She is working and struggling so hard that I would go without food myself before I would turn her out. I am saying this merely to point out the absurdity of the charges."

One's Mother's Defense.

Mrs. Julia Cook was among the mothers who appeared at the nursery yesterday to express her confidence and offer her aid to the "baroness."

"I am just one of many who understand the injustice of this," Mrs. Cook said. She formerly lived at the nursery with her two babies, who were daily left in the care of the "baroness" while she was at her work in the loop.

"These charges can only come from ungrateful persons," Mrs. Cook declared. "The institution is the greatest of its kind. One has only to look at these wonderful babies as examples of what it has and is doing."

The "baroness," who has been served with notice to vacate the present premises owing to its frame construction, declares her willingness to move into a brick building.

TRY THIS ON YOUR LANDLORD WHEN ARGUING RENTS

If you have a bothersome law case involving the payment of wages, don't take it to court, and don't give in to the other fellow. "Get together" with him and go to the Red Cross, which is the greatest court of conciliation in the world, according to Mr. Ignatz Ebner, a former client of the Legal Aid society.

Ebner, a cabinetmaker living at 2060 West North avenue, worked for Frank Bodach, a neighbor, at 2047 West North avenue. He thought he was going to receive $12 for his services and when Mr. Bodach, who disputed the bill, came across with only $6 Ebner took his case to the Legal Aid society. The Legal Aid got the two men together. Mr. Bodach produced $2 more to add to the $6 and said that $8 was positively all he would pay for the work.

"Well," said Mr. Ebner, "if that's all you'll pay I'll take it to the Red Cross."

"Huh!" said Mr. Bodach. "If it's Red Cross I'll pay the $12." And he did so.

A Legal Aid social worker took the two men to the Red Cross headquarters, where each bought three $2 subscriptions to the society and shook hands.

DEATH CLOSES JAIL INMATE'S CASE IN COURT

Slip on Steps Is Fatal to Prisoner Held as Burglar.

John Roberts will not be tried again for burglary. This matter was disposed of yesterday. The disposition is final, and there is no appeal to any court.

Roberts was arrested on March 21. He was 26 years old a few days ago, and he has been confined in the county jail before and after his first hearing. For many days he had expressed some anxiety about his further incarceration. He was of the opinion there was a mistake about his case, and he had asked for further hearing in court, that it might be determined whether he should remain in the county jail.

Bride Is Loyal.

Two months in the county jail did not lessen Roberts' desire for a decision. He rather expected he would be granted a further hearing. He had counted on it, in fact, and numbered the days ahead of him in the jail.

Roberts' cell was on the third tier. Habit had made him observant of his meager surroundings and a grim humor made him liken the clanking, iron steps to the dates on the calendar. As he mounted the steps each day he counted off the days. One of these dull clanking steps was June 23. That was yesterday.

Day in Court Fatal.

Yesterday—June 23—at last became his day in court. He had been given a chance to ask for his rehearing. But, as bad luck would have it, court was busy and he was taken back. He mounted the clanking steps. Out of habit he counted. The other prisoners will tell you. He came to twenty-three—June 23. His foot caught. He slipped, fell back and rolled downstairs, where his head struck the cement floor. His skull was crushed. John Roberts is dead.

YOUNG PASTOR TRIES IN VAIN TO SERVE IN ARMY

Answering what to him was the greatest call of his life brought the deepest heartache he had ever experienced to the Rev. Roberts Williams, a Presbyterian clergyman residing at 1409 East Sixtieth street. He tried to enlist in the army, but was rejected because of a physical defect.

Following his graduation from Princeton Theological seminary in 1916, the Rev. Mr. Williams accepted a pastorate in the mining district of Ontario, British Columbia. He remained there until the United States became involved in the war, when he hastened back to this country and applied for a chaplain's commission in the regular army, but was rejected because of a slight deafness.

Reading of the formation in Chicago of the Seventh reserve engineers, U. S. A., of which Charles G. Dawes is lieutenant colonel, he hastened to this city. Mr. Dawes' son, the late Rufus F. Dawes, had been a classmate in college. He applied for the chaplainship of the regiment, but again was rejected. Yesterday he went before the regiment's recruiting officer again.

"Take me as a private, a track layer, or anything else in the regiment," he pleaded. "Look at my hands—I am used to hard work. I will do anything required of me. All that I ask is a chance to serve my country."

THEATER OWNER SUSTAINS STORY OF POLICEWOMAN

Policewoman Alice Clement, who was accused by Judge Gemmill of being a "knee rubber" from choice, was sustained yesterday in her accusation against a Chinese whom she arrested several days ago and who was discharged by Judge Gemmill.

Chief Schuettler announced he has received a letter from Sigmund Faller, manager of the Bijou Dream theater, in which Faller said that Mrs. Clement was asked by him to watch for certain flirts who were annoying his patrons and that she watched the Chinaman two weeks before catching him in the act of annoying women.

NEW COP SQUAD SEEKS PORT OF MISSING GIRLS

Six Men to Devote All Their Time to Find City's Lost.

Four men have been selected by Acting Chief of Detectives Mooney for the "lost girl squad" and two more men will be added within the next few days. The men already chosen are Sergt. Warren Lavin, Harry Crowley, George Parker, and John Aiken. These men will devote their whole time to a detailed study of the cases of missing girls and intend to become specialists on the subject. Mooney has asked each of them for written suggestions as to the better and further organization of their work.

More than 300 girls have been reported missing in Chicago since January. Chief Mooney says already as many as 80 per cent of them either have been found and returned to their homes or information of their fate given. As soon as a girl is reported missing the officer on duty in her home neighborhood is immediately notified, and the officer on duty in the district where she is most likely to have been, the nearest police station is informed, and record is also made at headquarters.

The detective bureau now has on file a detailed description of every person reported missing for years back, men, women, and children.

Sergt. Lavin says one of the hardest things the new "lost girl squad" will have to meet and overcome will be the attitude of the girls themselves. "The girls when found often wilfully misinform us," he said. "Lots of them would rather go to the house of correction for six months or a year or more than face their parents."

ALL GARY HUNTS MISSING GIRL, 6; SEEN WITH A MAN

Gary, Ind., has a missing child mystery which has aroused the town. Chief of Police Forbin said last night he believed the child had been kidnaped.

Mary Bojuloski, 6 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bojuloski, 1608 Carolina street, disappeared Friday afternoon. She was playing near her home with other children when she left them and, they supposed, started home.

At 6 o'clock that evening she was reported to have been seen with a shabbily dressed man who was leading her by the hand at Fourteenth and Virginia streets, several blocks from her home. That is the last time she was seen by any one who knows her.

The little girl is blue eyed and flaxen haired. "As pretty as a doll" is the description given of her. Her father works in the steel mills.

Knox College Betas Are Their Fathers' Sons

Celebrating the entrance of forty of their members into military service, thirty men of the Beta Theta Pi, Knox college (Old Siwash) chapter, held their first war meeting in the French room of the Stevens building last night. The Knox chapter is the oldest fraternity chapter in Illinois.

A census showed that of 109 Betas in the Fort Sheridan camp fourteen are from Knox.

A military "roll of honor," similar to the one made up at the close of the civil war, which contained the names of every member of the chapter at that time, is to be drawn up and hung beside the other in the George Fitch Memorial chapter room in the chapter house at Galesburg.

LANE LAMBASTES WILSON CRITICS; LAUDS POLICIES

Says People Will Approve Big Cost Incident to Conflict.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—"It is the desire of the people that this war shall be so conducted as to place the responsibility upon the one man in the government whom the people can see—their president and their commander in chief. And when it comes to the day of reckoning I believe that the people will be satisfied that the expenditures they have made in men and money have been made conscientiously, efficiently, and in the attainment of the end for which they hope—a more certain peace for the world."

In these words Secretary of the Interior Lane concluded an interview which he gave me today in defense of President Wilson against the criticism leveled at the executive in regard to the conduct of the war in its initial stages.

The administration already is beginning to feel the fire of censure visited upon it by various eminent critics.

"How can you expect efficient conduct of the war by a president who refused for three years to prepare the nation for an emergency of which he was given full and insistent warning?" exclaimed a Republican senator the other day.

Confidence in Wilson.

Secretary Lane regards criticism of a war executive as only natural in the American democracy, but he is confident that Mr. Wilson will measure up to the task before him as satisfactorily as did Lincoln.

"The power that the president exercises in war time," began Mr. Lane, "is the greatest power that can be vested in any one man under a democracy, for the president has been the commander in chief of the army and navy.

"The constitution impresses him with this duty and this responsibility. This was the outgrowth of Gen. Washington's experience. He had seen the disadvantages and the embarrassments of confused councils.

"And so when it came to the drafting of the constitution a departure was made from the general scheme of things and the president was made solely responsible for the conduct of a war. He is necessarily subjected to criticism, and properly should be so subjected if he makes willful mistakes.

Taught to Lead Selves.

"We are a nation of 100,000,000 people. All of us have been raised in a school of intense individualism. Democracy makes individuals, men who regard themselves seriously and regard their opinion seriously.

"We have been taught to think for ourselves, not to follow a leader. We have been trained in the idea that each of us is capable of performing some real function in government.

"It is this development of the individual, this realization of the possibility of the individual, that makes a democracy great. The first step in the making of a good democrat is giving him the basis on which to criticize what is done.

"The theory of our constitution is that the largest possible executive power is to be lodged in the president in time of war, because it was realized by the constitution makers that some man must be responsible for the job, and that this man could be only the président.

"So, while mistakes may be made during this war and honest criticism may be evoked which is justifiable, it must be remembered that a democracy does not live in anticipation of war; that the programs which a democracy makes are programs of peace.

Wilson Has Courage.

"We must now look to the qualities of the commander in chief, who is our president in the present war, and the first of those qualities is an unflinching courage.

"I have watched him for four years with the greatest interest and have never seen him hesitate a second to do a thing that he believed to be right because either of political influence or of any effect it might have upon his own personal destinies.

"Sometimes he is too patient to satisfy those who are impetuous, but, once he has reached a conclusion, that conclusion becomes a part of his nature. He is inflexible.

"Those who are our allies and those who are opposed to us should by this time realize that the commander in chief of the United States is a man who sees a thing through always, without hesitation, without compromising, without fear. He has in his nature no consciousness whatever of what it is to fear man, which in itself is not a bad characteristic of a soldier.

Conscience His Guide.

"And he has a direct objective. He knows where he is going. It takes time for him to reach his conclusion as to what is the right objective, but when he has determined that for himself he follows that line, and he follows it through.

"His guide is his conscience, and the one word that most nearly summarizes his nature and expresses his career is the word 'duty.' Tell him what his duty is and he does it.

"Mr. Wilson meets situations by asking very concretely, 'What is the thing that I can do in this situation that will make for the perpetuation of real democracy?'

"That is his interest in this war. When he said in his remarkable message that he wanted this world made safe for democracy he expressed the very deepest feeling of his nature.

His Will Dominates.

"So, then, we have a commander in chief who has these qualities: Courage, patience, steadfastness, farsightedness. These are the qualities of a great commander. He knows now what he wishes to secure for democracy out of this war, and he is not thinking of the war in terms of personality or of personal triumph or of national triumphs, but of the world future, a freer opportunity for the spirit of the man.

"I have no hesitancy in saying that he never conceived of himself as playing such a part as that which he now plays in world affairs, but if he had, every move that he made in the past would have been inconsistent with the position he holds at present."

Dorothy and Violet Peterson

W. J. STANKUNAS PHOTO

Persons living in the vicinity of 4240 North Drake avenue were hosts to a heavenly visitation early yesterday when a meteorite fell in an areaway at that number. It frightened Mrs. Catherine Peterson so she slept no more that night. But her daughters, Dorothy and Violet, exhibited no fear, fondling the celestial visitor with extreme familiarity. Miss Mabel Holm saw the meteorite soon after it cracked the cement areaway and left a trail of smoke in its wake. The rock is about two feet in diameter and of the hardness of granite.

U. S. DESTROYER SEES SHIP SUNK; UNABLE TO HELP

BASE OF THE AMERICAN FLOTILLA IN BRITISH WATERS, June 23.—To see a merchant ship torpedoed as he was speeding to its rescue was the exasperating experience reported by the commander of an American destroyer on his return today. Fortunately the destroyer arrived in time to pick up all of the crew, many of whom were swimming about.

The destroyer was convoying a food ship when it received an "S. O. S." from a merchantman which was being attacked by a submarine thirty miles away. Leaving the food ship at the risk of losing it, the destroyer speeded to the assistance of the other vessel, only to be greeted when almost within hailing distance by a terrific explosion and the spectacle of a great column of water enveloping the ship, but not the slightest sign of the enemy.

Quickly picking up the crew, the destroyer put back at full speed to the food ship in order to save it from a like fate.

The spectacle of Vice Admiral Sims serving hot coffee to survivors of a submarined ship was witnessed here last night when fifty-five members of the crew of a torpedoed British merchantman reached land. He greeted many of the survivors with a handshake.

Charles Dalton of New York and several American Negroes were among the survivors. Dalton said the ship had been torpedoed without warning and sank within a few minutes.

SUFFRAGE RAIDS RESULT IN FOUR MORE ARRESTS

Washington, D. C., June 23.—Four suffrage pickets were arrested today when they attempted to display banners which were inscribed with statements derogatory to the president. Two of them were caught by policewomen in front of the White House and the others were arrested at the capitol building. A number of other women who were at the capitol were not arrested, as they were not bearing banners.

The women were charged with violation of sections 5 and 6 of the police regulations against unlawful assemblies obstructing traffic. They were permitted to depart, however, on their own recognizance with the understanding that they will appear later for trial.

The National Women's party also addressed the women members of the Russian mission at the Plaza hotel, New York, a letter inviting a personal interview on suffrage subjects.

body, as well as those for the support of the council of the empire.

Addressed by Root.

MOSCOW, Friday, June 22.—The American commission headed by Elihu Root today for the first time since their arrival in Russia made the formal acquaintance of the representatives of the workmen and soldiers.

Conferences were held with the Moscow leaders of all the political and industrial factions commonly grouped under the term proletariat. Within a few hours of the arrival of the commission Mr. Root had delivered two stirring addresses, the first to the associated committees of Moscow and the second to the municipal duma which gathered in special session to greet the Americans.

In both meetings Mr. Root was warmly received and his repeated declarations that America had faith in Russia's ability and determination to wage to the end the war of democracy against German militarism brought an immediate response from all the factions represented to the effect that Russia would not lay down her arms while German autocracy or any other obstacle imperiled the continued existence and safety of the newly won freedom of the Russian people.

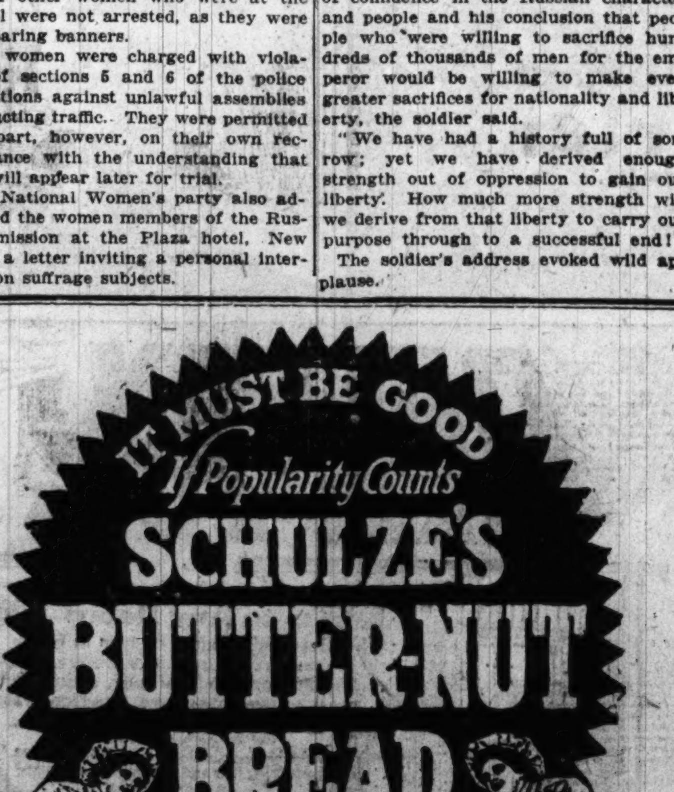
Soldier Says Fight Will Go On.

Perhaps the most dramatic and significant episode of the day occurred when a common soldier who is president of the Moscow soldiers' deputies in the municipal duma rose in response to Mr. Root's appeal to Russia and in ringing tones said they would do their duty.

In answer to Mr. Root's declaration of confidence in the Russian character and people and his conclusion that people who were willing to sacrifice hundreds of thousands of men for the emperor would be willing to make even greater sacrifices for nationality and liberty, the soldier said.

"We have had a history full of sorrow; yet we have derived enough strength out of oppression to gain our liberty. How much more strength will we derive from that liberty to carry our purpose through to a successful end!"

The soldier's address evoked wild applause.



'BONE DRY U. S.' VOTED BY HOUSE TO SAVE FOODS

Bill Gives the President Power to Prevent Rising Prices.

were limited to articles specifically mentioned in the bill instead of giving him blanket authority; voluntary aids in control work were made subject to the penal provision; all persons in the food administration except those serving without compensation were placed under civil service; and the president was required to make an annual report on the operation of the bill.

An amendment by Representative Keating of Colorado providing that nothing in the bill shall be construed as repealing or affecting the labor exemption provisions of the Sherman antitrust law was rejected, 45 to 162.

Close to Fisticuffs.

The fight over the prohibition section of the bill nearly caused a physical encounter between Representative Kelly of Pennsylvania and Representative Meeker of St. Louis while the house was in committee.

After a number of amendments intended to prohibit the use of food materials in the manufacture of alcohol had been ruled out of order, Mr. Kelly took the floor and in an impassioned speech declared that the proceedings during the day had made him suspicious of the whole food bill.

His suspicion had been especially aroused when, after the first prohibition amendment had been offered by Webb of North Carolina, it had been defeated by a "canned ruling." A second amendment was defeated also by a "canned ruling."

Mr. Kelly referred to the fact that the ruling in each of these cases had been prepared in advance of the need for an opinion. Representative Hamlin of Missouri, who was presiding as chairman of the committee of the whole, had, in each case, drawn a typewritten decision from his pocket, which he proceeded to read to the house.

Makes Attack on Meeker.

Mr. Kelly said that another circumstance which had aroused his suspicion was the discovery that Mr. Meeker, the representative of the district controlled by the St. Louis brewers, was supporting the bill.

He could not believe that the bill honestly intended to restrict the manufacture of alcohol from food materials, if Mr. Meeker was in favor of it.

Meeker rose and proclaimed that any man who said that his attitude with respect to the bill was due to the provision respecting the manufacture of alcohol, was a liar.

Kelly retorted that he did not wish to be reflected upon by a man "wearing the title of a doctor of divinity but exhibiting the manners of a barroom bully."

At this the excitement of the house broke through all restraint. Kelly was called to order and demands made that his words be taken down. This was finally done, whereupon, after some discussion, the house decided that Kelly's statements reflecting upon Meeker and upon Hamlin, the chairman of the committee of the whole, should be stricken from the record, together with what Meeker had said to Kelly. The vote to expunge was unanimous.

Text of the Amendment.

The amendment for the seizure of liquor or distilled spirits leaves the entire matter to the discretion of the president. Its text follows:

"The president is authorized, if in his opinion it is necessary to conserve necessaries, to require any person having control of alcohol and distilled spirits to turn over to government use or redistillation such proportion of said alcohol or spirits as the president may deem necessary to meet the requirements of the government in the manufacture of munitions and other military and hospital supplies, in so far as such use or redistillation would dispense with the necessity of utilizing products and materials suitable for foods and feeds in the future manufacture of alcohol or distilled spirits for the purposes herein enumerated.

"Upon the failure of the person to comply with the president's requirement the president is authorized to requisition and take possession of the alcohol and distilled spirits required to be turned over and to pay for same a just compensation, to be determined by the president, and if the price so determined be not satisfactory to the person entitled to receive the same such person shall be paid the amount prescribed by the president and shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as, added to the amount so paid, will be just compensation."

Senator Gallinger told the senate today that press reports were erroneous in saying he opposed the administration bill. He said he opposed only "certain objectionable" features.

FOOD CONTROL

Provisions of Bill Which Grants the President Power to Conserve All Supplies and Forbid Liquor.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—The administration food control bill, passed by the house tonight, contains the following provisions:

Prohibits the use of foodstuffs for the manufacture of alcoholic beverages during the war and providing drastic punishment for violation, beer and wines included.

Authorizes the president to confiscate existing stocks of distillers' spirits or alcoholic liquors for medicinal and munitions purposes, or for redistribution for these purposes.

Authorizes the creation of a food administration board to control all necessaries, control to extend to and include all processes, methods, activities of and for production, manufacture, procurement, storage, distribution, sale, marketing, pledging, financing, and consumption of necessaries, which are declared to be affected with the public interest.

Authorizes the president to enter into voluntary arrangements or agreements, to accept services of persons without compensation and to coöperate with agencies or individuals to avoid preventable loss or duplication of effort in conservation of necessities.

Makes unlawful willful destruction of necessities to enhance price or restrict supply, or to monopolize or attempt to monopolize; to hoard necessities or to engage in any discriminatory, unfair, deceptive, or wasteful practices, to make any unjust or unreasonable charges; or to conspire or combine to limit facilities for transportation, manufacturing, supplying, storing, or dealing in necessities.

Authorizes the president to license concerns engaged in importation, exportation, storage, or distribution of food necessities in his discretion under regulations to be prescribed by him, and also gives him authority to prohibit unfair prices.

Authorizes the president to purchase and provide for production and manufacturing of necessities, and to store and sell them whenever conditions demand such a course; and also gives him authority to requisition factories, mines, or other plants in which necessities are manufactured or produced, to be operated by the government.

Gives the president power to prevent and prohibit speculation in necessities in order to prevent unjust markets manipulation.

Gives authority, in order to stimulate production, to guaranty reasonable prices to producers of necessities, and also to levy duties on imports whenever they enhance the liabilities of the United States under guaranties of prices.

Appropriates $152,500,000 for administration of the act.

Chicago Produce Men to Confer with Hoover

George Haskell, president of the Fox River Creamery company; John A. Lowe, president of the Chicago Cold Storage company, and F. E. Davis, president of the Chicago Butter and Egg company, will hold a conference on food conservation with Herbert C. Hoover, food director of the national council of defense in Washington tomorrow. They left for the capital yesterday as a committee appointed by the Chicago butter and egg board.

Old Glory Post.

Old Glory post, No. 798, G. A. R., will hold an open meeting in their hall, 412 Masonic temple, this afternoon at 2:30. The meeting will be in charge of Thomas circle, Ladies of the Grand Army, Mrs. Mary Dittmar, chairman.

STATE COUNCIL GIVES REMEDY IN COAL CRISIS

Greater Use of Equipment One of Its Twelve Suggestions.

Greater use of available railroad equipment in the transportation of coal and the establishment of rules or laws whereby such increased transportation may be assured were found by the special coal production committee of the state council of defense yesterday to be the remedy for the coal situation in Chicago and the middle west.

Because of the war, reads a portion of the report, coal mines in Illinois and Indiana will be asked to provide a minimum of 25,000,000 tons more coal than was mined by them last year.

Recommendations.

The recommendations in the report follow:

Full capacity loading of all railroad cars.

Special recommendations for storage of coal by railroads, industrial, power, and gas plants, factories, retail dealers, and householders.

Postponement, where possible, of public works and improvements that tie up open top cars necessary for the movement of coal.

Reduction to minimum of reconsignment of coal.

Absolute application for ninety days of the rule making coal and iron ore preferred commodities in the use of open top cars.

Reduction of free time at destination to one day instead of two, as heretofore.

Provision where possible of their own equipment by utility and industrial concerns to move coal from the mines to their plants.

Return of Empties.

Provision of cars by railroads outside of Illinois for the movement of coal to destination on their own lines.

That an order be issued compelling connecting lines to return home empty all open top equipment received by them from originating coal carrying lines in Illinois.

Direct routing of coal, and, where at all practicable, by shortest mileage.

Condemn the practice of various roads holding large amounts of railroad fuel in coal cars instead of storing it near points of consumption.

Cars available at the end of each week after Saturday mine loading is completed to be placed at mines having storage coal for loading on Sundays.

Members of Committee.

Members of the committee which made the report are, C. H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central railroad; C. G. Burnham, traffic vice president of the C. B. & Q. railroad; W. J. Jackson, receiver for the C. & E. I. railroad, representing transportation interests; J. K. Dering, president of the J. K. Dering Coal company; D. W. Buchanan, president of the Old Ben Coal corporation; Dr. F. C. Honald, secretary of the Franklin County Operators' association, representing the coal operators, and John A. Spoor, representing the council of defense.

OGDEN ARMOURS BOTH MAGAZINE AUTHORS ON WAR

Mr and Mrs. J. Ogden Armour are contributors to the Ladies' Home Journal this month. They write on wartime economies. Mrs. Armour tells of domestic economy in her villa in Lake Forest.

"From my table I have eliminated expensive, out-of-season fruits," writes Mrs. Armour, "all rich dainties, and those parts of the menu which may properly be regarded as luxuries. To aid further in the conservation of food, 800 acres of our country place have been planted in vegetables. The large lawn about our town house is likewise planted with vegetables."

Mr. Armour writes this warning to housewives:

"We need an increase of at least 50 per cent in our foodstuffs. I cannot emphasize too strongly my belief that a serious food shortage and a multitude of accompanying evils, ranging from high prices to a national humiliation, is in prospect unless you, the women of America, promptly and decisively act to prevent it."

WILSON WORKS TO STOP UNFAIR PROFITS IN WAR

Daniels Says America Must Safeguard Oil for Navy's Use.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—President Wilson demonstrated today his determination to take a firm grip on the industrial situation as it affects government supplies for the war.

While members of congress were preparing for investigations of supply prices and criticizing members of the advisory commission of the council of national defense who advise purchase of products of their own companies, the president appeared unannounced at the office of the federal trade commission to look into things.

With the president stirring up the trade commission, Secretary of the Navy Daniels took a hand in the situation and declared to the senate public lands committee that the government may soon find it necessary to commandeer all oil and coal in the country, or at least maintain absolute control of prices.

Long Talk with Harris.

The president would not disclose the object of his visit to the trade commission, but it is known that he urged expedition of various investigations, particularly regarding coal, food, and steel.

For nearly an hour the president conferred with W. J. Harris, chairman of the commission, and his visit added confirmation to the report that the government is seriously considering commandeering coal, steel, and other industrial plants for the period of the war unless conditions which are tending toward extortion are adjusted.

The trade commission has been making an exhaustive inquiry into price conditions, and although it recommended to congress that the government be empowered to fix the price and regulate the production and distribution of coal, opposition to such a plan has developed from more than one source.

"Simply Seeking Facts."

It is not known that the president agrees that such drastic steps should be taken if the matter can be adjusted through other means.

"I simply came up here to obtain information," was all the president would say when asked as to the object of today's visit on the members of the commission.

It is known that the president believes that the work of the commission should be concluded rapidly in order that he may have before him the information and data gathered. Especially is this true with regard to coal and fuel. These are important not only to the government but to the domestic consumers as well.

It is expected that as a result of today's conference there will be a general speeding up of the work of the federal trade commission.

Oil Condition Is Grave.

"The time is not far distant," Secretary Daniels told the senate public lands committee, "when the government will find it necessary to commandeer all oil and coal, or to enter into an arrangement whereby the government will control coal and oil prices."

The committee had under consideration the so-called coal and oil lands leasing bill, with an amendment offered by Senator Phelan of California seeking to give relief to the California oil operators whose claims and operations have been held up since the executive order creating the naval oil reserves in California.

Secretary Daniels announced his opposition to throwing open the big naval oil reserves to these operators, as it proposed under the bill. The navy has entered upon a policy of building oil burning vessels and more than 200 oil burning vessels are now under construction.

New Oil Burning Ships.

Three dreadnaughts, burning oil, have been launched within the last three months, and three more will be launched within the next three months, he told the committee. He said that more than sixty destroyers, all using oil for fuel, are under construction.

"If we haven't the oil," said the secretary, "we will have to reverse our policy, and be inferior to the other navies of the world which burn oil."

The secretary said it had been urged upon him that the oil situation is California is critical. He said he had no doubt there is great need of oil there.

Navy Dependent on Oil.

"But there is great need of oil everywhere," he continued. "Oil is the basis of war operations today. You cannot run your submarines, your aeroplanes, your destroyers, and your battleships without oil. You can't get to the front without oil.

"This commission must decide whether the needs of the oil operators in California, the users of oil there, are superior to the national defense. The preservation of the navy's oil resources is necessary to the defense of the country.

"The demand for oil will grow greater as the war continues; the navy and the country will be far worse off for oil a year from now than they are today."

Issue Call for Hearing.

Members of the council of national defense and its advisory commission, it was learned today, will be requested to appear next week at hearings by the senate interstate commerce commission into fuel transportation and steel problems and the necessity for fixing prices and controlling distribution. The first hearing will be held Tuesday, when coal conditions will be taken up.

Senator Newlands, chairman of the commission, issued the following statement today:

"The abnormal conditions created by the war have disturbed price levels, which had hitherto been adjusted by competition. It had been demonstrated that competition was powerless to keep prices of the basic materials at the normal level; that the result of the law of supply and demand had been that an enormous demand had been precipitated upon a limited supply and that thus there was no limit to which the prices might not soar.

"In such condition it was necessary that there should be some governmental action covering not simply railway material and supplies—the effect of the increase of which was to raise the rates of transportation—and not only coal but all the basic materials, which constituted the necessaries of production."

Early Inquiry on Steel.

With respect to steel it was stated at the trade commission today that an inquiry into conditions would be instituted in the near future and that cost facts developed would be used as a basis for legislation to protect the consumer from abnormally high prices.

Echoes of the dispute between Chairman Denman of the shipping board and Maj. Gen. Goethals, manager of the emergency fleet corporation, were heard today despite well authenticated reports last night that the row had been settled in a conference between Gen. Goethals and the president yesterday.

Reports were revived today that Gen. Goethals would be given power to commandeer shipyards and to extend the $500,000,000 recently appropriated for construction of ships with the understanding that he build wooden ships as far as practicable as well as steel. None of the members of the shipping board nor Gen. Goethals would discuss the report.

SAVING CHICAGO'S HONOR

Women Try to Raise Red Cross Total to Quota Set for City.

Misses: Olga Menn, Marion Lydston, Amy Van Craenbroeck, and Mrs. J. W. Lederer.

With Chicago way back in its Red Cross collection the women jumped in harder than ever yesterday in the attempt to save Chicago's reputation for generosity.

Tables and booths were set up in many of the hotels and office buildings about the city, one of them, that at the Congress hotel, being shown here.

Among the women who were on duty there were Miss Olga Menn, Miss Marion Lydston, Miss Amy Van Craenbroeck, and Mrs. J. W. Lederer.

Marquis Eaton Says Statement by Henry W. Lee About Overhead Expenses of the Red Cross Is Without Foundation.

"ACCOUNTS of the Red Cross are all audited by the war department and its expenditures are controlled by men trained in finance," said Marquis Eaton, chairman of the Chicago chapter of the organization, last night. The interview was given out as the result of a statement published in a small weekly, the Calumet Record, that the Red Cross consumes much of its gifts in "overhead" expenses.

The publication, Mr. Eaton adds, is "owned and edited by Henry W. Lee, a civilian, who recently received an appointment as major and who wears, accordingly, the uniform of the United States army." Mr. Eaton adds:

"Do not the names of Cleveland H. Dodge, Henry P. Davison, Cornelius N. Bliss, Edward N. Hurley, Julius Rosenwald, Frank S. Peabody, Henry Morgenthau, Francis I. Higginson, Festus J. Wade, and their associates on the war finance committee fortify the country against recklessness, inexperience, or waste?

"These men, all serving without pay, giving, most of them, all their time, associated throughout the country with men of like character and experience, serving also without pay, are the best answer to any statement that Red Cross contributions are dissipated in overhead expense. The falsity of such a statement is so immediately demonstrated by any one who makes the slightest efforts to learn the facts that its repetition ought, in time of war, to be deemed treasonable."

The statement is made that not more than 1 per cent of Red Cross money is paid in "overhead" expense. It is understood that charges have been preferred against Lee to the war department.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN PARK; GLASS OF POISON NEAR

The body of a well dressed man was found on one of the baseball diamonds at Lincoln park early yesterday. He is believed to have ended his life by drinking poison. A glass containing some of the liquid lay within a few feet of the body.

According to the police physicians, the man had been dead for several hours. The body was found by Frank Gargano, a Lincoln park employé. The glass containing some of the poison was turned over to the coroner's chemist for analysis.

The body was that of a man about 35 or 40 years old, medium height and build. Nearly all the teeth in the lower jaw were gone. He was dressed in a dark suit, striped shirt, black silk socks, and new tan oxfords. The only marks of identification were the initials "L. A. F." in his hat band. The body was taken to the Roberts undertaking rooms at 1625 Wells street.

GIRLS OF NORTH SHORE CAN HELP TRAIN OFFICERS

So Will Parents of the Men Who Are at Fort.

Charles F. Weller and Charles E. Reed, representing the war department commission on training camp activities, yesterday announced plans for organizing the social and recreational resources of Chicago and the communities about Fort Sheridan to be of greatest benefit for the men in camp.

The work of the commission is divided into Y. M. C. A. work, the exclusion of vice and vicious resorts from camp neighborhoods, and constructive recreation for the soldiers.

"In our effort to make the men more fit in every sense than they have ever been in their lives," said Mr. Weller, "perhaps the most important single methods is in keeping alive the link between the soldier and his home. Frederick Law Olmstead gave as his conclusion from long service in the civil war that the two great influences in keeping men well were singing and letters from home.

"Better than letters from home will be the presence of the soldier's family near camp. It is hoped that every community near a camp will make special provision for the entertainment of the families of soldiers.

"Equally important is the relation between the men in camp and the local community. Here every sort of natural relation should be established. Churches should make the soldiers feel welcome. The same principle applies to every lodge, college society, or business association, clubs, settlements, and recreation centers.

"Social occasions where soldiers may meet girls under wholesome conditions will be specially important. Officers and men should be asked to receptions, dances, outings, and parties.

"The girls of a community will naturally taken an interest in the soldiers. It should be the endeavor of every church and social organization to help the girls meet the soldiers. A good plan will be to foster among girls various activities for keeping themselves fit and strong for helping directly in the war."

500 CHILDREN FORM AUXILIARY OF THE RED CROSS

The children's auxiliary of the Red Cross was organized by Miss Helen Hamilton at Athenaeum hall, 59 East Van Buren street, with a membership of 500 yesterday.

The auxiliary is the outgrowth of the Chicago Children Players that presented the drama of "Cinderella" at the Strand theater during Baby week. The play will be filmed and reproduced all over the country, the proceeds to go to the Red Cross.

The filming of the play will be directed by Otis B. Thayer of the Seelig company. The inside pictures will be made at Rothacker's studio in Diversey parkway and the outside pictures in Lincoln, Jackson, and Garfield parks. A hundred children appear in the cast. Cinderella is taken by Anna Spahn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Spahn, 1017 North Franklin street. Walker Wynekoop, son of Dr. A. Lindsay Wynekoop, 3406 West Monroe street, takes the part of the prince.

PERSHING URGES RED CROSS GIFTS

PARIS, June 23.—"America can show her colors in no better way than to subscribe generously to the Red Cross," was the message sent to the people "back home" today by Maj. Gen. John J. Pershing, who will command the first army of Americans to take their places in the allied trenches.

Pershing's message was cabled to H. P. Davison, now directing the Red Cross campaign to raise $100,000,000.

Simultaneously five Americans were receiving decorations from the French government for bravery in carrying on their work with Red Cross divisions now in the field.

"Congratulations on the splendid Red Cross campaign," Pershing's message to Davison read.

"Never before has there been such need in Red Cross work. America can show her colors in no better way than to subscribe generously."

BUYS $1,000,000 LIBERTY BONDS ON EXCHANGE

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—Sensational transactions in the Liberty loan bonds on the stock exchange today gave emphasis to Wall street's elation over the great success of the government's financing.

Shortly after the market opened L. C. Benedict of Benedict, Drysdale & Co., 7 Wall street, which frequently executes big commission orders for financiers, announced that he was prepared to buy all the Liberty bonds offered at par. A single $100 bond had sold at 100 when Mr. Benedict made the offer.

Within a few minutes $1,245,000 of the bonds were sold, Mr. Benedict obtaining $1,000,000 of them. He then raised his bid to 100 1-50, but only secured a few small blocks. During the day five bonds sold at 100 2-50.

CHICAGO TO FAIL RED CROSS PLEA? $3,839,874 SHY

Nearly $4,000,000 Must Be Raised by Monday Night.

"Chicago, the dynamic, the prosperous; Chicago, the proud, the free-handed; Chicago, the second largest city in the United States, is going to sit back and let the money contributed by other cities be used in caring for her sick and wounded on the battle front.

"Chicago, which has never fallen down on the job before, is going to lie down now. Chicago is going to be the joke of the country, unless her people come across and subscribe more than $3,000,000 before midnight Monday."

City Is Arraigned.

Thus was Chicago arraigned Saturday night by one of the leaders in the campaign to rase $8,000,000 as her share of the $100,000,000 Red Cross war fund to be contributed by the country at large.

Where it was expected that fully $6,000,000 would have been subscribed by last night in the week's campaign, only $4,160,126 had been reported in. With Sunday out this leaves but one full day in which to make up the deficit, which means that almost $4,000,000 must be subscribed in one day.

The subscriptions reported yesterday totaled $227,917, or about $800,000 less than was counted on.

Some of yesterday's big donations follow: Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, Standard Oil company, American Steel Foundries, and James A. Patten, $25,000 each; Sefton Manufacturing company, Interstate Iron and Steel company, Union Stock Yards and Transit company, Helen Swift Morris, Seniet Solvay, $10,000 each; O. J. Buck, United States Gypsum company, Franklin McVeagh & Co., Reliance Manufacturing company, and John P. Wilson, $5,000 each.

Window Campaign Counts.

Of the total contributed yesterday, $3,672.25 was reported by the various banks as a result of their "Window No. 1" campaign.

Today has been proclaimed Red Cross Sunday by Gov. Lowden and 15,000 ministers have been asked to take up collections for the war fund.

The women who were called in Friday to help save the day worked long and tirelessly in stores, hotels, and office buildings. Their report for Friday shows they collected $2,351.90. Yesterday, with a number yet to report, they turned in $1,703.61. Mrs. Frank O. Wetmore and Mrs. Marian Knickerbocker Wood, who had a table in the lobby of the First National Bank building, turned the winning trick of the women's teams Friday, when they reported $1,360.

Report of Women's Teams.

The women's teams which reported yesterday showed the following for the day:

Station.	Amount
First National Bank building	$485.35
Great Northern hotel	30.15
Carson Pirie Scott & Co.	130.01

Lewis Johnson of the auxiliary committee has sent out an appeal that owners of at least fifty cars report to Room 1534 First National Bank building at 10 o'clock Monday morning. The machines will be loaded with solicitors and sent to canvass the outlying districts.

LOWDEN PLEADS

Governor Tells Why People Should Help Red Cross on Its Special Day Today.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 23.—With a plea for generous contributions by all Illinoisans on Red Cross Sunday, Gov. Lowden today issued the following proclamation:

"Tomorrow is Red Cross Sunday. Under the strain of war which is upon us, there is no institution which is moved more fully by the spirit of the Master than the Red Cross. The war is a war for humanity.

"I know of no human institution which surpasses the Red Cross in the singleness of purpose with which it ministers to humanity. I earnestly hope that our people will unite by their generosity in helping to make Red Cross Sunday one of the memorable days of this memorable year.

"FRANK O. LOWDEN."

RED CROSS SHY 20 MILLION; ONLY TWO DAYS LEFT

Cleveland Star of the Race; Northcliffe Sees Long War.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—Twenty million dollars must be collected tomorrow and Monday by the Red Cross volunteers campaigners in American cities and towns to make the week's canvass for a $100,000,000 fund a success. Despite the spectacular spurts of a number of cities, new pledges reported to national headquarters today were only $3,000,000, making the aggregate collections for six days about $80,000,000.

The need of every humanity dollar that can be collected was emphasized today by Lord Northcliffe, British war commissioner, now in the United States, in a letter to Henry B. F. MacFarland, chairman of the District of Columbia Red Cross finance committee.

"In wishing success and prosperity to your efforts," Lord Northcliffe wrote, "I would, as an experienced Red Cross worker, urge caution and conservation of effort. You will need every cent you can collect, and every pair of human hands you can employ. The war, in my personal opinion, is but beginning."

Cities May Continue Work.

Word reached here tonight that committees in a number of cities will refuse to quit work Monday night, when the campaign formally closes.

Cleveland, which promises to be the star of the week's performance, by noon today made its total $4,182,000 and passed Chicago, whose report at that hour showed $4,160,000. New York City's total was known to be approaching $35,000,000.

Baltimore, where almost nothing had been subscribed, was stirred to pledge its entire allotment of $1,000,000 at a conference today of business men called by Edward N. Hurley of Chicago, former chairman of the federal trade commission, and H. J. Hill, assistant manager of the campaign.

Expect Big Returns Today.

Tomorrow is Red Cross day in thousands of Sunday schools and churches. Campaign directors expect the harvest from rural districts, where intensive solicitation has not been done this week, to be large in church reports.

In a statement tonight on the designation of Monday as "Pershing day" Secretary Baker said:

"It is eminently fitting that the final day of the Red Cross week—a week devoted to collecting $100,000,000 for the purposes of humanity—should be called 'Pershing day.'"

It was announced today that the Red Cross will send an American commission to Russia to work along and behind the battle front in the same way a similar commission is to operate in France and Belgium.

100 NORTH SHORE HOMES OPEN TO WAR STUDENTS

Will Entertain 220 Whose Sunday Would Otherwise Be Dull.

Fort Sheridan, Ill., June 23.—One hundred homes in Lake Forest, Evanston, and other north shore suburbs have been opened for the entertainment of members of the reserve officers' training camp who live so far from Fort Sheridan that a week-end visit with their families is impossible.

This evening Secretary Martin of the army Y. M. C. A. announced that the branch of its activities having to do with the recreation of men left in camp over Sunday was proving most successful.

"Tomorrow," he said, "we are sending out 220 young men to spend part of Sunday in families all the way from Lake Forest to Glencoe. Many will go to the finest homes on the north shore. The number is increasing every week. Letters offering to entertain student officers now are pouring in more rapidly than we can take care of them."

Entertainment Varies.

Some of the invitations are for dinner; some for tea, and some cover almost the entire day.

Plans for a military dance for the benefit of the Red Cross next Saturday afternoon were announced by headquarters. All the candidates for commissions have been invited to attend with their friends. It will be the first social affair of the camp, the first chance the "ladies of the camp" have had to participate in its activities, and as the number of tickets is limited to 500 a rush is expected when they are put on sale at the canteen on Monday.

The dance was arranged by a group of Austin girls—Miss Violet Hanks, Miss Myrtle Hanks, Miss Marion Plew, and Miss Alice Van Sands. Col. W. J. Nicholson has given it his approval. He and Capt. Wallace B. Scales, the adjutant, will act as patrons and Mrs. Nicholson and Mrs. Scales as patronesses.

All for Red Cross.

There will be no expenses attached to the dance, everything being provided by the post officers, so that all the proceeds will go to the Red Cross. Chaperons will board the 12:20 and 12:35 trains from Chicago and transportation from the Fort Sheridan station to the gymnasium will be by quartermaster trucks, specially equipped with seats for the occasion. The First Illinois Infantry band will provide the music.

The first accident of any consequence during the six weeks since the camp opened was reported today. During an inter-company baseball game H. M. Heigho of Detroit broke the small bones of the lower left leg. The surgeons say he will be out of the hospital in a short time.

CHEER

First Aid for Lonely Soldier Boys.

Miss Gertrude Elmore
WATERS PHOTO

Our soldiers and sailors are not to be lonesome, if the Loyal Girls of America society has its way about it. The Chicago mother chapter already has obtained the pledges of many women and girls to correspond with the American boys in war service. The scheme is for an exchange of letters to relieve monotony and keep the boys in good spirits. Miss Gertrude Elmore, the Chicago secretary, sees a big field for good work. She cites the following letter as proof of the need of correspondents for our soldiers:

U. S. S. Michigan,
May 30, 1917.

Loyal Girls of America Society,
6616 Kimbark avenue,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Friend:

Your letter, which was posted on our bulletin board, should certainly bring cheer to some of the Michigan lads. Many of us have not received a word from home since we enlisted. If there were enough societies like yours, life in the U. S. navy would be a pleasure.

You stated that you would like to send us little things to cheer us up. Many of our sailors have no pay accounts aboard yet, and have to go without things they like and many that they need. Nearly every sailor smokes, and a pipe, tobacco or some cigarets would certainly be enjoyed.

In answer to your request, I will send you the names of a few of my good-natured friends who will be glad to answer your letters.

Hoping we may all be friends: J. J. Schultz, O. L. V. Williams, L. J. Seacrest, A. L. Rathert.

NO REPRISALS BY U. S. FLYERS

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—In war and state department circles today it was strongly intimated that American airmen will not participate with British and French fliers in air raids on German communities in reprisal for raids on London and other British cities and towns.

The expressions of opinion were elicited by a London press report, published today, stating that an elaborate system of reprisals by British airmen would be postponed until they could have the assistance of American fliers. This report met with scant consideration.

American aeroplanes and aviators will be used to the fullest extent in legitimate military operations. The American view, as gathered here, is that reprisals are not a part of such operations. Reprisals make the situation worse and once begun no one can tell where they will end.

CHURCHES TO AID IN ENLISTING WILSON'S 70,000

Edifices to Be Used as Recruiting Stations for Regulars.

Chicago churches mingling patriotism with religious zeal will be thrown open tomorrow as recruiting stations in the campaign for Chicago's quota of the 70,000 volunteers asked by President Wilson to fill out the regular army. More than twenty-five chuches already have prepared to become recruiting stations.

More than 800 Sunday schools and Bible classes have formed for coöperative work in obtaining recruits. The doors of the churches designated as recruiting stations will bear the colors of the nation and the army recruiting flag such as adorns the recruiting station at 526 South State street, in charge of Capt. Franklin R. Kenney. Seeking recruits in the districts centered by the churches thus designated will be squads of Sunday school workers.

Reminds Them of Lincoln.

Among the Bible class workers the supervision will be centered in the patriotic service committee, of which Dr. Myron E. Adams is chairman and Herbert C. Mayer is secretary. As an added incentive to bring up the number of recruits Capt. Kenney has addressed a letter to the various bodies of workers reminding them that fifty years ago President Lincoln called forth the great army that saved the nation in its hour of peril.

Recruiting literature and posters have been sent to all churches, and this will be distributed throughout the city. Each church recruiting station will be in charge of an officer and aids and the recruits will be sent directly to the recruiting headquarters and prepared for the trip to training headquarters.

Chicago Leads.

In marine and navy recruiting for the week Chicago leads with 275 men for the navy and 130 for the marine corps. Reports from other cities indicate that a steady average is being maintained.

SPY IN VATICAN GETS LIFE TERM

ROME, June 23.—Monsignor Gerlach, former attaché at the Vatican, was today found guilty of being head of a pro-German propaganda in the papal court and through high circles in Italy, and was sentenced to life imprisonment. Romarice, an accomplice, was sentenced to be shot.

The conviction of M. Gerlach is the climax of the Italian secret service's successful and sensational attempt to run down pro-German propaganda in the Vatican and in Italy several months ago.

Documents whose contents involved about 300 residents of Italy were discovered locked in a safe in a building adjoining the German embassy at Vienna.

Americans Open New Hospital.

LONDON, June 23.—The establishment by the American Red Cross in London of an up to date orthopedic hospital for American officers, the building for which was donated by William Salomon of New York, provides what is believed to be the first hospital of its kind for officers.

TO ARMS!

President Issues Call for 70,000 to Enter Service in Regular Army This Week.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23.—Recruiting week for the regular army, fixed by presidential proclamation, opened today.

The president's proclamation calls for 70,000 men to come forward during the week for war service. The men who respond may feel assured, officials point out, that they will be little delayed in reaching the front when the movement overseas begins.

When the proclamation was prepared the army was short 45,000 infantrymen and field artillerymen and 25,000 reserves for all arms. The cavalry, signal corps, engineers, and other branches had been filled up. Since then 10,000 men have been accepted; but the recruiting rush will go ahead to secure as many more than 70,000 as may offer themselves and be acceptable.

When expansion of the regular army to its full authorized strength of 300,000 was ordered on April 1 the service was 184,000 men below that total. Since then about 124,000 men have been obtained and are now under training.

An appeal to the newspapers to aid in securing recruits was made today by Secretary Baker. The statement, addressed to the editors of all newspapers, said:

"President Wilson has fixed the week beginning today as recruiting week. The army needs and expects to obtain during the week 70,000 men to fill every regiment to war strength. The men cannot be obtained, however, without the hearty coöperation of the American press.

"I am relying confidently upon the patriotism of the press in this emergency, and know that the newspapers will coöperate fully."

1,000 AUSTRIANS KILLED, INJURED, BY WAR BLAST

AMSTERDAM, June 23.—More than 1,000 persons were killed or injured or are missing in consequence of an explosion in munitions factories at Bloeweg, according to an announcement made in the lower house of the Austrian parliament by the minister of defense, as forwarded in a dispatch from Vienna.

The casualties were given by the minister as follows:

Dead	136	Wounded	625
Missing	170

Of the wounded 520 received only slight injuries.

The minister said the explosion probably was due to lack of caution on the part of men employed in a trench mortar workshop.

FOUR AMERICANS JOIN LAFAYETTE CORPS IN FRANCE

PARIS, June 23.—Four additional American aviators have joined the Lafayette escadrille, according to word received from the front today. They are:

Adjt. Didier Mason, formerly aviation instructor at Camp Avord and well known through his flying exploits with Carranza's army in Mexico.

Corporal Douglas McMonagle, 25 years old, of San Francisco.

Corporal David M. Petersen, aged 23, of Honesdale, Pa.

Corporal James Norman Hall, aged 30, of Colfax, Ia.

PACIFIC FLEET ON PATROL DUTY AT RIO JANEIRO

RIO JANEIRO, June 23.—Rear Admiral William B. Caperton, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet of the United States navy, and the members of his staff have been received with honors here. The American officers today visited the minister of marine under the escort of a Brazilian naval battalion.

Has Powerful Force.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—The arrival in Brazilian waters of an American Pacific fleet squadron commanded by Admiral Caperton reveals that the American navy has taken over responsibility for the patrol of that region against German raiders.

While navy officials would not disclose the identity or number of vessels in Admiral Caperton's squadron, it is assumed they include the cruisers of the Pacific fleet, giving the American officer a swift and powerful force.

AMERICAN 'PEP' AMAZES FRANCE

PARIS, June 23.—France is enjoying with amazed pleasure the manner in which Maj. Gen. Pershing's staff officers are making ready for American troops.

The American headquarters in the Rue Constantin having already proved too small to accommodate all the staff workers, rough pine tables were set out today in the small garden to the rear.

There visitors found American officers—coats off, some smoking pipes—feverishly attacking their work. Some of them, faced with a shortage of stenographers and typists, were even laboriously pounding out their own letters and orders. For an officer to do such a thing is absolutely unheard of in France. The populace accepts is as another evidence of how hard America is working to aid in the fight for democracy.

FOR PERSHING'S MEN

Idea of Donations of Small Luxuries to Soldiers Meets General Favor.

THE "For Pershing's Men" fund bids fair to grow apace in Chicago. The latest suggestion is for contribution boxes to be installed in cigar stores, into which a man who buys a cigar for himself may drop the price for another cigar for one of Pershing's men in France.

"Referring to your editorial, 'For Pershing's Men,'" writes a woman, "if the cigar store in the Railway Exchange building will establish a contribution box I will consider it a privilege to deposit therein my widow's mite of $1 as a starter and to follow this up with offerings as pay checks come in.

"If cigar stores in all office buildings, hotels, and elsewhere will take this up, much can be done along the line of your suggestion. It will be a pretty mean man who will pass up an opportunity to buy a cigar for his brother at the front when he is buying one for himself."

Edith P. Kendall writes: "With reference to your editorial, 'For Pershing's Men,' I would like a part in this work. If it were possible to deal directly with the men, I would look after the comfort of one man, furnishing tobacco, service kit, candy, knitted things, etc. I should like to play the rôle of elder sister."

Pershing Names Murphy Member of His Staff

PARIS, June 23.—Gen. Pershing today appointed Maj. T. M. Murphy a member of his staff. Dr. Murphy is second in command of the St. Louis Red Cross unit, which has charge of hospital base No. 12. By his appointment to Pershing's staff he will play an important part in the direction of Red Cross work.

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

Paige Prices Will Be Advanced on July 15th

On July 15th the list price of every car in the Paige line will be very substantially increased—with no change whatsoever in our models.

In order to maintain the well-known standards of Paige quality such a step is unavoidable. The market quotations of all raw materials, accessories and labor have steadily advanced—some commodities to the extent of 300 per cent.

Inasmuch as we insist upon using only the best of materials, we are left but with one alternative—an increased list price to absorb the increased manufacturing cost.

As a matter of economic fact, the price of our cars should have been advanced several months ago. We have chosen to delay this action, however, until the last possible moment.

But even though Paige prices are to be substantially increased, you can rest assured that our cars will continue to offer more actual dollar for dollar value than any other cars on the American market. From a purely comparative standpoint Paige cars have always been under-priced—and they will remain so no matter how far the commodity prices may advance.

Owing to the scarcity of materials our production between now and July 15th will necessarily be limited. We have apportioned this production to Paige dealers throughout the country, and they will accept orders until their individual allotments are exhausted.

As a last thought in regard to this matter of price, please remember that the Paige has long since demonstrated its independence of all "price fields." American men and women now buy a Paige—not because of the price tag which is attached to it—but because of its well-established reputation as a fine mechanical product.

On this basis the Paige will always represent a preferred investment. Its actual cost in dollars and cents will always be an important, but an altogether secondary, consideration.

WORK FOR DRAFT TO BE CENTERED IN WASHINGTON

States Which Have Not Filled Quota to Be Called On.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—Despite efforts of the war department to keep the fact secret, it has been established that Washington will be the center for the task of drafting the 625,000 men for the national army.

This is a feature of the regulations which will be made public by the president next week. For some days the fact that all the work of the draft would be conducted in Washington has been known in official quarters under the injunction of strict confidence. Even now war department officials refuse to discuss the program.

Draft Early in July.

Just what device for drawing the names of those who are destined to fight has not been announced. It will all be disclosed in the president's proclamation setting the time for the draft. It is believed, however, that the time will be set soon after July 1.

Regular army recruiting week, which opened by presidential proclamation today, gives "slacker" states their last opportunity to save themselves from heavy drafts for the national army which will be drafted.

An official statement today fixed June 30 as the last day upon which enlistments to the regular army and national guard will count toward reducing a state's quota for the draft.

How Quota Is Decided.

The machinery by which the quota of each state for the draft will be computed is outlined in today's official war department statement, which says:

"The national guard authorities in each state are asked to report, as soon after the close of recruiting on June 30 as possible, the total number of men recruited during June. With this, the figures will be complete for recruiting from April 1 to June 30, both inclusive, and these will be added to the men in the national guard in each state on April 1.

"Men elisted in the regular army between April 1 and June 30 will be added, and the sum of those items for each state number in national guard April 1, number enlisted in both regular army and national guard during April, May, and June, will make the total to be counted in as part of each state's quota, as apportioned under the selective service act and the regulations to be promulgated."

Must Make Up Deficit.

In a general way the quota of each state will be fixed as follows:

The national army of 625,000 to be drawn by draft, the 183,000 needed by the regular army April 1 to bring it to war strength of 300,000, and the 330,000 which represents approximately the maximum strength of present recognized organizations of the national guard, will be added together, making a total of 1,138,000.

This total of 1,138,000 will be apportioned among the states, according to population. From this quota a reduction will be made to the extent of the full strength of the national guard in each state, and to the extent of recruits joining the regular army since April 1.

The net result of this will be that states like Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and the other five western states which have more than filled their quota for the regular army will be given credit for this surplus and similarly given credit for the extent to which their national guard is recruited. States which fail to make up their quotas for the regular army and whose national guard regiments are below strength will have their deficits made up by the draft.

Some States Nearly Full.

Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Massachusetts are densely populated eastern states which have filled more than 70 per cent of their quotas for the regular army. Pennsylvania, second to New York in national guard strength, has done splendidly in guard recruiting. These states probably will have to be drawn upon slightly, if at all, to fill their existing armies by draft.

New York and Ohio are big states which lack between 50 and 30 per cent of regular army war strength. New York's regular quota is 68 per cent full and Ohio's 56 per cent.

Wisconsin, Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina, Arkansas, North Carolina, Mississippi, and Vermont, the "slacker" states in regular army recruiting, with from 28 per cent for Wisconsin to 10 per cent for Vermont of the regular army quota, will be heavily drawn upon by draft, although Wisconsin's national guard strength, which is above its proportionate share, will offset its regular army weakness to some extent.

ICE

Relief for City's Poor Will Save Babies' Lives in Heat of Coming Summer.

In the crowded portions of Chicago there is beginning to be formulated the great silent appeal against the heat of summer. This appeal is now being made to readers of THE TRIBUNE who have in the past made it possible for the overworked mothers and the sick children to have free ice.

Those who find only a little relief in cooled verandas with iced beverages can best appreciate the condition of the children and mothers of the ghetto, who are compelled to suffer through the hot, dusty summer without even the smallest comforts.

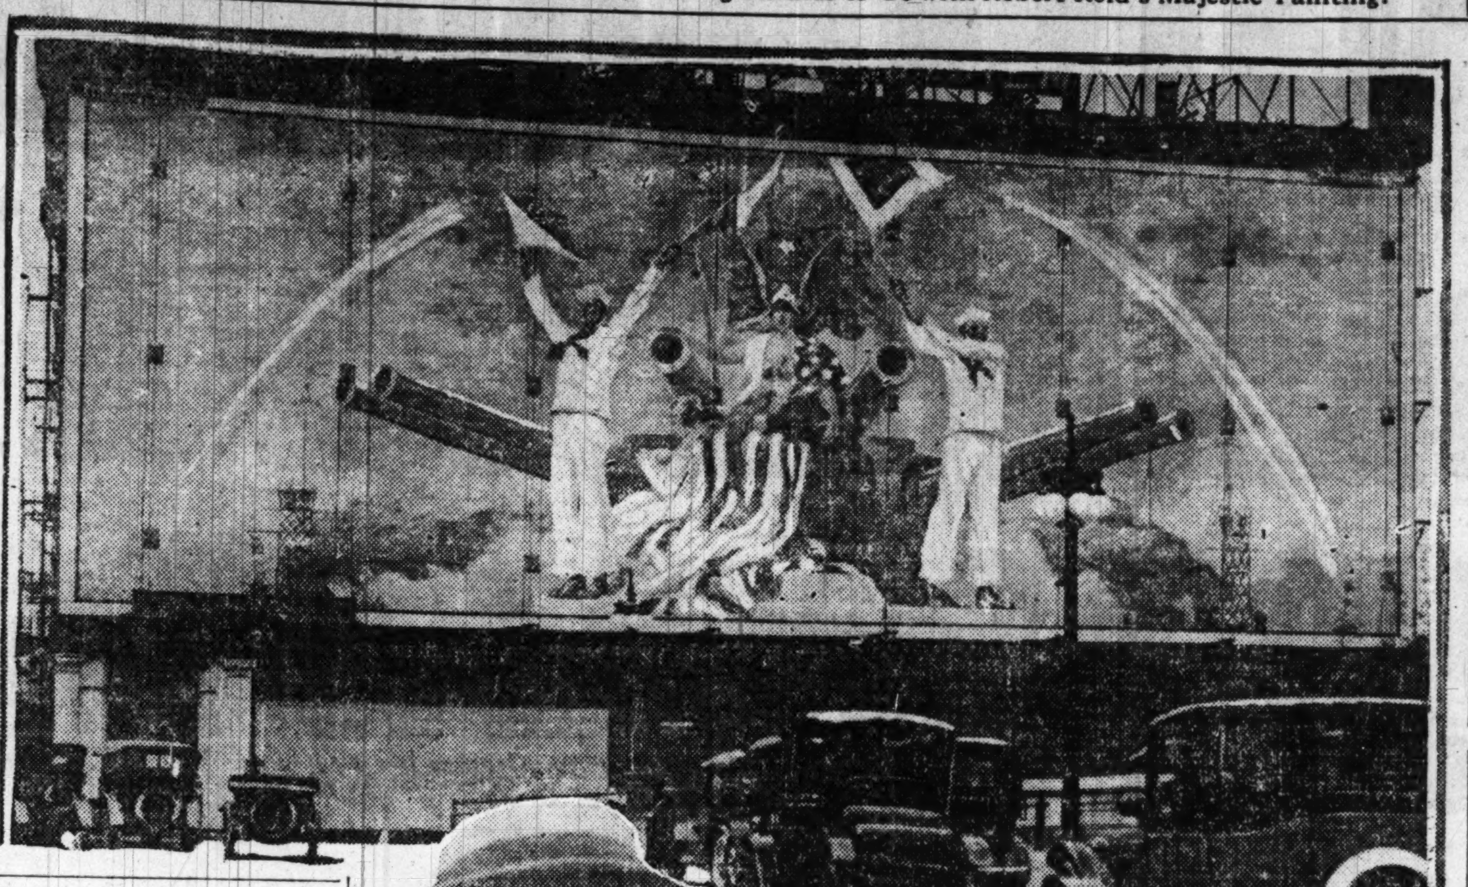
Many babies are doomed for lack of a small piece of ice. It is now time to prepare against the coming heat by subscribing an amount depending upon the will of the giver, so that with the first heat ice may be delivered to the poor.

SAYS GERMANY IS SICK OF WAR

LONDON, June 23.—Every one in Germany, from the kaiser down, is sick of war, was the statement made by former Haitian Minister Fouchard, recently stationed at Berlin, to the Daily News' Geneva correspondent. Public opinion, he said, persistently and loudly called for peace, but a great bulk of the German people had not yet lost faith in their government, neither did they blame the government for the sufferings and misery.

WHAT SLOGAN FOR THIS?

"Tribune" Offers Prizes to Young Men for Recruiting Phrases to Go with Robert Reid's Majestic Painting.



What may be the largest painting in the world is now completed and flashes its message for those who run—or motor—up Michigan avenue. The picture covers the huge TRIBUNE sign board at Randolph street.

THE TRIBUNE offers two prizes of $50 to men between the ages of 17 and 25, who suggest the recruiting slogans most appropriate to the picture.

The sailor at the left is in the semaphore position for the letter "U," while the man at the right is in the act of wigwagging "S."

The design is the work of Robert Reid, a member of the National Academy, who has taken many medals. He is represented in the permanent collection at the Art institute as well as in many other galleries.

GERMAN OFFER OF PEACE STIRS FRENCH LABOR

The French consulate in Chicago yesterday received the following communication from Paris under date June 18:

"Strong indignation is expressed in all circles in Paris, and especially in labor circles, at the so-called peace offers of the German Socialists. That passage where they decline to restore the districts devastated during the war, saying that damage was done on all fronts by friend and foe alike and that it now would be difficult to determine the origin, excited particular resentment.

"French Socialist leaders and writers insist on the fact that in Belgium and in France not only were towns and monuments of art wantonly destroyed but large war indemnities were imposed without any reason whatever on towns and cities. Brussels, for instance, was compelled to pay sums aggregating $1,000,000,000. Raw material, machines, private furniture, pictures, etc., were stolen and carried away to Germany.

"Unless common robbery is regarded as lawful by civilized nations, all the money, all the materials, all the private property stolen must, when peace is concluded, return to their legitimate owners or indemnity must be paid."

BEG YOUR PARDON!

Friday's announcement of the Navy Day sports and exhibition at Great Lakes station gave the date as the 27th instant. The date is the 28th—Thursday next.

The issue of Friday, the 15th instant, contained a dispatch from New York telling that that city had an offer from John D. Rockefeller of fifty-odd acres of ground for use as a public park. The site was described in the dispatch as "near Dyckman street and the Hudson river," and as of such an elevation that it afforded a view "far up the Hudson, southward to the bay, and eastward to Long Island and even to the Atlantic." A reader in Newburgh, N. Y., writes to say that no such view is possible "from the foot of Dyckman street."

The account in THE TRIBUNE did not give the "foot of Dyckman street" as the site, which takes in the C. K. G. Billings estate, the highest spot on Manhattan Island. The view is as described, although a powerful glass were necessary to see the ocean even on clear days.

TRADE GHOULS AROUSE LONDON

LONDON, June 23.—Meat landed at London at 14 cents a pound is being sold retail at from 36 to 60 cents a pound. This disclosure has aroused universal anger, and Food Controller Lord Rhondda is being urgently called upon to take immediate measures to end this heartless and reckless profiteering. Vegetables, which are plentiful, also are being held up and exorbitant prices extorted. The same condition prevails with bacon. In fact, the profiteering scandal has reached a stage in which, if the government does not take action, the people of the industrial districts will take the matter into their own hands.

Austrian Cabinet Asked to Wait for Successors

AMSTERDAM, June 23.—The Wiener Zeitung, according to a dispatch from Vienna today, publishes an autograph letter from Emperor Charles accepting the resignation of the Clam-Martinic cabinet and charging it to remain in office until another cabinet is formed.

DEFENSE BOARD TO BE REDUCED TO FOUR CHIEFS

Official Tells Method by Which Advance Will Be Won.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—The council of national defense soon will be reorganized on a four man basis. This was stated officially today by a member of the president's cabinet.

Tentative plans call for one man, head of a war industry committee, to direct and be held solely responsible for all railroad and industrial work; another will be director of all work in connection with purchase and dissemination of all raw materials; a third will be director of purchase and dissemination of all finished materials, and the fourth will be chairman of a general purchasing board.

It is the present plan to have the chairman of the purchasing board act as purchasing agent for the allies to eliminate competition and obtain lower prices.

Cabinet Will Give Aid.

The four directors are to have widest powers and will carry on the work themselves under the authorization of the six cabinet members now on the board. Under them will be smaller volunteer committees, each reporting direct to one of the four men. Each committee will be organized for some specific work and be held responsible for that part, instead of being organized and then expecetd to hunt their own work, as under the present plan.

One of the biggest duties of the "big four war board" will be to find the basis of cost of all materials used by the government and to establish that basis for everybody, private individuals as well as the government, as opposed to the present plan of getting the lowest possible price for the government and allowing private individuals to look after themselves.

Need for Great Power.

In answer to the objections that this plan might give too much power to certain individuals the cabinet official stated it would be absolutely necessary if the United States was to be successful in the war.

"There was no more autocratic government in the world than the United States in 1864," said this official, "yet there was no more democratic or efficient government.

"Our task now is to lead the people out of the path of impatience into the path of progress and make them realize that everything takes time.

"It took England a year and a half to evolve into an efficient fighting machine. We are now doing the same, only, profiting by their experience, we are unfolding much more rapidly."

Kills Self Because of Germany's Suffering

"I believe Germany is being treated too severely by the allies, and it has caused me great sorrow," wrote Herman Mueller, 61 years old, 1276 Cleveland avenue. "I don't care to live and see my fatherland suffer."

Then Mueller turned on the gas. He was found dead by his daughter, Elsie, to whom he bequeathed all his belongings.

Wonderful Co-operative to Control Their Own Food
Only $2.00 Now to Join

You are invited to join with us in what we believe to be the greatest co-operative movement that has ever been inaugurated by the people themselves.

We are sick and tired of paying our money for what we eat and use to make profits for someone else. From now on we are going to place these profits in our own pockets and live like real people.

And we find that it is not necessary for anyone of us to invest but very little in order to control our food supplies and to make the enormous profits heretofore made on us by outsiders, forming a chain, known as "in-betweens".

Now we know exactly where we stand. For five years, ever since 1912, we have proven this a fact and today our profits amount to approximately $200,000.00 a year. But we are going still further with this great co-operative movement, and here is your invitation to join with us.

Now just stop and realize for one moment that all it takes, that all it requires on your part is a payment of just $2, and then a payment of only $1 a week thereafter for 48 weeks to become a lifetime, everlasting member of this National Society of Fruitvalers and to become interested in all its profits and all its benefits. No further payments of any kind to make, no dues, no assessments, memberships always transferable.

And furthermore, you, unlike ourselves the pioneers of this Society, enter at a time when we are already making big profits, and you receive right from the start, four per cent in cash interest on your money to be paid out of the surplus which we have already earned. But read further about the big additional profits which as earned are sent members semi-annually.

Photograph of some of the splendid food grown on the National Society of Fruitvalers' Farm

Read every word of this astonishing announcement. You will be surprised and delighted to know that, at last, you have an opportunity to join a Society of people just like yourself, who go about their business without any interruption and still have the equal benefits and profits of this great co-operative Society.

Now recollect, the 4 per cent interest which you receive on your money is only surplus profits from our efforts up to this time. With our tremendously increased operations, with the additional members that we are now inviting to come in with us, just note below of what great value your membership in this Society will be to you.

Read here how the National Society of Fruitvalers is to grow its own vegetables—its own fruits—its own poultry—eggs—butter—to operate its own retail grocery stores—its own transportation—its own canneries. Think of it. Every section of Chicago and vicinity to have its Fruitvale grocery stores. 33,000 Fruitvalers now, a few members invited from each district to fill the full quota. Read below.

Amazing Returns To Members from 20,000 Acres Purchased by this Co-operative Society

We, the present members of the Fruitvale Society, have purchased an additional 20,000 acres of this wonderful Michigan land.

The reason that we made this purchase—we absolutely know what these 20,000 acres of land will yield. For instance, if we were to lay out these 20,000 acres in potatoes, according to the Agricultural Department of the State of Michigan—the county where our land is situated yields an average of 69 bushels of potatoes to the acre. At the market price today of $3.40 per bushel to the consumer, the yield for the 20,000 acres would be $4,692,000 for the first year.

But it is not our intention to lay this out wholly in potatoes, because we are going to enter into intensified farming and lay this out on the unit system, in which we will have varied crops, such as potatoes, onions, carrots, radishes, lettuce, asparagus, celery, cabbage, cauliflower, spinach, cucumbers, corn, tomatoes, cherries, strawberries, apples, peaches, etc., etc., and upon each unit will be produced that which the unit is best adapted to. In this way we will get the most out of the land.

There will be absolutely no wastage. For instance, on that portion which will be laid out for the orchard lands, the soil between the trees will be used for small vegetables or what is generally termed as truck gardening.

You, and all of us who are familiar with Michigan land and the great production brought from this fertile soil, know that we are absolutely within the limits of conservatism and with no thought of speculation when we state that a very minimum of $50 per acre per year can be produced on this land, which would make an annual net income for members of $1,000,000.00.

It is hardly possible for the average person to begin to realize what 20,000 acres really means in size and scope. The City of New York covers hardly 20,000 acres. Now just think of the great quantity of fruits and vegetables we will get from this vast acreage. Cows, hogs for hams, bacon, milk, eggs, chickens, butter, all will be raised by our Society for the benefit of its members. Where is there one logical reason why we should not get together and raise what we eat and use. We can do it just as well and we can do it better than others who are making us pay them big profits. Our experts can get more produce to the acre, raise better food at a cheaper price because we will operate on a much larger scale and no one is to secure a profit but ourselves on what we raise. Can there be any reason on earth why this Fruitvale Co-operative Society should not succeed bigger and better than anything ever before attempted? No, not a single reason that you or anyone else can advance. Our experience of many years developing the Fruitvale proposition absolutely proves the marvels of this great enterprise by the people and for the people. Soon more acreage will be taken over by this Society and put into all sorts of fruits and vegetables. There is to be no letup—all climates for year 'round products will finally be accumulated to the benefit, use and profits of the Society. Why not? Co-operative enterprises are not new. They have been proven successful in England and nearly all the countries of northern Europe. We members of this vast Society clubbed together can do what no single organization can, because we will pay no outsider a profit. But read further and you will find that this income from the land is only one source from which we are going to produce the revenue which makes your membership so valuable to you.

916 Chicago Fruitvale Grocery Stores

Now look at the map showing where 916 Fruitvale Grocery Stores are to be established. These are the Grocery Stores around which live the members who we are now inviting to join this Society. No more than the number of members indicated surrounding each of these stores in each section of Chicago will be accepted. We now invite you to be one of these members.

Everything has been figured out, all drawn down to a definite, logical basis. We know just exactly how many members necessary in each section of Chicago to make up the full quota for the economical growing and consuming, transportation, of all the foods produced by the Fruitvale Society, and the membership fees necessary to accomplish everything desired by the Fruitvale Society.

Now, anyone can easily see that these complete Fruitvale Groceries and Markets will attract the majority of the people living in each of these districts, for the reason that they will at all times carry the freshest stocks and the best values ever given in their particular locations. This is made possible because the Fruitvale Society on its land will grow its own vegetables and fruits at the lowest possible cost, without any profits being made by any "in-between merchants," thereby going direct to the consumer at a tremendous saving to them and at the same time making us Society members big profits.

All Fruitvale Grocery Stores will be painted in the same attractive manner with the word[illegible] above them, "Fruitvale Grocery and Market" so that they will be noticeable throughout the [illegible]ty of Chicago and become one of the best known institutions in the United States.

As outlined on this sectional map, there is to be in each district a sufficient number of Fruitvale Society members to boost the trade with these Fruitvale Stores, not only because these stores will be the best for everyone to trade with, but because they are owned by the Fruitvale members, and because all the profits made by these Fruitvale Stores go into the pockets of the Fruitvale Society members.

As we have shown you elsewhere in this announcement, these stores should earn more than $1500.00 net per year each, (which is not quite $5 per day per store) which in itself would be an income of more than one million, three hundred and seventy thousand dollars a year from these stores alone to us members. This is aside from our present business and aside from the big profits to be made from the great producing farm, transportation, canneries, etc.

You can easily see what wonderful stores they are to be—what wonderful profits will come in semi-annual dividends to all us Fruitvale Society members from these stores alone, and it is not the intention of the present Fruitvale members to stop with Fruitvale stores merely in Chicago. Our intention is to have the biggest link of grocery stores throughout the United States ever before brought together under any organization. By this you can readily see what it means to join this organization now while the opportunity is still open.

Join with us. Put the profits that all the middlemen are now making off of you in your own pockets. Why should you or we pay the jobber, the manufacturer, the grower, and the retailer our money so that he can become rich? Join the Fruitvale Co-Operative Society and keep the profits in your own pocket—and make yourself rich instead. That's the intention of the Fruitvale Co-Operative Society, and that's why we now ask you to join in with us.

We have districted the city of Chicago and divided it into 916 commercial districts, and inviting enough more members for each district to fill a membership unit. As soon as the quota prescribed and enumerated on the map is filled, it will be closed and no further members accepted, and the Fruitvale Grocery and Market immediately opened, until the city has 916 Fruitvale stores. But as this Society is a going, profitable enterprise, there is no wait for profits or benefits. You immediately participate in profits already made and being made each day.

Remember—no more members are accepted than the exact number prescribed in each district under the Fruitvale map in this announcement. These Fruitvale stores are to start without delay and our aim is to increase right along as rapidly as possible until we have the 916 stores.

Big Profits In Fruitvale Cannery

We do not intend that any of the vegetables and fruits raised on our vast acreage shall spoil or go to waste. A cannery for the purpose of putting up in cans whatever fruits and vegetables cannot be used at the time, or carried over, is contemplated on our Michigan land. These canned goods of all kinds are bound to be the favorite with housewives and hotels everywhere, because put up under the superior direction of the Fruitvale Society, they are to be the choicest on the market, they are to be pure, clean and wholesome and once used, these canned goods are sure to give such satisfaction as to cause their future demand. You can readily see that with the Fruitvalers Society plan of growing and canning and marketing direct, cutting out all in-between profits, the last word has been said for economy.

The canning business is a tremendous industry. Fabulous incomes are now being made every year by those who you are now patronizing. Join with us and put these profits in your own pocket. It is the intention of this Society to have Fruitvale Society Canned Fruits and Vegetables known and used throughout the United States. The Canning business alone should give the Fruitvale Society members large cash dividends besides the best there is in such products.

The National Society

Society Formed By the People and Grocery Stores —

Co-Operation a Proven Success

The co-operative idea is not a new one at all. It has been tried and tested in England, way, Sweden and other countries of Northern Europe for years. The Co-Operative olesale Society of Glasgow for instance, has paid in since it was formed 60 years ago e than one billion, four hundred million dollars in profits to its members, and when this ety was formed the price of each membership was only $25.00. The memberships are priceless, their value can hardly be estimated. Membership in the Army and Navy es of England originally issued for a Pound or $5 are now worth 100 Pound or $500.

The American Stores Company, an eastern organization, sells its products to the consumer at a saving 5% to 40%. It does an annual business of more than forty-six million dollars. Taking only 20% as the age saving, this one company alone saves its customers over $9,000,000 annually. Nor is this saving all company does. It returns to its stockholders millions of dollars in profits. The Acme Stores in Philahia, 433 in number, actually made net profits last year of $646,526.00. Four other chain store organizations hiladelphia with 790 stores produced actual net profits of $879,079.00. And these profits are made without operative society or without their own farm production, without their own canneries, etc. They are obliged y jobbers, commission men, growers, and manipulation profits. See for yourself what increased profits embers will make where we wipe out these useless expenses. Other chain stores are producing results s remarkable, and yet they for the most part buy the products they sell. They must pay the producer, must pay profits to the manufacturer, to the wholesaler and to the growers.

Now just contrast all this with the Fruitvale Society's membership. We pay no profits to the growers, to the distributors, none to the wholesalers—all these profits go directly to the Fruitvale Society members, at the same time, a great saving is made to all the customers of the Fruitvale Stores and Markets.

With these astounding facts before you, you can form your own idea of what a membership in the valers Society would be worth to you and to your family.

Middlemen's Profits Wiped Out

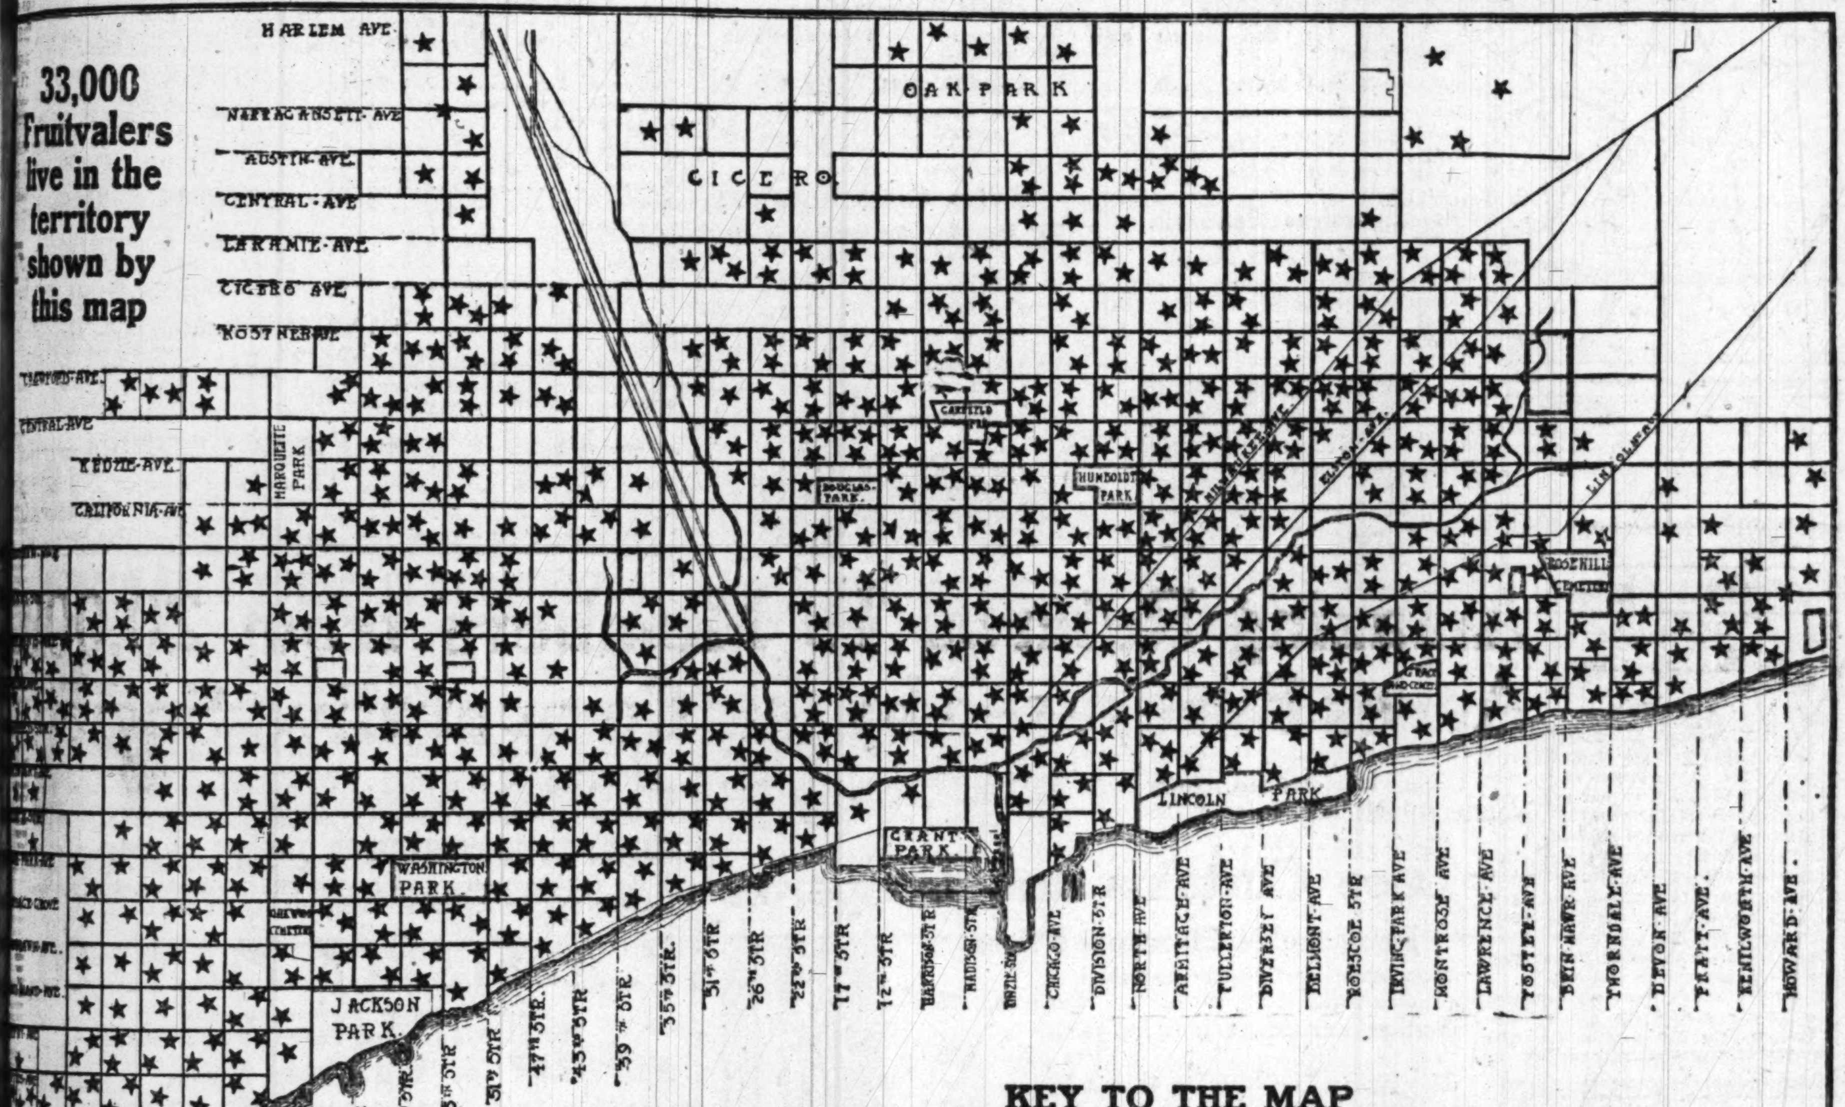
Can you tell us why you should today be paying $3.40 per bushel for potatoes when a few years ago you paid only 75c? Land will produce the same today as it did when prices were low. You know this. And you know too that our present high prices are very largely the cause of food speculators—manipulators who are virtually taking it from the people. The recent action of our Government at Washington on the food question is proof of this.

If this condition goes on, what will happen? If it is now next to impossible for the average person to buy the proper food for his family, what of the future? If the price of food is to keep on rising where will you and your family be in the future? Think it over.

We have. And we believe that in taking this stand that we are doing our "bit" for humanity as well as laying the foundation of big sure profits for all of us. The public will not permit food speculation much longer. But regardless of laws, there is just one way to answser this question—the way we are answering it—in forming an organization so big—so strong and so powerful that the speculator will be crushed so far as we are concerned.

We don't ask you to join us merely for the good we are doing. Read below about the profits—wonderful profits that we divide equally.

We say again and again why should we, the people, the consumers—why should we let the producer, the commission man, the jobber, the retailer, etc.—why should we let them take our money from us in the way of profits to them—Why? There is no reason on earth why we should and we do not intend to do so longer. Never before has there been such a logical plan of the people linking themselves together for the purpose of raising what they eat and use and making all the profits themselves—this is destined to be the greatest movement that the people themselves have ever inaugurated. Read further and find how easy it is for you to join and become a lifetime member. Read how simple, easy and logical this plan really is.



33,000 Fruitvalers live in the territory shown by this map

KEY TO THE MAP

Each small square represents a District of 16 Blocks. Each star is a location for a Fruitvale Grocery and Market. East and West streets on District Boundries are shown at bottom of map. North and South streets are at left of map. You can readily locate your own district and your Fruitvale Store. Each district is allotted approximately 109 members for each store. Members are accepted from all suburban towns within a radius of 40 miles from Chicago which are also to have Fruitvale Stores.

You Immediately Get 4% on Every Dollar You Invest in a Membership

Fruitvale, as thousands upon thousands of you well know, was founded five years ago. It has been a wonderful success and the Fruitvale Company now has profits from its transportation company, feed warehouses, nurseries, construction work, sale of branded articles, hotel and land upwards of $200,000 and profits are increasing right along with expansion of the business. For the month of May alone the profits were over $50,000.

This is another big feature of the Fruitvalers Society. It is out of these profits that the Fruitvalers Society is able to pay immediately to all new members 4% per year.

You can readily see by far the biggest profits of the Fruitvale Society will be from the additional 20,000 acres of land, put into fruits and vegetables, the 916 Fruitvale Grocery Stores, the transportation facilities, canneries, etc. For from these will come additional enormous profits.

The Fruitvalers Organization

An enterprise so vast as the Fruitvale Co-operative Society must be handled in the most efficient way by experts and those whose past performance have proven their efficiency. All supplies for all grocery stores are to be purchased and grown in the largest quantities by this society. The latest, most approved, money-saving machinery, such as tractors, planters, etc., etc., will be used. Seeds, plants, bulbs for the 20,000 acres, of the highest and most productive character come from our green houses and nurseries. Everything is done in the maximum quantities under the most efficient management.

The men in charge today of every department of this society, from the agricultural expert in Michigan, poultry expert, to the man in charge of the marketing department in the city of Chicago, are tried and trusted men, capable with the additional advantages which the new members will give the organization not only of maintaining their present rate of profits, but making them grow by leaps and bounds. Some of the men have been with the organization since the Fruitvale plan was first conceived and their capacity has grown with the Society, until today they are capable of sustaining any expansion that the Society may decide upon.

You can easily imagine what this means in the nature of securing everything at the lowest, rock-bottom cost for the Fruitvale Society. You can easily see how the Fruitvale stores will be able to undersell their competitors. It is not possible for any one or several grocery stores to purchase their supplies on so economical a basis even though these individual groceries did grow their own fruits and vegetables, which they do not. The Fruitvale Society Organization will at all times be of the highest character for the purchase of all supplies at the very minimum cost.

Some Present Fruitvalers

We present Fruitvalers are in every walk of life, just the average human being. We are tremendously enthusiastic over the wonderful possibilities of the accomplishments of our Fruitvalers Society.

We are going to shake off the shackles of the numerous profit makers from our daily efforts. We ask you to join with us. We know that you are going to be happy, just as we are, in the knowledge that we are getting somewhere—that we are protecting ourselves for the present and for the future—that linked together there is nothing in the way of being prosperous that we cannot accomplish. It is the same old story of, "United we stand and divided we fall." None of us are in a position to do any of these things by ourselves, but together there is nothing in the way and no logical reason which anyone can advance for our not making all the profits which someone else is now making off of our daily necessities.

Read below just a few of the names and occupations of the present members of the Fruitvalers Society: CHARLES BREITZMAN, Postal Clerk; CATHERINE RATTY; N. A. HAWKINSON, Supt. of Wilkes Boiler Co.; A. F. GRAMBAUER, Teacher in Public Schools; GEO. E. O'NEIL, Commonwealth Edison Co.; H. H. TOPPING, Wool Buyer; FREDERICK PETERSON, Contractor, Evanston; ANNA BRATSBERG, Nurse; JOHN L. WEBER, Theatrical Costumer; FREDK. SCHOENSTEDT, Piano Manufacturer; WM. J. HARTNEY, Board of Local Improvements, City Hall; FRANK FEJEREISEL, Manufacturer; CHARLES LOVELL, Merchandise Mgr. Fruitvale Membership Everlasting and Transferable

All Fruitvale memberships are everlasting and transferable. Each membership is fully paid and non-assessable after $2 has been paid down and $1 additional payment has been made for 48 weeks, making $50 in all. No assessments, no furthur dues, no payment of any sort whatever are to be made. Members may move to any section of Chicago, or anywhere and their membership carries with it all the same benefits from all sources.

In other words, the membership becomes the sole, personal property of the member to do with it whatever they desire, and if members wish to sell their memberships at any price, they can do so and with the sale is transferred all the benefits and profits that go with the membership.

Money Back if You Want It

No matter what amount any member has paid into the Association between now and January the 1st, 1918, they may withdraw every dollar they have paid on their membership certificate with 4% interest from the day the first payment is made.

We members of the present Fruitvalers Society will pay this 4% interest out of the profits already earned, knowing that by doing this we will quickly get our full quota in each district. Therefore, we ask you to immediately cut out coupon below and send with it the $2.00 for your first payment. You take no risk whatsoever, because we agree to refund your money—every cent of it with 4% interest—if after thorough investigation you should decide that you would rather have your money back. However, you are to be the sole judge after you have given every phase of this Society full consideration.

We present members want no dissatisfied members. This is purely and simply a community of interest, for the benefit of one another, linked together for the purpose of not only the friendliest fellow feeling among ourselves, but the developing of big profits and putting into our own pockets in semi-annual dividends the money now being made off of us by those who have been smarter than we up to now.

Don't forget to send membership coupon properly filled out with your $2.00 today.

n Endless Chain of Profits—Equally Divided Among Members

From our great 20,000 acre farm we can raise almost everything consumed on our tables—to sugar. Then with a great central warehouse and our own transportation system to supply derful chain of Fruitvale Grocery Stores—916 in all—to be owned, controlled and operated —to market our products—direct from our land to the consumer. Every one of these stores tablished to have our sign on it—"Fruitvale Grocery and Market."

There will be no middlemen to take our profits. No outsider will have a hand in fixing prices. will sell direct—through our own stores—everything we raise—at prices that will not only the public millions—but at prices that will make us wonderful profits equally divided among ers.

Because of their low prices, Fruitvale stores will be the dominating stores in their neighbor-. They will sell to everybody. Our members will receive all the benefits and profits from stores. Dividends paid to members semi-annually.

What can possibly keep us from having the best stores in every section of the City? Just at the map printed in this announcement—we have marked it into sections—in each section note place for Fruitvale Grocery. Surrounding these stores we have enumerated the number of Fruitvale Members to be accepted, each member will be a booster for these stores, and besides this, the Fruitvale stores are bound to get the trade because everything sold will be of highest grade at the lowest possible prices. Our aim is to have more than 916 Fruitvale stores in Chicago. In some sections we will take over stores already established, in others we will open a brand new one, depending entirely upon location and conditions. Each store should make a minimum profit of $1500.00 per year for Fruitvale Members. The better grocery stores make more than this right along, and under the Fruitvale Management they should make more because these stores will have much larger patronage. Think what these stores alone will mean to members, 916 of them. At more than $1,500.00 each per year profits means over $1,300,000.00 per year. Why not? It's being done every day and some one else gets the profits. Some one besides you is getting your money—you are making these stores possible. Come in with us now while you have the chance and put the profits in your own pockets, own your own stores, also derive the many other benefits from your membership. Can you advance one good reason why not?

Mbership Sure To Be Oversubscribed—You Must Act Quickly

No favoritism will be shown in accepting Society members. They will be accepted in the order in which their coupons (use coupon below) are received. When full membership is taken no more can be accepted. Money will be returned to all others.

op to realize what all this means, when you let the possi- cent organization roll over in your mind, you are just bound to us that it's just the very thing we, every one of us, have always wished for. Secretary this membership coupon along with only $2 (provided that the full y been taken) you will have begun your membership into what is bound to be enterprise the people of the United States have ever entered into.

be clear to all, we wish again to repeat that the number ch locality is absolutely limited to the number as shown on the map Only 109 Fruitvale Society members, as you will see by the map, are to be in each everything clear to you in this announcement so that you will be in a position to n as the additional memberships for each section are completed, each Fruitvale be established, and in this way the entire 916 stores will quickly begin.

res of land, section after section to be cultivated as ex- established, canneries where fruits and vegetables will be put up Fruitvale Society labels, will be taken over. More land for fruits and vegetables, nds for year 'round fruits and vegetables, Fruitvale stores everywhere. Think tvale members who start now.

nted out to you what the Society should earn from the 916 from the 20,000 acres alone. Can you see any reason why these de! It's being done every day by individuals who operate in a small way. Then why is it not doubly sure when handled on so vast a scale as here outlined and when we grow our own products, pay no dealer or in-between a profit, when the Society operates everything at the very minimum cost? Surely it needs no further explanation to make clear to anyone that the Fruitvaler's Society is the only logical step for the people to take.

We invite you to join with us in this wonderful organization. We ask you to join with the full belief that you will cherish your membership all your life as the greatest and biggest money-making possession during your life. Remember, the Society is now earning sufficient and will pay you to start, with four per cent interest on your membership money, and also, that as a member you participate—all of us the same in semi-annual dividends—in all the additional profits and all the crops equally. Remember, you pay only $2 now which makes you a member and then $1 per week for 48 weeks, until you have paid all told just $50. No dues, no extras, no assessment of any sort now or later. Also remember that at any time up to January 1, 1918, should you wish the return of your money paid into the Society for any reason or for no reason, you may have every dollar you have paid in and you will receive four per cent interest on the amount for the time the Society has had the money.

Will you be one of us? Will you be a member of the National Society of Fruitvalers? If you wish to join you must act quickly. These memberships as marked in each section will be greatly desired. You know that, so send for yours without delay. You have ample time to investigate. You have until January 1, 1918, to get your money back if by that time you are not satisfied in every way. We want you with us. You know this movement is bound to work wonders, so join now while you have the opportunity. Mail the coupon with $2. You absolutely take no risk because you have until January 1, 1918, to make sure that you wish to be one of us or withdraw your money. Or, if you like, call in person. The Fruitvale Society's Secretary will gladly tell you anything further you may wish to know. Fruitvale offices open every day from 8:30 a. m. until 6:00 p. m. Tuesday and Thursday evenings until 10:00 p. m. Sunday 1:00 to 4:00 p. m.

Just think—your name on the coupon sending in only $2 starts you a full and equal membership in all the vast benefits in this great co-operative movement and the profits in the farms, food, groceries, transportation, canneries, etc., etc. Come [illegible]

WAR ACTIONS ON VARIOUS FRONTS OFFICIALLY TOLD

Germans Center Efforts on the Western Line, Held by French.

FRENCH.

PARIS, June 23.—On the Chemin-des-Dames the artillery action continued throughout the day, notably in the sector south and southeast of Filain and in the region of Craonne and Chevreux. There was no infantry action.

The Germans continued to bombard Reims. Today 1,200 shells fell in the town.

DAY STATEMENT.

The night was marked by violent bombardment, followed by a new series of German efforts against the points attacked on the preceding day in the region of Vauxaillon on the one hand and southeast of Filain on the other.

All these attacks were repulsed and the enemy, whose losses were serious, gained no advantage.

The fighting was particularly spirited between Royere farm and Froidmont farm. The Germans, who enlarged their attacking front east of Epine de Chevregny, as far as to the north of Froidmont farm, multiplied their efforts to capture these positions. Their attacking forces were broken up by our fire and were not able to approach our lines or debouch from the salient penetrated yesterday.

Other efforts of the enemy, east of Chevreux, east of Cavaliers de Courcy, and in the sector of Chambrettes, also were repulsed.

We penetrated the German lines at several points and took prisoners.

BRITISH.

LONDON, June 23.—In the course of patrol encounters last night south of Armentieres, Portuguese troops killed or captured a whole German patrol.

Beyond artillery activity on both sides at a number of places along our front, there is nothing further of special interest to report.

DAY STATEMENT.

Our troops raided the enemy's positions north of Gavrelle last night and captured several prisoners. A number of other prisoners were taken by us in a successsful local operation in the neighborhood of Warneton. A German raiding party was repulsed northeast of Ypres.

BELGIAN.

PARIS, June 23.—Quite lively artillery fighting occurred near Dixmude and Pypegaale and in the Steenstraete-Het Sas zone.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, June 23.—Army group of Prince Rupprecht—On the Flanders front and in Artois raids occurred in the morning. Artillery activity was lively in the afternoon in the neighborhood of the coast from Bixschoote to Armentieres and between Loos and Bullecourt. As was the case last night, British reconnoitering detachments were repulsed at several points shortly before daybreak today.

Army group of the crown prince—Early yesterday, after a brief but violent and effective artillery fire and an attack by mine throwing detachments of several lower Saxon regiments, a French position southeast of Filain in the Chemin-Des-Dames section was captured by storm.

Our troops maintained its possession on a front of about one and a half kilometers, and to a depth of 500 meters, notwithstanding three violent counter attacks, in which the enemy suffered heavy losses.

Fleeing occupants of the trenches were caught under our fire and we brought back 300 prisoners.

In the morning the French attacked to the west of Mont Carnillet and in the evening at Vauxaillon, without obtaining any success. East of Craonne and on both banks of the Meuse our reconnoitering parties brought back prisoners.

Army group of Grand Duke Albrecht—French reconnoitering troops were repulsed north of St. Mihiel and east of Moselle.

AVIATION.

Since June 15 twenty-three enemy airplanes have been brought down during aerial battles and five by our defensive firing from the ground. Four captive balloons of the enemy also were brought down.

RUSSIAN FRONT

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, June 23.—On the mountain front and in Volhynia the enemy's artillery fire was temporarily revived. The Russian artillery's continuous bombardment of the region south of Brzezany was energetically returned by our batteries.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, June 23.—Increased fighting activity prevailed yesterday, especially between the Lemberg-Tarnopol railway and the Dniester.

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, June 23.—In the Stokhod river region near the village of Pozog our scouts prepared an ambush and, surrounding the approaching Germans, showered hand grenades on them. In the bayonet fighting that followed some Germans were killed. Owing to the approach of German reinforcement, however, our scouts returned to their own trenches.

On the rest of the front fusillades became more intense in the region of Krevo.

MACEDONIAN FRONT

FRENCH.

PARIS, June 23.—On the British and Serbian fronts patrol engagements took place. The artillery showed activity in the region of the Vardar and the Cerna bend.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, June 23.—The situation is unchanged.

ITALIAN FRONT

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, June 23.—There was slight firing.

ITALIAN.

ROME, June 23.—Enemy reconnoitering parties were repulsed at Tonale pass. The enemy yesterday concentrated a brisk fire on our new position on Monte Ortigara, in Asiago plateau. We replied effectively.

The material captured in this position on June 19 was considerable. So far we have counted four guns, including one of medium caliber; fourteen machine guns, 1,000 rifles, and large quantities of ammunition and war and mining material.

On the Julian front our batteries effectively shelled the railway station at Saint Lucia Tolmein, while the enemy continued his aimless destruction of buildings in Goritz.

On the Carso our guns repeatedly harassed the movements in the enemy's lines and supported our patrols.

AVIATION.

On June 19 one enemy airplane was forced down by our airmen; another was brought down yesterday.

ROUMANIAN FRONT

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, June 23.—There was slight firing activity.

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, June 23.—There were lively fusillades.

TURKISH FRONT

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, June 23.—In the Caucasus the Turks in the region of the Rayatsk gave way to our detachments and retired about two miles on the right bank.

In the region of Sakis our troops advanced to the River Abi Shirvan and are exchanging fusillades with the Turks who occupied heights in the vicinity.

SUPPLEMENTARY

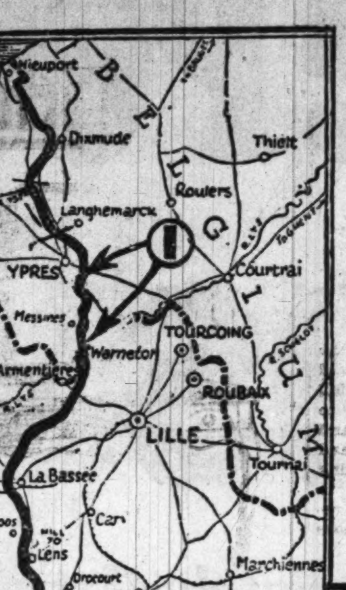
GERMAN.

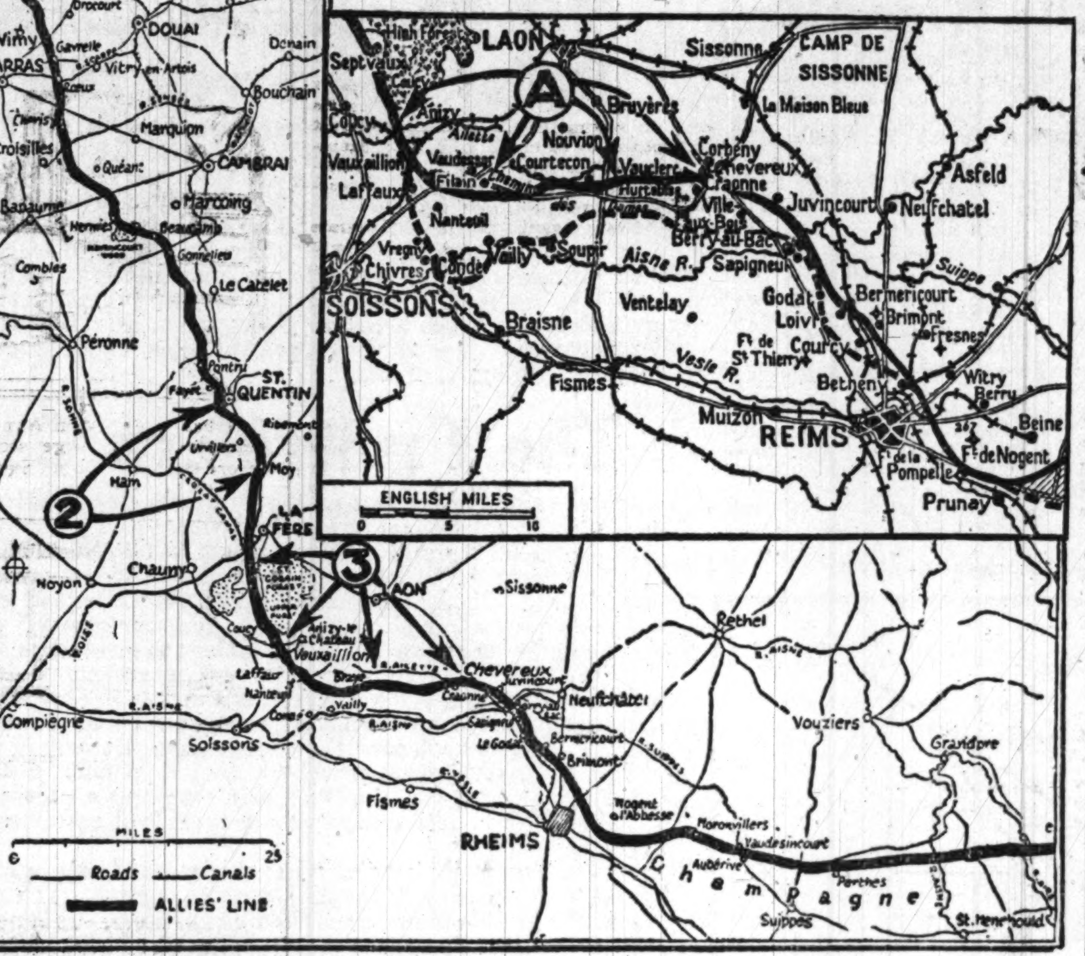
BERLIN, June 23.—There were no events of importance to report on any of the fronts.

Demands Swiss Minister Act.

BERNE, Switzerland, June 23.—The federal council has ordered the Swiss minister at Petrograd to come to Berne to make an oral report on recent incidents, including the expulsion of Robert Grimm from Russia and his relations with Dr. Hoffmann, former Swiss foreign minister.

GERMAN OFFENSIVE ALONG AISNE FRONT





1—Recent British smash through the Messines ridge in advance toward Lille.

2—Where it is reported Gen. Pershing's first forces will take over a sector of the line south of St. Quentin.

3—Present German offensive.

What appears to be a counter offensive of first importance is being developed by the Germans on the Aisne front along the Chemin des Dames. For days the enemy artillery has been pounding the French lines along the arc of the battle front, sweeping around Laon from the region of Coucy forest to the west of this important German base to Chevreux to the southeast.

The heaviest fighting has developed along the main highways leading from Laon to the southwest, south, and southeast.

Paris claims to have stopped all the infantry advances attempted by the Germans. Berlin, however, reports that the crown prince's troops penetrated first line French positions on a mile front south of Filain to a depth of 500 yards.

Just to the east of this sector and southeast of Filain terrific fighting is reported, the Germans making repeated attacks against the French positions between Royere farm and Froidmont farm. Paris reports all these advances broken up with heavy slaughter.

The scene of this German thrust is where the French gained an unimportant victory early last May, when they smashed over the Chemin des Dames, capturing 6,000 prisoners and much war material. This straightened out the German salient northeast of Soissons and put the French almost in range of Laon. The present German smash is no doubt undertaken to relieve the pressure on this important base.

RUSSIA TO FIGHT TO END, ENVOY TELLS CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., June 23.—The new Russia's devotion to the cause of democracy against autocracy was repledged in ringing phrases today by Special Ambassador Bakhmetieff, head of the Russian war mission, speaking to a wildly applauding joint session of the senate and house.

"With all emphasis," said the ambassador, "may I state that Russia rejects any idea of a separate peace. What Russia is aiming at is the establishment of a firm and lasting peace between democratic nations. The triumph of German autocracy would render such a peace impossible. Russia will not fail to be a worthy partner in the league of honor."

No previous incident of the war has stirred the senate and house to such enthusiasm. Senators and representatives who had restrained their applause at the appearance of Marshal Joffre and Foreign Secretary Balfour threw away all reserve and cheered the Russian envoy.

U-Boats Sink Fifteenth of Greek Ships in 3 Months

Washington, D. C., June 23.—German submarines are taking a heavy toll of Greek shipping. An official report to the state department today stated that nearly one-fifteenth of the entire Greek tonnage has been sent to the bottom in the last three months. Since April 12, ships representing a tonnage of 31,542 have been torpedoed and sunk by German and Austrian U-boats.

4 TIME DERELICT ON SEA OF HYMEN IN PORT FOR GOOD

"No More," Says Parson as Last Wife Seeks Her Freedom.

PHOO!

"What Would I Want with an Old Man?" Asks Pupil of Parson Whose Wife Seeks Separation.

Miss Louise Musek

Failure has already marked three marriages for the Rev. Francis L. Newcomb. Now the fourth is to be dissolved.

Mrs. Martha Newcomb of Oak Park has decided to make her exit from wifehood with her small son, Wesley. Her attorney, Bernard J. Mahoney, has prepared a bill.

But the reading is very mild, with a mention only of two years of desertion. Miss Louise Musek of 2708 Normal avenue, the 19 year old girl to whom the minister gave cornet lessons, was unmentioned.

"Phoo! I have another cornet teacher," Miss Musek said yesterday, tilting her nose high. "Do you think a young girl like me wants an old man? Besides, I have another friend."

No More For Him.

The Rev. Mr. Newcomb, who has deserted the cloth for business, disclaims all romantic intentions in the future.

"You've heard of the trader who bought four bad horses. That's my experience with wives.

"When I was young in my home town, Stanberry, Mo., about to be ordained, I met a young woman who was engaged, but whose folks stopped the wedding. She told me afterward she married me to show her old beau she could get married. After three months she went home to her people. I let her have a divorce by default.

"Then I met a woman in Bloomington, Ill. She was a church worker, and for three years we were happy. I played the cornet in Moody church. My wife conducted a rooming house.

"Then I went to North Dakota and got a divorce on statutory grounds.

End of the Third.

"Then I was in San Francisco, where at church I met a young widow. I married her. For seven years we lived together. My wife at first assisted me in the church. I had a parish outside of Los Angeles—Hollywood. But finally my wife neglected the children. They turned up their noses at me.

"My wife permitted my 16 year old daughter to jump off a chair when she was 3 years old. My oratory and everything were spoiled by my family quarrels. I went away with the children. She has made no attempt to bring me back to California. As soon as the law allowed she obtained a divorce from me. So ended the third marriage.

Pacific Garden Romance.

"I went to the Pacific Garden mission for two years. One night a man played a violin solo. When he played 'Home, Sweet Home' I noticed two girls who looked like twins weeping. As a minister I greeted them after the service. They told me they were alone in the city from Wisconsin and their parents had died.

"My thought was of my two little girls—a home. Martha appeared to be a good housekeeper. I married her. For a while she made me a good home. Then she heard of my former marriages. For two years she worried about the passage in the Bible and divorce. She left me three times.

"When Wesley was born she remained away from me for two years. Now she wishes a divorce and I am an old man."

RAIL SCHOOL TO TEACH WOMEN TO DO THE WORK

Women are being found so efficient and necessary in all forms of industry that the railroad companies are advertising extensively for women and girls to fill positions formerly held by men. Ten of the great systems will have representatives at the business woman's convention in Chicago on July 12, 13, and 14 under the auspices of the Woman's Association of Commerce.

E. S. Rice, assistant engineer of construction for the Santa Fé, who will be a speaker, has recently taken into his department fourteen young women, registered with the woman's committee, whom he is training to become draftsmen and construction engineers.

The school lasts six months, and as soon as a class is graduated another will start. The young women who qualify will be made members of the Western Society of Engineers, and all are promised the same opportunity for advancement as men have received and the same pay for equal work.

Every woman interested in advancing the efficiency of women is invited to the convention and to the pageant of "woman's work in American history." Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout will preside at the opening session of the convention on July 12 at the Congress hotel.

ROBERTS SHUNTS BLAME IN TRAGIC LOVE TRIANGLE

Teacher's Brainstorm No Fault of His, Says Victim's Husband.

Waukesha, Wis., June 23.—[Special.]—Although confronted with letters said to have been written by him to Miss Grace Lusk, slayer of his wife, Dr. David Roberts, former state veterinarian and wealthy breeder of fine cattle, stoutly denied today that he in any way contributed to the condition of mind that caused the teacher to slay. He said to certain friends, as he had explained before, that Miss Lusk, instructor in psychology and clubwoman, was "chasing him."

Roberts asked to be shown any letters bearing his signature. There was none among the voluminous missives taken in the effects of Miss Lusk. He was asked if he would make a statement concerning his relations with Miss Lusk, and he replied by saying he would await the action of the coroner. The inquest has been adjourned to the call of the coroner. The letters of Miss Lusk have been impounded with the sheriff.

Hers a Starved Soul.

One of Miss Lusk's friends today explained the mental furor into which the teacher was thrust, resulting in murder and attempted suicide.

"Grace was a sentimental woman," said this girl friends after she had visited Miss Lusk in the hospital. "She never had any 'affairs' before this one, but she dwelt constantly upon sentimental maters. She was more than 40 years old before she had her first affair of the heart. It is too bad she loved Roberts, but I suppose he was the first man to offer her the consolation her soul craved. She was hungry for love.

"She had often asked Roberts to repeat his sentiments, and she believed him when he said he didn't care for Mrs. Roberts. Thus she grew into the firm belief that Mrs. Roberts was the interloper.

"Grace's whole life was wrapped up in this first and only infatuation and she honestly believed Mrs. Roberts was breaking up her happiness. And it was thus that in a temperamental fit of insanity she ran for her revolver and fired. Then she seemed to feel that all was over. She had heard Mrs. Roberts say that she was being made a fool of. So she tried to end her life."

Roberts Dejected at Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Roberts was held at 2 o'clock yesterday. Throngs attended the services. Dr. Roberts, who has been spending his time in the home of his mother-in-law, sat silently through the ceremony, dejected and broken in spirit.

Maurice Tullar, district attorney, has not indicated what course he will pursue with respect to prosecution. There is a great wave of sympathy for the teacher lying in the Waukesha hospital. There is a feeling she was driven to a desperate deed and that Mrs. Roberts happened to be the immediate victim of her temporary insanity.

That she will recover there seems no doubt. Dr. R. E. Davies has given her sedatives that she may have more rest and she has shown improvement.

In some of her fragments of conversation she has continued to express her complete disillusionment and disgust of Dr. Roberts. She constantly characterizes him as a coward and charlatan.

MAY QUEEN

Candidates Wage Hard Campaign in Charitable Endeavor.

Miss Josephine Shogren
MAJESTIC PHOTO

A hard campaign by candidates for May Queen at the twenty-fourth annual mid-summer festival of the Swedish National association to be held today in Justice park, on the Joliet electric line, is being waged by half a dozen young girls. The proceeds from the sale of votes will be given to the American Red Cross.

Among the most enthusiastic workers are Miss Josephine Shogren, Miss Hannah Sundberg, and Miss Clara Tuveson. The girl having the most votes cast in her behalf will be crowned at the Maypole ceremony.

Scores of entertaining features have been planned for the day. Folk dancing and singing, as well as general dancing, will take place. Three bands will furnish music. Proceeds from the event in general will be used in local charitable and in war relief work among families of men of Swedish origin who are going to war.

ILLINOIS WOMEN TO TAKE COURSE IN PATRIOTISM

Women from all over the state will meet next Tuesday and Wednesday for a two days' convention arranged by the Illinois division of the woman's committee of the council of national defense. The purpose of the meetings is to make clear to women all over the state in just what way each individually can perform her share of patriotic service and how the woman's committee can aid in making all the women's work more efficient by the avoidance of duplication.

The opening session will be called to order by Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, chairman of the Illinois division. Mrs. Antoinette Funk, representing the national council of defense, will be one of the speakers, followed by Miss Harriet Vittum, and various heads of committees.

THURSDAY WILL BE GALA DAY AT NAVAL STATION

Prepare to Entertain and Feed 50,000 Guests at Fete.

Detachments of men equipped with gas masks will participate in a sham battle at the United States Naval Training station at Great Lakes on Navy day, Thursday.

"Our seamen are being taught the intelligent use of this modern agency of warfare, especially its use by landing parties," said an officer.

At the same time several thousand boys from inland states will demonstrate their mastery of the rudiments of the profession of a seaman, Capt. W. A. Moffett has promised.

All Open to Public.

The tailor shops, cobbler shops, the postoffice, the bakeries, the laundries, the galleys, the hospitals, the general store and every department of the station will be opened to the public for inspection. The barracks in which the men sleep, sailor fashion, in hammocks, and the numerous devices by which recruits learn the rudiments of navigation and gunnery form just a part of the display.

Special trains will run direct to the station. Arrangements have been made to feed the visitors at moderate prices on the grounds.

The Program.

The program for Navy day follows:

10 a. m.—Athletic and field sports; naval display of gunboats, submarine chasers, cutters, etc., in the harbor.

Noon—Band concert by full Naval band.

2:30 p. m.—Dress parade and inspection of 5,000 apprentice seamen, followed by sham battle.

3 p. m.—Inspection of station.

4 p m.—Concert by full Naval band, led by Lieut. John Philip Sousa.

8 p. m.—Athletic exercises by apprentice seamen; Naval band concert.

9 p. m.—Swimming contest and fancy diving by apprentice seamen.

URGES OLD TIME CELEBRATION OF FOURTH OF JULY

Capital Frowns on Useless Noise in Nation's Crisis.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—The administration, through the committee on public information, appealed to the American people today for observance of Independence day on a high plane of national patriotism.

"This coming Fourth of July," the appeal says, "should be observed throughout the land in a spirit which recalls all the significance of the day to a democracy at war for its ideals and its threatened existence. Noise and useless illumination and unthinking celebration have no proper place in times such as these. Let there be a return to those ceremonies and addresses which prevailed in other days.

War Thrust on U. S.

"Let the ceremonies this year contain a message to the better spirit of America. Give our people the solid facts that bring home to them the issues of this war as America's war, not by its own seeking, but because it was thrust upon us by an insolence that has flaunted every standard of national and international morality and violated in succession every pledge it made us.

"Every organization should coöperate to make it such a celebration as will carry to every home and every element among our people the gravity of issues that strike to the root of the nation born 141 years ago and dedicated to freedom."

SOLEMN FOURTH IN CHICAGO.

More than 3,000 letters urging an especially patriotic and reverential observance of the Fourth of July have been sent bradcast throughout the state by the Illinois state council of defense, and the announcement is made that the outlook indicates great success.

Assurances of coöperation have been received from Bishop Anderson of Chicago, Bishop Fawcett of Quincy, and Bishop Sherwood of Springfield, and also from Bishop Muldoon of Rockford, Bishop Sprang of the Evangelical association, Dr. Edgar P. Hill, head of the church extension board of the Presbyterian church, and H. H. Peters, secretary of the Illinois Missionary society of the Christian church.

In Chicago 1,200 churches affiliated with the Chicago Church federation have promised their aid in making the day a success.

DO YOU WANT A HOME?

If so, why buy a lot on payments, spend several years paying for same, then, in order to get a home, have to finance building operations yourself? Come out and pick out your lot in any of our subdivisions and we will start building a home to your order at once.

Bookcases, fireplace, sleeping porch, sun parlor, tile bath, heat of any kind. Oak, walnut, mahogany or enamel trim. Lighting fixtures, window shades. Yard fenced in and graded.

OUR PROPOSITION

Come to our subdivision, pick out a lot that best suits you, select the style of house that you wish, pay us $20 down and $20 per month for five months, or $10 down and $10 per month for ten months. We start building your home at once. When you have paid in $100, we have your home finished; then you move in and pay balance monthly, same as rent. Monthly payments after you have taken possession run from $30 to $50 per month, including interest, according to price of house we build for you.

Building material has been advancing in the last five years. You pay more to-day for a home than you did a year ago. Why wait longer? No safer place to invest your money than in the home that you occupy yourself. We have only time in which to build a limited number for Fall delivery. This offer good only for the amount of our capacity.

HOMES NOW READY

We submit for your inspection 50 new brick, frame and stucco bungalows and homes. Many are ready to move into now. All sold on a payment of only $100 down, balance like rent. The same Fourth of July concessions made this year as in the past. DENIES HE GOT OFFER OF PEACE IN ILLICIT WAY

Branting Says German Proposal Was Known in Petrograd.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

STOCKHOLM, June 23.—"Great God" begins Hjalmar Branting, Scandinavian Socialist leader and editor, in a formal declaration that he did not illicitly gain possession of the Hoffmann-Odier-Grimm memorandum.

"Great God! As the world now can see from yesterday's telegrams," he says, "this matter was known in Petrograd for days. Such important news could not fail to come out."

Today's reports from Germany are that the government and press show a disposition to minimize the whole affair, and Switzerland says it is unwilling to take the initiative in any mediatory peace negotiations.

Hurts Zimmerwald Plan.

Unquestionably the memorandum's publication caused a catastrophe for the Zimmerwald movement in Petrograd, because Grimm was that movement's father. Called before the provisional government ministers there, Telli and Skabelev, Grimm declared that though he had received it he had made no use of Hoffmann's memorandum.

The ministers were not satisfied and ordered Grimm from Petrograd, whereupon the general congress of soldiers and workingmen of all Russia, which started in Petrograd on Saturday night, expressed its agreement with the ministers' decision by a vote of 640 against 121.

Aid Stockholm Meeting.

Concerning the relations between the Russian Social Democrats and the Stockholm conference, evidence appears that such relations actually exist. The Russian workingmen's and soldiers' committee at Petrograd has been doing its best to keep in touch with Stockholm, but they are much hindered by the imperfect means of communication.

Until last Saturday they knew practically nothing of what was happening in Stockholm in the way of preliminary work, because the wire connections often were bad.

"Our Petrograd reports," Herr Branting says, "give us the greatest satisfaction. The difficulties have been largely in the communication difficulties. Some of our letters are three weeks old before they arrive."

Send Men to Stockholm.

The Petrograd soldiers' and workingmen's committee declares it will send representatives to the Zimmerwald conference, scheduled for Stockholm early in July, on the condition that the conference merely is a preliminary one, and not in competition with the greater conference scheduled for July 10.

The workingmen's committee also is emphasizing its opinion that there will be no lasting peace until the workingmen have a voice in the international policies and can create international solidarity.

LUTHERANS PLAN TO RAISE $25,000 TO AID FIGHTERS

Plans to raise a $25,000 fund to care for men in the army and navy formed part of one of the resolutions adopted by the general synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church at its meeting yesterday in the Unity church.

The fund is to be raised by contributions in churches and is the outgrowth of a proposal made by the board of inner missions that the general synod appropriate $1,000 to aid soldiers and sailors.

Dr. V. G. A. Tressler, president of the synod, will dedicate Unity church today.

Next Saturday to Be Tag Day.

Next Saturday will be set aside as tag day for the Franco-Serbian hospital fund. The work is under the direction of Mrs. Paul Yeftich, a nurse recently over from field service in Serbia. Seven hundred Chicago girls will assist in the tagging.

GERMAN CRITICS SEE UNCLE SAM AS WAR FACTOR

Give More Space Now to America in the Big Conflict.

BY CYRIL BROWN.

[Copyright: 1917: By Press Publishing Company (New York World).]

STOCKHOLM, June 23.—Though unrecognizably distorted, as seen through German eyes, Uncle Sam in war paint is beginning to claim space in the German press more proportionate to his importance.

Military critics, although naturally regarding American arms superciliously, almost flippantly, are, nevertheless, forced to make constant reference to this new factor in their calculations.

Thus the Tageblatt's military critic clairvoyant, Gen. Baron von Ardennes, has a vision of a complete great allied spring offensive, whose initial force, he avers, is spent.

French Wait for America.

The military critic declares the French were forced to discontinue the costly offensive until the American allies could appear on the continent—a fact which, in Ardennes' estimation, must be hard for French national pride to swallow.

The Vossische Zeitung's military medium, Capt. von Salzmann, sees the war being waged by the allies as a mathematical problem of masses, and says:

"Today England's human masses, with which we must now reckon the Americans, must be employed in the same way as the Russian masses, and they will meet the same fate. Let the Americans come—if they are able! They will in no way change the situation as it exists today. They will merely bleed to death with their arrogant friends, the English. As one more auxiliary nation of England, they are blind and deaf to suffer themselves to be hitched in front of England's war chariot.

U. S. Forgetting About Japan.

"America, meanwhile, is forgetting its real foe yonder across the Pacific—a shortsightedness which the present generation must dearly pay for."

Fascinating summer fiction, too, is offered German readers about America's war preparations, notably by the Vossische Zeitung. Its "indirect" London correspondent wires as a noteworthy detail that Pershing's expeditionary force includes many bloodhounds trained to attack watch posts. This same specialist in America says it is "characteristic of America's conception of war that several ladies have succeeded in being taken to the flying corps," and that "one lady even has been accepted as signaler by the coast artillery."

Banks Offered Good Terms.

This kind of thing is not calculated to make the Germans take America's war preparation overseriously, which is the principal purpose of most of the American "news" in the skillfully manipulated German press.

German readers are further told that German-Americans are under constant suspicion and that the rest of the population is being incited against them. A Reuter dispatch that steel, oil, and coal must be furnished at prices fixed by the government is insinuatingly headed: "War Graft in America."

U. S. to Control Exports.

Although optimistic Germans undeniably are falling for much of this flimflam in American news, they are hard headed enough still to take seriously at its full face value the reports that America is going sharply to control exports to neutrals, which items are variously headlined, "America's Rationing of Neutrals," and "America's Violation of Neutrals."

TINFOIL SAVING ADDS FUNDS FOR SUMMER CAMP

Tinfoil saving has been discovered by TRIBUNE readers to be an easy way of contributing to the Algonquin summer camp and TRIBUNE hospital, which soon will be under way to bring health and pink cheeks to hundreds of sunless Chicago children. Tinfoil from cigaret packages, food packages, tobacco, and all forms of commodities is being saved and sold, the proceeds used in contributing to the aid of the children. Tinfoil now is over the 60 cents per pound mark and bids fair to remain there.

Alpha Sigma Chi Party.

A reception, bunko party, and luncheon in the presidential suite of the Hotel La Salle yesterday afternoon marked the closing social function of Alpha chapter of Alpha Sigma Chi sorority.

FRENCH WOMEN ASK SUFFRAGE AS WAR REWARD

Demand Deputies Listen and Give Civil Rights to the Fair Sex.

BY LINCOLN EYRE.

[Copyright: 1917: By Press Publishing Company (New York World).]

PARIS, June 23.—That there are two women locomotive engineers in France and that the British house of commons voted for woman suffrage have given the equal franchise movement here the most powerful impetus it has had since the beginning of the war.

The Woman Suffrage League of France sent a delegation to the chamber of deputies demanding that steps be taken to accord French women the same privileges soon to be enjoyed by their British sisters.

Suffrage Is Demanded.

"Have the women of our country played a less glorious part in the war than those on the other side of the channel?" Mme. Marguerite Duand, head of the parliamentary delegation, exclaimed. "In every war women have made terrible sacrifices and always they have been in vain, because, having no civil rights worth mentioning, they could not bring about reforms that should follow war.

"We are determined that the conclusion of this struggle shall be different and we believe our deputies must be influenced by the action of British lawmakers."

The woman engineers are Mmes. Louise Debris and Marie Viard. Debris was reported missing in the first days of the war, and Viard was killed at Verdun. The women are piloting shunting engines about the yards at the camp and hope soon to drive regular locomotives on the Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean system.

Sees More American Troops.

"America, which extended so hearty a reception to the French mission, doesn't consider Pershing's 25,000 men a sufficient contribution even at the start," Maurice Barres, member of the French academy, writes in L'Echo de Paris. It is likely that a second division of the regular army will follow that of Pershing, but this depends on reports which the American general will write about the possibilities of intensive instruction in Europe.

"I think very soon we will behold more American soldiers and in much greater number."

M. Barres feels confident that the United States will be able to find a solution for the transport problem, which he admits is immense.

"One thing is certain," he concludes, "America enters the war up to the ears and President Wilson is entirely in accord with Marshal Joffre."

Pardon Board to Reward Loyal Joliet Prisoners

Springfield, Ill., June 23.—Prisoners at Joliet penitentiary who remained loyal to those in authority during the recent riot when buildings in the prison stockade were burned will be rewarded when the pardon board meets at Joliet next Tuesday. This announcement was made at the office of Gov. Lowden today.

It is the plan to shorten sentences of a number of prisoners who aided guards in quelling the disturbance. Leaders of the riot will be given proper punishment later on, it was stated.

Sue Barrett Co. for $500,000.

William H. Pindell, an attorney, filed suit for $500,000 damages in the Circuit court yesterday against the Barrett company, a coal tar concern, and the company's officers, Ralph Beau, William H. Childs, Thomas M. Rianhard, Lewis P. Sibley, and E. J. Steer. Only a precipe was filed by Attorneys R. S. Folsom and C. M. Haft, who represent Mr. Pindell. The attorneys refused to discuss the suit further than to state that it grew from a business transaction.

GREENBAUM 95; AT DESK AS EVER; FRIENDS DROP IN

Elias Greenebaum, oldest Chicago banker and founder of Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company, is to be the central figure today at a family reception in his residence, 4510 Grand boulevard. He was 95 years old yesterday and a number of well known Chicagoans dropped into the bank to offer congratulations to the financier they had known since their youth.

Mr. Greenebaum was at his desk as usual. Flowers were piled about him while he read a stack of telegrams of congratulation. Although he has retired in favor of his sons, the aged banker makes a practice of visiting the office every day.

The spot where he read his telegrams is not far from the site of his first home here, which was at La Salle and Jackson, a quiet homelike place in the early days. Prior to that he had many varied experiences. First he was a bank clerk in Prussia. Then he came to America about seventy-five years ago. He was a peddler for a time, then a clerk in a Chicago dry goods store.

In 1855 Mr. Greenebaum and a brother started out in the banking business in a small way. They prospered steadily.

Woman Takes Own Life.

GEMMILL CALLS BAR ASSOCIATION INTO BAILIFF ROW

Judge Refuses to Accept Colleagues' Offer of Investigation.

The office of the chief bailiff of the Municipal court of Chicago, presided over by Anton J. Cermak, is to be the most investigated department of Chicago's administrative machine.

The concentrated prying and quizzing is to be done by:

The Municipal court's standing committee on bailiffs, consisting of Judges Fry, Hayes, and Stelk.

The entire body of judges, which meets Tuesday afternoon under the chairmanship of Chief Justice Harry Olson.

Judge William N. Gemmill, who started things, and who is prosecuting an individual and personal investigation.

And maybe a committee of the Bar Association of Chicago.

Won't Write for Judges.

Judge Gemmill announced last night that he was going to prepare specific charges in writing, but instead of presenting them to the judges' committee, which meets on Tuesday, he proposes to present them to a special committee of the Bar association, which he will ask President Joseph W. Moses to appoint for the purpose.

Judge Gemmill has refused to appear before the judges, despite the fact that he was directed to present his charges in writing on Tuesday for their consideration. His reason for this is a difference of opinion in the method of prosecuting the investigation.

Judge Gemmill says Judge Olson should investigate the bailiff's office and not the sources of Judge Gemmill's information.

Further Repartee.

Judge Olson says that Judge Gemmill has made no charges that can be construed as definite enough to institute a thoroughgoing investigation.

In order that there may be no doubt on that score, Judge Gemmill authorized THE TRIBUNE last night to say for him:

"In answer to Judge Olson's statement that I have made no charges, I wish to refresh his memory by saying that I charged graft and corruption in the bailiff's office; I reiterate, there are graft and corruption in that office and I have the goods to prove it, and will prove it."

UNWRITTEN LAW TO BE PLEA OF COLLINS SLAYER

Sensational testimony is looked for when William J. Russell, 3361 Indiana avenue, is placed on trial in Judge Lockwood Honoré's branch of the Criminal court tomorrow, to answer to the charge of having murdered Henry C. Collins, 24 years old, 3348 Federal street, a sergeant in the Seventh Illinois infantry.

Part of the testimony is expected to concern the relations of Collins and Mrs. Elizabeth Russell, wife of the accused. Attorney Max M. Korshak, who, with George M. Reker, represent Russell, said yesterday that the defendant would plead self-defense and the unwritten law.

"We expect to show that Collins was responsible for the separation of Russell and his wife," he said. "One of the features will be the testimony of Russell's 5 year old son. We expect to put the boy on the stand to show that Collins visited Mrs. Russell during her husband's absence—generally while Russell was away at work—and that Mrs. Russell taught the boy to call Collins 'Uncle Hank.'"

CATCHING

Bridesmaid and Usher Like Wedding So Much They Decide to Have One of Their Own.

Miss Alice Kitchell

On the night of June 16 Alice Kitchell, a June graduate of the University of Chicago, acted as a bridesmaid at the wedding of Leslie Parker and Francis Richardson, both old campus friends at the university. Cedric Merrill, also a June graduate of the university, acted as an usher at the same wedding. Incidentally, it may be said that the above mentioned Alice and Cedric have been chums through their entire college course. They liked the wedding so much that they have announced their own engagement, so that they might attend another wedding together soon.

Merrill is the son of Prof. Earl Merrill of the Latin department of the university. Miss Kitchell is a member of the Nu Phi Sigma club.

TO SUE ESTATE OF FOSTER MOTHER FOR HALF MILLION

Mineola, N. Y., June 23.—Permission to begin suit for $500,000 against the estate of Mrs. Lizzie M. Palmer, widow of Thomas W. Palmer, former United States senator from Michigan, was granted to John Neger of Brooklyn today by the surrogate of Nassau county.

Mrs. Palmer died at Great Neck, L. I., July 28, 1916, leaving an estate valued at more than $5,000,000. Her will stipulated that the residuary estate of more than $4,000,000 was to be used to endow the Merrill-Palmer Motherhood and Training School of Detroit, to fit girls and young women "morally, physically, and religiously for the duties of wifehood and motherhood and the supervision, direction and inspiration of homes."

The Neger petition alleged that Mrs. Palmer promised to leave him the Great Neck property, valued at $250,000, and $250,000 additional if he would consent to live in her home as her son and companion.

State Protests Year's Delay on Swindle Trial

So many continuances have been granted Julius Koelling, 4331 Hazel avenue, found guilty of a land swindle, that Assistant State's Attorney Murphy grew suspicious when Koelling's lawyer asked for another in Judge Pam's court yesterday, saying that Koelling is ill with pneumonia. For over a year a new trial has been sought. When Attorney Jennings said that Koelling was ill, Murphy demanded that the state be allowed to have a physician examine the accused. Judge Pam allowed this and postponed the case to Thursday.

THREE BOYS HELD TO GRAND JURY AS SRERY'S SLAYERS

"Dodo" McDonnell Repudiates Confession; Others Laugh.

Joseph "Dodo" McDonnell, 15 years old, was held to the grand jury by a coroner's jury yesterday for the murder of David Srery, a junkman, whose skull was crushed with a baseball bat in a barn in the rear of 1021 West Monroe street last Tuesday. George Brandt, 12 years old, and John Killian, 11, were bound over as accessories.

Mrs. Srery, who speaks no English, sat weeping on the stand as her statement, obtained through an interpreter, was read. She is the mother of four children. A fifth child is to be born within a month. The family, which lives in a two room home in West Fourteenth street, has been left destitute by the crime. The mother swooned when the verdict was read.

McDonnell Is Sullen.

"Dodo" McDonnell, who is said to have been the leader of the boy robbers, sat sullen but alert while his own confession and the confessions of the other two boys, made to Capt. Thomas Meagher of the Desplaines street police, were read. Occasionally he interrupted with, "That ain't so" or "It's a lie."

The confessions showed that the boys had lured Srery to the barns to sell him some old iron. He offered 3 cents. They demanded 5 cents. An argument followed. Srery bent over to examine the iron. A baseball bat swung by McDonnell descended upon his head and he fell unconscious, to die later in a hospital. He was robbed of $13.

McDonnell repudiated his confession when placed on the stand.

Repudiates Confession.

"I don't know anything about the junkman's murder," he growled. "I wasn't in the barn. I was out selling papers. I made that confession so the police would let me go. I was sick of being locked up in a cell. I signed it, but it wasn't true."

The other two boys were not called. They apparently had no appreciation of the seriousness of the crime. They looked with curiosity at the little woman in black shaking with sobs. Why she should weep they seemed not to understand. They nudged each other and giggled when reference was made to their own participation in the murder. They laughed outright with baby dimples showing when "Dodo" half rose to shout savagely, "It's a lie!"

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McDonnell, 4103 West Harrison street, sat beside their son. Attorney Thomas J. Talbot was present to guard his interests.

Detectives Testify.

Detective Sergts. Thomas O'Malley, Charles M. Welling, and James G. Leonard, who investigated the murder, told of the confessions of the boys and declared they had been made voluntarily without promise of immunity. Louis Gillie, 2700 Rhine street, who was present in Capt. Meagher's office when the boys confessed, testified to the same thing.

After the inquest the three boys were photographed at the Bureau of Identification, where their Bertillon measurements and finger prints were taken. Afterward they were lodged in the boys' department of the county jail.

Phi Gams at Ft. Sheridan Give Another Dinner

The Phi Gamma Delta fraternity knows of fifty-five of its members who are training at Fort Sheridan. A large number of them got together last Thursday for dinner at the Hotel Moraine in Highland Park and another dinner will be held at the same place next Thursday evening. Members of the fraternity who wish to attend are requested to notify Hargrave A. Long at 105 West Monroe street. Among the institutions represented at the camp are Chicago, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Knox, Illinois Wesleyan, Allegheny, California, Colorado, Syracuse, Ohio State, Kansas, Missouri, Purdue, Cornell, Washington and Jefferson, Dartmouth, and Denison.

Capt. R. Gotsche, master of the steamship United States, which recently arrived in New York from the war zone, visited friends in Chicago yesterday. Last night he was given a dinner at the Atlantic hotel.

ADMITS MURDER OF CRUGER GIRL; JEALOUSY CAUSE

Young Italian Asserts He Was Angered by Being Rebuffed.

BOLOGNA, Italy, June 23.—Alfredo Cocchi, the fugitive New York motorcycle dealer, abandoned today his pretense of innocence of the murder of Ruth Cruger and confessed his guilt. Jealousy was his motive. He was unable, he declared to win her love and became furious when she rebuffed his persistent attentions.

He told in detail how the 18 year old Wadleigh High school graduate met death at his hands in the building where her body was recently unearthed from the cellar.

Upon being closely questioned by the police Cocchi admitted that the murder had been preceded by an assault. He had denied this previously. His confession is now considered to be complete. Sig. Venturini, Cocchi's counsel, was permitted to see him later. To the lawyer Cocchi told the complete story of the crime, this account being identical with the one he previously had given the authorities.

Trial May Be in Italy.

Attorney Venturini today presented a petition to the court to refuse the extradition of Cocchi. The ministry of foreign affairs has been asked by the court to obtain the evidence against Cocchi through the Italian ambassador in Washington. This is asked with reference to the article in the Italian penal code, which provides for the trial here of any Italian subject committing abroad a crime punishable in Italy with not less than three years' imprisonment.

Hope to Bring Him Back.

New York, June 23.—With the announcement that Alfredo Cocchi had confessed to the murder of Ruth Cruger police efforts here turned today to the problem of having the motorcycle dealer brought back to New York to face trial.

District Attorney Swann announced that he had conferred personally here last night with Frank L. Polk, counselor of the state department, and was assured the United States would exert every energy to have Cocchi returned to this country.

"I told him," the prosecutor said, "that the widespread interest of the American people in the case and the universal demand for punishment of the murderer should convince the Italian government that it would be to Italy's interest to surrender Cocchi to this government. Mr. Polk assured me the state department would do everything that it could to see that Cocchi was brought back."

CAN ALL YOU CAN

Housewives Urged to Be Canny in Preserving Food as a Step Toward Victory.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—Everybody can can, and in these war times, with food a prime factor in achievement of victory, the department of agriculture urges that everybody should can food for home consumption. "Be canny," the department of agriculture says, in a series of epigrams on the subject, and here are some of them:

Everybody can, put your spare time into cans and jars.

Home canning is kitchen patriotism.

Don't have an empty preserving jar in your neighborhood next fall.

If you have more preserving jars than you can fill lend them to a neighbor who will make them work for the nation.

A quart of canned peaches or tomatoes on the shelf is worth a bushel rotting on the ground.

Make your hoe this summer keep your can opener busy next winter.

Establish a home canning firm, "father, mother, and company."

DOESN'T PAY TO BRAG OF ANY ONE BUT UNCLE SAM

"Sweden is the greatest country in the world, Gustavus Adolphus——"

Lars Nordy, saloonkeeper, eminently a politician and known for a radius of miles from a center in his oasis at Ninety-second street and Buffalo avenue, South Chicago, addressed his remarks at everybody in his place yesterday. He didn't mean that any one should take offense.

Then——

"My name's Tommy Lynch."

"I'm Tommy Smith."

"Take a look at Jimmie McCue."

Three young men in front of the bar so introduced themselves.

"An' we're all from back o' the yards," they chorused.

A wagon load of reserves from the South Chicago police station came twenty minutes later. "King" Nordy was intrenched behind his bar. A barrage of cuspidors rattled around his ears. He answered by volleys with the bottled goods from the back bar.

At the station "King" Nordy signed complaints and the turbulent trio were put under hatches to cool off.

Maimonides Hospital Fund Totals $20,000

Private donations and profits on the bazaar brought the Maimonides hospital fund total up to over $20,000 last night, according to a statement issued by Mrs. I. J. Kusel, chairman of the bazaar committee. The remaining $5,000 will have to be raised tonight, the last night of the bazaar.

Last night the boys' band of the Marks Nathan Orphans' home furnished the music for the fête. There was a popularity contest for which votes were openly sold—at 10 cents a vote and no questions asked. The winner will be announced tonight.

"And we thought a grand too large!"

THE Grand piano was the mark of the fine family in the older homes. But everything in modern life tends toward the miniature, and in the new apartments the Upright piano was substituted for the Grand merely because it fitted into a smaller space.

Now we have the Grandette. Move out your Upright, put in the Grandette, and you will find that you have taken up scarcely an inch more of floor space.

GOVERNOR SIGNS GOOD ROAD BILL; PUBLIC TO VOTE

Bonds for $60,000,000 to Pull State from Mud Put to People.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Springfield, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—Illinois will determine in November, 1918—by direct vote of the people—whether or not the state shall be pulled out of the mud. Gov. Lowden today signed the Meents $60,000,000 good roads bill, submitting the bond issue to the voters.

In the new law is stipulated a comprehensive system of hard roads, aggregating 4,500 miles, that will be built within the next four years, if the voters act affirmatively. This system reaches practically every one of the 102 county seats in the state, connecting them with the more important cities and villages, and laid out scientifically by the state highway department.

The companion bill, which provides for a doubling of motor vehicle license fees, was signed last week. Out of this fund will be paid the interest on the $60,000,000 and the principal will be retired annually, with the expectation that the entire issue will be returned within twenty years.

Signs High School Bill.

The downstate township high school controversy that has been raging ever since the Supreme court held invalid the act of 1909 was disposed of when the governor signed the two bills. One validates the bond issues that were in question and the other recasts the law held invalid to comply with the requirements of the Supreme court decision.

Gov. Lowden also signed the Hull bill creating a commission to examine into and report concerning the proposition of women's hour of labor. The senate, in the closing days of the session, declined to pass the women's eight hour bill, although it had been urged by Gov. Lowden. The reason given by Senator Hull and others for failure to vote for it was the matter needed further investigation. The Hull bill therefore was pressed for passage and went through without difficulty.

The commission will be known as the Illinois industrial survey, one of whom shall be an employer of woman labor, one a representative of women toilers, one a person interested in social problems, and two of whom "shall be persons who have had a medical education and are not distinctly representatives of either labor or capital." All are to be appointed by Gov. Lowden.

Powell Bill Is Signed.

Senator Powell's bill to permit judges to vacate commitment to the house of correction within thirty days of sentence was signed this morning, and Senator Curtis' bill increasing the salary of the adjutant general to $7,000, placing him on a par with the heads of departments under the administrative code, was signed.

Senator Austin's bill that changes the election laws to provide that registration days in the country towns of Cook county shall be held on the same day as are registration days in Chicago was permitted to become a law without signature. The argument for the bill was that great confusion exists in the suburbs by reason of hard campaigns that are made to get out registration in the city while the country towns were registering on other days.

Gov. Lowden today directed his attention to the mass of appropriation bills he has before him for consideration and action before the legislature returns next Friday seventy-one senate bills out of a total of 137 passed by both houses and 188 house bills out of a total of 270 passed by both houses.

Surgeon Maj. Perry L. Boyer, head of the Fort Sheridan training camp medical department, who married Miss Ethel Shirley Doe in Ottawa, Ont., last Wednesday, has arrived with his bride at the Congress hotel.

Mrs. Boyer is the only daughter of Mrs. Charles Doe of Ottawa. Her brother, Edward T. Doe, now a major with the Canadian forces on the western front, went over as chaplain with Canada's first oversea expedition.

Maj. Boyer has been in the regular army since 1901. Three years ago he met Miss Doe while she was visiting Mrs. Burleigh, wife of Capt. Burleigh, at Madison barracks in New York.

ROBERTSON BUSY IMPROVING MILK SUPPLY OF CITY

Commissioner of Health Robertson announced yesterday that he would ask the council at the next meeting to assist him in a campaign against impure milk.

A committee from the health department will meet Thursday with railroad men to try to induce them to ice milk cars to a temperature of 55 degrees.

Dr. Robertson said 6,800 babies less than 1 year old died last year in Chicago and 70 per cent of those deaths were due to poor milk.

ILLINOIS SOON GETS NEW PLAN OF GOVERNMENT

Code System Will Be in Force on the 1st of July.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—One week from tomorow—July 1—Gov. Lowden will pull the lever which will throw into operation the mechanism of the Illinois civil administrative code. With a few exceptions the men who are to fill the offices created by the act have been named by the governor and confirmed by the senate.

As the new régime becomes effective, nearly 200 boards and commissions that have been piling up expense and work and complicating the executive department of the government, go out of business. Departments that have figured most conspicuously in the partisan and factional political history of the state disappear from the records and the "new deal" that Gov. Lowden and the Republican platform promised to the people in the last campaign will be started.

During the coming week the governor is expected to make announcement of the three remaining public utility commissioners, the five members of the industrial board, and the minor appointees.

System Really in Force.

For ninety days, or since the department directors were selected, these cabinet members have been in daily consultation with the governor. For practical purposes the law has been in effect for more than a month. The bulk of the appropriations bills of the recent session have been formulated on a budget that was prepared by these department heads and approved by the governor.

In some instances men who will hold office under the code have taken over the duties of some of the boards that are about to die.

One of the big problems that will be immediate, with the advent of the new law, will be the readjustment of the office forces of the dismantled departments. The code contemplates that as many civil service employés as may be possible, shall be retained, with duties equivalent, so far as possible, with the duties now performed.

"This section shall not require the retention of more employés than are necessary to the proper performance of the functions of the department," says the code. The new amendments to the state civil service law which also become effective July 1, make it possible for a rapid absorption into the new departments of the state employés now protected by the merit law.

Roster of New System.

The complete roster of the new administrative code system, as set out in the act, and the names of the men who have been appointed to the posts created, follow:

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE—Director, Omar H. Wright, Belvidere; assistant director, Everett H. Tripp, Belvidere; administrative auditor, Joseph C. Mason, Chicago; superintendent of budget, not appointed; superintendent of department reports, A. T. Spivey, East St. Louis.

Newman, Elgin; superintendent of animal industry, W. W. Wright, Toulon; superintendent of plant industry, not appointed; chief veterinarian, A. T. Peters, Peoria; chief game and fish warden, Ralph F. Bradford, Pontiac.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR—Director, Barney Cohen, Chicago; assistant director, Burt C. Bean, Chicago; chief factory inspector, Robert S. Jones, Flora; superintendent of free employment offices, W. C. Lewman, Danville; chief inspector private employment agencies, John J. McKenna, Chicago.

DEPARTMENT OF MINES AND MINERALS—Director, Evan D. John, Carbondale; assistant director, Martin Bolt, Springfield.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS AND BUILDINGS—Director, Leslie D. Puterbaugh, Peoria; assistant director, Thomas G. Vennum, Watseka; superintendent of highways, S. E. Bradt, De Kalb; chief highway engineer, not appointed; supervising architect, not appointed; supervising engineer, not appointed; superintendent of waterways, William L. Sackett, Morris; superintendent of printing, H. L. Williamson, Springfield; superintendent of purchases and supplies, H. H. Kohn, Anna; superintendent of parks, Frank D. Lowman, Sandwich.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WELFARE—Director, Charles H. Thorne, Winnetka; asistant director, James W. McClure, Carlinville; alienist, not appointed; criminologist, not appointed; fiscal supervisor, Frank D. Whipp, Springfield; superintendent of charities, A. L. Bowen, Springfield; superintendent of prisons, John L. Whitman, Chicago; superintendent of pardons and paroles, Will Colvin, Springfield.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH—Director, Dr. C. St. Clair Drake, Chicago; assistant director, not appointed; superintendent of lodging house inspection, W. H. McCullough, Chicago.

DEPARTMENT OF TRADE AND COMMERCE — Director, William H. Stead, Ottawa; assistant director, James S. Baldwin, Decatur; superintendent of insurance, Fred W. Potter, Albion; fire marshal, John G. Gamber, Ottawa; superintendent of standards, not appointed; chief grain inspector, Walter E. Schmidt, Chicago; secretary of public utilities commission, not appointed.

DEPARTMENT OF REGISTRATION AND EDUCATION—Director, Francis W. Shephardson, Chicago; assistant director, not appointed; superintendent of registration, Fred C. Dodds, Springfield.

Others to Be Named.

In addition to the foregoing there are to be named the following executive boards and commissions:

In the department of agriculture, the food standard commission, consisting of the superintendent of foods and dairies, and two officers designated as food standard officers.

In the department of labor, the industrial commission, consisting of five officers.

In the department of mines and minerals, the mining board, consisting of four officers and the director of the department, and the miners' examining board, consisting of four officers.

In the department of trade and commerce, the public utilities commission, consisting of five officers. Thomas E. Dempcy, East St. Louis, and Fred E. Sterling, Rockford, are the only two members thus far announced.

In the department of registration and education, the normal school board, consisting of nine officers and the director of the department and the state superintendent of public instruction.

Committee of Advisers.

The following advisory and nonexecutive boards are to be appointed:

In the department of agriculture, a board of agricutural advisers of fifteen members, and a board of state fair advisers of nine members.

In the department of labor, a board of Illinois free employment office advisers of five members, and a board of local free employment advisers for each free employment office, of five members each.

In the department of public works, a board of art advisers of eight members, a board of water resource advisers of five members, a board of highway advisers of five members, a board of parks and building advisers of five members.

In the department of public welfare, a board of public welfare commissioners of five members.

In the department of public health, a board of public health advisers of five members.

In the department of registration and education, a board of natural resources and conservation advisers of seven members, and a board of state museum advisers of five members.

SERIOUS BUSINESS

So Says Boy Versifier Concerning Poetry—He Doesn't Read Ring Lardner Much.

OUR FLAG.

When our flag, the flag of freedom,
Doth wave on high, my heart
Fills with rapture as it leaps toward the sky.
'Tis the flag that says in lofty tones, freedom!
And as it folds, and unfolds, the sunlit air,
Cheers from my lips do tare,
And I long to fight for its honor,
And to protect it from the foes' foul snare.

"My papa is buying mamma and me a Liberty bond."

Papa, who is B. F. Hager, lives at 7318 Coles avenue.

"I'm going to be a poet and an artist when I grow up," declared Elliot, as he selected "Our Flag" from a number of verses to offer to the public prints.

"Poetry is a serious business," he added. "I don't read Ring Lardner much.

Then, by way of explanation, he said: "I was getting over the measles when I wrote 'Our Flag.'"

Buy Your Jeffery Six Now While Present Price Is In Force

This is your opportunity to save $150 to $200. Motor car prices are on the rise. Present price of Jeffery Six cannot be maintained indefinitely — certainly not after present supply of raw materials is exhausted. Place your order now!

NASH Jeffery MOTORS

THE cost of raw materials has gone up between twenty and fifty per cent during the past few months, and prices are still rising. Forty-four automobile manufacturers have already been forced to announce price raises due to this condition alone.

But because the Jeffery Six is manufactured ninety-three per cent in the Nash factory, because we are thus obliged to buy our materials far in advance, and in large quantities, we have been practically unaffected by the rising cost of materials.

That is why we say to you that the Jeffery Six today would cost between $150 and $200 more if it were an assembled car—if we had to go out in the market now to secure our supplies.

It is certain we cannot maintain this present price indefinitely — certainly not after our present stock of materials is exhausted.

Please remember that this is the new Jeffery Six, the leader in its field. It has been refined and improved. It has the unqualified backing of The Nash Motors Company.

Your opportunity is here if you act quickly. See your dealer at once. Arrange for a demonstration. This car will please you as it has pleased thousands of Jeffery owners. Buy and you will congratulate yourself on your shrewdness.

Get your Jeffery Six for $1465.

COPPERS PULL COATTAILS AND CHOKE ORATORY

Mail Order Stockholders Subdued While Their President Talks.

A detail of policemen maintained order in the meeting yesterday of the stockholders of the Riley-Schubert-Grossman company at Fifteenth and Laflin streets. This concern is one of the stock selling mail order enterprises that is under investigation by State's Attorney Hoyne, the postoffice department, and Deputy Superintendent of Police Westbrook. About 400 people were at the meetign.

Obstreperous security holders who insisted on knowing what has become of their money and demanding an accounting at the hands of President Samuel Michael Grossman, were either jerked back into their seats or asked to leave the hall.

Says He'll Quit—But Doesn't.

At the windup of the meeting Grossman made a frenzied appeal to the stockholders to subscribe 25 per cent additional to their present holdings, declaring that this money must come if the company is to send out catalogs this fall and continue in business.

"If you turn me down on this," he shouted, arms waving, "if you refuse to subscribe this money, I'll resign from the company in an hour."

He didn't get the money and he didn't resign. Blank checks were distributed through the crowd, but to no avail. The stockholders got up and walked out in silence.

Just Out of Their Reach.

Grossman's appearance was attended with considerable pomp. His speech, couched in grandiloquent phrases, was delivered from a little perch of a platform high above the reach of the stockholders. Bunting surrounded it, and a national flag dropped from the railing. On the platform below him were attorneys, department heads, and other satellites. Loud applause from the company's employés and stock salesmen in the audience greeted him as he appeared.

Grossman started his speech with a sweeping wave of the arm.

"Where is my money?" shouted an irate stockholder. "I came here for a financial statement, not oratory."

"Sit down there!" chorused the Grossman following in the crowd. A policeman moved in the direction of the disturber.

Salary Only $15,000!

"I've put money in this concern——"

A hand behind grabbed his coat tail and jerked him into his seat.

"My own salary in this company is only $15,000 a year," began Grossman.

"Fifteen thousand dollars a year!" shrieked a stockholder, jumping to his feet.

"Ain't I worth it?" demanded Grossman in reply. "Haven't I put $100,000 in this company—your company—too? And isn't the interest on my money something?"

Evidence in the hands of the state's attorney is that Grossman's salary is $50,000 a year.

"Shut Up or Get Out."

Grossman said the company has sold only $600,000 of stock, instead of $1,250,000, as he stated recently.

"I want an accounting," shouted another stockholder. "I want a report of assets, liabilities, operating expenses, and gross profits——

"Sit down; sit down," chorused the Grossman faction.

"I won't sit down; I won't have my money taken——

A policeman clapped a hand on his shoulder and told him to shut up or get out.

Amazes Banker.

A woman stockholder gained the floor. The policeman stared at her, but she was shouted down, too.

"I went down to my banker the other day," said Grossman, "and told him what a wonderful company we have here and asked him to lend us some money. He brought me back in his limousine and after looking the place over exclaimed: 'Why, I am amazed. I had no idea you had such a tremendous enterprise here.'

"Then what do you think he did? He said he would lend me the money if I turned over to him 51 per cent of our stock. Think of it—lend me the money if I would sell you out!

"I refused to do it, and now I'm asking you for the money he refused to let me have."

Didn't Give His Name.

Grossman did not give the name of the banker. The account of his company is with the Union Trust company.

A financial accounting was not offered by Grossman, nor did he tell the stockholders anything about the financial standing of the company. Agents from the office of State's Attorney Hoyne, the police department, and the postoffice department were in the audience.

Miss Helen Woodcock Bride of Weber H. Smith

Miss Helen Woodcock, daughter of the late Lindsay Woodcock, manager of Marshall Field & Co., was married to Weber H. Smith of New York City last night at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Katherine Woodcock, 401 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, by Dr. W. W. Johnston of the McCormick Theological seminary.

Miss Clara Mallen of Oak Park was bridesmaid and Edward Smith, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Miss Lois Woodcock, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Lindsay Maude Woodcock, 6 years old, sister of the bride, was flower girl.

The wedding had been planned for October, but was hastened by Mr. Smith's appointment to a commission in the training camp at Sparta, Wis., from the officers' reserve corps training camp at Fort Sheridan, where he has been in training. Two hundred and fifty guests attended the ceremony.

WALL STREET LOSES GILES, COTTON EXPERT

Woman Whose Opinion Ruled Market Retires.

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—K. Giles, statistician, is reported to have gone out of business. Wall street is to lose its noted expert on the annual cotton crop.

And yet not all Wall street, even today, knows that the information upon which it relied for its speculations in cotton for a decade and a half—information which in any number of instances has proved more reliable than that furnished by the government itself—came from a woman. For K. Giles, statistician, is Miss Katherine Giles, a woman who can keep a secret.

Miss Giles, even before the eventful turn of the cotton tide in 1902, when she differed from government reports by a large percentage and increased cotton values by some $5,000,000, had the name of "the Cotton Queen" and was drawing more than $10,000 a year.

Reason? Never Speculated.

And curiously enough when a reporter interviewed her some five years later on the reason for her phenomenal success she skipped all the usual platitudinous advice about industry, determination, and so forth, and laid all her prowess to the fact that she never speculated.

From $8 a week ruling lines on tabulation cards Miss Giles rose to be one of the inside powers of Wall street. Her information, gathered painstakingly from cotton growers from Georgia to Bombay became the standard upon which men based the investment of millions. Her advice was sought by thousands.

Hundreds tried every ruse known to strategy to make her divulge, even if only a day in advance, the nature of her coming report on crop conditions. But Miss Giles has always managed to outwit them.

Youthful Looking and Retiring.

Miss Giles is exceedingly feminine and youthful looking, golden haired, bright and pleasant of eye. The 25,000 post cards which she annually distributes among the twelve cotton growing states have not divorced her from a dislike of publicity and other traits womanly. One of them is a country home at Clover, N. J., to which she is retiring now that her office will be closed.

It was that Dec. 5, 1902, of course, which brought Miss Giles her biggest reputation. The government report on the crops said one thing, Miss Giles' report said another—and it was her report which won and turned the tide of the cotton market. She was comparatively well known before that, but when this happened telegrams began to pour into New York from all over the country.

"Who is Giles?" they asked. And "Giles" has never wanted for adherents the nation over since then.

HIGHLANDS STATE BANK OPENS ON HALSTED STREET

The Highlands State bank was established last night at 7904 South Halsted street. The bank has been operated for the last three years as the Marquette Park State bank at Sixty-third street and Western avenue, near Marquette Park. After the failure of the Auburn State bank, which had done business at Seventy-ninth and Halsted streets, the directors and stockholders of the Marquette Park State bank considered it advantageous to the interests of the bank to change its name and location and enter the field at Seventy-ninth and South Halsted streets.

The officers of the Highlands State bank are the same as those of the Marquette Park State bank. John Bain is president, William Moulton, formerly one of the cashiers of the West Englewood-Ashland State bank, is vice president, and William Brietzke is cashier. The directors of the New bank are the same as those of its predecessor. They are John Bain, Ira P. Baker, William Brietzke, William Moulton, John Millen, Robert Peel O'Connor, Oliver M. Zeis, James Petersen, Walter H. Buhlig, William H. Fisher, and Edward C. Barry.

The bank opened for business last evening and the stockholders, directors, and their friends gathered at the new place of business to show to the bank and the community their interest and good will. The Highlands State bank has $200,000 capital stock, $50,000 surplus, and $15,000 undivided profits.

Flexible Low Shoes

These LA FRANCE walking oxfords are particularly well suited to school teachers, nurses and business women.

Every requirement for foot comfort has received full consideration in the designing and in the manufacture of these flexible oxfords. That's the secret of their great popularity among women to whom comfort is of prime importance in footwear.

They're made of finest quality allover black Imperial vici kid, on foot-form lasts that embody standard measurements. The special flexible soles are the product of LA FRANCE secret process tannage, Goodyear welt sewed.

LA FRANCE flexible sole oxfords, in golden brown Imperial vici kid, at $6.

Other LA FRANCE pumps, colonials and oxfords range in price from $5 to $6.50.

"Year-'Round" Cadillacs Now the Preferred Type

Two years ago—even last year—people called them enclosed, or winter, cars. But now a wiser public sees comfort first. And comfort means protection—from sun, or wind, or sudden storm—the year 'round.

The Cadillac designers have met more than half way this demand for year-'round comfort. By wider doors and extra roomy bodies—by windows that drop out of sight—by longer wheel base and easier riding—by all these and more they have made Cadillac cars give year-'round comfort on any road in any weather.

Eight year-'round types of Cadillacs have been developed to give Cadillac buyers the widest choice. All styles of merit are included. Present prices range from $2735 to $3935. And then we have Foster Custom Built Bodies with the Cadillac chassis at $4000 to $5500.

A good car will never cost less than today. Likely it will cost more—at least for some years to come.

Lomax's
PEPSIN GINGER ALE

An Attractive Opportunity For An Investment in a Chicago Concern Sixty-Five Years Old!

A Statement by George Lomax, President

In the sixty-five years that this firm has been in business it has enjoyed continuous prosperity. From year to year the business has shown a most substantial profit. In all Chicago there are no products more widely or more favorably known than Lomax products—Lomax's Original Pepsin Ginger Ale, Lomax's Root Beer, and so on down the whole Lomax list.

Now an era of multiplied prosperity confronts us. Economic conditions are such that the "dry" movement is sweeping the nation. Already Illinois is surrounded by "dry" states. Our business—the manufacturing and selling of so-styled "soft" drinks—is jumping forward to the point where we are unable, even with our present great facilities, to take care of it all.

In Chicago alone, Lomax's Original Pepsin Ginger Ale and other beverages are sold in more than 5,000 grocery and drug stores. A fleet of powerful motor trucks and many teams of horses are now taxed to the limit to make Chicago deliveries of the much wanted Lomax products.

Last year (1916) our plants at Libertyville, Ill., and at Paulina and Kinzie streets, Chicago, worked at top pitch, making thousands of cases of Lomax beverages per day. In spite of our tremendous efforts we could not make enough to supply even the city demand. We could have sold hundreds of thousands more cases could we have made them.

We literally were swamped. Our customers, to whom our men couldn't deliver, sent their own trucks and wagons to our plant, and stood for hours in line, waiting their turn and glad to get Lomax beverages. Hundreds couldn't wait to have the labels placed on the bottles. Anything to get Lomax's products—that was the cry, and is the cry today.

It was conclusively proved that our present facilities—by far the greatest in Chicago—are much too small to take care of the hundreds of thousands of Chicagoans who demand our goods.

A Conservative Prophecy

Now we are going at this tremendous business proposition in a big way. Last year we turned down out-of-town orders for carload after carload. Business that we could and should have had went begging.

Awake to the giant proportions of the business that confronts us, we have purchased Indian Hill Spring at Libertyville, Ill. A huge plant will be erected at the springside—a plant the like of which the bottling industry has never seen. The sparkling water that tumbles and bubbles from the spring will be used in making greater quantities of even better Lomax products.

We are going ahead now to spread out—to nationalize our business—to make the name Lomax, and the purity products it represents, known from coast to coast.

With this great end in view, an opportunity is offered to our friends to grow with us—to make money with us in a bigger way. I can truthfully say to investors that I know of no opportunity ever offered which possesses equally brilliant prospects.

GEORGE LOMAX, President.

25,000 Shares 7 Per Cent Cumulative Stock—

Dividends Payable Quarterly.

Par Value $10 Per Share.

75,000 Shares Common Stock ($10 Par Value).

All Stock Fully Paid and Non-Assessable.

Note: The quarterly dividend on preferred stock is payable July 10 to all stockholders of record of July 2.

The large proportion of these shares have already been subscribed by close friends of the company. The unsold portion of the issue is offered to public subscription. It is our hope that the so-called "small" investor will take advantage of this opportunity to make a handsome profit at this time, when more than ordinary rates of interest are actually a necessity for the man with moderate income and moderate savings.

Don't plan to buy more than you are sure you can pay for—but do buy all that you can pay for, for such an opportunity as this may never be offered to you again. Seven per cent interest, with a bonus of 50 per cent common stock, is the money-making chance of a lifetime when, as in this case, the investment is free from all features of a speculative nature.

Truly the Lomax Company is confronted with wonderful national development. We ask you to investigate every statement that we make—and we are certain that you will agree we have been most conservative in describing the money-making possibilities of this stock.

All subscriptions will be filled in the order they are received. The Lomax Company reserves the right to advance the price, to limit subscriptions and to refuse further subscriptions at any time the books show the issue to be over-subscribed.

Quick action will be necessary if you want to share in the profits of this gigantic business enterprise. Many who wait will be disappointed. So don't let a moment elapse. Get your signed coupon in to be sure of your stock. Write, phone or call at the office for detailed information.

Direct Treasury Stock Offer

We confidently expect that this remaining block of stock will be subscribed in record time. The liberal plan which we have adopted makes purchase so easy that we feel sure the small investor will take immediate advantage of the opportunity which we are offering him. There are no promoters, no brokers, or underwriters to collect commissions. Here is how to buy the stock:

$20 buys 2 shares of 7% Preferred Stock and 1 share of Common Stock.
$40 buys 4 shares of 7% Preferred Stock and 2 shares of Common Stock.
$60 buys 6 shares of 7% Preferred Stock and 3 shares of Common Stock.

O'NEIL TELLS GOLFERS HOW TO USE IRONS

Important Outfit for Bag Limited to Five Types.

BY GEORGE A. O'NEIL.
Chain-o'-Lakes Country Club.]
[Copyright: 1917: By George A. O'Neil.]

Iron Clubs

Many varieties of iron clubs have been manufactured and sold in recent years, and some of the new varieties have special advantages for special purposes. But all these varieties can be reduced to five general types and the principles of play that apply to these types can easily be adapted to the special varieties. The five types are: The driving iron or cleek, the midiron, the mashie, the niblick, and the putter.

The Driving Iron

No player who has equal mastery of both wooden and iron clubs can get as much distance with a driving iron as with a driver or brassie. But often it is desirable or even necessary to sacrifice distance for the sake of greater accuracy.

In playing a long hole a difference of twenty or thirty yards is a matter of importance, and it makes comparatively little difference whether at the end of the first stroke the long ball lies in the middle of the course or not, provided it lies on the fair green. But if there are pits or traps or other hazards that must be avoided it may be wise to sacrifice the extra twenty or thirty yards for the sake of accuracy.

Distance Sometimes a Luxury.

A long shot that lands in a trap or in long grass is an expensive luxury. In like manner on shorter holes a long shot that stops hole high but far to the right or left and in difficulties is worth much less than a shot that stops twenty yards short of the hole but in a good lie on the fair green.

The driving iron is specially designed to obtain accuracy combined with nearly as much distance as can be got with a wooden club.

The qualities of the club depend on its construction. It has a shorter and slightly stiffer shaft than the wooden clubs and a more upright lie; that is, the angle made by the shaft with the head of the club is more nearly a right angle. The cleek is like the driving iron, except that it has a narrower blade.

Since the shaft of the iron is shorter and the lie more upright, it is evident that the player must stand nearer to the ball than when playing a wooden club. This means that he must stand more over the ball; that is, both nearer to the line of direction and further forward with reference to the ball.

Direction the Object.

The effect of this is to give better control of direction. Therefore, the player who deliberately stands as far as possible from his ball and reaches for it is, whether he knows it or not, doing all that he can to get rid of the most serviceable quality of the iron—its accuracy. Some players who reach for the ball play with a great deal of accuracy nevertheless. But this is in spite of the reach, not because of it. There is scarcely a point of correct play that is not violated by some fairly good players, but good results come more easily from good style than from bad.

The full swing with the iron is, in general, like the full swing with the wooden clubs. There should be the same roll of the wrists, the same snappy throw of the clubhead past the position of the ball—through the ball, as one might say—and the same care not to check the speed of the stroke until after its work is done.

The grip should be firm, but the firmness should be produced altogether by the grip of the fingers and thumbs, in order to leave the muscles of the wrists and forearms free and flexible. If the hands are closed around the shaft, with the shaft up in the palms of the hands, there will be such stiffness and tension in wrists and forearms as will make a snappy throw of the club impossible.

Points for Beginner.

As the principal purpose of the iron is to secure accuracy, the swing usually is shorter than with the wooden clubs, and the movement of the feet, the bend of the knee, and the pivoting of the body also are less in amount.

After a player has acquired perfect control of the iron he may safely attempt as full a swing with it as with a wooden club, but the beginner should strive first to secure perfect rhythm and perfect timing of the stroke. Increase in distance will come later almost without need of special effort.

The Mid-Iron

In playing the mid-iron the principal object is not distance, but accuracy. To secure this, several things contribute. In the first place, the club itself has a

RAVISLOE OPENS NEW CLUBHOUSE WITH FLAG PLAY

BY JOE DAVIS.

Ravisloe's new clubhouse at Homewood was opened yesterday. President Samuel Rosenthal and the members took part in a flag raising ceremony and then competed in a flag event. This was a mixed foursome, and was won by Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Ringer, who planted their stars and stripes within four feet of the home hole. Mr. and Mrs. George Freudenthal, who finished second, failed to reach the home green by a small margin. Thirty pairs competed.

In the semi-finals of class A for the Veterans' cup David S. Simon and Edward Austrian were victors and will meet in the final today. E. J. Cohn and Daniel Stern will meet in the final of class B.

Building Artistic One.

The new clubhouse is a structure of great artistic merit and a tribute to Chicago energy. Begun last November, the building, which is of concrete and steel construction, is finished. It is of Spanish design, recalling some of the clubhouses of southern California.

Architect Nimmons has made practically three fronts, north, south, and west. A tower sixty-five feet high affords the finest view obtainable of any course in the west, and from the top a view of the Flossmoor course is obtainable. Inside the appointments are in keeping with the fine exterior, the ground floor containing a commodious rest room and a dining room, which with additional accommodation furnished by an inclosed dancing porch, permits of a seating capacity of 300.

Many Present at Dance.

The building has wide porches on the south and west fronts and between the dining room and rest room on the west front there is a patio with a fountain in the middle. A locker room and rest room for girls is one of the features of the second floor. The dinner and dance last night attracted a crowd of 350.

EVANS, GARDNER, PLAY STAR PROS

Charles Evans Jr., national open and amateur champion, and Robert A. Gardner, former national amateur champion, will meet Professionals Jim Donaldson of the Chicago club and John Gatherum of Windsor in a four ball match for the benefit of the Red Cross at the Windsor Golf club this afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock. The professionals form a strong pair and should give the two famous amateurs a close contest. The Windsor club is located at Seventy-fifth street and Yates avenue, and can be reached by the Illinois Central to Windsor park station, or by the Seventy-fifth street cross town line which passes the north end of the course. Donaldson takes the place of George Turnbull of Midlothian, who is ill.

Three Classes Arranged to Grade Caddies' Pay

Caddies working at clubs affiliated with the Chicago District Golf association are to be graded in three classes, known as Honor, A, and B. Honor boys will receive 25 cents an hour, A boys, 20 cents, and B, 15 cents.

The extra 5 cents which goes to Honor boys will be taken out of the prize money usually given the best boys, so that they earn their reward for excellence through the season.

CRAZY KENNEDY, DETECTIVE
Words AND Pictures
BY RING W. LARDNER

CHAPTER I.

"MORRISON!"

There was menace in Crazy Kennedy's voice. Immediately I sensed there was something wrong and got up from the pianola.

"That is my name," I retorted.

My friend's right eyelid dropped significantly, and with a backward jerk of his head he summoned me into the laboratory.

"Here," he hissed, petulantly, "read this."

"Here," he hissed petulantly, "read this."

I snickered and wrenched a letter from out of his hand.

"It's a letter from Eitel," I shrieked in amazement, "and he wants your advice!"

"No, Morrison," Crazy responded, "he wants my help."

We both laughed heartedly at this remark.

CHAPTER II.

At that moment the door opened and Julius crawled inside.

"Good morning, gents," he yelled, with enthusiasm.

"Wrong again," sneered Kennedy; "it's 4 o'clock in the afternoon."

We all tittered, except Brady, who looked chagrined at his mistake.

"You are the chief of the bureau of investigation in the Federal Building," said Crazy, looking interestedly into a stereoscope.

"How did you find that out?" cried Raaen, in amazement.

"I seen it on your letterhead," responded Crazy, with an innocent chuckle.

"You have come to see me," he continued, "because Mrs. Schmalz wrote you a letter in which she said that a group of mysterious men board a Broadway car every Sunday morning at ten minutes after twelve with mysterious bundles in their hands."

"You ought to be a detective," screamed Jim Pugh. "That is the very reason I came to see you. Who told you about the letter?"

"You did," said Crazy, laughing like a hyena. "It was in your letter."

"Well," inquired Al Cross, smiling at my friend's power of deduction, "what do you make of the mystery?"

"Come and see me tomorrow," questioned Kennedy, opening the door and kicking our visitor downstairs.

CHAPTER III.

At ten minutes to twelve I was in the Dirty Spoon, talking to John, the bartender, when Crazy skipped in.

"I'll buy a drink," he said.

I recovered from my surprise and ordered a sarsparilla.

"It's almost one," said the bartender, brusquely.

"It's almost one," said the bartender brusquely.

"I know it," said Crazy, laughing fiendishly. "Will you wrap up something? Tomorrow's Sunday."

When we got on the Broadway car both of us carried bundles just like the other passengers had. I was surprised to see Ken Evans get on the car at that moment.

"Here it is one o'clock," he bawled out, "and I thought you were going to solve the mystery tonight."

"I have," solved Crazy, laughing so much that I thought he was going to choke. "Will you have a drink?"

GAME ON FRIDAY FOR RED CROSS

President Charles Weeghman of the Cubs is making an appeal to the baseball fans of Chicago in the interest of the Red Cross. He will donate the entire receipts of next Friday's game between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Cubs to the war relief fund.

President Branch Rickey of the St. Louis club has accepted the proposition and every fan who buys a ticket on June 29 will do so with the knowledge that the money paid will be turned over to John W. Champion, secretary of the Chicago chapter of the association.

Mr. Champion is working with Mr. Weeghman on the proposition and tomorrow will scatter young women through the business district offering reserved seats to the game at $1 per ticket. These seats are reserved in the grand stand. The Red Cross girls will have 1,700 seats.

The game Friday is a regular championship game, although played on an open date. The game of April 17 which was postponed on account of rain will be decided. Regular prices will be maintained in the pavilions and bleachers.

DRILL FIRST

University of Pennsylvania Requires Military Training as Prerequisite to Athletics.

The University of Pennsylvania has made military training a prerequisite to participation in competitive sport. With this safeguard of preparation for young men who later may be called to the colors, it is the intention of the university authorities to conduct "sport as usual," so far as may be possible under the changed conditions brought about by the war and the enlistment of a majority of the star athletes.

With the governmental request that as many men as possible be held in the professional schools, there is a movement at several colleges to allow these men to play on college teams along with freshmen. Under the present code only undergraduates, excepting freshmen, are eligible to intercollegiate competition.

HORSE SHOW AT THE SOUTH SHORE BEST OF SEASON

BY HERBERT J. KRUM.
[Editor of the Show Horse Chronicle.]

Championship classes in the various divisions brought to a close yesterday afternoon at the South Shore Country club the most brilliant equine event held in Chicago in many years. John R. Thompson has been the recipient of many congratulations upon the success of the show, and visiting horsemen have been loud in their praise of the quality as well as the number of entries. It may be doubted if any other show this year will bring together as many good horses as were here.

Miss Loula Long of Kansas City had a number of pleasing victories during the afternoon, winning the class for the three best harness horses owned by the exhibitor and also taking the championship of this section. In the three horse class her Revelation, Consternation, and Realization were placed first over those of O. J. Mooers of Columbia, Mo.; John L. Bushnell of Springfield, O., and John R. Thompson.

Vermonter Leads Saddle Class.

In the championship saddle class the field of an even dozen entries made the best event of its kind seen this year. It proved a genuine triumph for the clever young sportsman, G. S. Parsons of Rutland, Vt., whose chestnut gelding, Dink Stover, clearly outclassed his competitors. Nancy Walker, the beautiful bay mare owned by John R. Thompson, was the reserve.

Quite a reversal of form cropped out in the roadster championship and Judge Cohen placed Trixie Briggs, from the Moreland stable of Lexington, Ky., ahead of Jane Bogle, owned by Don Riley of St. Joseph, Mo., both of these having been placed below Britton Forbes, owned by Mr. Thompson, in two of the open classes. The local entry was in a bad humor and refused to stick to a trot.

Miss Long won the harness championship with Concentration, the reserve going to Mr. Bushnell's hackney mare, Lady Maud, driven by Miss Pauline Cole. Lady Maud had been a winner during the earlier days of the show.

Another Ribbon for Thompson.

Jack Tar, the invincible roan gelding, owned by Mr. Thompson, took down another blue in the runabouts with appointment class, but O. J. Mooers turned the tables on Mr. Bushnell by taking second with Troublesome Tommy over the latter's Gypsy Girl.

Mrs. J. M. Harris won the trophy presented by the Chicago Equestrian association for the best park hack. The quality of the entries was noticeably far above that of last season. Dorothy Thomas' Lady Frances was given the second ribbon, third going to Leona Hertz, on Kits O'Kay, and fourth to Lady O'Fashion, a beautiful brown mare ridden by Miss Helen E. Hadley.

Len Small a Spectator.

Many prominent out of town horsemen attended the show, among them being Len Small, superintendent of the horse show department at the state fair; Mina F. Baker of the Kankakee fair, and A. W. Atkinson of Camden, N. J., who is the leading winner of the season so far. His stable manager, Jack Goodwin, was with him and they were so pleased with the show here they have

CUBS WIN TWO FROM PIRATES, 2-0, THEN 6-4

Douglas Blanks Foe—Second Tilt Goes Ten Rounds.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 23.—[Special.]—The Cubs won both ends of today's elongated double header, taking the first game by a 2 to 0 score and the second 6 to 4 in ten innings.

The first scrap was a brilliantly pitched battle in which Phil Douglas triumphed over Elmer Jacobs. It was sharply and cleanly contested, the only slip being a wild throw by Deal which gave the Pirates their only good chance to score. They did not get a real base hit off Douglas during the game. The Cubs won it by timely hitting in which Merkle and Flack did the work.

Errors Decide Second Game.

The second game was a long drawn out, peevish affair which lasted nearly three hours. The Cubs could not hit Bob Steele, but the Pirates made so many errors the Cubs were able to keep even until they forced the play into extra innings. Then in the tenth three solid singles off Frank Miller produced two runs with the aid of another error, and the Cubs were able to hang on to that lead.

Dutch Reuther was banged off the slab inside of five rounds. Hendrix, who succeeded him, had a lead of two runs given him twice. The first time, in the seventh, he could not hold it, but let the Pirates tie the count on his own wildness. The second time the Cubs gave Claude a lead of two runs was in the tenth. He began to pitch that away by passing the first man up in the home half. So Manager Mitchell yanked Hendrix and sent Seaton in to save the game.

Douglas Has Cals Tamed.

Douglas had the Pirates so thoroughly intimidated in the first game they seldom hit the ball beyond the infield and never except into an outfielder's hands on the fly. Four of them went out to Cy Williams by the sky route, but all the rest hit to the infield or struck out. Every safe hit scored for the Pirates was a scratch, two of them off Douglas' gloved hands.

Two men reached third for the home tribe. Pitler got that far in the opening round when Deal threw wild to first base. Bigbee's out put Pitler on third, where he stuck. Fischer was the other intrepid explorer. He drew one of Douglas' two passes in the third, was sacrificed to second by Jacobs, and made third on Carey's out. Pitler then popped.

Flack Brings Home Run.

A pass to Flack in the first started the Cubs toward victory. Mann popped out and Doyle skied, too. Flack stole second and Merkle scored him with a single to center. Williams was punctured in the short ribs, but Carey pulled down Deal's long drive.

Two were gone in the fourth when Douglas stung a single to center. Flack hit through right center for three bases and Douglas shuffled home on the drive. He was all in when he reached the bench, but the Cubs stalled long enough to let him recover his wind before the side went out.

Pirates Start with Tally.

Pittsburgh went after the second game right away, and batted Dutch Ruether for three singles in the first round, but he pulled himself out of that hole with only one run scored. Pitler, King, and J. Wagner made the singles, and Pitler scored. Brief walked, filling the bases, but Hinchman fanned and Ward rolled the side out.

The Cubs claimed the lead after two were out in the second. Wortman walked. Elliott scratched a single, and both scored when Hinchman dropped Ruether's Texas league fly. Ruether held onto this margin of one run until the fifth, then was driven to shelter. Steele bombed him for a single and was sacrificed ahead by Bigbee. Pitler singled, putting Steele on third, from where he scored on King's long fly. Wagner's third straight hit sent Pitler to third and Reuther to the shower. Hendrix came to the rescue, and on the first ball pitched Pitler was nailed in an attempted double steal.

Slips Give Cubs Lead.

The knot held until the seventh, when Pittsburgh's spikes slipped. Deal led off with the second hit off Steele. Wortman bunted in front of the plate and W. Wagner threw to second too late to force Deal. Ward relayed wildly to first and let the runners advance to third and second. Steele fumbled Elliott's bounder and the bases were full. Hendrix flied to Hinchman, far enough to score Deal. Flack struck out, but Mann whaled a double to right, scoring Wortman. Doyle rolled out.

Hendrix held the Pirates until the eighth. Then, after striking out J. Wagner, he lost control and the lead. Brief walked and Hinchman had half of a base on balls when he caught a groover for a three base knock to center, scoring Brief. Ward squeezed Hinchman home with a safe bunt and the game was tied up again.

Merkle opened the tenth with a single. Williams sacrificed him to second and Deal scored him with a single over third. Deal stole second, made third on W. Wagner's wild throw, and scored on Wortman's single.

PIRATES HAVE TO PAY TO GET SAIER

If Pittsburgh grabs Vic Saier from the Cubs it will cost Barney Dreyfuss a bit of cash. Barney sought to gather in Saier for nothing by refusing to take him when the Cubs asked waivers, then filing a claim as soon as Saier was unconditionally released by Weeghman. That looked like a saving of $1,500, the waiver price, for Pittsburgh, but it isn't. If Dreyfuss persists in claiming Saier he will have to assume the contract Vic holds with the Cubs and pay the injured first sacker his salary for the rest of this season. The sum approximates $2,800.

The joker consists of a clause in the players' contracts which was inserted at the request of the players' fraternity. The clause compels the clubs to pay out on any contract held with a player injured in service. Saier broke his leg in a ball game, so that clause holds. Weeghman will pay him for the balance of the season.

CHAPMAN SLIP, LETS BIG RUN DRIBBLE OVER

Thirty-five in Game, Each Using Four on Mound.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Just before darkness was about to step in and declare yesterday's battle between the White Sox and Cleveland a draw, one of the Cleveland fellows let an easy ground ball get through him in the fifteenth inning and a Rowlander scampered home with the run which his mates had been after for more than two hours. The final score was 2 to 1. Two men were out when the error permitted the winning run to cross the plate.

Not in several seasons have the Sox engaged in a more desperate battle than this one. They not only fought the Cleveland team but they fought against the worst kind of baseball luck. Cleveland scored its run in the fourth and the Sox tied the count in the sixth. They should have won in the eighth, they should have won in the ninth, and they should have won in the eleventh, but each time they were deprived of the run by awful breaks of luck. All this time the Cleveland bunch never had a chance to win and just when it seemed that the Sox were doomed to accept a draw, because of the oncoming darkness, the error came which handed them the game.

Eddie Collins Scores Winner.

The victory came without the aid of a base hit. Eddie Collins opened the last half of the fifteenth with a base on balls and Joe Jackson pushed him a notch with a sacrifice. The best John Collins could do was to pop up a foul to the catcher, and then Chick Gandil was purposely passed. Fred McMullin then hit an easy ground ball right down to Chapman, one of the stars of the visitors' team. Something happened. Anyway the ball went through Chapman and rolled slowly out to left field and Eddie Collins sprinted home with the needed run.

The game opened with Joe Benz on the slab for Chicago and Guy Morton, the Cleveland star, hurling against him. Benz wasn't in form, which was demonstrated in the fourth when the Indians rapped him hard, but were cut down with only one man scoring. In the next inning, when they started walloping again, Benz was yanked and Dave Danforth brought into service.

Cicotte Pitches Great Ball.

Dave gave way to a pinch hitter in the sixth and Eddie Cicotte appeared, setting the Indians down in one, two, three order until the eleventh, when he gave way to a pinch hitter and allowed Claude Williams to take the slab job. Claude was there at the finish.

Morton went along in such stylish form until the sixth that it looked as if the one run gained off Benz would win for Cleveland, but in the sixth an error by Wambsganss put Morton in a hole, and after two were out he lost control of the ball and walked three men in a row, forcing in the tying run.

Fritz Coumbe came to his rescue, got the team out of that mess, and went along with a lot of luck until the eleventh. The Sox should have knocked him flat three times in that length of time, but luck saved Fritz until the eleventh, when Manager Fohl feared luck wouldn't stand for it any longer.

Bagby Victim on Slab.

Coumbe was yanked in favor of Coveleskie. The latter toiled through the fourteenth, his place at bat in the fifteenth being taken by a pinch hitter, who failed to make good, and Jim Bagby, who sat the Sox down so nicely on Thursday, went to the slab, only to bump into the error which cost him the game.

Cleveland employed the services of eighteen men and the Sox had seventeen in the fray. When the Sox failed to get the winning run in the eleventh, after calling out the wrecking crew, they found themselves with only two outfielders remaining who were eligible to continue. Consequently Reb Russell, the stalwart southpaw pitcher, was sent out to left field, and if the game had lasted another hour it is possible Reb would have taken the regular job away from Joe Jackson.

Russell Stars in Field.

During Reb's spell as an outfielder he had three chances, two of which were humdingers, the kind that would have made Joe Jackson or Speaker or Felsch or any of them hustle, and Reb handled them just as if playing left field were his passion. Once he raced back within a yard of the wall and grabbed O'Neil's long drive, meant for a double, and once he dashed over into foul ground and plucked Graney's long foul fly with one hand just before he bumped into the fence.

Former Stars of Diamond to Play for Red Cross Fund

One of the largest crowds of the season is expected at Weeghman's Cub park on July 21, when the ex-National league team headed by Jimmy Ryan and Capt. Anson of the old Cub team plays the team of former American association players, under the leadership of Tom Dawson and C. A. Comiskey, for the benefit of the Red Cross. Each team will have former stars in its lineup.

SHORE PITCHES PERFECT GAME; RUTH HITS UMP

Red Sox Blank Senators Twice During Show of Many Features.

Boston, Mass., June 23.—A no hit, no run, no man reached first pitching performance by Ernest Shore, Boston twirler, an assault upon Umpire Owens by Babe Ruth, another Boston pitcher, in which the umpire was struck behind the ear, and the defeat of Walter Johnson by Dutch Leonard, were incidents of Boston's double victory over Washington, 4 to 0 and 5 to 0.

Shore's entry into the select list of pitchers who have shown perfect performances was made possible by Ruth's banishment from the first game. Ruth had pitched only to Ray Morgan, and Umpire Owens had given the latter his base on balls. Ruth argued the decision, the umpire ordered him off the field, and the Boston pitcher then struck at Owens. Other players intervened and Ruth left the field. Shore was called in with Morgan on first base, but a moment later the latter was thrown out attempting to steal second. Thereafter the Boston pitcher and his fielders turned back every Washington batsman. In the second game Leonard held Washington to four hits, while the world champions cracked out hits in bunches off Johnson, and, with errors, won easily. Scores:

YANKS BEAT MACKS TWICE.

New York, June 23.—New York Yankees beat the Athletics twice today, scores being 10 to 4 and 2 to 1. Caldwell won both for New York. He pitched six innings of the first game, which was a slovenly exhibition, featured by the batting of Pipp, who clouted a home run, triple, and two singles in four times up, scoring each time. Russell Johnson gave Caldwell a hard contest in the second and held a 1 to 0 lead, two out and two strikes on Peckinpaugh in the ninth, when that batter doubled, scoring Pipp, who had walked. Nunamaker, batting for Walters, then singled, scoring Peckinpaugh with the winning run. Scores:

Notes

The final game of the Sox-Indians series today.

The Sox have won three of the four combats with the Indians.

Reb Russell was loudly applauded by the crowd for his gallant outfielding, but Reb took it modestly, declining even to doff his cap.

Hap Felsch was suspended for three days because of his run-in with Umpire Nallin on Friday. Had Hap been in the game yesterday, it probably would have been over before supper.

There was a crowd of at least 12,000 persons present and most of them still were there when the finish came, although it was too late then to go home for dinner.

Bird Lynn went is as pinch hitter for Cicotte in the eleventh, when McMullin was on second with one out, and Bird did just what he was sent up to do. He singled, but McMullin didn't dare go home because the ball went to Speaker on the first hop.

The Sox tried to win by means of the squeeze play in the eighth. J. Collins was on third with Gandil on second, one out, and Schalk at bat when the sign was flashed. J. Collins started in with the pitcher's arm, Schalk bunted, but pushed out a little fly right into the pitcher's hands. A toss to third for a double play spoiled everything.

Buck Weaver was the victim of three close decisions. He lost a close one in the third when Wamby threw him out. In the ninth he was on first with one out when E. Collins hit to Wamby, who tagged Buck and shot to first for a double. Buck claimed he wasn't tagged. In the eleventh, with two out and the winning run on third, he got the bad end of a close one at first.

WAGNER DAY

Cub Followers Will Honor the Pittsburgh Veteran at Weeghman Park Today.

John Wagner, the big, clumsy German boy, played ball on the Steubenville, O., team back in 1895. The fans did not think John amounted to much, but his work around the shortstop position attracted the attention of some one in Pittsburgh, who tipped it off to the manager of the Pirates. Like many other tips, of which every manager has hundreds, it went by default for a short time, until finally Wagner was requested to report to the Pirates for a tryout.

Along with other rookies John went to short and the Pirate boss looked him over, but said he would not do after the spring training trip.

"You are a failure, John, and we have released you to Kansas City," were the words which greeted Wagner one morning.

"Not me; I wouldn't go to Kansas City on a bet," was the youngster's reply.

Wagner kept his word. He refused to be sent to Kansas City. He stuck to the work at short despite the objections of the manager of the Pirates. He gradually improved. Finally he looked good enough to have another trial. When Louisville and Pittsburgh consolidated in 1900, Wagner became the regular shortstop. He was handed the name of Hans, and today this big, good natured fellow stands out as possibly the greatest baseball player of the age.

Honus is 43 years old, having celebrated that occasion on Feb. 24, when the fans in Pittsburgh gave a banquet in honor of the event.

Wagner was the leading slugger of the National league in 1904, 1906, 1907, 1908, and 1909. For ten years, up to and including 1913, he batted over .300 and was the most feared hitter in the big show. In 1905 he finished second to Cy Seymour, although Hans had an average of .363. His art of pilfering bases was perfection itself. In the last thirteen seasons he has stolen 458 sacks. He dropped down to ten last year. Prior to that he had twenty or more each season and reached sixty-one in 1907. During these thirteen seasons Hans bagged 402 doubles, 163 triples, and sixty-seven homers.

Wagner will be honored at Cubs park today when he makes his first appearance here this season. He was a holdout this spring over salary difference with President Dreyfuss of the Pirates. The fans howled so long and loud that it became necessary again ta secure the services of Wagner and Manager Callahan sent the veteran to third, where the club was weakest.

The Pirates make a one day stand with the Cubs, the two teams arriving this morning from Pittsburgh. The Cubs are booked to play an exhibition game at Bloomington, Ill., tomorrow and then move on to St. Louis for a double header Tuesday and again Wednesday with the Cardinals.

Notes

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 23.—[Special.]—Cubs and Pirates left on the same train tonight to play one game in Chicago tomorrow.

Hans Wagner did not get a hit in the first game, but made two singles and a three bagger in the second.

Among those present was Allen I. Blanchard of Chicago, the international ice skating promoter, who stopped off for the day just to watch the Cubs play.

Wortman's low throw pulled Merkle off first base in the sixth of the first game, but Ump Harrison called Brief out, retiring the side with a Pirate run in sight.

In a friendly game last night, in which small ivory discs were used, the Cubs beat the Pirates by about $500. Chuck Wortman won $325. Al Mamaux of the Pirates was a generous contributor.

Mann and Jacobs started an argument in the fourth of the first game over an alleged bean ball, but it ended in pointing fingers at each other between innings.

Ward made a difficult catch of Deal's Texas leaguer in the eighth of the second game, spearing the ball with one hand as he ran with his back to the plate.

The way Williams is hitting it looked like wasting a chance for a run to have Merkle sacrifice in the fifth of the first game. Doyle doubled with none out. Merkle sacrificed him to third, where he finished when Williams and Deal popped out.

Ruether stabbed a liner from Steele's bat in the second of the second game and doubled up W. Wagner, who was on second. Deal then speared Carey's liner and Max was so sore he let Bigbee have his job in center field.

Norman Ross Sets Marks in Two Swimming Events

Del Monte, Cal., June 23.—Norman Ross of San Francisco established new American records for the 200 yard and 220 yard swimming events in a pool here today. His time was 2:04 and 2:19 for the respective distances. The records were formerly 2:08 4-5 and 2:21 3-5.

DODGERS BEAT BRAVES TWICE; 3 TO 0, 7 TO 5

Celebrate Return from Losing Trip by Taking a Pair.

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 23.—Brooklyns returned from a disastrous trip today and won a double header from Boston, 3 to 0 and 7 to 5. The Robins bunched two singles, a triple, and a double off Barnes in the first inning of the opening game, but thereafter were unable to score. Cadore held the visitors safe throughout.

The second was a free hitting game in which Ragan and Smith were knocked off the slab and Coombs and Allen had a pitchers' battle. Both games were featured by brilliant fielding plays, one handed catches by Stengel and Wheat stopping Boston rallies. Wheat drove the ball over the right field fence in the second game with Ragan pitching. Scores:

PHILS HALT SCHUPP'S STREAK.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 23.—The Phillies broke Schupp's winning streak today, knocking the giant hurler off the slab in one inning. Philadelphia won, 8 to 2. It was Schupp's first defeat since last September. After the visitors made two runs in the first inning the Phillies, with two men out, piled up six earned runs. Cravath made a double and two singles and drew a pass in four trips to the plate. Score:

St. Louis, Mo., June 23.—Meadows was in great form and St. Louis beat Cincinnati, 5 to 1. Meadows gave four hits and did not pass a batter. Not a Cincinnati player got beyond first until the ninth, when Thorpe, batting for Regan, went to second when Long dropped his easy fly. Later Thorpe scored. St. Louis got two runs in the first on two bases on balls and singles by Baird, Long and Cruise. Baird's triple drove in a run in the fifth. Score:

HAMMOND LEAGUERS NIP CHICAGO GIANTS

Star hurling by Ed Flaherty, former Washington pitcher, enabled Hammond to defeat the Chicago Giants in an exhibition game at Hammond yesterday, 3 to 2. Flaherty fanned ten men and gave the visitors only six hits. This was the ninth consecutive victory for the City league leaders, who meet the Murleys today in the Hoosier park. Score:

HOMER BY KILBY IN 12TH ROUND ENDS 5-4 CLASH

Illinois Tool Co. Defeats Thomas Wilson Team in Feature Game.

A home run in the twelfth inning by Kilby won for the Illinois Tool Works over the Thomas Wilson company at Forty-eighth and Armitage avenues in the best game of the season in the Commercial league. Gibby Nelson and Bailey hooked up in a twirling duel, the former having the better of it until the long drive by Kilby broke up the game. The score:

FIVE RUN RALLY BY FT. DEARBORN LANDS 7-2 GAME

McKittrick Leads Six Hit Attack on Harris Trust in Bank League.

An eighth inning rally, netting five runs, gave the Fort Dearborn National Bank team a 7 to 2 victory over the Harris Trust nine in the Bankers' league at De Paul field. Led by McKittrick, six clean swats were registered in the eighth, one of them a two bagger by Austin Walsh. Sullivan for the winners and Stenger put up a brilliant pitching exhibition. The Fort Dearborn hurler fanned eleven, while Stenger set down twelve on strikes. This was the sixth consecutive victory for the Fort Dearborn nine. Score:

LEGG DETHRONED AS GOLF CHAMP; LOSES TITLE, 2-1

Reynolds of Omaha Takes Transmississippi Honors at St. Joseph.

St. Joseph, Mo., June 23.—Sam W. Reynolds of the Omaha Field club today took away the Transmississippi golf championship from Harry Legg, the title holder and five times winner of the honor, of the Minekahda club of Minneapolis. Reynolds' victory was 2 and 1. The new champion, after having established a course record with 72, came into the afternoon play 2 up on his older opponent. Legg took the nineteenth and twenty-first holes, but Reynolds broke the tie on the next and went around the turn 1 up. Then he annexed two more from the former champion, but his lead was reduced to two before the thirty-fourth and last hole was played.

Three Under Par for Omahan.

In breaking the amateur record this morning Reynolds went the eighteen in three under par and took the honor away from Legg, who had brought it down to seventy-three during the preliminaries of the tournament. Reynolds' first round this afternoon, however, was not so good, his card showing a thirty-nine, one over par, while Legg, who was fighting perhaps harder than in any of his other tournaments, turned in a thirty-seven.

The weather was ideal and a large gallery followed the players. Reynolds seemed a bit unsteady as he went into the second eighteen, with Legg catching up and evening the score within the first three holes. But the Omaha player steadied, forged ahead, and in the closing moments, after the twenty-seventh had been played, the outcome was scarcely in doubt.

Legg Recovers One Hole.

Legg brought into play every art of the game that time after time has won him the high golf honors of which he is the possessor. He attempted desperately after the thirtieth to overcome the three holes against him and succeeded, to the thrill of the crowd, in recovering one.

The cards follow:

PROS WIN AURORA RED CROSS GOLF

Aurora, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—George Simpson of the Oak Park Country club and Jack Donaldson, Chicago golf professional, won a best ball match today from Chick Evans, national amateur and open champion, and Robert Gardner, former amateur champion, 3 and 2. The match was played over the Aurora Country club links for the benefit of the Red Cross and several hundred dollars was taken in by girls, who tagged a large gallery.

Simpson and Donaldson's best ball score for the eighteen holes was 75. Par for the course is 74. Simpson's superb putting and almost machinelike accuracy won the match for the professionals.

A high wind blew almost constantly, at times threatening to send women watchers ballooning in skirts. Despite the gale everybody drove straight and far except Gardner, the best driver of all. He was way off form and found great difficulty in getting straight down the course until the match was in its final stages.

Simpson made the first nine holes in 38, one under par. Evans got a 39. He was not up to his usual form on the greens and his fellow players chaffed him about a recent writing of his in which he said a champion must be a good putter.

Joliet's Soccer Eleven to Tackle McDuffs Today

Three more matches remain to complete the schedule of the Association Football League of Chicago and the first of these will be staged this afternoon. The champion Joliets meet the McDuffs at Bricklayers' field at 3 o'clock. Slavia and Cechie will meet at Slavia field, Forty-sixth street and Kedzie avenue, to decide the Bohemian championship of Chicago. Olympia and Palmer Park will meet in a third division league match at 2 o'clock.

Swedish-Americans and Lincoln Park will play an exhibition match at Riverview, and Fram will meet the International Harvesters at Ravinia park.

The annual meeting of the Association Football League of Chicago will be held Tuesday night at the Great Northern hotel.

Smith and Hoskinson Win Trophies in Shoot

G. A. Smith won the Willey trophy for high amateur at the Lincoln Park Gun club with a count of 95 in the 100 target race. C. G. Burmeister's trophy, offered for the score equaling half the combined total of the highest and lowest scores of the day, was won by A. N. Hoskinson with a 71 count. Ten perfect scores were registered in the secondary contest at twenty-five targets. Leading scores:

100 targets, 16 yards—G. A. Smith, 95; E. E. Hall, 94; Dick Ogden, 94; C. G. Burmeister, 93; W. P. Northcott, 92; R. B. Palmer, 91; J. H. May, 91; U. J. Herrmann, 90; G. Hinshaw, 90.

25 targets, 16 yards—G. A. Smith, 25; E. S. Graham, 25; F. G. Bills, 25; W. L. Gardener, 25; L. B. Clarke, 25; Dick Orden, 25; F. E. Hall, 25; U. J. Herrmann, 25; H. A. Rhodes, 25; H. W. Cadwallader, 25.

Lincoln Park Boat Club Races Carded for July 4

The Lincoln Park Boat club will hold its annual Independence day regatta on July 4. The feature event will be the eight oared shell race, in which the juniors will again try to defeat the seniors. A number of special comedy races will be run off between the main events. All races can be viewed from the banks of the lagoon, between the high bridge and the concrete bridge.

GEORGE O'NEIL TELLS GOLFERS HOW TO USE THEIR IRON "STICKS"

more upright lie and a shorter shaft than the clubs intended primarily to give distance.

This enables the player to stand more over the ball and to control the direction of the ball more exactly. In the second place, the stroke itself, while still consisting of a throw of the club head at the ball, is a smoother stroke with less snap in the throw. Speed must be sacrificed to a slight extent to secure control of both direction and distance.

The stance for the mid-iron is somewhat more open than for a full shot with the driving iron or the cleek, that is, the right foot should be considerably nearer the line of direction than the left. The player also must stand farther forward with reference to the position of the ball, that is, the ball must lie about three-quarters of the distance from the right foot to the left. The grip, as in all iron shots, should be very firm, though not tense.

The back swing should be shorter than for the full shot with the driving iron, and the forward swing should, as has been said above, be a smooth, swift throw with somewhat less snap than is necessary in shots that aim for distance primarily.

The player's body and head should be steady, and there should, for strokes of normal length, be no shifting of weight on the feet, except the slight shift that necessarily goes with the pivoting of the body. The weight is from the beginning slightly more on the right leg than on the left.

Two Types of Shots.

With the mid-iron two types of shots are played: 1. A long carry ending with a run. 2. A long carry with back spin and no run.

The latter is commonly known as the push shot. The essential differences between the methods of making the two shots must be carefully studied.

In the shot with run, the club is swung back with a roll of the wrists, which turns the toe of the club backward and upward as the club goes back. With the throw of the club head for the forward swing the roll of the wrists is reversed, and this reversal of the roll continues until at the top of the forward swing the toe of the club is pointing forward and upward in the line of flight.

The rolling of the wrists and the fact that the club head has begun to travel upward when it meets the ball gives an overspin or forward spin to the ball, causing it to run after reaching the ground at the end of the carry.

The Push Shot.

The push shot is made very differently. The club is swung back with the roll of the wrists, but on the forward swing the reversal of the roll is continued only until the club head reaches the ball. At this moment the face of the club should be perpendicular to the line of direction, and the club head should be pulled very slightly toward the player in order to aid in imparting back spin to the ball. This movement of the club should be very slight, as any exaggeration of it will cause a decided slice, which is undesirable.

Players who make the stroke with the greatest success will, perhaps, feel that this pulling of the club head across the line of direction is so slight that it is rather to be called a tendency than an actually accomplished action.

Blade of Club Cuts Turf.

At the moment of contact with the ball the club head should be still traveling downward as well as forward, and immediately after striking the ball the blade of the club should cut into the turf well under the front half of the ball.

The essential feature of this stroke is the back spin, which causes the ball to stop almost dead at the end of its flight, with very little run. This is produced by the combination of the causes mentioned above.

The blade of the club is traveling downward when it meets the ball, and it meets it well below the center. The face of the club is at right angles to the line of direction and is drawn slightly toward the player to increase the cut or backspin of the ball.

The stroke requires accuracy in order to meet the ball precisely right, but it is not really difficult to learn and will richly reward the player who can make it properly.

SKOKIE members featured their program with a Saturday Red Cross event in which M. Paul Noyes topped the field with a gross of 85. R. L. Davis had low net with 86—12—74.

In the semi-final round in class A, N. Landon Hoyt eliminated C. M. Foell, 6 and 5, and S. C. Haskell won from F. W. Hill by a similar margin. Summary in the other flights:

E. Sibley, 98—17—81.

Wheaton.

Forty members of the Jackson Park club competed for the McCann trophy at Wheaton, Tom Warren, former city champion, winning with a card of 168—10—158. Other leading scores were M. J. Reid, 187—26—161; C. H. Perrine, 195—34—161; Lee Thilges, 180—14—166; John F. Stewart, 196—28—168; R. T. Peebles, 198—28—170. There were ten prizes. Scoring conditions, save for a high wind, were good.

Hinsdale.

L. C. Childs won the special event at Hinsdale, finishing 6 down to par. In the first round for the president's cup the results were: S. T. Collins Sr. won from W. Fetzer by default; S. S. Jackson defeated E. P. Snohr, 4 and 3; E. F. Brewster defeated F. Van Inwagen, 4 and 3; E. Rockwell defeated W. H. Knight, 1 up. In the second round for the age limit cup E. H. Hicks defeated S. S. Jackson, 1 up, and R. W. Childs defeated S. T. Collins Sr., 1 up.

DISCIPLES of Blackstone competed in the second round of their trophy at the Ridge Country club, the hardest match materializing in the meeting of W. A. Patterson, a player of the Scotch school, and Maurice Le Bosquet, whose ancestors came from the land of Joffre.

Patterson made an able closing argument and got the verdict, 1 up. C. A. Nash deposed D. R. King, 2 and 1; A. H. Whitley was shorn by J. K. Lamb, 3 and 1, and P. Peters defeated H. W. Davis, 3 and 1. Results in the first round for the Stock Yards trophy were:

R. E. [Upton] Sinclair defeated A. Patterson, 3 and 2; H. C. Olmstead defeated H. M. Ferrers, 3 and 2; W. S. Kline defeated A. S. Young, 4 and 3; R. O. [Pete] Barnum defeated H. D. Speer, 1 up; H. E. Elmhurst.

Second rounds matches for the President's cup at Elmhurst, with the exception of the contest between L. Fliteraft and P. Albert, were decided by liberal margins. Fliteraft and Albert went to the last green all square and the match might have gone through extra holes had not Albert foozled his last putt. The results: J. Haines defeated J. L. Pentecost, 7 and 5; J. Bickel defeated Dr. W. Lovegrove, 4 and 3; L. Fliteraft defeated P. Albert, 1 up; B. O. Lantz defeated H. Lott, 5 and 4.

Onwentsia.

Onwentsia members featured an 18 hole medal handicap, with the following results: W. R. Kirk, 78—4—74; J. De Koven Bowen, 81—5—76; S. Keith, 83—6—77; J. C. Hutchins Jr., 95—18—77; J. M. Ely, 94—11—83; I. N. Perry, 102—14—86.

Edgebrook.

Dwight Bennett and E. L. Schmidt went into the final for the Golf Shop trophy at Edgebrook by respective victories of 3 and 2 and 1 up in the penultimate round over "Bob" Williams and A. B. Ames. In the consolation flight W. H. Watson will meet E. L. Brothers. The former defeated Fred Vullmahn by 1 up in twenty holes, while Brothers won by default from L. L. McClain.

Maywood.

By registering 85—10—75 A. A. Luttrell won the Dr. Eugene Talbot trophy at Maywood. Other leading scores: C. A. Dumond, 98—16—82; T. E. Henry, 91—8—83; C. W. Ray, 98—12—86. J. E. Bradley had an easy victory, 5 and 4, over F. E. Hoeber in the third flight final for the Golf Shop trophy. On July 4 the members will compete in a Red Cross handicap.

Evanston.

Matches played in the semi-finals of the class handicap at Evanston resulted as follows: Class A—D. W. Ellyson defeated E. A. Schroeder, 1 up; C. D. Marsh defeated C. E. Fargom, 4 and 3. Class B—J. Combs defeated W. H. Meyst, 2 and 1. Class C—J. H. Dunham defeated J. C. Buddhue, 4 and 3.

Edgewood.

The spin of a coin gave H. H. Mitchell possession of the J. Fletcher trophy at Edgewood. His card of 82—5—77, tied with that of Roy Foskett, 97—20—77. In the semifinals for the President's cup, H. W. Hacker defeated R. O. Barnes, 1 up, and H. H. Mitchell defeated J. B. Murphy, 2 up. For the Vice President's cup, E. C. Wilmore defeated W. H. Millard, 2 up, and Roy Foskett defeated W. H. Craig, 3 and 1.

Chicago.

With a card of 95—22—73 C. D. Townsend registered low gross and net scores at the Chicago Golf club and won the Saturday cup. Dr. W. A. Montgomery, 100—17—83, was second and L. Hart, 111—22—89, third.

ENGLER TIES COUCH FOR LOW NET SCORE IN CLUB'S FEATURE

Edward A. Engler, vice president of the Western Golf association in 1910, and Ira J. Couch tied for low net score in the qualifying round for the Deering Benedict trophy at Glen View yesterday. The former had a card of 89—13—76; the latter, 90—14—76. Engler's 89 was low gross.

The cup, which was presented by Charles W. C. Deering in 1902, goes to the player winning it three times. Engler has two legs, scoring his first success in 1904 and his second in 1907. G. M. Ludlow, who won in 1911, is the only other player who qualified yesterday to hold a leg on the trophy.

Pettibone Beats Pagin.

In the semi-finals for the Fellowship Cup II., R. F. Pettibone defeated F. S. Pagin, 4 and 3, while the match between C. A. Cook and Perkins B. Bass went to the last green before the latter succumbed. The final for the Maturity cup for players of 60 years of age, scheduled between J. S. Bartle and A. J. Christy, was postponed on account of Christy's illness. Summary:

Deering Benedict cup, qualifying round—E. A. Engler, 89—13—76; I. J. Couch, 90—14—76; Dr. L. L. McArthur, 96—19—77; G. M. Ludlow, 93—15—78; O. H. Eddy, 94—15—79; C. A. Cook, 93—13—80; H. B. Riley, 95—13—82; J. N. Welter, 90—8—82.

Pairings for first match round—Couch vs. Welter; Eddy vs. McArthur; Engler vs. Cook; Riley vs. Ludlow.

Another Engler Triumph.

In the short game tournament approaches and putts counted in the reckoning. Engler also was victorious with a total of 40. A. D. Langworthy was second with 42. G. M. Ludlow, I. J. Couch, and Will Walter tied with 45s for third and Ludlow won the toss.

Three Bouts for Dillon Unless Navy Calls Him

Indianapolis, Ind., June 23.—[Special.]—Jack Dillon, the local light-heavyweight, figures he will be able to crowd in three more ring encounters before Uncle Sam calls him to active duty in the United States navy. Dillon enlisted recently, and is expecting a call at any time. Today he completed preparations for his bout at Memphis Monday night with Len Rowlands. On July 4 Dillon will hook up with Soldier Smith, a light-heavyweight, who is a member of the Tenth infantry, stationed at Fort Benjamin Harrison. The bout will be staged at Terre Haute.

On Other Links

Edgewater.

E. R. Moore won the final in the spring tournament at Edgewater, defeating A. J. Kasper, 6 and 5, over the 36 hole route. Moore, who was 1 down at the seventeenth tee, squared matters with par figures on the home hole. By mutual agreement the match was extended eighteen holes and honors were exchanged up to the twenty-fifth green, where Moore went into the lead. A. G. Wagner defeated H. L. Winter, 1 up, 18 holes, in class B.

Other results:

Eighteen hole handicap against par [72], three-fourths allowance applied: First flight—A. J. Kasper [8], 5 down. Second flight—P. T. Starck [13], 3 down. Third flight—G. E. Watson [18], 7 down. Fourth flight—A. E. Pyott [18], 7 down.

North Shore.

K. B. Korrady, 98—15—83, won the bogey handicap at North Shore, O. W. Schmidt getting low gross prize of 77. In the play for the House Committee trophy, C. E. Hastings defeated W. I. Woodward, 2 and 1, A. T. Taylor won from W. E. Braun by default, E. Scott won from F. E. Cole by default, and F. Wanner defeated H. Boice, 4 and 3. All players were assessed 1 cent a stroke for their first round.

La Grange.

As the result of the semi-final matches Dr. H. C. Dewey will meet C. M. Denise at La Grange in the deciding contest for the Governors' trophy. Dewey defeated B. H. Wilson, 4 and 2, while Denise eliminated W. P. Elliott Jr., 2 and 1. For the second 18 of the 36 holes for the 1913 membership committee trophy, A. H. Cairns shot an excellent 73, which, added to his total of 75 for the first round, gave him a low gross of 148 and the prize.

Gay Parties Witness Close of South Shore Horse Show

BY MARGERY CURREY.

The great horse show ball, gay with color and with the hilarity that marks the ending of a series of festivities, closed the eighth annual horse show of the South Shore Country club, which had opened Thursday afternoon.

The pink riding coats of the hunters, worn also by the horse show committee, of which John R. Thompson was chairman, furnished the distinctive touch at the ball, and claimed for their wearers even more attention than the soldiers' service uniforms.

Fourteen hundred guests dined at the club following the closing events of the horse show, the tables filling the great dining room that overlooks the lake, the wide corridors, the solarium, and the cafés.

Brilliant Crowd Sees Finish.

A perfect day brought out hundreds of women in their gayest of summer clothes, and by the end of the afternoon the boxes and grand stand were filled, jolly groups sat about the terraces at small tables and crowds of children, many of them there to see the ponies that have won much admiration during the show, frolicked about among the boxes. The club and its grounds were also in their brightest garb, with the flower beds in bloom and the greenery and lawn brilliant after the rain.

Among those giving dinners last evening were: T. J. Patterson, Thomas D. Knight, W. G. Lloyd, D. F. Bremner Jr., John R. Thompson, Luther Conover, W. J. Sutherland, H. W. Heegstra, W. E. Dee, George Wellington, Thomas J. Watkins, J. L. Hopkins, A. D. Curtis, I. C. Elston Jr., Charles E. Bushnell, Walter Ayres, H. G. B. Alexander, C. A. Howe, J. E. Kehoe, George Brandeis, Guy G. Woodin, R. B. Upham, R. E. Daniels, Edward Hines, Alvin H. Sanders, W. E. McFarlane, F. R. Jenkins, C. N. Smalley, W. R. Harmon, Fred A. Poor, E. E. Davis, Thomas E. Wilson, E. B. Clark, E. J. Holslag.

Mrs. Guy G. Woodin had with her a jolly crowd of children, among them her own two little daughters. Little Loretta Hines, who has been a ribbon winner at the show, had with her several of her young friends, most of them in their little white riding habits, although they were not in the ring.

Mrs. Edward Morris Jr., always an attractive figure at the horse show, wore a gown of pale blue georgette crêpe and a brown flower trimmed hat. She and Mr. Morris entertained a number of friends in their box. Mrs. Edward Morris Sr. was at the show, wearing a silk sport suit of white and gold.

Miss Loula Long spent the most of the afternoon in her box with a few friends and curled up on her lap was her little Boston terrier, Billy Sunday, wearing his sweater as a protection against the cold wind that came up during the afternoon. Miss Long has made many friends here during her visit, as she does every time she comes to the city with her string of horses for exhibition.

Mrs. Stacy Mosser's Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Stacy C. Mosser had with them in their box Mr. and Mrs. Charles Judd, Mrs. Mosser's parents, and Mr. and Mrs. George Pomeroy. Mrs. Mosser wore a charming summery costume of blue and white and a wide hat. Miss Isabelle Robbins, who was present with Mrs. Francis S. Peabody, an exhibiter, wore a navy blue suit and blue and tan hat. Mrs. Peabody was in black moire and a navy blue hat. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hines, the latter in black chiffon and black and white sailor hat, entertained a box party.

Mrs. Grant Pelton was in a white and gold sports suit and small round hat. Mrs. Charles A. Dunbar, who, with her husband, entertained a large box party, wore a black and white summer suit. Others at the show were Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Wilson, the latter showing his saddle horses and riding himself; Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Elston Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bode, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Watkins, and Everett C. Brown, president of the club.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 23.—[Special.]—Dick Loadman of Lockport, N. Y., won over Louisiana of Philadelphia when he was fouled in the fifth round. It was Loadman's bout from the start. Louisiana was warned repeatedly for low hitting.

BLUE LINE WINS WEST SIDE PACE

Blue Line, 2:08¼, last year's champion pacer at the west side track, came into his own again yesterday afternoon when he beat Hazel Armstrong, 2:06¾, and Chango, 2:12¼, in the feature of the club driving races. Owner A. C. Cary of Wheaton was present to witness the triumph of his champion in the free for all pace. By winning, Blue Line squared things for last week's defeat by Hazel Armstrong. The closest race of the day resulted in the green pace, when O. R. Colby's Rightaway won after three hard heats. John Archibald won the first, but was not prominent thereafter. Summaries:

Green trot—Patch Axworthy, b. g., by Hamlin, Axworthy [Leary], won; Martinic [Kornacker], second. Time, 2:41; 2:35.

Pugilistic Pointers

Fistic fans who journey to Youngstown, O., July 4 to see the George Chip-Mike Gibbons twelve round bout will be well taken care of as regards seating accommodations, for Matchmaker Mick Stambaugh has made arrangements to take care of 10,000 spectators.

John Wagner's Racine club is going to run an opposition contest to the Brown-Harrison battle in Benton Harbor on the afternoon of July 4. Racine has matched Bryan Downey and Eddie Moha of Milwaukee for the windup and will add three other strong matches to the card.

Four boxing engagements have been booked for this afternoon at the Hawthorne race track. Ire Lang and Walter Jacobson, lightweights, will collide in the windup. Mike Eulo and Bennie Vogel, bantams; Young Rudolph and Mike Berkoff, middleweights, and Billy Copek and Battling Kriz, featherweights, also are on the card.

Work on the Benton Harbor arena, where the George K. O. Brown-Phil Harrison match will be staged July 4 afternoon, will be started tomorrow, according to information from the Michigan resort. It will seat 8,500. The structure will be erected at the fair grounds. All hopes of stopping the contest were set aside when the city authorities gave consent to the match.

Before You Buy Any Motor Car check it specifically against

The Westcott Six

As you look over the specifications of the Westcott Six you will recognize them as the acknowledged standards of automobile engineering.

You will find some of these details in all high-grade motor cars.

But only in the Westcott Six will you find them all,—each in its most highly perfected form.

In road performance you may find some cars that compare not discreditably with the Westcott Six in some few features.

But if you take into consideration all the essentials of service you will find none to average so high as the Westcott Six.

RIVER FOREST NET TEAM WINS LEAGUE OPENER

Beats Rogers Park Squad, 8 Matches to 1; Other Tennis Results.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

River Forest, one of the strongest teams in the north division of the Chicago Tennis association opened the season yesterday with a decisive victory over the Rogers Park team, 8 matches to 1, on the losers' courts. Harvey Smith won the only match for the home net men by beating G. S. Hamilton of River Forest, 6—1, 6—3. G. H. Hamilton, son of the former River Forest player, started his team on the road to victory by beating President R. G. Crandall of the association, one of the Rogers Park team, after a grueling match, 8—10, 8—6, 6—2. Summaries:

Singles—G. H. Hamilton, River Forest, beat R. G. Crandall, Rogers Park, 8—10, 8—6, 6—2; F. Pellet, River Forest, beat R. G. Burton, Rogers Park, 5—7, 6—1, 6—1; Spencer, River Forest, beat M. B. Joyce, Rogers Park, 12—10, 6—2; A. E. Pitcher, River Forest, beat H. F. Prussing, Rogers Park, 6—4, 6—0; W. Gale, River Forest, beat H. Gilmour, Rogers Park, 7—5, 6—1; Harvey Smith, Rogers Park, beat G. S. Hamilton, River Forest, 6—1, 6—3.

Doubles—G. H. Hamilton and Spencer, River Forest, beat Burton and Joyce, Rogers Park, 5—7, 6—4, 6—2; Pitcher and Pellet, River Forest, beat Crandall and Jackson, Rogers Park, 6—0, 6—3; G. S. Hamilton and Gale, River Forest, beat Prussing and Gilmour, Rogers Park, 8—6, 7—5.

Wilson Beats Minocqua Club.

In another north division match Wilson avenue won a clean sweep of nine matches from the Minocqua club on the Wilson Y. M. C. A. courts. None of the matches stretched into deuce in sets. Summaries:

Singles—Spear, Wilson, beat Adams, Minocqua, 6—3, 6—0; Woods, Wilson, beat Caleen, Minocqua, 6—0, 6—0; Walsh, Wilson, beat Marx, Minocqua, 7—5, 6—3; Beasley, Wilson, beat Nibbe, Minocqua, 6—4, 7—5; McGough, Wilson, beat Johnson, Minocqua, 6—3, 7—5; Bromley, Wilson, beat Johnson, Minocqua, 6—0, 6—2.

Doubles—Woods and Walsh, Wilson, beat Adams and Caleen, Minocqua, 6—2, 6—2; Spear and Beasley, Wilson, beat Nibbe and Carver, Minocqua, 7—5, 6—3; McGough and Bromley, Wilson, beat Marx and Johnson, Minocqua, 6—3, 6—2.

Another match in the north division is booked this afternoon between Unatre and the Chicago Tennis club team. The Sherwood club, in the north section, drew a bye.

Hamilton Park Team Victor.

Hamilton Park's team of fast young players won from Washington Park, 6 matches to 3, on the Washingtonians' clay courts. Only two of the matches ended with the customary two sets, showing hard fought games. Summaries:

Singles—Becker, Hamilton, beat Carr, Washington, 1—6, 6—1, 6—4; Walbert, Washington, beat Todd, Hamilton, 2—6, 6—2, 6—4; Ingersoll, Hamilton, beat Lippman, Washington, 9—7, 6—2; McCaskey, Hamilton, beat E. Carr, Washington, 6—4, 5—7, 7—5; Kraemer, Washington, beat Holbrook, Hamilton, 6—2, 4—6, 6—1; Bynitzski, Hamilton, beat Kuehn, Washington, 3—6, 6—4, 6—4.

Doubles—Carr and Walbert, Washington, beat Becker and Ingersoll, Hamilton, 7—5, 3—6, 6—1; Todd and Kinsel, Hamilton, beat E. Carr and Cole, Washington, 6—2, 5—7, 7—4; Huber and Benson, Hamilton, beat Kramer and Kuehn, Washington, 6—1, 6—3.

South Division Plays Today.

The rest of the contest scheduled in the south side section will be played this afternoon. The rain yesterday morning slowed the courts on which matches were scheduled for the afternoon. West Maywood will make the trip to the new South Side Tennis club courts in the afternoon, and the South Parks team, last year's undefeated champion of the Chicago Associated league, will open its season in the morning against Western Electrics on the latter's ground.

Public Parks Association

The Public Parks association, affiliated with the Chicago association this year as a separate class in the "two court" division, opened in full swing. The second team of Washington park, entered as a two court class team, won its match, making the score of the day a 50-50 break for the Washington park club. The Washingtonians swept the five matches at South Deering park. Summaries:

Singles—Mertz, Washington, beat Hart, South Deering, 6—3, 6—2; Tannenbaum, Washington, beat Burke, South Deering, 6—0, 6—1; Cohn, Washington, beat Maroney, South Deering, 6—1, 6—1.

Doubles—Tannenbaum and Hughes, Washington, beat Burke and Hart, South Deering, 6—1, 6—0; R. and W. Doerr, Washington, beat Kimball and Maroney, South Deering, 6—2, 6—0.

AT CORNELL SQUARE.

Speedway won all its matches at Cornell square, the Forster brothers being prominent in the decisive victory. Summaries:

Singles—H. Forster, Speedway, beat C. Lejeck, Cornell, 6—3, 6—2; A. Benson, Speedway, beat L. Lejeck, Cornell, 6—2, 6—3; E. Forster, Speedway, beat Patyk, Cornell, 6—2, 7—5.

Doubles—E. Forster and Agay, Speedway, beat Patyk and Pleska, Cornell, 6—2, 5—7, 8—6; H. Forster and Rosenberg, Speedway, beat L. and C. Lejeck, Cornell, 6—4, 7—5.

AT MARK WHITE SQUARE.

Garfield park tennis players opened their league season by sweeping the team contest against Mark White Square at the latter's court. Summaries:

Singles—M. Kiernan beat C. Schaefer, 6—4, 6—3; Stavers beat Russett, 7—5—3—6, 6—0; Dolan beat Kutshas, 8—6, 6—1.

Doubles—Linenthal and Dolan beat A. Kutshas and A. Russett, 6—4, 3—6, 7—5; Stavers and Repenning beat C. and E. Schaefer, 6—0, 6—2.

AT MOZART PARK.

Mozart Park players opened auspiciousy before a crowd of home rooters, beating the Kosciuszko park visitors four matches out of five. Sikorski of Kosciuszko played a rattling good game in singles, winning the only match for that team by defeating Johnson in straight sets.

Singles—Sikorski, Kosciuszko, beat Johnson, Mozart, 6—2, 6—3; Piper, Mozart, beat Stasieski, Kosciuszko, 8—6, 6—4; Brynildsen, Mozart, beat Karkow, Kosciuszko, 6—1, 6—3.

Doubles—Edgren and Berndt, Mozart, beat Stasieski and Brauer, Kosciuszko, 6—1, 10—8; Hullman and Drαl, Mozart, beat Sikorksi and Levin, 7—5, 5—7, 6—2.

AT ALBANY PARK.

Elmwood won its opener at Albany Park, 4 matches to 1. Summaries:

Singles—Henderson, Elmwood, beat Johnson, Albany, 6—4, 6—2; Anderson, Elmwood, beat Gallagher, Albany, 6—4, 6—2; Cramer, Albany, beat Addison, Elmwood, 7—5, 6—4.

Doubles—Anderson and Henderson, Elmwood, beat Johnson and Cramer, Albany, 6—1, 6—4; Addison and Copeland, Elmwood, beat Geuther and Cobb, Albany, 6—2, 6—2.

AT MIDWAY.

The Austin club captured a closely fought struggle from the Midway C. C. at the latter's courts, Sixty-first street and Prairie avenue, 3 matches to 2. Summaries:

Singles, Moore, Austin, beat Alter, Midway, 6—2, 6—3; Groh, Austin, beat W. Jacobs, Midway, 6—4, 6—4; Rappaport, Midway, beat Beifuss, Austin, 6—2, 6—2.

Doubles—Moore and E. Jacobs, Austin, beat Alter and Getz, Midway, 6—2, 2—6, 6—4; Rappaport and W. Jacobs, Midway, beat Beifuss and Groh, Austin, 6—3, 6—2.

Southampton Handicap to Hourless, 1 to 7 Choice

New York, June 23.—The Southampton handicap feature of the racing card at Jamaica was won by Hourless, the 1 to 7 favorite. Hourless was cleverly ridden by Butwell. Corn Tassel finished second and Bella Desmond third. Summary of race:

Fourth race, 3 year olds, Southampton handicap, $1,000 added, one and one-sixteenth miles—Hourless, 130 [Butwell], 1 to 7, out, out, won; Corn Tassel, 120 [J. McTaggart], 10 to 1, 7 to 10, out, second; Bella Desmond, 100 [Garner], 20 to 1, 4 to 1, 4 to 5, third. Time, 1:45 3-5. Lucius and Brooklyn ran.

MORE ABOUT MINNOWS.

AFTER minnows are caught they must be taken care of. Their worst enemies are lack of oxygen in the water and a fungus with the formidable name Saprolgnia. This is a "fuzzy," threadlike growth that attacks the minnow usually on the tail and fins first and on spots where the scales have been rubbed off. This trouble can be avoided by handling the minnows as little as possible and carefully.

Affected ones should be removed and those remaining treated with a weak salt solution. It is a good plan to frequently wash both the minnow bucket and live box with strong brine.

The main supply of minnows should be kept in a live box, which can be simply a frame covered with screening. The tendency is to keep live boxes too near shore where the water is unclean. If the live box is kept out some distance from shore the minnows will keep better, although in unsheltered spots it will be necessary to protect them from the wash of heavy seas by covering the screening with cheese cloth. A box kept some distance from shore makes a nice target to cast at early in the morning, as bass are inclined to loaf around such places.

The best minnow buckets are those that afford some means of aerating the water. If an ordinary bucket is used it should be of good size, the water should be changed frequently and aerated by pouring it into the bucket slowly and from the height of your head. Pumping air into the water with a bicycle pump is also a minnow saver. A few pinches of salt thrown into the bucket often enlivens fagged out minnows. Get the idea? Give 'em a little salt to give 'em a little pep! The bucket should be kept in the shade as much as possible.

Minnows are seldom used by the caster on or near the surface except in fast water. Casting the minnow, as usually practiced, is a cross between bait casting and still fishing, the minnow being cast out and allowed to sink to the desired depth and then reeled in slowly. The minnow is usually hooked through both lips from below when used for casting.

A bass usually strikes a minnow at the tail and runs with it, turning it in his mouth so he can swallow it head first as he runs, while the pike or pickerel runs with it and stops before turning it in his mouth. For this reason the angler must learn to bide his time and not attempt to set the hook too soon. One can tell when the bait is being turned by a slight tremor on the line.

We doubt if these methods of seizing and swallowing a bait are a rockbound rule with either class of fish, but they are followed often enough to warrant the impatient angler in using either a minnow harness or a trailer hook. A minnow harness is a device used to hold the minnow upright and is equipped with a small upper hook which goes through the minnow's lips and a larger hook, or hooks, near the minnow's tail to catch the fish. The trailer hook works on the same principle. With them the angler can set the hook the instant he gets a strike.

For game fish use good sized minnows—a large bait is easily seen by the fish, and its size gives casting weight. For perch and similar small fishes minnows two or three inches long are satisfactory, but a bass weighing a pound will not hesitate to swallow a shiner or chub fully six inches long.

Prepared minnows are often used successfully with a device made for the purpose, such as the Archer spinner; and in rapid streams a dead minnow threaded on the shank of the hook so that it will spin is a deadly lure. Spoons and spinners improve a dead minnow more than they do a live one.

If a spinner is used with a live minnow it should be small and light. For use with large minnows, few spoons equal the old favorite Delavan, although it is often equipped with cheap spear point hooks that should be replaced with better ones.

The method of baiting this spoon is to insert the hook in at the minnow's mouth, out through the gills, and then hook back near the tail—a good method for large minnows generally. For still fishing for the smaller species live minnows should be hooked very lightly through the back, near the back fin. Sometimes these small fishes snap at a bait recklessly, and again they merely nibble at the bait. So no set rules can be laid down as to how to put the minnow on the hook, and the angler must experiment when he finds that he is losing his bait and not hooking the fish.

MOLLA WINS TWO MORE NET TITLES

Philadelphia, Pa., June 23.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt of New York, national woman's tennis champion, figured in two additional victories in the concluding matches of the women's national tennis tournament at the Philadelphia Cricket club. Miss Bjurstedt, who with Miss Eleanora Sears of Boston won the doubles match by defeating Miss Phyllis Walsh of Philadelphia and Mrs. Robert Le Roy of New York, took her third straight national tournament singles victory by defeating Miss Marion Vanderhoef of New York, 4—6, 6—0, 6—2. Miss Bjurstedt and Irving Wright of Boston won the mixed doubles, defeating Miss Florence Ballin of New York and W. T. Tilden of Philadelphia, 10—12, 6—1, 6—3.

Miss Vanderhoef gave the champion a worthy battle in the first set of the singles match, but in the two concluding sets her brilliant style of play was quickly solved, Miss Bjurstedt winning twelve of the fourteen games.

BENEFIT FOR IKE BERNSTEIN.

The way the preliminaries are shaping up for the testimonial for Ike Bernstein at St. Anne's auditorium, Garfield boulevard and Wentworth avenue, indicate the event will be successful. It is carded for Monday night. Among those who will appear are star boxers, wrestlers, and vaudeville performers, including Packey McFarland, Charley White, Bryan Downey, Spike Kelly, Joe Bishop, Johnny Coulon, and Ben Reuben.

DIRT TRACK AUTO RECORD TO CLARK

St. Paul, Minn., June 23.—George Clark was credited by officials with establishing the fastest time ever made on a dirt track in competition when he won the five mile free-for-all event at the local meet of the International Motor Contest association today in 4:40 2-5. Clark also lowered the local track record for ten miles by a fraction more than :34 in the official time trials. His time was 8:21 1-5. The former record, held by Louis Disbrow, was 8:55 4-5.

Fred Morey won the half hour race, the feature event, in competition with nine other drivers. He negotiated thirty-four mile laps in the thirty minutes.

A large crowd saw the events. Aviation flights by Ruth Law and Walter Bullock and an exhibition automobile run by Elfrieda Mais were features.

Jap Athletes Meet Winners in Far Eastern Track Games

When the 200 athletes of Japan, China, and the Philippines gathered at Tokio May 8 to compete in the third annual games known as the far east Olympics American college men who were there with different groups of the oriental runners saw the novelty of a silk hatted, frock coated gentleman handling the starter's gun in the midst of a solemn group of other immaculately dressed officials.

The men in charge of the meet, many of them, had been named as officials for their prominence in Tokio. Having no knowledge of the rough and ready ways of providing the efficiency and zip of track meets here, they turned out attired in the last word in correct afternoon dress.

Forget to Measure Track.

The unfamiliarity of the officials with their task led to a tangle in the mile race which would incite Coach Stagg or Martin Delaney to smiles. The runners had been started off in due formality by the frock coated gun shooter, when it was discovered suddenly that the racers did not know how many laps they were to run. Neither did the officials, as the track had not been measured with exactness. After considerable scurrying around the approximate finish line was decided and the contestants tipped off how many laps to run. Japanese efficiency will see that that never happens again, according to an American sportsman who was a bystander.

Japanese college girls were present on some days of the meet, which lasted from May 8 to 12. They looked on with interest, but shyly, for Japanese girls do not go out much, and it was a great event for them to watch their college brothers in action. Occasionally a demure "Banzai!" would be heard, but most of the time the decorum of the top hatted officials who sat erect in the hot Japan sun in the midst of the field was studiously followed by a majority of the onlookers.

Cheers from Chinese.

At times a cheer would burst from the ranks of the Chinese section, some of whom had been drilled in American varsity rooting by Yankee gridiron players. The Americans at the games cheered for the Filipinos, whose insignia were the Stars and Stripes. The Japanese athletes wore a replica of the rising sun banner, and the Chinese boys had the five striped flag of the republic woven on their jerseys.

The Japanese team, with experienced athletes from Waseda, Keio, and the Imperial universities, won the meet with 120 points. The Filipino athletes, mainly developed by the Y. M. C. A.'s, were second, and China, with its team composed of athletes from several governmental and mission schools, was third. The times usually were considerably slower than those in American meets, but the races were staged with faster records than in former years. Particularly good marks resulted in the pole vault, in which a Chinese boy cleared 11 feet 7 inches, and the 100 yard dash, where some of the performers who took part were credited with marks of :10.

Kodaks of the meet were snapped by Hiram Sibley, a Chicagoan who was in Japan at the time for several technical magazines. He reported that the chief reasons assigned for the poorer times of the oriental was their inexperience—shown by the novel officiating—the sort of food they eat, which leaves the runners with less endurance and stamina to finish, and the lack of modern coaching, which has trained American athletes.

POSTPONE AUTO DUEL TILL TODAY

Milwaukee, Wis., June 23.—If the eyes of the sport world were turned to Milwaukee today they couldn't see a thing. One of the most terrific thunderstorms in years broke during the night and caused the races for the motor track championship between Barney Oldfield and Ralph De Palma to be postponed until tomorrow. The state fair grounds track, unless more rain falls, should be in the very best of condition by that time for the grill of the two speed demons.

STARS ENTERED IN A. A. U. GAMES

Entries closed last night for the Central A. A. U. senior track and field championships next Saturday at Stagg field. Although the nominations have not been tabulated, the list will contain the names of some of the best spiked shoe performers in the central states. As usual, the Chicago Athletic association and Illinois Athletic clubs will have full sized delegations despite the fact that their ranks were somewhat depleted by loss of a few stars to Uncle Sam. Charles A. Dean, who has charge of the entries, is making allowances for entries that may still be in the mails. With these Dean believes the number of contestants in the coming affair will be around the 200 mark.

BOXING BOUTS INSTILL FIGHT INTO U. S. TARS

Ring Contests Help Make Battlers of Boys at Naval Station.

BY RAY PEARSON.

Out at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, which is "somewhere" on the north shore, the spirit of fight is perhaps as strong as anywhere in the world. The young men in blue may not have indelibly stamped in their makeup this fighting spirit when they arrive at this training station, but it is the one best bet that they will have it when they leave. Those who are of a timid turn of mind are certain to lose it within a few months, for these boys are taught to scrap.

To instill this spirit for battle, the main dependence is athletics, and principally boxing. Weekly boxing championships are held in a ring pitched in a ravine, the site forming a natural amphitheater which could not be beaten for outdoor sports.

Every Bout a Real Battle.

Boys in every class, from the wee bantamweights to the heavyweights, engage in the contests for the naval station championships. And these are "contests." Every bout is a battle from the first gong to the final clang at the end of the third round, for the bouts are limited to three rounds to a decision.

But there is something else worthy of mention here, and that is that the boys do not put up the stalling, blocking, slow mills so often seen where the boys earn a living at the sport. There is no bout that could be called a joke contest. It's man against man and may the best man win.

C. T. O. Kennedy in Charge.

Perhaps the man most interested in the boxing bouts at the station is Chief Turret Officer Kennedy, who officiates as referee. Be it known that Mr. Kennedy knows boxing, for a few years back he was a champion of the North Atlantic fleet.

At one of the boxing tournaments recently, Officer Kennedy, officiating as referee, heard some of the boys from the hillside arena giving advice to their favorite, who was contesting in a bout. The referee waited patiently until the gong had clanged at the end of the third round. He then took off his hat, walked over to the side of the ring from which the advice had come, and right behind him was a swarthy young cadet who looked as if he could lick his weight in wildcats.

Then came a speech to the hillsiders.

Here's What He Said.

"I've heard a lot of you fellows up there on the hill giving advice to the boys who are boxing," he shouted. "I want to tell you that it is the boys in the ring who are the fighters and they know what they are doing. If any of you fellows know so much I'd like to find it out and I have a chap here who will meet any of you at from 148 pounds up to 155. Come on right down here and get in the ring with this fellow. If you don't want to fight this fellow, just keep quiet and be the hillsiders you are."

West secured a small slam.

The bidding was a little queer, but did not affect the result. At trick three north took the only chance of throwing the lead to his partner in order that south might lead hearts or clubs. South played well in refusing to sacrifice the queen of spades.

After the fourth trick west could only secure a small slam by making either the queen of clubs or queen of hearts, and this seemed impossible when north was marked with both kings and had the advantage of discarding after west. But west overcame this difficulty by the clever play of the ace of clubs at trick seven—the Vienna coup—and at trick eleven north was helpless.

THURSDAY TO BE TARS' FETE DAY AT GREAT LAKES

All Day Program Includes Many Athletic Events for Sailors.

BY OTTO ENGEL.

One thousand bluejackets will engage in an extensive athletic program all day Thursday at the Great Lakes Naval Training station. Among the contestants will be several who have gained athletic renown on college fields, and Dr. John B. Kaufman, past assistant surgeon, U. S. N., athletic director at the station, as well as Martin Delaney, Chicago Athletic association director, his assistant, are looking for records in some events.

Two former University of Michigan stars, expected to figure prominently in the score making, are C. C. Smith, captain-elect of the Wolverine football team and track star, and Raymond, Ann Arbor half back sensation last fall.

Included in the big program are a number of novelty events, such as hoop, wheelbarrow, and potato races. Because of the huge entry list in the sprints such contests as the 50, 100, and 220 yard dashes will be run off in series instead of the usual heats. Twenty to thirty men will compete in each.

Ask Corbett to Referee Bouts.

Jim Corbett, former heavyweight champion, has been asked to referee the boxing contests, and there is a chance that the conqueror of Sullivan will be here. The program of fisticuffs, which will be staged at night, will include bouts in most divisions.

Jimmy Sheckard, scout for the Cubs, is making rapid progress in the development of the embryo ball players. He has about twenty teams out each day. Preparing the men for fancy diving and other water events is Coach Harry Hazelhurst of the Hamilton club, who has enlisted in the naval reserve force as a chief yeoman. Ben Reuben, enlisted as a second class machinist's mate, is teaching the youngsters some of his famous wrestling holds.

Men May Become Drill Masters.

The physical training side is being developed by Delaney. In a recent speech he said: "You men will have served your time in the navy and will be in demand as drill instructors at schools and universities. But if you know nothing of competitive athletics preference will be given to the coach of today who steals your stuff by taking the drill."

Chicago Athletic association members will be entertained at field day exercises at the training station Wednesday. There will be boxing, wrestling, a drill, and a sham battle with bluejackets as the participants. The naval band under the direction of John Philip Sousa will furnish the music. Capt. W. A. Moffett is in charge of the events.

Seven Cities in W. Virginia Tennis.

Seven cities are now represented in the Central West Virginia Tennis league, namely, Morgantown, Clarksburg, Buckhannon, Philippi, Fairmont, Elkins, and Parkersburg. A schedule of matches will be played during the summer.

LAST week's real estate market made a surprisingly good showing. The aggregate movement of property showed considerable falling off, as compared with the corresponding week a year ago, but there was an unusual number of highly important transactions, particularly the purchase by the Continental Can company in the Clearing district and its plans for the construction of what, it is said, will be one of the largest and most complete plants of the kind in the world, the cost of which is placed at several million dollars.

Coming at this time it will operate as a distinct tonic to the entire market, which has been much in the dumps for some time past, and should particularly stimulate, not only the Clearing district, but also the entire southwest part of the city.

The week's market in other details also showed a marked improvement over that of the previous week, particularly as regards the movement of apartment property, which was unusually large and included many valuable properties.

Clearing Deal Important.

The Clearing deal was one of the most important transactions in industrial property in recent years. The can company has purchased from the Chicago Transfer and Clearing company a tract of twenty acres at West Sixty-fifth street and South Fifty-fourth avenue for a reported consideration of $100,000. The property fronts 900 feet on Sixty-fourth street and 980 feet on Fifty-fourth avenue.

Work will begin immediately on the first unit of a four story standard mill and reinforced concrete factory building to contain approximately 1,000,000 square feet of floor space. The building will be laid out in the shape of the letter "E" and a prominent feature will be the provisions for shipping facilities. There will be sixteen shipping and receiving platforms, 300 feet long, with twenty-seven parallel switch tracks for eight cars each, located in the inner part of the "E," extending at right angles from the main buildings.

Employment for 3,000.

Another notable feature will be a four story wing, 120 feet square, projecting from the main building, to be used exclusively for the utilities and conveniences of employés, such as dining and rest rooms, lockers, wash and toilet rooms. Employment will be given 3,000 persons, to be drawn largely from the southwest part of the city and from the rapidly growing residential district in the neighborhood, where it is reported plans are on foot for a large home development along modern lines.

The company now operates two other factories in Chicago, as well as plants in Syracuse, N. Y., and Baltimore, together with a tin plate mill in Canonsburg, P.

While no figures are given out regarding the cost of the building, it is thought it probably will be in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. The entire plant will represent an investment, it is said, of over $3,000,000.

Davidson & Weiss are preparing the plans for the building, while Cremin & O'Connor represented the purchasing company and L. T. James the district as broker. The legal details were handled by F. C. Hack of Winston, Payne, Strawn & Shaw and by Frederick J. Newey of Wheelock, Newey & MacKenzie.

Triples Original Estimate.

Another important industrial development was the announcement that the Marks Manufacturing company will expend $14,500,000 in the construction of its new steel works at East Chicago, which is $9,500,000 in excess of the estimated cost a year ago. The new plans provide for the construction of a 600 ton blast furnace, complete with docks, ore, and coke handling machinery, which was not in the original plan; also an open hearth steel department with a capacity of 250,000 gross tons of ingots a year, which was not in the original plan. Another new feature includes a universal plate mill with a capacity of 180,000 gross tons of universal and sheared plates. Of much interest is the announcement that all the machinery and equipment was purchased at prices which prevailed a year ago.

Earle G. Krumrine Buys R. D. Hill & Co. Business

It is announced that Earle G. Krumrine has purchased the business of R. D. Hill & Co. from the Northern Trust company, executor of the estate of Russell D. Hill. Mr. Krumrine had been associated with Mr. Hill for twelve years and will continue the conservative policy followed by Mr. Hill and will specialize in central business district loans. His office will be at 1020 Merchants Loan and Trust building.

NEW AUSTIN APARTMENTS

"Pine Ridge" Property Being Erected on Pine Avenue Near Ohio Street.

An attractive apartment building, known as the "Pine Ridge Apartments," is being erected at 557-63 Pine avenue, near Ohio street, in Austin. The building occupies a lot 100x150 feet, west front, and contains thirty apartments of three and four rooms with baths and with six sun parlors and eighteen open porches. The building, together with the land, is estimated to be worth $90,000, and is expected to have an annual rent of $14,250 and a net of $11,000. In connection with its construction Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company has underwritten a bond issue loan of $60,000, two to seven years, at 6 per cent. The building is being erected by Vincent M. Huntington.

SEVERAL DEALS IN RESIDENCES NOTED IN WEEK

Old Thomas Gahan Home, Grand Boulevard, Conveyed.

There were several noteworthy transactions in residence property closed during the week, in one of which the old Thomas Gahan residence at 4619 Grand boulevard figured. It is a twelve room stone structure on a lot 100x150 feet, west front, and was erected by Mr. Gahan about twenty years ago. It has been conveyed by Mrs. S. J. Ferguson, wife of Dr. Alexander D. Ferguson, to Thomas Byrne for a stated consideration of $26,000.

In Sheridan Road.

An interesting Sheridan road residence deal was the purchase by Christ M. Damascus from H. E. Keeler of the property at the southeast corner of the road and Chase avenue, lot 170x170 feet, improved with a sixteen room dwelling. The consideration is not disclosed, but it is said to have been in the neighborhood of $70,000. Mr. Damascus also acquired from Elsie M. Hughes the vacant property at the northeast corner of the same streets, 139 feet on the road and 175 on Chase avenue, a nominal consideration being given. The sale, however, is said to have been on the basis of $350 a front foot, or $48,650. It is said the purchase was made on speculative account, the purchaser having no plans for improving either property. The house is said to be rented for $200 a month.

Rate of $350 a Foot.

Later in the week there was filed for record the transfer by Elsie Hughes to P. M. Damaskes and N. P. Karavites of the property in Sheridan road 139 feet north of Chase avenue, 100x150 feet, west front, a nominal consideration being given. This adjoins the vacant property at the northeast corner of the road and Chase avenue, 139x175 feet, which Mrs. Hughes early in the week conveyed to Christ M. Damascus for a reported consideration of $48,650, or at the rate of $350 a front foot.

Amendment of Revenue Act Pleases Realty Men

There is much rejoicing in real estate circles over the passage of house bill 841, amending the general revenue act of 1872, and definitely fixing the calendar year as the period in which taxes are to be levied. Under old conditions there has been endless trouble over who was to pay the taxes and many deals have fallen through because of disputes arising over this.

Much credit of the passage of the bill is due to Frederick De Young, chairman of the judiciary committee of the house, who introduced the bill, and to Mark Levy, chairman of the subcommittee on tax amendments of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and the committee consisting of J. F. Strickland, A. W. Stanmeyer, Newton W. Farr, and William D. Murdoch.

Will Widen 71st Street; Assessment Confirmed

Of much importance to the south shore district was the action by the County court on Friday in confirming the special assessment providing for the widening of Seventy-first street between Stony Island avenue and South Shore boulevard, a distance of a mile, from sixty-six to 110 feet. Some time ago the city council passed an ordinance providing for the elevation of the tracks of the Illinois Central road along that street on cement posts with steel superstructure. It also is expected the street railway company will build a line under the elevated structure. Together with the generally rapid development of this district, this should result in a marked improvement of Seventy-first street as a business thoroughfare.

Apex Electric Company Buys Nearby Property

The Apex Electric Manufacturing company has acquired 121x115 feet at the northeast corner of West Fifty-ninth and Bishop streets from four different owners, a nominal consideration being given. The property adjoins the present plant of the company, which comprises a one story building containing about 5,000 square feet of floor space. While no plans are had for the immediate improvement of the property just acquired, it is understood it will be done eventually.

MINOR FLAT SALES ACTIVE

There was a large number of minor transactions in flat property, in one of which Catherine McCarthy sold to Richard Mueller the six flat building at 1555-57 East Sixty-first street for a reported consideration of $29,000, subject to $14,000 incumbrance. Mr. Mueller gave in exchange 1,400 acres of land in Crawford county, Mich., valued at $15,000. Thomas Conran & Co. were the brokers.

The property at the southeast corner of Newport avenue and North Lincoln street, lot 51x124 feet, with flat improvements, has been conveyed by William H. Brown to George R. Hotchkiss Jr., consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $28,000.

Record has been made of the sale by Lee J. Lesser to Oscar N. Nelson of the six apartment building on 50x125 feet of ground in Clyde avenue, 100 feet south of East Seventieth street, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $21,500.

Olive J. Weymouth has acquired from Joseph J. Miller the property in Greenwood avenue 50 feet north of Sixty-fifth street, lot 85x69 feet, with brick improvements, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $31,000.

Thomas J. Conley has purchased from Nary A. Isle the property in Crandon avenue 280 feet north of Sixty-ninth street, lot 40x180 feet, west front, with flat improvements, for an expressed consideration of $16,000.

The property at the southeast corner of Harding and Potomac avenues, lot 50x124 feet, with flat improvements, has been conveyed by Yetta Camcry to Alexander Joseph, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $20,500.

The six apartment building in Wayne avenue 44 feet north of Rosemont avenue, lot 50x120 feet, east front, has been conveyed by Margaret Peterson to Aaron M. Olson, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $14,000.

Wabash Corner Bought by City for Widening Project

Record was made of the transfer by R. C. Price et al. to the city of Chicago of the property at the southeast corner of Wabash avenue and Twelfth street, 68x156½, a nominal consideration being given. The property was acquired by the city in connection with the widening of Twelfth street, and the city paid at the rate of $3,000 a front foot and $20,000 for the two story brick building thereon. The transfer was under the Torrens system.

The owners now have a strip three feet wide remaining, and it is interesting to know what use they will make of it; also how the owners of the parcel adjoining on the south will view the fact of a three foot strip intervening between their property and the corner.

Apartment Building Deal in Larrabee Street

The property at the southwest corner of Larrabee street and Belden avenue, lot 60x100 feet, improved with a four story building containing sixteen apartments, has been conveyed by William C. and Grace M. Regelin to Lawrence Williams, trustee of the estate of Cornelia J. Williams, for a reported consideration of $43,400. The building is said to have a gross annual rental of $7,000, and in part payment the purchaser conveyed a tract of 124 lots at Clarkdale, Eighty-third street and Crawford avenue. The deal was negotiated by Willis J. Gallup of Cochran & McCluer.

Charles E. Bates & Co. Open Real Estate Offices

Charles E. Bates, for seven years associated with the real estate firm of Murdock, James & Co., has opened a real estate office under the firm name of Charles E. Bates & Co., Reaper block.

LUMBER COMPANY BUYS $45,000 LOT FOR NEW YARDS

Sale of Acres Slow, but Vacant Shows a Good Week.

While there were no transactions of any moment in acres outside of the Clearing transaction, there was considerable doing in vacant.

In the north branch district Herman H. Hettler Lumber company purchased from the Brand Brewing company a tract of about 100,000 square feet on Elston avenue, 397 feet northwest of Snow street, with a northeast frontage of 128 feet back to the railroad right of way, for an expressed consideration of $45,000. The property adjoins the yard of the Hettler company and will be used for yard purposes.

In a northwest side deal James A. Sackley, president of the James A. Sackley company, street paving contractors, has purchased from Elizabeth M. Robinson a tract of ten acres on the north side of Belmont avenue through to School street. It extends west 569 feet from the right of way of the Chicago and Northwestern road, on which it has a frontage of 600 feet. The consideration is reported at $30,000, which is at the rate of $3,000 an acre.

The Sackley purchase will be improved with railroad switches. W. C. Paul represented the seller and R. D. Huszagh the purchaser.

There was filed for record a large number of transfers from the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, of lots in the Devon-Rockwell addition to Rogers Park. The lots were mostly in Rockwell street, Talman and Washtenaw avenues.

Chicago Short Line Buys Four More Pieces

Record was made of the acquirement by the Chicago Short Line Railway company of four more parcels of land in the block between Ninety-seventh and Ninety-eighth streets on Avenue N, South Chicago, making 350 feet altogether to which the company has just taken title, and for which it is said to have paid about $25,000. The road, which serves the Iroquois Iron company and other industries in that region, plans to improve with a roundhouse and coal pocket to cost about $40,000. The transfers were under the Torrens system and the deal was negotiated by Robert E. L. Brooks.

City Buys Site for New Pumping Station

The city will build a new pumping station at the northeast corner of Western avenue and Sixty-first street, on 250x87 feet of land which it has purchased from Albert B. Dewey for $27,358. The pumping station will cost about $1,250,000. A water tunnel to connect with the Roseland tunnel at State street, to cost $1,750,000 to $2,000,000, will also be built. Construction will begin this year, it is said.

$300,000 TRADE WEEK'S LEADER IN APARTMENTS

Business Shows Marked Improvement Over Last Week.

There was a marked improvement in the movement of apartment property last week as compared with that of the previous week, both in respect to the character and number of transactions. Nonresidents were the purchasers in the most important transactions.

The most important of these, and one of the largest of the year, covered the Brentwood and Cliffwood buildings at 906-34 Sunnyside avenue, just east of Sheridan road, which have been sold by James A. Bidderman and wife, Kate, to James G. Ateleham and William E. Jamison of St. Louis for a reported consideration of $300,000, the sale being subject to an incumbrance of $180,000.

The buildings, which are new structures, occupy 300x150 feet of ground and contain sixty apartments of four and five rooms. The buildings are said to have a gross annual rental of about $37,000. Lundstrom, Tonks & Co. represented all the parties to the transaction.

$150,000 Deal.

The other deal covered the twenty-four apartment building of four, five, and six rooms, with sun parlors, sleeping porches, on a lot 100x150 feet, at the southwest corner of Juneway terrace and Paulina street, which has been purchased by L. C. Aid of Winnipeg from M. C. Anderson. The building is said to have a gross annual rent of about $16,000, and while the consideration is not disclosed, it is said to have been around $150,000, the sale being subject to an incumbrance of $72,000. In exchange the purchaser conveyed a large Canadian farm, stocked and equipped. George W. Stewart represented both parties.

The twenty-four flat building of four, five, and six rooms on 86x150 feet of ground at the southeast corner of Woodlawn avenue and Fifty-second street, has been conveyed by Peter H. Paulden to Nicoll Haksey, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $50,000.

Twelve Flat Sold.

The twelve flat building, lot 50x177 feet, at the northwest corner of Kimbark avenue and Fifty-second street, has been conveyed by Emil G. Skoglund to Lemuel B. Patterson, south park commissioner, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $45,000, but actual figure said to have been $70,000. In part payment Mr. Patterson conveyed the vacant, 100x189 feet, in Yates avenue, 100 feet north of Seventieth street, east front, consideration nominal. Skoglund is said to plan the erection of a twenty-four flat building to cost about $80,000.

Record was made of the sale by Yale university to Samuel H. Newman of the twelve flat building, lot 100x161 feet, in Michigan avenue, 100 feet north of Garfield boulevard, for a reported consideration of $60,000, the purchaser giving a purchase money mortgage of $40,000.

In another big north side deal Alexander B. Peterson purchased from Helen Snyder the eighteen apartment building of six and seven rooms and three baths on a lot 79x197 feet at the northeast corner of Surf street and Pine Grove avenue, an exclusive residential district. The building is said to have a gross annual rental of $18,000, and, while a nominal consideration is given, it is reported to have been $135,000, subject to an incumbrance of $75,000.

In part payment the purchaser conveyed the property at 3411 West Adams street, near St. Louis avenue, lot 50x150 feet, with residence improvements, at a reported valuation of $25,000. Charles A. Johnson represented Mr. Peterson and Thomas E. Sullivan & Co. Mrs. Snyder.

Two Apartment Sales.

Sales of two extra high grade three apartment buildings also figured in the week's news. One covered the property at 843 Drexel square, being 123 feet west of Drexel boulevard, with garages in the rear, which was sold by James Coupland to Francis W. Jones, president of the Melba Manufacturing company, a nominal consideration being given, subject to an incumbrance of $20,000. The actual price, however, is reported at $50,000. The building occupies a lot 50x144 feet, north front, the apartments containing nine rooms with three baths, sun parlors, etc., the building having a gross annual rental of $7,380. E. E. Baldwin & Co. were the brokers. This is the second purchase by Mr. Jones of the same kind of property recently in that immediate locality made through Baldwin, & Co.

The other transaction was the sale by Abraham W. Weil to Mrs. Jettel L. Pryor of the three apartment building, with garages in the rear, at 722 Junior terrace, between Clarendon avenue and the lake, for a reported consideration of about $38,000, clear of incumbrance. The buildings are on a lot 50x125 feet, and in part payment the purchaser conveyed the residence property at 1539 Farwell avenue, lot 85x175 feet, clear. Howard S. Evans of Broomell Bros. represented both the parties to the transaction.

Leases and Loans

IN the way of leases the most important development of the week was the reported lease by S. W. Straus & Co. of the entire ground floor space in the Straus building at the northwest corner of Madison and Clark streets to the Miller Drug company. The concern is said to be under the same management as the Owl Drug company, which operates extensively on the Pacific coast and which some time ago leased from Levy Mayer the store and basement at the southwest corner of State and Quincy streets. The lease to the Miller company is said to be for fifteen years from May 1, 1920, at an annual rental of about $50,000.

Record was made of a trust deed given by Mrs. Carrie Munn of Washington, D. C., to Charles E. Murison securing a loan of $1,500,000, ten years at 5 per cent, on the property at the northeast corner of Wabash avenue and Jackson boulevard, 96x171 feet, under lease to Lyon & Healy and improved with a ten story building. The loan is subject to a prior incumbrance to the Northern Trust company, trustee, for $570,000, due 1920 at 5 per cent, used in connection with the construction of the building. The combined loans constitute a lien of $138 a square foot on the property.

Willis & Frankenstein have leased for Modie J. and Sidney M. Spiegel the store and basement at 65 East Monroe street to the A. H. Meyer Shoe company of New York for a term rent of $50,000 from Sept. 1. This is a new concern in Chicago. Mr. Meyer was for a number of years connected as manager with the French, Shriner & Urner shoe stores in Chicago.

The same brokers have leased for Charles F. Gunther to the Melville Clark Piano company the eighth floor of the Gunther building at the northwest corner of Wabash avenue and Eleventh street, 83x165 feet, for a term from July 1, 1917, at a term rent of $26,000.

Mark Levy & Bro. have leased for Adolph and August Nathan to the American Household Supply company the two story and basement building at 5409-11 South Halsted street for a term rent of $9,000, the lessees having an option to purchase for $17,000. The company operates a store at 620 South Wabash avenue.

The Hibernian Banking association has made four loans to the Catholic bishop aggregating $220,000, all running five years at 4½ per cent. The largest is for $113,000 and is on the property of St. Bernard parish at the northeast corner of Stewart avenue and Sixty-sixth street. Another for $52,000 is on the Mission of the Holy Cross parish at the southwest corner of Randolph and Desplaines streets. Another for $40,000 is on St. Ambrose parish property at the northeast corner of Forty-seventh street and Ellis avenue, the remaining one being for $15,500 on St. Francis a Paula parish at the southwest corner of Dobson avenue and Seventy-eighth street.

Two loans aggregating $134,000, each being for $67,000, seven years, 6 per cent, have been obtained by Gustav G. Anders through the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee. One is on the Madison Manor apartments, 1224-28 Hyde Park boulevard and 1225-29 Madison Park, and the other on the Boulevard Manor at 1232-36 Hyde Park and 1233-37 Madison Park.

George W. Prassus and George Nixon, who purchased the tract of twenty acres at the northwest corner of Peterson and California avenues, have given a trust deed to Joseph J. Simon to secure a loan of $43,000, five years at 5 per cent, on the property, part purchase money. It was under the Torrens system.

Real Estate Transfers

Real estate transfers filed for record yesterday totaled 186, of which 142 were in the city and 44 outside, including 15 under the Torrens system. Transfers were as follows:

NEW BUSINESS BLOCK PLANNED FOR WEST ADAMS

Kellogg Company Expected to Erect $200,000 Building Soon.

Business property was fairly well represented in the week's business, a noticeable improvement being shown over the preceding week. A transaction on West Adams street has a special interest, as it is understood to involve the construction of a building to cost around $200,000, for the occupancy of the Kellogg Switchboard and Supply company, as an addition to their plant. It was the sale by John Gould to Arthur B. Jones and Stanley Field of the property, 194 feet west of Morgan street, lot 70x245½ feet, south front, with old residence improvements. A consideration of $10 is given, but it is understood the property has been held at $40,000. It is understood Mr. Jones plans to improve it with a building, probably four stories high, to conform to the present building of the Kellogg company, and which will be occupied by the company under a long term lease.

Sale in Pullman.

Peter Foote has sold to M. W. Quinn the property at the southeast corner of One Hundred and Eleventh street and Vincennes avenue, Pullman, lot 64x100 feet, improved with a one story brick building containing four stores. The property adjoins the new station of the Illinois Central road, and while a nominal consideration is given subject to an incumbrance of $15,000, the actual figure is said to have been a little in excess of $30,000.

Solomon Stern has sold to Augusta Vanderberg the property at 4021-23 Broadway, lot 50x150 feet, west front, improved with a two story building with two stores on the ground floor and offices above and a garage with fifteen machine capacity in rear, for a reported consideration of $29,000, subject to an incumbrance of $15,000. The property at 1225 Clark street and at 3141 Paulina street was conveyed in part payment at a total consideration of $7,000. Kraus Bros. were the brokers.

City Club Building.

Record was made of the conveyance by Francis A. Hardy of Evanston to his wife, Mary P. Hardy, of the leasehold interest in the 50x93 feet of ground at [illegible]-15 Plymouth court and the six story building thereon occupied by the City club. The land was leased for ninety-nine years from July 1, 1908, by Richard J. Gunning from Henry Gerstley at a graded rental of from $4,000 to $5,000.

Corn futures held up well yesterday in face of heavy realizing sales, especially the old crop deliveries. Latter closed with advances of ¼@½c, while the December was unchanged to ¼c lower. Prices were sharply higher early in the session under a general rush to buy, but on the bulge longs showed a desire to turn paper profits into cash and the market reacted. The buying on the dips was good and there was further taking of corn by houses with seaboard connections. Principal strengthening influence was the pronounced firmness of cash corn, sales of which were on a ½@1½c higher basis than on Friday and figured about 26c over the September price. Export sales of 200,000 bu corn were reported at the seaboard, while local shipping business was 40,000 bu.

Weather forecast for next week was unfavorable, promising showers with temperatures below seasonable average for the corn belt, while the crop is backward and needs hot, forcing weather. There were more dry weather complaints from Texas. Primary receipts totaled 882,000 bu, compared with 741,000 bu a year ago.

Wheat Dull and Higher.

Wheat trade was dull and featureless, but prices scored gains of 3@4c. Shorts were anxious to cover and the offerings were limited. Crop and weather reports continued to be of an encouraging nature and showery weather promised for the spring wheat country next week is regarded as bearish. Winter wheat shows steady improvement and in many instances fields that were considered worthless in May now promise to return a good yield. There were some showers in the harvest area, but rain was not heavy or general enough to cause any serious delay in the gathering of the crop.

Cash wheat remains dull and only 6 cars were inspected here yesterday. There is a little new wheat offered to arrive at a price slightly above the market. Buyers are slow to make purchases because of fear that some action in the way of price fixing may be made at Washington, while the lack of hedging opportunity also holds them back. Clearances for the day were 850,000 bu. Primary receipts totaled 379,000 bu, against 786,000 bu a year ago.

Oats Are Under Pressure.

Longs in oats also sold freely and depressed the market, as support here was not as good as in corn. Resting spots showed net declines of ¼@½c. Bartlett-Frazier led in the selling, while the sales of December oats by the Armour concern were also considerable. Prices were higher early, largely in sympathy with corn. Excellent crop reports offset talk of export demand. Cash oats were steady with local shipping sales 225,000 bu, including 100,000 bu for export. Clearances for the day were 110,000 bu. Primary receipts totaled 718,000 bu, against 564,000 bu a year ago.

Provisions were generally lower at the finish. Commission house and short buying of pork and ribs advanced those commodities to new high levels early. Realizing sales on the bulge were heavy. Lard failed to get support. Trade in cash meats reported as good. Hog prices at the yards were weaker and receipts at western markets for the week totaled 488,000 head, compared with 430,000 last week and 565,000 a year ago. Local meat shipments this week were 13,088,000 lbs, against 14,336,000 lbs a year ago; lard shipments, 3,118,000 lbs, against 6,251,000 lbs last year.

Rye Market Weak.

Rye was easy. No. 2 sold at $2.40 and No. 3, $2.35. Receipts, 1 car.

Barley ruled firm. Malting was quoted $1.25@1.48 and sold $1.30@1.52; feed and mixing quotable $1.10@1.25, with a sale at $1.20; screenings were quoted 60c@$1.00 and sold 71c@$1.08. Receipts, 2 cars.

Timothy seed was easy. September closed $8.50 bid and $8.75 asked. Cash lots quotable $4.00@8.00 nominal. Cloverseed was firmer. Cash quoted $12.00@17.00 and spot prime, $18.05 nominal.

Flax closed 3c higher with cash quoted $3.13@3.18. Duluth was 1@3c, Minneapolis, 3c, and Winnipeg 7½@8c higher respectively.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE

THE demand for cash corn continues active and prices yesterday were ½@1½c up, while the futures did not hold the advance. No. 3 corn sold for June shipment just before the close at $1.72¾. Spot corn was extremely strong, and there was little offered. Omaha and Kansas City sold corn for export, and offerings from the country generally were reported smaller. Some receivers look for a much smaller run of corn in the west after the coming week, and it is said most of the recent arrivals were to apply on old sales. Local sales yesterday were 40,000 bu.

More new wheat is being offered to arrive daily, and in a few more days the necessity of taking care of the new crop offerings will become a big problem unless the restrictions are removed from future trading. Buyers are not willing to run any risks and are insisting on a greater margin of profit than ever before. This is causing complaint among country owners, who have been used to selling their grain close to the market. Dealers are unable to pay up to the market as usual, owing to the hazard under present conditions. With open markets and the protection of hedging the situation would change. New No. 2 red was reported offered here on the basis of July price. Outside cash wheat markets all were quiet with no radical change in prices.

"December corn price is predicted upon a popular estimate of 120,000,000 to 125,000,000 acreage," said Babcock of Thomson-McKinnon. "Inasmuch as the government estimate of oats acreage was considerably below popular idea and as state reports intimate considerable abandonment of corn acreage on lowlands, we believe there is considerable opportunity for a disappointment to the bears in the July corn report. Further than this the probable exhaustion of old corn will necessitate immediate demand upon the new crop of larger proportions than usual."

The oats market at Liverpool is steady with offerings well absorbed and stocks moderate and purchases from America were said to be more difficult. Import needs will be heavy during the duration of the war. The continental demand is urgent for corn and neutrals are paying prices far above the views of other buyers.

Cash oats were quoted steady, but late bids from the east were reported again out of line. Offerings here were not especially heavy and the strength in cash corn is causing a firmer attitude on the part of holders. Local sales were 200,000 bu, including 100,000 bu to exporters.

Cotton values have had some effect on the southern demand for side meats, according to W. L. Gregson, with the outlook for any increase in hog receipts this summer extremely dubious. The poor quality of hogs has been against the values.

Sincere & Co. had the following from a south central Illinois point: "I never saw wheat come out of the kinks like it has this year and the oats look better than the wheat in many localities, especially south of Jacksonville."

Fuller of Omaha wired Hulburd-Warren-Chandler: "Good rains almost entirely over the state last night. Our crop prospects are ideal for all grains. We are practically certain to raise bumper crops of corn and oats."

A message from Fort Worth, Tex., said there were no indications of rain for next forty-eight hours, with temperatures high. Some Texas reports say crop will not be hurt seriously if there is rain in few days.

Receipts inspected Saturday: Wheat, 6 cars; corn, 41 cars; oats, 116 cars; rye, 1 car; barley, 2 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday, 37,000 head and for all next week, 120,000 head.

Kansas City corn stocks decreased 62,000 bu for the week, making the total supply there only 121,000 bu. Receipts there for the day were only 15 cars.

New wired that the demand for corn continued good, with foreign governments buying. Export sales reported at the seaboard were 200,000 bu.

Board of trade contributions to the Red Cross fund have reached nearly $100,000.

Minneapolis wired that a large proportion of the receipts yesterday was of low grade Canadian wheat.

Minneapolis stocks decreased 90,000 bu for one day.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, June 23.—COFFEE—The market for coffee futures continued quiet today and fluctuations were narrow. The opening was at a decline of 6 to 7 points under further scattering liquidation, but the loss was partly recovered with prices moving on small orders in a narrow market. The close showed a net loss of 1 to 5 points. Sales were 7,750 bags. Closing bids: June 7.62c; July, 7.65c; August, 7.69c; September, 7.73c; October, 7.76c; November, 7.79c; December, 7.82c; January, 7.87c; February, 7.92c; March, 7.96c; April, 8c; May, 8.05c. Spot coffee was dull. Rio 7s, 9⅞c; Santos, 4s 10⅛d. The official cables showed an advance of 75 reis at Rio. Santos spots were 300 reis below the last quotations, and futures showed a decline of 50 to 75 reis. Victoria cleared 5,000 for New Orleans and Santos 61,000 for New York. Brazilian port receipts, 13,000; Jundiahy, 12,000.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Cotton goods were firm and high today. Yarns were strong. Dress goods were higher. Men's wear was steady as to demand and high as to price. Burlaps were stronger. Linens tended higher.

Southern Pacific.

SOUTHERN PAC[illegible] gross increased $3,529,000; [illegible] after taxes, increased $1,89[illegible],099.

Hog receipts of 10,000 head at Chicago yesterday met with an indifferent demand and prices suffered a further loss of 10@15c for the general run. Odd lots of prime, heavy offerings did not show more than 5c decline, but even these closed on a weak basis. Top sales were made at $16.05 and the bulk at $15.00@15.75. Pigs were weak to 25c lower, with most of the good killers and shippers at $13.50@14.00, while odd lots of choice heavyweights made $14.25.

Final prices made hogs 10@20c lower than a week ago for all grades, excepting the best, which were unchanged. Pigs were mostly 25c lower than at the close last week. The average price of all hogs here this week was placed at $15.65, which compared with $15.45 last week. Receipts for the week increased 15,000 head, while shipments were practically unchanged.

Hog purchases for the day: Armour & Co., 5,000; Swift & Co., 2,000; Wilson & Co., 1,200; Morris & Co., 1,200; Hammond, 1,000; Western Packing company, 500; Anglo-American, 1,200; Independent, 400; Roberts & Oake, 500; Brennan Packing company, 500; Miller & Hart, 400; butchers, 1,300; shippers, 1,000; total, 16,200; left over, 5,000.

CATTLE.

Choice to prime fat beeves finished the week on a firm basis, with the best quotable up to $13.80, the highest on record. Less desirable offerings, however, were from 15c to 50c lower than a week ago, with lightweight grass fed lots showing the big end of the decline. Cows and heifers were 15c to 50c lower than a week ago, while calves closed at a gain of 50c, with prime vealers quoted at a record of $15.85. Cattle receipts for the week showed a decrease, but there was a larger proportion of grass fed stock, while the supply of fancy corn fed animals was scarcely equal to the demand. The market closed in good condition at the readjusted prices.

Cattle at seven western markets for the week 191,800, against 183,300 the preceding week, 148,900 a year ago, and 113,500 two years ago. Total for 1917 to date, 4,097,000, against 3,424,000 the same period in 1916.

SHEEP.

Sheep finished the week at an advance of 25c for the bulk, while most lambs were 75c higher than a week ago. Receipts for the week showed a substantial increase, but there was a much broader outlet for all offerings and advanced values were easily maintained to the finish. Lambs topped the week at $19.00 for springers and $16.75 for clippers, while sheep sold up to $12.00, with the exception of one band of extra fine 102 pound yearling ewes, which sold up to $17.50. The latter price was $5.25 higher than the previous record.

MAY RENEW FIGHT FOR CONTROL OF ROCK ISLAND

Reorganization of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway company having been effected, a president elected, and financial plans approved, a renewal of the fight for control is expected to develop at a meeting of the board of directors of the road at New York in the near future.

Nathan Amster, the Boston capitalist who led the fight against the Reid-Moore interests, charged in numerous proceedings with wrecking the road and driving it into the receivership recently terminated, returned to Boston yesterday. He came west in connection with reorganization plans.

The resignations of Charles G. Dawes and E. D. Hulbert of Chicago are expected at the meeting, as Mr. Dawes has become a major of engineers and expects to go to France, and Mr. Hulbert is said to have too much other business on his hands. Also it is said that John G. Shedd, the chairman, may resign. It is over the chairmanship that a fight is expected to develop between Mr. Amster, who is said to favor the chairmanship for himself, as he is already head of the executive committee, and James M. Wallace, president of the Central Trust Company of New York. Mr. Wallace was chairman of the Wallace committee of stockholders in 1914, said by the Amster crowd to have been a part of the Reid-Moore propaganda, and still regarded by them as favoring the old régime.

Mr. Amster declined to discuss the situation.

National Bank Call to Be Issued Within 48 Hours

Washington, D. C., June 23.—The controller of the currency announced today that a call for reports on condition of national banks will be issued within forty-eight hours. These are the last reports to be made, computing reserves under the federal reserve act before its recent amendment.

All reports after this one will require national banks in Central reserve cities to maintain in their respective federal reserve banks a balance of 13 per cent of demand deposits, banks in reserve cities 10 per cent of demand deposit, and country banks a reserve of 7 per cent. National banks will be required to keep a reserve on their time deposits of 3 per cent with their reserve banks, instead of the 5 per cent reserve heretofore required.

COTTON.

NEW YORK, June 23.—COTTON—The cotton market showed renewed strength today with prices making new high records. The general list closed irregularly at a net advance of 37 to 44 points. The opening was steady at an advance of 24 to 37 points. After selling about 42 to 56 points above last night's closing figures, prices reacted several points under realizing, but soon firmed up again on reports that the government had closed contracts for 50,000,000 yards of cotton duck. Prices reached the highest point on this bulge. Realizing then became more active and fluctuations were irregular late in the morning, with the close showing reactions of some 10 or 15 points. Port receipts today were 8,505 bales and 7,044,955 for the season; exports today none, and 5,131,947 for the season. Stock, 778,336. Futures:

Investors' Manual for 1917.

The 1917 edition of the Investors' Manual, published by the Economist Publishing company of Chicago, has been issued. The manual is given over largely to reports of the financial condition and history of concerns whose securities are listed on the Chicago exchange, but also gives account of many companies listed on the New York and other exchanges. It contains a list of all the banks of Chicago with the names of their officers and directors, railroad statistics, the range of quotations on the New York stock exchange for 1914-15-16, and the range of prices on the Chicago exchange for the last eleven years.

More for Dolton Depositors.

Depositors of the Dolton State bank will received dividends of between 35 and 40 per cent, according to Francis Corby, the receiver. He has already paid a dividend of 25 per cent. As receiver he began suit some time ago against the stockholders for a full assessment on their holdings, and he announced yesterday that many of them had already made their payments.

Pig Iron Buyers Busy.

CLEVELAND, O., June 23.—The Daily Iron Trade says: "Higher quotations for pig iron do not discourage buyers at Cincinnati, and increasing demand appears at Pittsburgh for special grades of iron, while basic continues to work toward $55.00 valley. Spot Connellsville furnace coke is selling at $12.50 ovens."

Investor Must Protect Himself.

Most of the bills introduced in the Illinois legislature last winter for the protection of investors against the wiles of promoters seem to have failed of passage. This was probably due, not so much to the activity of the opposition as to the fact that the bills were drawn so as to give autocratic power to boards or officials. Possibly the men who framed the measures undertook too much. If they had limited themselves to requiring complete financial reports from companies whose treasury stock is offered for sale they might have done better, as such a measure would fill reasonable needs. If investors know that a certain stock is nearly worthless they need no autocrat to prevent them from buying it.

For the present Illinois will continue to be a rich pasture for promoters unless investors take matters into their own hands. However, if every person who has savings to invest will refuse to part with the money until he has been shown all about the financial merits of what he is asked to buy, the result will be better than if the law required it. Laws can be evaded sometimes, but the demands of the investor must be met.

It is certain that in the last few years Illinois investors have paid many millions annually for nearly worthless promotion stocks. From 25 to 50 per cent of this money has gone into the pockets of promoters and their agents, leaving the various companies in waterlogged condition and totally unfit for operating in any competitive field. If the investors do not want to repeat the record in the next few years, they have the remedy in their own hands.

Secured Foreign Loans.

C. M.: The various British and French secured loans issued in the United States in the last year are about equally well protected. The collateral under the "American Foreign Securities" loan is principally bonds of neutral governments. The others include also various high grade corporation bonds and some stocks. The difference in price between these loans is due to the fact that some of the bonds will be paid in cash at maturity, while others give the holder the option of converting them into longer time bonds.

Steel Stocks.

C. W. W.: All the steel companies you mention are making phenomenal earnings now because the steel business is enjoying the greatest prosperity ever known. The value of the stocks depends to a great extent on how long this prosperity may continue. The person who can answer that question can tell whether the stocks are now selling below or above their true worth.

Brief Answers.

V. A. S., Sheboygan Falls, Wis.: The Butterick company earned only 2⅛ per cent in 1916 on its $14,647,200 of stock. It paid dividends at the rate of 3 per cent a year for four years preceding last December, then the distributions ceased. The primary difficulty appears to be that it paid too high a price for control of the Ridgeway company in 1909.

M. L. W., Streator, Ill.: The common stock of a utility company is unsuitable and illegal for the investment of trust funds. Companies do not "default" the dividend on their stocks. If the dividend is not earned, they merely do not pay it. A dividend is not an obligation; it is a distribution of profits.

S. R.: The Henderson Farm Oil company is producing oil and has begun to pay dividends. The stock of a small producing company is highly speculative. A decline in the price of oil or in the output would affect the earnings immediately.

A. H. B.: Any reputable brokerage house, large or small, that handles New York stocks will buy you two or five shares of American Telephone and Telegraph stock. A commission of $2 would be charged.

BOND PAYMENTS CAUSE DROP IN BANK DEPOSITS

Liberty Disbursements Bring Shrinkage of $157,863,000.

Payments made in connection with the Liberty loan caused in part a heavy shrinkage in deposits by the New York banks. The decrease for the week was $157,863,000. This technically saved the excess reserve; otherwise, with a loss in cash of over $40,000,000, the surplus reserve would have been wiped out. As it was, the decrease in the surplus amounted to $12,223,520. The item now stands at a little better than $41,800,000.

Evidently a better statement is expected next week, or the stock market was wide in its guess, for the prices of securities advanced. The bank statement figures follow:

ACTUAL STATEMENT.

Collateral for U. S. Deposits.

There has been a marked broadening in the character of collateral security for government deposits which will now be accepted in connection with the Liberty loan. The treasury department has issued a statement showing the following that will be accepted as collateral for government deposits:

Notes, certificates of indebtedness, warrants issued by any state of the United States, at 90 per cent of market value, not exceeding par.

Railroad equipment trust obligations, at 75 per cent of the market value thereof, not exceeding par, but not including any such obligations which on May 29, 1917, were at a market price to yield more than 5½ per cent per annum, if held to maturity, according to standard tables of bond values.

Bonds of electric railway and traction companies, of telephone and telegraph companies, and of electric light, power, and gas companies, secured by direct mortgages upon their physical properties in the United States and listed on some recognized stock exchange; taken at 75 per cent of the market value thereof, not exceeding par, but not including any such bonds which on May 29, 1917, were at a market price to yield more than 5½ per cent per annum, if held to maturity, according to standard tables of bond values.

Chicago Securities.

Chicago stocks did not move up relatively as high as New York. Local prices, however, were firm. The feature was an advance in Shipbuilding common, which was up 3½ points from the opening. The packing house shares were steady to firm. Lindsay Light sold off 2 points at 33.

In the bond department Chicago Telephone 5s broke below par, selling at 99⅞.

Reserve Bank Extending Credit.

Banks in the Chicago reserve district have begun to seek rediscounts at the federal reserve bank in moderate volume. The total of discounted bills, as shown in yesterday's statement, was $14,703,601. In addition the reserve bank had on June 22 bought bills to the amount of over $27,000,000, an increase of about $5,000,000 over the previous week.

F. H. Crockard Elected Head of Nova Scotia Steel

Directors of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company, Limited, one of the oldest steel concerns in Canada, elected Frank H. Crockard president to succeed Col. Thomas Cantley, who becomes chairman of the board of directors. Mr. Crockard has been vice president and assistant to the president of the Tennessee Coal, Iron, and Railroad company. The directors have decided, in order to provide ample working capital, to issue $5,000,000 of common stock at par, the right being given to all shareholders of record June 30 to subscribe pro rata. The subscription is payable $25 a share each July 20, Aug. 15, Sept. 15, and Nov. 15. This issue has been underwritten by a syndicate.

ON THE BROAD STREET CURB

NEW YORK, June 23.—[Special.]—Most of the trading activity on Broad street curb during the last week was based on reports in regard to contracts with the government for war purposes. Aircraft and munitions stocks assumed the most prominent position, and at times these classes of stocks showed pronounced strength, but buying movements were not sustained and substantial reactions followed advances.

Such issues as Curtiss Aeroplane and Wright-Martin Aircraft must be expected to be benefited by the use of the facilities of two companies to meet the requirements imposed by the demands which are indicated by pending congressional legislation. Marlin Arms was traded in at 100 to the new high record of 104. Curtiss Aeroplane ranged from 41 to 45 and Wright-Martin Aircraft rose to 10½, but had a reaction to 7½. Marconi was brought into prominence after the reception to the Italian commission and rose from 2½ to 3⅝.

Russian 5½s were unsettled early in the week, falling from 75 to 69, followed by a rally to 72. The 6½s were traded in at 82 to 84.

Air Reduction fluctuated over a wide range, falling from 95 to 79 and rallying to 85.

An important addition to the curb market was furnished in the initial trading in Cities Service new shares, which sold yesterday at 31 to 29⅝.

In the mining group the heaviest trading was in Ohio Copper, which was maintained at a substantial advance.

Independent oil stocks were heavy until near the end of the week.

The Perlman Rim company continues to be a thorn in the side of the United Motors corporation. Federal Judge Manton has decided that the Perlman Rim corporation patent infringes on that of a rim owned by Louis D. F. Munger. The Perlman Rim company has been ordered to account before a master for all rims made in violation of Munger design and pay reasonable royalties. The price of United Motors stock was not affected by this decision.

The Butte-Detroit reports an increase in its earnings through the mill's operations on manganese ore.

FINANCIAL NOTES

THE Saxon Motor Car company having decided to postpone action on the quarterly dividend for one month, the stock has broken from around 25 to 15. Last September the shares sold at 84¾. The Street expects the dividend, which is at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, will be passed.

In steel circles the remark is made that since steel prices are highest on record, steel interests should not worry if on a small percentage of the total output the corporations must supply to the government steel at greatly reduced prices under market figures.

The Lawyers Mortgage company has reduced its dividend from an annual 12 to an 8 per cent rate by the declaration of a quarterly dividend of 2 instead of 3 per cent. The reduction is said to be because of losses sustained in real estate.

It is announced that the General Motors company, which has in its various subsidiary concerns adhered for many years to the overhead valve engine, the only engine which can meet requirements of an aeroplane, is, according to W. C. Durant, negotiating with the government for aeroplane motors. But the company, it is declared, is not negotiating with the Wright-Martin company for control of that concern.

MARKET SHOWS STRENGTH.

New York, June 23.—Opening at irregular prices on relatively small operations, today's short session soon developed strength in all directions under the guidance of equipments and similar war issues. The only notable exceptions were shippings and Saxon Motor, the latter recording an extreme decline of 8 points to 15 and rallying little more than half way.

Baldwin Locomotive was the strongest feature at a gross gain of 6⅝ to 72⅞, virtually all of which was retained. American Locomotive rose almost 3 points and U. S. Steel rushed forward in the later dealings to 130⅝, a gain of over 2 points.

Bethlehem Steel new shares, Crucible, Gulf States, Midvale steels, Great Northern Ore and Colorado Fuel finished at advances of 1 to 2½. Coppers, oils, Industrial Alcohol and Malting preferred embraced the other prominent and strong issues at variable gains.

Rail Shares Quiet.

Rails were unusually quiet, some better known shares failing of actual quotation. New York Central and Coalers registered slight advances. Southern Pacific made only indifferent response to publication of the May report, which showed a net gain in excess of $2,000,000.

Unusually heavy dealings in Liberty bonds at par to 100 2-50 helped create more favorable sentiment. Washington news bearing on the money situation and government contracts also was more reassuring. Improvement was observed in the leading quotations for foreign exchange.

The general bond list was heavy. The various old U. S. bonds were lower by 1 to 3 per cent on call during the week.

Mercantile paper, 5@5¼ per cent. Sterling 60 day bills, 4.72; commercial 60 day bills on banks, 4.71⅝; commercial 60 day bills, 4.71¼; demand, 4.75⅝; cables, 4.76 7-16. Francs, demand, 5.74½; cables, 5.73½. Guilders, demand, 41 5-16; cables, 41⅜. Lires, demand, 7.37; cables, 7.35. Rubles, demand, 24; cables, 24¼. Bar silver, 78½c. Mexican dollars, 61⅝c. Government bonds strong; railroad bonds irregular.

LITTLE TRADING ON LOCAL CURB

Trading in local unlisted securities continues to be of small volume, due to the weakness in the New York market. Implement securities continue firm with the exception of Emerson Brantingham preferred, which declined to sales at 43 and closed at 42 to 44. The common was in demand at 13 bid, offered at 14. Butler Brothers, which improved some twenty points in the last few weeks, from 240 to 260, was somewhat easier; stock was offered at 258 with small lot buyers at 255. Northwestern Yeast declined from 315 to stock offered at 300, with no buyers.

Little interest was shown in the sugar issues; Utah Idaho was traded in at 11; Columbia Sugar, 13¼. Michigan Sugar common was offered at 92 with no buyers.

Slightly lower prices prevailed in some of the motor securities. Republic Truck after selling between 71 and 73 reacted to offerings at 72, with buyers at 70. Continental Motors was about a half point lower at 7 bid, offered at 7½. Paige-Detroit was traded in at 30¼. Reo Motor Car ranged from 27⅞ to 28½, closing 28 to 28½.

Public Utility stocks, with the exception of Cities Service, were inclined to be inactive with little change in prices. Cities Service advanced from 282 to 289, reacting to 285. The preferred was also a trifle stronger, changing hands at 85 to 86¼. There was considerable trading in the new stock, if, as and when issued, around 31, closed slightly easier at 29½.

Other sales were as follows: Northern States Power common, 96½@97½; Standard Gas and Electric common, 10¾@11½, preferred 35; American Light and Traction common, 328; United Light common, 39, preferred 68½; American Public Utilities preferred, 66; Commonwealth Power Railway and Light common, 48, preferred 76; Pacific Gas and Electric common, 58½; Middle West Utilities preferred, 70@71, common 43½.

Mark Mfg. Co. to Expend $14,500,000 on New Plant

The Mark Manufacturing company will expend $14,500,000 in the construction of its steel works at East Chicago. This is $9,500,000 in excess of the cost as contemplated a year ago.

The new plans provide for the construction of a 600 ton blast furnace, complete with docks, ore and coke handling machinery, which was not in the original plan, also an open hearth steel department with a capacity of 250,000 gross tons of ingots a year.

Chevrolet Cuts Red Cross Melon.

Chevrolet Motor company has authorized a contribution of $100,000 to the Red Cross war fund, to be subscribed by its several divisions, at Flint, New York, Tarrytown, St. Louis, Bay City, Toledo, Fort Worth, and Oakland. It has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent, payable Aug. 1 to stock of record July 14.

—a letter from a banker-manufacturer, rated $75,000 to $125,000, first credit

"We have many times been inclined to write you a letter expressing our appreciation of your service, but refrained from doing so thinking perhaps you might consider it superfluous.

"When we decided to try your service, we did so with many misgivings, on account of the cost, and we intended to go into it only a little. We soon found, however, that on account of the increased volume of business we were enabled to do, resulting in added profits and a very greatly reduced per cent in overhead costs, we were making large profits by sending our accounts to you.

"Previously our volume but little better than took care of our overhead. We have, during the past year sold accounts to you to the extent that you have had on hand a daily average of approximately $100,000.00, and the result is that, after making all allowances for factory building and factory equipment, depreciations, bad debts, and, in fact, every kind of cost and shrinkage, we have made net profits for the year nearly $40,000.00, and this result tells to us an eloquent story as to the wisdom of resorting to your service. Yours truly,
————, President."

WHAT THE ALLIES MIGHT HAVE DONE BY CO-OPERATING

Principle of Numbers Is Again Applied to the War.

BY COL. HENRY J. REILLY.

[THIRTY-FIFTH ARTICLE.]

In the preceding articles it has been shown that due to a failure to act upon the principle that numbers alone annihilate and that these numbers must be used simultaneously, our allies in the beginning of the war gave the enemy the opportunity to attack in France, with overwhelming numbers, while resting on the defensive in the Russian theater of war and that later in the winter of 1914-15 they gave them the opportunity to rest on the defensive in the French theater of war while acting offensively against the Russians and for the same reasons.

This inability of our allies to throw their full man power in the shape of fighting armies at the enemy at the same time has given them their opportunity ever since. The beginning of 1915 our allies practically announced that they would be ready for an offensive in the spring.

Not Powerful Enough.

However, when the spring came the British offensive at Neuve Chapelle and the French one in Artois were not sufficiently powerful to prevent the successful planning and execution of the enemy attack on the Russians along the Dunajec river.

Italy, by her delay in declaring war and in starting her campaign, after she had done so was too late to have the entry of her numbers materially aid the Russians who were defeated so badly as to be unable to accomplish anything until the Brusiloff offensive in the late summer of 1916. During this campaign against Russia, which lasted until the end of August, 1915, various attacks were made by our allies along the western front. However, because of the acceptance of the "nibbling policy" which is directly opposed to the fundamental principle of "numbers alone annihilate" these attacks in no way operated to stop the enemy's activities in Russia.

Further Results.

In the same manner the enemy was allowed to crush Serbia and Montenegro in the fall and winter of 1915. The acceptance of political aims as opposed to military principles led to the dispersion of effort and the consequent scattering of troops in expeditions to the Dardanelles and Saloniki instead of their concentration in Europe. Thus, again, the fundamental principle of "numbers alone annihilate" and that these numbers must be applied at the same time was violated.

The probabilities are that had all available French and British troops been concentrated along the French front and had they, with the Russians and Italians, attacked the enemy at the same time, that he would have been defeated or at least kept so busy that he never could have spared the troops for the Balkan campaign.

Would Have Gained Object.

This would have really accomplished the objects hoped for when troops were landed at Saloniki: The continued separation of Turkey from her allies, thus making her ultimate destruction more easy; the blocking of the efforts of the central powers to upon up a road to central Asia and the virtual certainty that Bulgaria would at least have remained neutral and perhaps have joined our allies.

This, of course, would have meant that later when Roumania came in she would not have been subject to attack from the south and would only have had to face towards Hungary.

The coördination of our allies was much better in 1916. However, even during this year they did not all strike together. In fact, they allowed the enemy to assume the initiative and in February to attempt by probably the most violent assault the world has ever seen to drive the French out of the Verdun region and thus open up a road to the heart of France.

Started Late.

Similarly in May Austro-Hungary started a violent assault on Italy. The British and French attack on the Somme, which had a great deal to do with lessening the enemy's assault on Verdun, did not start until July 1, more than four months after the beginning of the Verdun attack. The Brusilloff offensive, which brought an end to Austro-Hungary's attempt against Italy, did not come until the first part of June.

Roumania delayed her entry until the last of August and thus was unable to gain any advantage from the efforts of any of her allies, with the consequence that she had to face an overwhelming force unaided and was crushed. There seems to be little doubt that had the Somme attack, the Brusilloff offensive, and Roumania's entry all come at one and the same time and shortly after the beginning of the enemy's attack on Verdun, he never could have made anything like the effort which he did against Verdun.

He would have had great difficulty successfully meeting the Somme and Brusilloff offensives and undoubtedly as a consequence would have been unable to have conquered the greater part of Roumania. Three men and a boy can easily beat up one man, provided they attack him together. If they let him take on one at a time, they are giving him an excellent opportunity, if not to beat all of them, at least to more than hold his own.

Meet and beware of the Prince of Panhandlers, the Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford of Cadgers, who waxes gross upon the dollars of the simple in heart.

The prince boasts the alias "Chuck" Connors. He does not stoop to the petty trick of the ordinary whining mendicant whose imagination runs only to the extent of a thin dime.

His hunting grounds are the better class of bars. He dresses neatly, but not too well. He has cultivated a voice of throaty frankness and a gaze that is bland and direct.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he says. "I am in a ghastly predicament. I must get to Springfield tonight. My father—sick—dying. I have $2.70. See."

He shows the $2.70. It is worn with many showings.

"I lack a dollar to go home to my father—dying."

He makes it a point not to ask, but his gaze is eloquent. They all fall. He makes a point of taking their names and addresses. He promises faithfully to mail the dollar as soon as he gets to Springfield.

Thus, by toiling not, but spinning several yarns, he averages quite a few dollars a day.

M'KINLEY HIGH CLUB AGAIN WINS INDUSTRIAL CUP

The Association of Commerce trophy, which is competed for each year by the civic industrial clubs of the high schools of the city, has been awarded to the McKinley High school club, it was announced yesterday.

This is the second consecutive year that McKinley has won. The cup becomes the permanent possession of the club first winning it three times. The trophy is awarded to the club making the best record of achievement in civic and industrial lines.

Fifteen of these clubs—"junior associations of commerce," they have been called—are working under the auspices of the Chicago Association of Commerce. The Englewood High school club has a membership of 1,100.

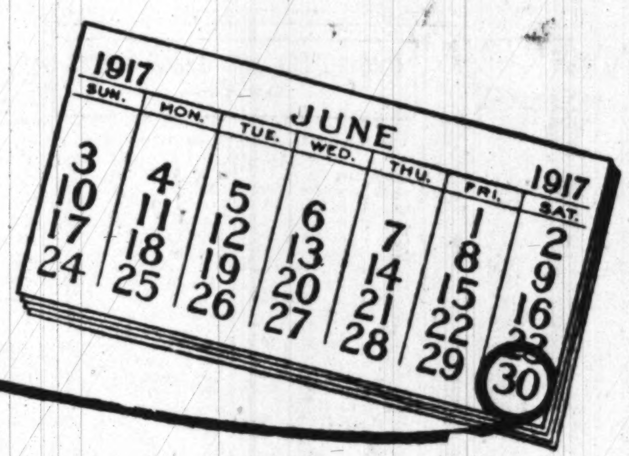
The clubs proved of value in the Liberty bond and Red Cross campaigns.

STORM FLOODS MILWAUKEE; LOSS OF HALF MILLION

Milwaukee, Wis., June 23.—The heaviest rain, accompanied by lightning and hail, in the history of Wisconsin early today caused damage in Milwaukee county estimated at half a million dollars, made thousands of workmen temporarily idle, caused hundreds of families to flee from their homes, demoralized steam and electric railway traffic, and wrought heavy damage to crops.

The storm, while general, was most intense in Milwaukee. According to the weather bureau, the rainfall measured 5.50 inches.

Five thousand employés of the West Milwaukee shops of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway, located in the Menomonee valley, were forced out of work when the high water flooded the shops.



CHANDLER SIX

The Last Day at $1395; After That $1595

There is only a week left now in which to buy your Chandler at the present $1395 price, a price which, in view of the character of this great car, has made the present Chandler series a sensation in all motor car markets. On and after July 1st the price becomes $1595.

Identically The Same Car

There will be no change of any nature in the Chandler at the advanced price. The present series will be continued identically.

And at the higher price the Chandler will offer value far in excess of other cars which some may consider of similar character.

"See How the Chandler Checks With High-Priced Cars." Ask us for the pamphlet issued under that title. It shows you exactly how the Chandler checks with the Packard, Pierce-Arrow, Cadillac, Winton, White, Stutz, Mercer and Locomobile in characteristic high-grade features of design and construction and equipment. Incidentally it shows you how other medium-priced sixes do not check with them.

Then let us show you how the Chandler performs.

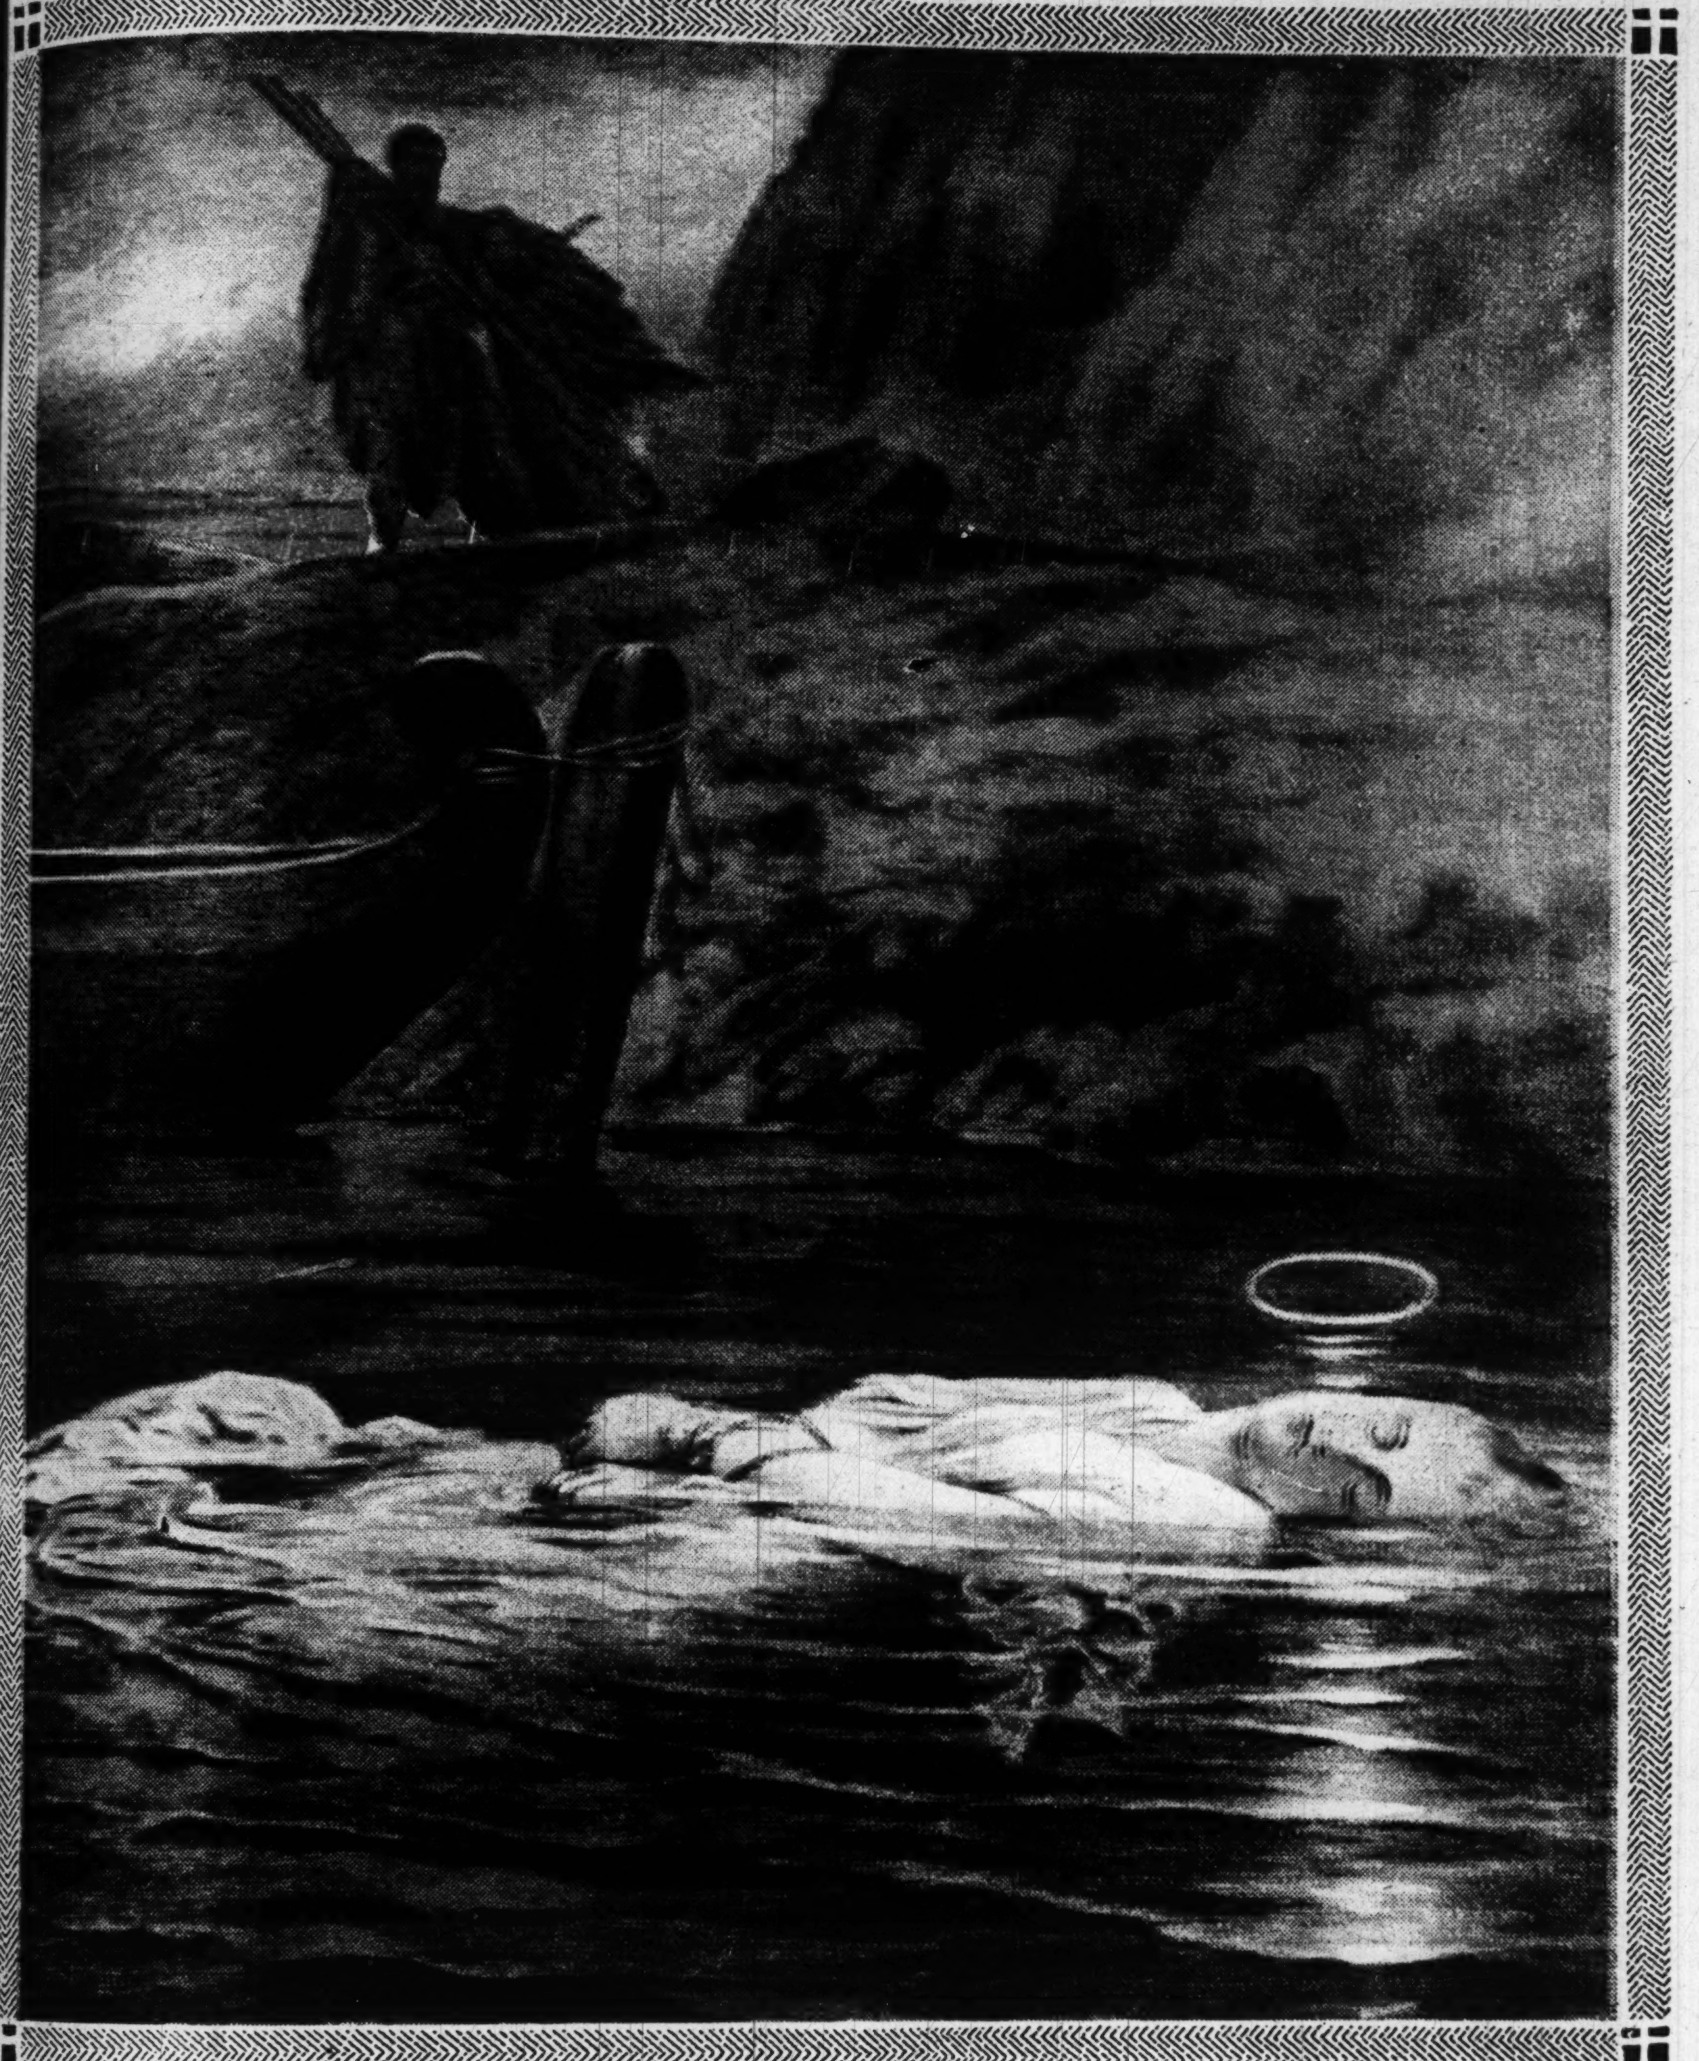
The CHRISTIAN MARTYR By Paul Delaroche



BY LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

"The Christian Martyr," by Paul Delaroche. In the Louvre, Paris. (1797-1856.)

THIS painting, one of the most widely known in the world, possesses that certain lodestone of appeal, pathos. Herein it differs from the majority of Delaroche's works, for Delaroche won fame as an historical painter, and the scenes he chose to depict, accurately and masterfully rendered, possess a brilliant hardness which invariably leaves the viewer admiring but cold.

But into this "Christian Martyr" Delaroche put his finer self. To his method, simple and strong as always, he has added sentiment and emotion. This girl, living some time in the reign of the grim and redoubtable Nero, has been brutally put to death for the faith that she would not give up, and then, hands bound, been thrown into the Tiber. Already, though, the lights of heaven have cast their glory upon her, and an aura of white encircles the gold of her hair.

The rest of the picture is bathed in shadows. There are murky corners, and the hills suggest impenetrable caverns, with the valleys buried in the depths of night. The two dark-garbed figures on the shore are waiting to claim the body of the girl. In life she was theirs and in death they still desire her near them. Quietly the body floats on the faintly stirring waters, beneath whose tranquil surface dungeons doubtless lie, crowded with humans waiting like fate.

Oddly enough, many of Delaroche's historical canvases are taken from English history. His "Princess in the Tower," his "Strafford on the Way to Execution Receiving Laud's Blessing," his "Death of Queen Elizabeth," and his "Execution of Lady Jane Grey," now in the National gallery, London, are among his paintings best known.

Delaroche found the way to success an easy and a quick one. He achieved recognition at an early age and fortune ever after that smiled happily upon him. From the time that he entered the studio of Gros to his masterly execution of the great wall paintings in the Ecole des Beaux-Arts, his artistic enterprises were uniformly successful. In his lifetime Delaroche exerted a considerable influence over European painting, but after his death his vogue declined, until now he is remembered for only a few of his greater achievements.

Another famous painting will be reproduced next Sunday.

BY ORDER of the COURT

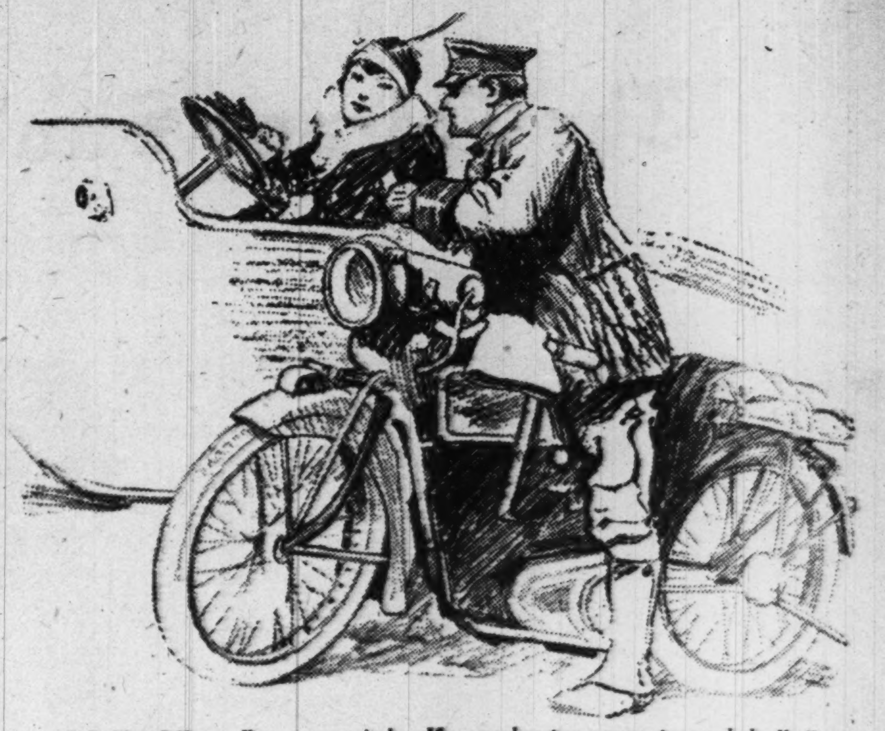
by Berton Braley



"O Mr. Officer, I'm so worried. My accelerator seems to work badly."

The Way of a Maid With a Man.

MEN are easy. And the harder they think they are, the easier they really are. Take papa, for instance. Papa was always grumbling about women drivers he met or passed and what rotten handling they gave a car. And he swore he'd never have any woman in his family monkeying with his car—no, sir. A big, seven passenger boat like that was too much of a mechanical problem for a woman, the only kind of a car a woman ought to drive was an electric coupe and she ought to stay on the quiet streets with that.

Well, of course, I was crazy to drive, just as much because papa wouldn't let me as for any other reason, though I did love the idea of driving a wonderful machine like papa's, it was so powerful and smooth and flexible and it purred like a cat under his hands.

Now, the weak spot in any man's armor is his conceit. Talk about a woman liking flattery; a man will fall for stuff that would make the vainest girl in the world laugh. Papa's particular pride and conceit was his handling of a car. It was considerably justified, too, for he could make that big bus do almost anything but sit up and speak, and it answered to his touch like a violin to a virtuoso. Papa didn't play on that car any more cleverly than I played on papa, though.

I didn't simply tell him what a noble chauffeur he was, I merely told other people, in his hearing, that riding with other drivers after being with papa was like dancing with a coal heaver after fox-trotting with Vernon Castle. And I retailed his record in dodging through traffic without getting a call from a traffic cop and related the incident of his beating a racing car over twenty mile stretch in spite of having the top up.

That was simply a sort of foundation for my next line of conduct. The superstructure consisted in agreeing with what he said about women drivers, but pointing out that the chief reason women drove badly was due not to their temperament but to their instruction. I told him that I felt certain he could teach any fool woman to drive the most complicated high powered car, because he had such comprehensive knowledge not only of the controls but of the mechanics and the basic principles of automobiles. And papa beamed and smiled and almost cooed under that conversational stroking.

So that's how I got around papa's objection to a woman's handling his machine, and it wasn't long before he not only let me drive it but went around boasting to his friends that I was the best driver—man or woman—he knew. He took all the credit for it himself, but I didn't care so long as I could handle the machine and feel its sixty horse power pulsing and throbbing under my hands To do papa justice, he gave me an education in the outsides and insides of a car that hardly even a professional chauffeur gets.

When the time seemed ripe I cajoled and flattered him into buying me a beautiful, long, low, rakish eight with lines like a racing motor boat and a wonderful bright silver finish that distinguished it from every other car on the road—and that's when my adventures began.

I knew the machine could do up to seventy-five miles an hour, and I just couldn't help trying to get nearly that much out of it whenever there was anything like an opportunity. And sometimes I made opportunities. And that's one reason I got to know every traffic and motor policeman from one end of town and suburbs to another. Still, it was six months before I was arrested.

You see, I used the same salve on policemen I did on papa. I remember one of them chased me three miles on his motorcycle and when I saw I wasn't going to leave him easily I slowed up and before he could speak I said: "O, Mr. Officer, I'm so worried. My accelerator seems to work very badly and I've been running awfully fast for two or three miles because I couldn't seem to hold it down. I'm such an ignoramus about the mechanics of a car. I'm just going to stop here at the side of the road and ask you to see if you can find what's the matter. I feel terribly helpless when anything goes wrong, but now that you've come up I'm sure you can show me what to do. You look so—so sort of able and competent, I know I can depend on you."

Well, he beamed just the way papa does when you flatter him and he got off his wheel when I stopped and fussed with the levers and opened the hood and peered in as wise as an owl, though I knew the minute he laid hands on the gear shift he didn't know beans about a car. I sort of fluttered around him, telling him I could tell by the way he went about it that he was a perfect wiz on mechanics, and after ten minutes I said I felt sure the machine would be all right now and I asked him to ride along beside me while I tested the accelerator again. Of course, it worked splendidly, and I thanked him effusively and went my unarrested way.

It wasn't always flattery that got me off. Sometimes it was just hitting a man's funny bone. And I made it a point to use my loveliest smile and my prettiest manner with the guardians of the law, no matter how harsh and gruff they might be to me.

I was gleefully telling at dinner one night how I had escaped from one cop by some such methods, and the guest that papa had brought home, an awfully nice young man whom I had found most charming, listened with great interest.

"But aren't you rather a reckless driver?" he asked.

"No," I replied, "I don't think I'm reckless. I have my car under perfect control and I never take the chances with other people's lives."

"How about your own?" he queried.

"Well, my own feels pretty safe in my hands, thank you," I said.

"Some day," he said, "perhaps you'll see why we have speed laws. It's often hard for motorists to understand them, of course, but if a child happens to run out in the street it's a lot easier to stop the car at fifteen miles an hour than at fifty. I hope you don't have to learn it through an accident."

"Heavens," I responded, "you talk like a city magistrate."

"Perhaps I do," he admitted; "only you will observe that my little speech doesn't cost you anything, while a city magistrate's words are often expensive—'one hundred dollars' from a judge's lips costs you just exactly thirty-three dollars and thirty-three and one-third cents per word. As a lawyer, therefore, my advice to you would be, go slow."

"Go slow in an eight cylinder Superba," I cried. "Why, my dear man, it would be a desecration. One can go slow in a ladies' tricycle, but a sixty horse power car is to go fast in."

Well, by more or less mutual consent we dropped the subject of speeding and as after dinner papa had to go downtown, Mr. Harris was left for me to entertain. It wasn't hard. Though I'd only met him when papa brought him home, it seemed as if we'd known each other ages, and we got along famously. So famously that I was scared. I wanted to stay heart whole and fancy free for a few more years, and here I was liking Mr. Harris so much that I was afraid I'd fall in love with him.

I guess he must have been a prophet, however, for the very next day I was arrested. Well, perhaps not exactly arrested, but told I was going to be. The policeman was awfully nice about it, really. He was one of my old acquaintances and he said he hated to do it. He arrested me over the phone. Indeed, he did.

I happened to answer the ring myself. "Hello!" I heard a vaguely familiar masculine voice, "is this Miss Dorion? Well, this is Officer Patrick from the motorcycle squad."

"O, how do you do, Mr. Patrick?" I said, "I'm glad——"

"Don't be so sure you're glad," he answered. "I'm calling you up to arrest you."

"But, my dear man," I said, "I haven't time to be arrested today. I'm driving a party of friends out to the lake and I've got to start right now. Arrest me tomorrow, like a good fellow."

I could hear his chuckle over the wire and after a second he answered: "Well, if it's more convenient for you, Miss Dorion, I'm willing to call you up and arrest you tomorrow, and don't you dare put me off another day. The judge wouldn't like it."

So that was all right, and I had my motor party. I'd added one person to it, by the way, for I'd asked Mr. Harris if he could get away to accompany us, and he promised to come.

I was a little scared when I went into court the next day, but I'd made up my mind to keep cool and retain my wits about me. My case was the thirteenth one on the docket, and I sat and listened while the others took their medicine. It was rather expensive medicine. Every single motorist was fined from five to a hundred dollars. At last it came my turn.

"The officer says you were going forty miles an hour," the judge told me, after listening to the testimony. "What have you to say?"

"I don't think I was, your honor," I said.

"Why don't you think you were?" he asked.

"Well," I said, "on the basis of the law of averages. You've found the officer right and the motorist wrong in twelve cases. Mine is the thirteenth. I maintain that on the normal percentage of human error the officer is bound to be wrong at least once out of thirteen times and this is the time."

The judge glared at me for an instant and then put his hand up to his mouth to hide his smile. "Discharged," he said, suddenly; "but, young lady," he shook a warning finger at me, "don't think you can get away with stuff like that every time. The percentage against you is higher than thirteen to one."

I was so tickled over slipping out of that tight place that in sheer enthusiasm I let the car out not long after I left that court—and half an hour later I found myself waiting in another court for the judge to come in and attend to my case. This time it was a cop I didn't know who made the arrest.

The judge came in with a quick, nervous step, mounted the dais, and sat down. "Call the next case," he said, incisively, and I breathed a huge sigh of relief at his voice, for it was Mr. Harris. He hadn't told me he was a judge—but I felt glad he was the judge in this particular case.

When the clerk called my name Judge Harris looked startled for an instant, but gazed at me without a sign of recognition and impatiently told the clerk to call the witnesses.

The officer related how he had arrested me on the parkway when I was going fifty miles an hour—he didn't do me justice, the speedometer showed sixty—and the judge listened and nodded. Then I took the stand.

"Well," said the judge—somehow he wasn't Mr. Harris at all, but just a cold, impersonal representative of the law. "What defense have you?"

"I—I——" I stammered, "I forgot how fast I was going."

He frowned. I made up my mind I'd break up that judicial attitude if it was the last thing I did in life.

"You see," I said, "I was hurrying home to keep a dinner engagement with a very dear friend, and I was so absorbed in the thought of the charming prospect before me that I unconsciously accelerated my speed. I'm sure I didn't mean to break any laws."

That dinner engagement, as it happens, was with Mr. Harris himself. It wasn't exactly fair of me to mention it, but I disliked his impersonal pose.

"A frivolous defense," said Judge Harris, "and one this court cannot consider. It would not help you much before a coroner's jury if in racing home to a dinner engagement you had killed a child or a grown person. One hundred dollars fine. Next case."

I got down from the witness stand dazed and furious. To think that so delightful a man—to think that a man I had almost fallen in love with—dared to treat me so. Well, that disposed of him. Luckily I'd found found him out in time. Didn't he have any more consideration for social decency than that? To go and fine his dinner guest $100 and lecture her in the bargain as though she were a common chauffeur! Trying to be a stern judge! Indeed! Why, he was talking frivolous nonsense with me only the day before. There wasn't any question, though, that he looked splendid in his judicial robes. And, after all, a judge who's worth anything won't be swayed by—— What am I talking about? There isn't any good excuse for him. He might have suspended sentence, at least.

But he didn't, and I had to telephone home and have Hilda, my maid, dig up a hundred dollars from my desk—I'd just happened to have it—and bring it down to me. And after I'd paid that fine I went home and spent about an hour crying with rage and vexation. Then the telephone rang. It was Mr. Harris.

"I suppose the dinner engagement is off?" he said.

"Unless you remit that fine," I said, "I'll never speak to you again."

"I'm sorry," he said, "but I can't. The evidence was clear, and—it wasn't your first offense."

"Doesn't it make any difference that you're a friend of mine?" I asked.

"It makes all the difference in the world," he answered, "in my private life. I—I'm afraid to tell you how much difference it makes. But as a judge, it makes no difference."

"And you won't take the fine off if I beg and plead—and if I tell you that I admire you tremendously and hate to think of breaking the dinner engagement?"

I said that in the most wheedling tone I knew how to prfoduce, and I waited breathless for the answer, since it meant almost everything to me.

"No," said Mr. Harris. "I won't."

"You won't take off the fine, even if I say that I never want to see you again?"

"No," he replied, and though his voice sounded unhappy it was determined, "I won't."

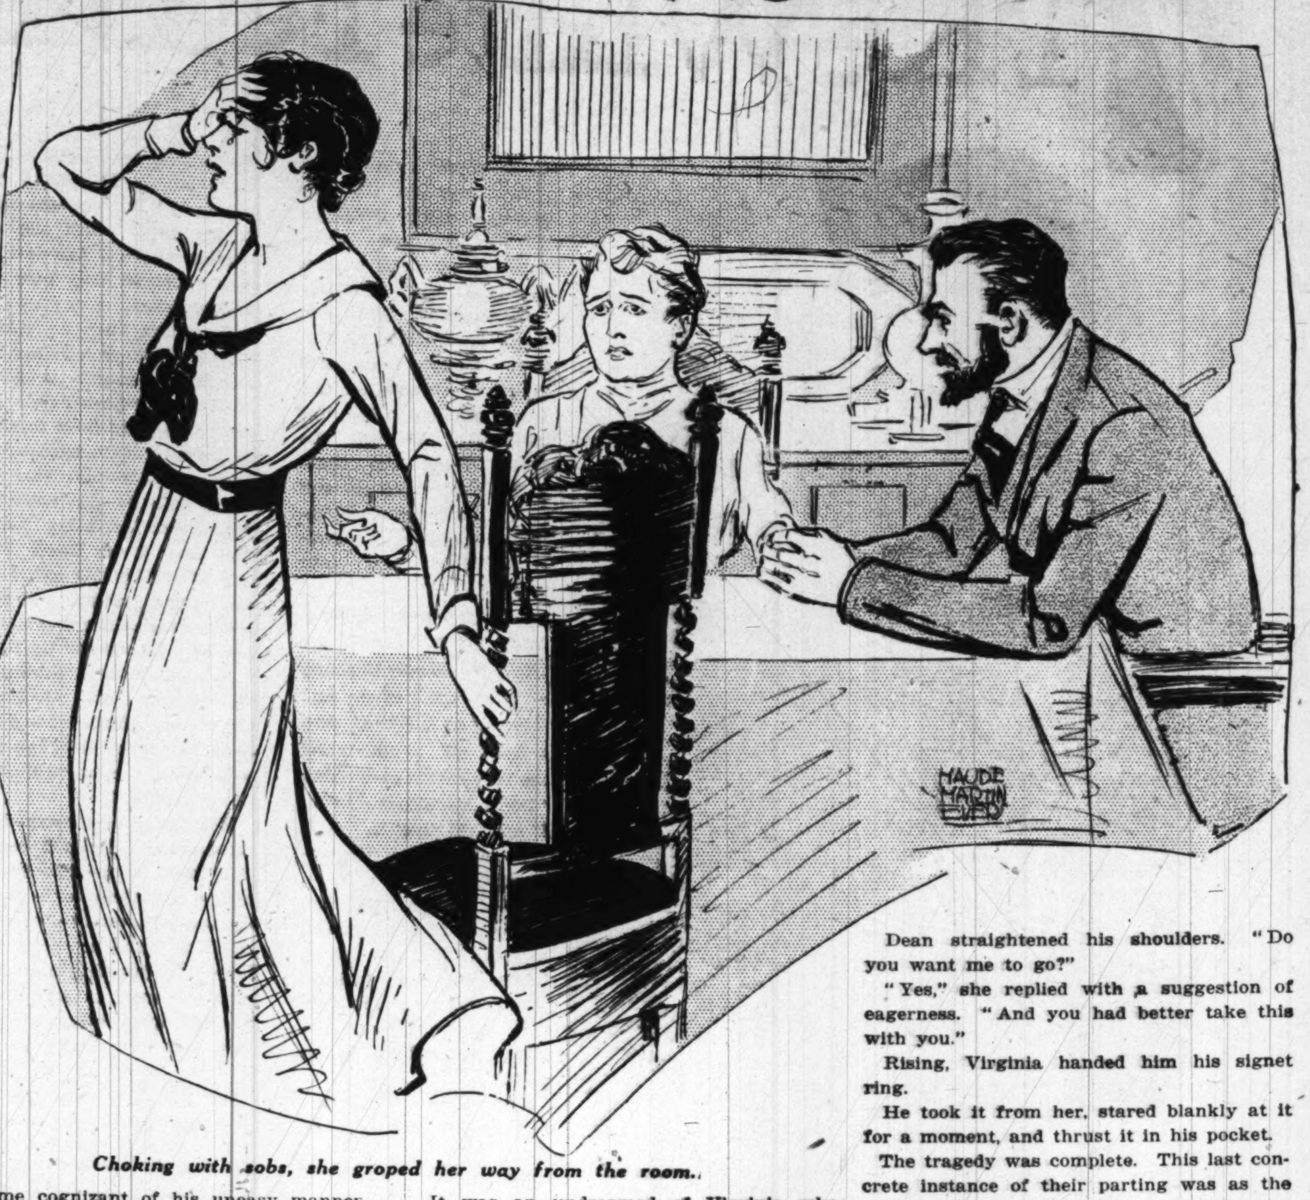
"Very well, then," I said, "that settles it. Good-by"—I paused just a second—"good-by," I repeated, "until 7:30, when I'll expect you to call me for dinner. Thank heaven I've found a man at last I can't bamboozle!"

But I've been wondering ever since if I wouldn't have married him anyhow.

Sweet Sixteen

by Aurania Ellenbeck

The Children of Yesterday Were Different from Those of Today—or Were They?



Choking with sobs, she groped her way from the room.

IN the alcove leading from their bedroom sat the judge and Mrs. Parker. During the frequent parentheses of their conversation Mrs. Parker, ensconced in the window seat, gave a mechanical attention to the waist she was embroidering for her daughter. The judge was at the table making a cursory excursion through a magazine.

"There comes Dean Cutler," indifferently remarked Mrs. Parker, after a desultory glance at the walk below, where she espied a boy of 20 striding up the steps.

"Did Virginia invite him to dinner?" queried the judge, looking over his spectacles in a peculiar, owlish way which was especially distasteful to his wife.

"I suppose so," came the negligent reply. And Mrs. Parker went on sewing.

The judge pushed aside the magazine, removed his spectacles, and began polishing them with one of his wife's handkerchiefs.

"Doesn't it strike you," he then significantly intimated, "that this Cutler boy is seeing a good deal of our girl?"

Mrs. Parker's hands fell idle. "Seeing a good deal? Why, Thomas, what do you mean?"

"You don't think there's anything serious?" tentatively, his dubious tone half way refuting the suggestion.

"Thomas!" exclaimed his wife in eloquent denial. "The idea! Virgie and Dean are still boy and girl together. He's barely 20 and she's just 16. Mere children! If she's been moping lately it's because he hasn't asked her to the dance tomorrow night. But as for anything serious between them—what put such nonsense into your head?"

"O, nothing!" he hesitated, dissuaded. Then thoughtfully, "Only weren't we just about their age when——"

"O, but you and I were different," with placid assurance. "Don't you suppose I know my girl?"

Downstairs in the flickering, fire broken twilight of the parlor sat Dean and Virginia.

Dean was in a low chair before the fireplace; Virginia was on his knees, one fresh, round arm thrown around his ruddy, sunburned neck, the other clasped in both his hands.

He dropped a kiss in the hollow of her elbow near his shoulder, then questioningly looked up at her.

Her rebuke died prematurely in her eyes as she shrank against him, and, tremulously compliant, bent her flower-like face toward his upheld lips.

"Do you love me?" he whispered, holding her face near his.

Her "Yes" was muffled as she buried her face in his curls.

"Are you going to the dance with me tomorrow night?"

"Ye—es. Why didn't you ask me before?" she wistfully demanded, drawing back with a helpless sigh.

It was bewildering how the anger she had felt at his remissness fled at a look—at a kiss! Would she never cease to be as putty in his hands?

"I knew you wouldn't go with any one else," he said with egotistical assurance, reluctantly letting her go as, at a sound from the stairs, she jumped up and made for the electric switch.

When she came back and posted herself on the arm of his chair the full streaming light discovered to her two cuts on Dean's face, one at his temple, unsuccessfully concealed by a lock of hair; the other on his cheek, red and angry.

"Why, how did you do this—and this?" she cried in alarm, her brown eyes wide with question as she held back the curls from his forehead.

Rising, Dean stepped to the mantel and examined his hurts. "O, that's nothing!" he vaguely replied, turning his back to the fire and pocketing his hands.

"How did you do it?" she repeated with insistent curiosity.

He perceptibly hesitated. Then, "I took a tumble last night—bowling—at the new alley," he mendaciously supplied, jingling a coin in his pocket.

"Bowling—last night—what time?" she took him up, narrowing her eyes as she became cognizant of his uneasy manner.

"Why—I don't know," he parried, kicking a strayed cinder back on to the hearth. "Some time between 9 and 11——"

"And then what did you do?" she probed, rising slowly and approaching him.

A vague presentiment was tugging at her heart. Having been to the new alley herself last night, she knew that he had lied. But why? Was there some ugly truth to conceal?

"O, just bummed around town with Tom Baker and the bunch," he reluctantly admitted, pressed to the point of irritation.

"What do boys do when they just 'bum around town'?" she went on earnestly, putting her hands on his shoulders and turning him toward her. In her love was something of a mother's yearning, a dread of pitfall and disaster——

Then, like a flash, came two and two together! Her face blanched and her hands fell like dead weights at her sides. She remembered now!

After she and Cousin Wes had left the bowling alley they had stopped in to see the last act at the Empire. When they came out it was nearing midnight. As they passed a certain alley way that sneaked off Center street a noisy group of boys turned in.

She had distinctly seen the loose belted figure of Tom Baker and another—curly headed, hatless! But she had immediately argued herself out of believing her eyes. Now she felt convinced.

And only this morning had the newspaper, in a flagrant attempt to injure a certain party in power, incidentally made public to Virginia that "Columbine alley, in the heart of the town, is a network of gambling houses, where the moral scum of the city and many of the oat sowing sons of 'best families' are drawn together in the evil of cards and drink."

It was all vague to Virginia's uncomprehending innocence, but the alley was evil, and Dean had entered with a whoop of joy. A deathlike chill came over her.

"Do? Nothing special," Dean was saying.

"I saw you downtown last night," came from Virginia's lips in a frozen tone unlike herself.

"Where?" demanded Dean, flushing darkly.

"Center street, between First and Second West, in an alley."

"Virginia! You didn't. I wasn't there. Some one's been talking! Just let me catch——"

"I saw you myself. Don't lie to me again!"

It was an undreamed of Virginia who confronted him!

Stampeded, confused, Dean hurried with the truth.

"Well, then, I'll tell you. Only you must not be too hard on me. A vag hit me here with a billiard cue in a joint on Columbine alley. And the way I got this—we had a little booze, of course; and you know dad! Well, the boys had to sober me up somehow, so they took me up to the creek and held my head under. I guess a rock——"

"O! Dean!" Shuddering under the destruction of hope and faith—a shattered ideal—Virginia hid her face in her hands and sank into a chair.

"Don't, Virgie—don't! I can't stand it. I've told you the truth now. You're going to forgive me and go on loving me, aren't you? You believe in me—you believe in me, don't you? Virgie, don't you?"

He put a supplicating hand on her shoulder and winced as she shrank away.

"I can never believe in you again," she said with the blankness of finality, clasping her hands in her lap and staring vacantly at the fire.

A moment of silence followed, and then he spoke, his voice sounding strange and unnatural.

"Do you mean it's all over between us? Are you going to break up with me?" cried Dean in a panic of love, the homely phrase poignant with dread.

Virginia nodded, lowering her eyes.

"Look at me," he pleaded, falling on his knees beside her and attempting to raise her chin.

But her head only sank lower, and she pushed away his hand. "I can't look at you any more. It wouldn't—be—the—same."

Dean stood up. He looked around the big, familiar room, suddenly grown strange and hostile, and then at the dark head bent because of him.

She was like a flower still, but lifeless, bitten by the frost. A sob clutched his throat, and he tried what proved to be the hardest thing of all.

"Virginia, I'm not fit to touch your hand—but—can't you forgive me, Virgie; please?" he implored, bending over her with trembling lips and heart smitten with remorse.

But her one vulnerable spot had been pierced. Dean had quenched the flame of her love and the ashes lay like stones in her breast.

"I don't know. It isn't that. Whether I forgave you or not, it could never be the same," she repeated dully.

Sixteen and 20—but the lightning had struck!

Dean straightened his shoulders. "Do you want me to go?"

"Yes," she replied with a suggestion of eagerness. "And you had better take this with you."

Rising, Virginia handed him his signet ring.

He took it from her, stared blankly at it for a moment, and thrust it in his pocket.

The tragedy was complete. This last concrete instance of their parting was as the closing of the casket in a funeral service. Dean felt for his hat, and, turning, looked at her as Adam must have looked at the locked gates of paradise.

The front door closed and a man of 20 stumbled down the steps.

"Virginia, didn't you hear the dinner bell?" peremptorily called her father from the dining room

"No; I—I don't want any dinner," replied Virginia from the hall where she stood, outwardly calm as a statue, inwardly nauseated with the pressure of unshed tears.

"Nonsense! Hurry in here! We've got noodle soup. Where on earth is Dean?" demanded her father, looking up from a steaming tureen, ladle poised in the air, as Virginia crept alone into the dining room.

"He—he didn't stay," she quietly remarked, slipping into her place at the table.

"What's the matter? Didn't he ask you to the dance?" interrogated her mother, righteously indignant.

"Yes; but—I'm going with father, if I go," was the astounding reply.

"Certainly you may go with your father," largely consoled the judge, with a comprehending wink at his wife.

"Of course! That's the very nicest way to go! And what are you thinking of wearing?" pursued Mrs. Parker with tactful enthusiasm.

"I think—I'll wear—I'd like to wear my old white——" began Virginia, but at the thought of that dress and its intimate history she could no longer keep back the tears. Choking with sobs, she buried her face in her napkin and groped her way from the room.

"No, mother," advised the judge, as Mrs. Parker made a movement to follow. "Let her have her cry out alone. That young scoundrel—he didn't ask her to that dance at all! Counfound him!"

"I suppose not. And those things mean so much when one is just 16! You don't imagine it was anything else?" she suggested.

"Of course not! Just a spat! He'll call up again tomorrow," and the judge began on his soup with a relish.

"And yet—we were about their age when we had our quarrel," renewed Mrs. Parker, and heard herself with alarm. Thirty years ago, and this was the first mention of it since that day! Mrs. Parker had been able to forget when she decided to forgive.

"I know, mother," said the judge, reaching over to pat her hand across the table. "But, as you say, they're children! We were different!"

The White Feather

by Le

Mrs. Lee.

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens in the West Crest private hotel in an English sea coast town when England has been at war one month. Mrs. Sanderson, the proprietress; her son, Charles, serving in the English admiralty; Mr. Pollock, the Justice of the Peace; his daughter, Molly, 19; Christopher Brent, Molly's fiance; Mrs. Miriam Lee, a widow of thirty-five, the latest arrival at the hotel; Miss Myrtle, a spinster; Fraulein Schroeder, a colorless little German woman, claiming twenty years of English naturalization; Pennicuik, a young English soldier, and Fritz, a servant in the house, are the entire occupants of the hotel. Christopher Brent is looked upon by all the other hotel occupants, excepting Molly and Mrs. Lee, as an irresponsible idiot, due to acts and conversation he affects, especially when war talk, which is uppermost in all conversation, is conducted in his presence. A young English girl, an hysterical enthusiast, breaks in on the hotel party one morning carrying a basket of white feathers, one of which she is going to present to every man she meets who has not enlisted.

SECOND INSTALLMENT

Percy's Declaration.

PERCY'S fingers clutched in to the sand, then gave up the struggle and, emerging, took hold of Molly's.

"Molly," he began, "I—I can't bear you not to be happy. Don't be angry with me for saying it, but I'm sure you won't be happy with Brent. You can't be. He's an awfully attractive chap and all that, but he's not the sort of fellow to make a woman happy, and oh, Molly, I do care about you most frightfully, on my word I do; I always have. Won't you give me a chance? Just let me try and see if I can't make you happy?"

The quick blood flew into Molly's cheeks and she pulled her hand away. This, then, was what her doubts and perplexities led her into. She was being disloyal to Chris and making Percy unhappy. It only showed how unsafe it was to get thinking about things. She felt a quick reaction to her old allegiance. She saw Chris as misunderstood by all save her. He was too fine a nature for the rest of the world to appreciate. The ingenuous simplicity of Percy seemed clumsiness in comparison.

"Oh, Percy, how can you! You mustn't!" she stammered. "I'm awfully sorry. I never thought—I mean I'm awfully fond of you, of course, but not in that way." Molly was saying all the conventional things and became dimly aware of it, and aware, too, that the genuine quality of Percy's feeling deserved something better. She put out her hand again and this time took his. She could think of nothing to say, but Percy's miserable young face made her feel very unhappy. Her lips trembled; she did the wisest thing she could have done to put an end to the situation and distract Percy from his feelings. She burst into tears.

"Molly, my darling, don't cry," begged the distracted Percy, kneeling up in the sand and dabbing at her eyes with a khaki silk handkerchief she herself had given him. "Don't cry. What a brute I am! Forget it, dear, if it only makes you unhappier."

Soon Molly's sobs died down and she smiled wanly. "It's all right, Percy. I'm sorry to have been so silly, but I'm feeling upset today. I—I think we had better go back."

Percy got to his feet and helped her up; and then, still holding her hand as he stood looking at her for a minute:

"Molly, just promise me this," he urged. "If you should find you are not happy in your present engagement, you will tell me, won't you, and let me have my chance?"

"I'm afraid I'd sooner be unhappy with Chris than happy with any one else in the world."

"Still, promise me."

"If I do you mustn't count on it, Percy, will you? Because it's quite, quite impossible; it can't ever happen."

"All right, then," he said more gayly, "we'll leave it at that. If the impossible happens, as it often has before now, you'll tell me about it, honest Injun?"

"Honest Injun," promised Molly. "Now I must go home."

But Percy still kept hold of her hand. "I say, Molly," he begged. "Won't you? Just one—you never have."

But in Molly's eyes a kiss was still a supremely important thing. "Oh, Percy, how can you? It wouldn't be right. Nobody ever has except Chris."

"It wouldn't hurt him, and it wouldn't hurt you, and it would do me no end of good, it would, really. Ever such a little one, Molly?"

Molly hesitated. She had always been proud of the fact that until the coming of Chris she had never allowed any one to kiss her. Yet she was oddly conscious now of the fact that her refusal, instead of sounding noble, seemed rather selfish. She looked appraisingly at Percy, at his eager, anxious face and his nice blue eyes, and it was not entirely unselfishness which prompted the sudden uplifting of her cheek toward him.

All the way home she felt rather wicked, but pleasurably aware of the fact that even if Chris were flirting with Mrs. Lee, she herself had not been entirely faithful, either. She wondered whether Chris would mind if he knew, and hoped he would, but truer instincts told her that he was much more likely to call her a blessed infant and say he was glad she had been able to do that much for poor old Pennicuik. It was probably this instinct rather than any new found wisdom which made Molly eventually decide to keep the affair to herself.

As may be seen, Mr. Brent counted as something of a mystery in a household where everything seemed ordinary and open as it did at West Crest. Yet his history, if he could be said to have one, was nothing out of the way except that it reflected far more credit on him than he would have admitted even to his intimates. No one at Wave Crest was an intimate of Christopher Brent, with the rather notable exception of Mrs. Lee—and this although he was supposed only now to have made her acquaintance.

Deception such as this, especially when practiced before a young and hitherto trusting fiancée, sounds as though there may be something reprehensible to conceal. Nothing could have been further from the truth in the case of Christopher and Miriam. They were both of that rare race which holds work, and the idea behind it, to be of more value than anything personal. They had first met when Brent was taking a well earned holiday big game hunting in Rhodesia, having just brought to a successful conclusion the delicate mission with which he had been intrusted. Up till then he had been a not particularly shining ornament of the diplomatic service. He came of a reasonably old though untitled Irish family, which perhaps was why, although a younger son, he was not in the proverbially penniless condition of his kind.

His real genius seemed to be for private theatricals, and this it was which gave a certain great man—who was really extraordinarily intelligent for a member of the intelligence department—the idea that Mr. Brent could be some use to him. That idea had been fully justified, and though no longer a popular figure in embassy drawing rooms, yet this apparently useless and futile young man was now considered one of the most brilliant members of the secret service. Older men at the game were wont to say of him that he trusted too much to instinct and not enough to reason, but even they admitted that he had a wonderful flair which up to now had never failed him.

As to Miriam, his connection with her was of the simplest. A letter of introduction from a friend had landed him at her husband's farm in Rhodesia. Roderick Lee was a remittance man of the worst type. He did all the obvious things—that is, drank, gambled, and knocked his wife about. Brent, who had a genuine talent for friendship, pitied the lonely intelligence stranded in the wilds as much as he did the ill used feminine; and it was on a loan from him that Miriam Lee began life for herself as secretary to a member of the South African government. Later still, in a case where a woman of charm was necessary, Brent recommended her to the authorities as his collaborator, since when she had been associated with him several times. And if her feeling for him went ever so little deeper than his for her, when do these things ever swing quite level? At any rate both were filled with genuine satisfaction at working together once again, and even Molly's deflection with Percy only left Brent freer for the matter in hand.

As the morning wore on a slight haze came over the brightness. Nothing approaching mist, but rather that fine grayish blight which sometimes overcasts a fine autumn day and behind which the sun seems to be holding its breath.

Molly had not yet come back; Mr. Pollock was playing golf with another like unto himself whom he had picked up at the clubhouse. Miss Myrtle was in her room writing letters, a pursuit which she always referred to as "my correspondence" and which she had indulged until it had become a habit. Like most unattached people, she felt she had to expend a great deal of energy in what she called "keeping up with her friends."

Mrs. Sanderson had gone to the station to change a library book and meet her son, who was coming down for the week end. Only Fräulein knitted with the quiet persistency of a tricoteuse in the French revolution, and Fritz, the Dutch waiter, conversed with her as he went in and out in the course of his work. The red brick gabled house (the country round Eastermouth was of the "residential" type, where red bricks abound) glowed in the clear sunlight, and the lawn and clustering trees looked almost painfully green by contrast. A little distance from the house itself showed the annex where the maid servants slept.

Everything was quiet. Mr. Brent and Mrs. Lee—whom he had presumably met for the first time the night before, and yet whom he had addressed as Miriam—were amusing themselves by half hearted attempts to shoot sparrows. From a little distance they looked exceedingly purposeless, not to say lazy, and even the expressions of their faces par of their general casual aspect. But if one had been near enough to overhear ev so much as the tones of their voices he wo have been struck by the incongruous unmistakable note of purpose. If he had been nearer still and could have heard th actual words the mystery might gradually have revealed itself to him.

by Lechmere Worrall and J. E. Harold Terry

HEREWITH is presented the second installment of one of the most thrilling serial stories ever written. It is from the pens of two famous English novelists and playwrights, J. E. Harold Terry and Lechmere Worrall, whose play, "General Post," has had and is still having an enormous vogue at the Haymarket theater in London. Mr. Terry is regarded as one of the most promising of the younger British dramatists, and Mr. Worrall is the author of a number of successful works of fiction.

"The White Feather" is particularly interesting at this time when the United States is just entering the war in earnest. It deals with conditions in England during the first few months of the war, when England had not yet awakened to the danger to the empire from the web of German spies which was woven throughout the social, political, and domestic life of Great Britain. The story is a masterpiece of plot ingenuity. The machinations of the spies, the reaction of England's women to the attitude of the slackers who refused to join the army, and the difficulties this attitude caused against patriotic and generous men are worked together in an intricate and exciting manner. Throughout there runs a beautiful love story, unmatched in recent fiction.

You should begin this great serial today and read it every Sunday in The Sunday Tribune.

"I'm sure I don't know. Why?"

"O, nothing," said Brent, running a loving hand up and down his air gun as he spoke, "except, as you know, I am rather a crack shot with one myself. Funny thing, but you would not think it if you were watching me from one of the windows of the house, would you?"

"I wouldn't, indeed," said Miriam, laughing. "I see what you are driving at, Kit—sorry to have been so dense. Hello, here's your Molly coming back alone. She must have abandoned the luckless Percy in the town."

Brent sprang to his feet. "I say, Miriam," he said, "you won't mind leaving us, will you? She left rather in a state, you know, and I want to kiss and make it up."

"I'll go indoors and think about pigeons," promised Miriam.

Molly was coming toward them over the lawn, a little paler than usual and with eyes that showed solemn from under the shady brim of her garden hat.

"Try and meet me in the sitting room in about twenty minutes, Miriam," said Brent. "By the way," he added, laughing softly, as the girl drew nearer, "I don't mind telling you that my bath didn't run over by accident yesterday morning; I wanted to get into the Sandersons' private sitting room. Sanderson's an admiralty man, you know."

"Kit, you are a genius!" murmured Miriam with an amused smile. "Well, Miss Pollock, did you see the pretty soldiers?"

"Yes," said Molly, rather shyly. "O, don't go in, Mrs. Lee."

"Must. I have actually not finished my unpacking yet. See you at lunch." And Mrs. Lee, who had mastered the art of graceful disappearance, seemed to evaporate toward the house.

Brent took a quick look at the girl's troubled face.

"Well—Undine," he said, taking her hand.

"Well, what?" asked Molly. Then with a quick flash of suspicion, "Is that Mrs. Lee's name?"

"Little ignoramus!" laughed Brent; "have you never even read about your prototype? Well, never mind; I want you to sit down and talk to me."

"I have been wanting to talk to you," said Molly, "but it seems difficult, somehow. O, Chris, it was so hateful this morning! About the feathers, I mean."

"O, I don't know," said Brent carelessly. "I don't think it mattered much."

"That's just it," said Molly despairingly. "You don't think it matters. Father and everybody else does. I do."

Brent sat silently looking straight in front of him; his clean shaven face, well featured and tanned, but heavily lined for his thirty-odd years, seemed to have had the foolish insouciance wiped out of it for a moment.

"Chris," went on Molly, suddenly softening, "you know I don't want you to go to the war. I think I'd go mad to imagine you in danger, but—but—the feeling's been growing up in me that perhaps there's something mort important than just loving and being happy. Can't you do something? Something here at home, even if you can't go to the front? O, Chris, I am such a coward that I'll be glad if there really is some reason why you can't fight. But I do want to know what it is and why you don't do anything over here. You see, it makes me so miserable not being able to stand up for you when father and people like Percy criticize you. Of course I say I know you have very good reasons and all that, but they don't believe me because I can't tell them what they are."

"So you and Mr. Pennicuick have been talking me over, have you?" asked Brent.

"No," flashed Molly, "we haven't. At least Percy said nothing but what was nice of you, but he said he wished for your own sake as well as mine that you would show these people that you are not such a——"

"Such a fool as I look?" asked Brent.

"You know you are not a fool," Molly defended him to himself. "It's only people who aren't clever enough to see how clever you are who think so."

"Like Mr. Pollock," suggested Brent blandly. He was feeling a little sore at the thought of having been discussed by Pennicuik and Molly.

Molly flushed a little resentfully. She was only 19 and she had been brought up by Mr. Pollock to consider everything that he himself said was right and admirable. When she first got to know Christopher Brent she admired his monocle, his leanness, his slightly graying hair, the shape of his head, and his square jaw. She admired, too, his casual, slightly blasé manner, which was yet so much more polished than the laborious politeness of Mr Pollock's city friends. She knew Christopher had been in the diplomatic service, that he had traveled widely, that he was something of a mystery; and the glamour of these things was quite enough to make her fall in love with him as she understood the term. Now difficulties, suspicions, and disagreeables were accumulating touch on touch, and she was bewildered and puzzled.

"How horrid of you to say that about father, Chris! You shouldn't say such things about him to me."

"No, I shouldn't, and I am a brute; but apparently people may say what they like about me to you."

"I don't care what they say," countered Molly in a rush of enthusiasm. "I just love you and trust you through everything. But surely you can trust me a little more and tell me things? Somehow just now with Percy everything seemed so simple and straightforward. One knows all he is doing and thinking and feeling."

"Take care, Molly; you are developing your sex's instinct for absolute possession. And you can't possess a man wholly, my dear—not a man who is a man, at least."

Molly looked at him with troubled eyes. In her simple philosophy love and possession were synonymous terms.

"I am frightfully sorry for you just now, Molly," Brent went on, "and I'd give the world to be able to tell you why I can't enlist. But I can't tell you, not even you. I will some day—soon, I hope—but for the moment, like the Tar Baby, I must 'keep on sayin' nuffin'.' Trust me, do trust me, Molly. Trust me at least to the extent of believing that it isn't cowardice, or laziness, or apathy, that prevents me from enlisting. It's something I can't help."

Molly sat still a moment, thinking busily, and trying to evolve a theory that would fit the case. A terrible yet not wholly unpleasant, because very romantic, idea took possession of her mind. Christopher was probably suffering from some frightful disease—appendicitis—decided Molly, and until he had been operated upon could not go to the front. Naturally he did not wish to distress her by telling her this. She therefore tried to play what she had read of somewhere as the "woman's part" and keep him cheerful.

"Chris, I will trust you," she said, rubbing her soft cheek against his sleeve. "I'm sorry if I have seemed not to, but everything has been so queer since yesterday. Since Mrs. Lee came," she added thoughtfully.

She felt Brent start slightly against her caressing cheek.

"What's it got to do with her? Why drag her into it?" he said, a little irritably.

"I didn't. Why do you take me up like that?" asked Molly. "Chris"—facing round on the seat and looking indignantly at him—"you haven't been talking about it to Mrs. Lee?"

"Talking about what?"

"About why you can't enlist. You haven't told her the thing you won't tell me?"

"Of course I haven't, little goose. What on earth put such ideas into your head?" asked Brent, trying to speak naturally.

"O, nothing, only you seemed so very friendly with her. You played snooker with her all yesterday evening."

"But, my dear child, you said you had a headache and went to bed."

"And then you have been with her all this morning," continued Molly, taking no notice of this.

"Well, of all the cheek!" said Brent, laughing, "considering you went off with young Penniculk and abandoned me in the middle of the lawn."

"Father says," continued Molly, "that if he hadn't known you'd only met Mrs. Lee last night, he'd have thought you must have known her before. You seemed so very intimate, considering."

"Well, it's a funny thing," confided Brent, "but I find that I knew her husband years ago in South Africa."

"O," said Molly, staring at him. "When did you find that out?"

"This morning."

"When were you in South Africa?"

"O, about ten years ago now."

"What were you doing there?"

"Diamond prospecting, but we didn't find any. Do you want to dig up the secrets of my bad, black past, Molly? Let dead pasts lie or they may be lied about."

"Chris!"

"O, I don't mean that I shall lie," said Brent hastily. "Men don't like to be questioned, Molly."

"So I see," said Molly, getting up. "I thought perfect love meant perfect confidence."

"So it does," said Brent. "It means having confidence in a person without being told anything about him. In fact, you might call love the confidence trick."

Mr. Wick's Aunt

by H. C. Bunner

A Whimsical, Delightful Story About People Like Many You Have Known, Written in the Ever-Pleasing Bunner Manner.

THE Wick family had run the usual course of families for many, many years, and was quite old and respectable when causes, natural and extraordinary, none of them being pertinent to this statement, reduced said family to three members, viz.:

Miss Angelica Sudbury Wick of the Boston branch of the family, who lived in the house of her guardian, old Jonas Thatcher, with whom we have no further concern, and who is therefore to be considered as turned down, although in his day he was a highly respected leather merchant.

Miss Angelica Wick was fair and sweet and good up to the last requirement of young womanhood.

Mr. Winkleman Hempstead Wick of the Long Island branch of the family, a distant cousin of the young lady, and a young man of conscientious mind, an accountant by profession and very nearly ready to buy out his employer.

Mr. Aaron Bushwick Wick, also of the Long Island branch of the family, the granduncle of young Winkleman, who had brought up the young man in his own house, and who loved him more than anything else in the world until, in the sixty-ninth year of his age, he fell in love with and married a lady named Louisa Nasmyth Pine, whom we will dismiss from consideration as we dismissed the old leather merchant, although she was a most estimable and attractive lady and did fancy embroidery extremely well. Her only concern with this story is that she bore the elder Mr. Wick a baby and died three or four months subsequently. But that was enough; plenty; as much as was necessary.

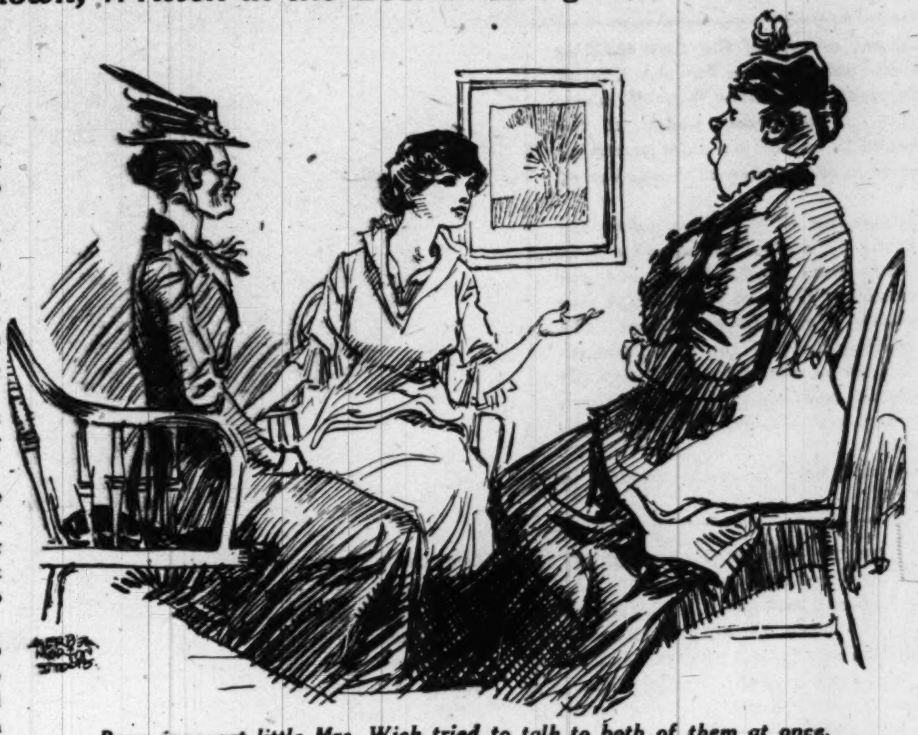
The way that marriage came about was this: Old Mr. Wick wanted to see the Wick family perpetuated, but young Mr. Wick was one of those cautious, careful, particular men who get to be old bachelors before they know it. No girl whom he knew was quite exactly what he wanted. If she had been she would have been too good for any man on earth. In fact, it took young Mr. Wick a number of years to realize that any way he could marry he could only marry a human being like himself. In the meanwhile his granduncle grew impatient, and finally he said that if Winkleman didn't fix on a girl and get her to agree to marry him by the first of next January he, Aaron Bushwick Wick, would marry somebody himself. Miss Louisa Nasmyth Pine, being then close on to forty, helped him to get under the line just in time to save his grandnephew from engaging himself to an ill tempered widow with five children—which is the kind of woman that those particular men generally pick up in the end. And it serves them right.

And so this marriage brought into existence the baby—Beatrice Brighton Wick.

Old Mr. Wick's endeavors to hand the name of Wick down to posterity were crowned, as you see, with only partial success. He had a Wick, it was true, but it was a Wick that would be put out by marriage. He found himself obliged to fall back on young Winkleman, and he bethought himself of the distant cousin in Boston. He knew nothing of her, but he reasoned that if she were a Wick she must be everything that was lovely and desirable, and so he said to his grandnephew:

"Wink, you know that I am a man of my word. If you will go and marry that girl and if the two of you will take care of that confounded baby, who is crying again, while I put in three or four years in Europe till it gets of some sort of a rational age, I will buy your employer out, guarantee you what is necessary for you to live on in some healthy country place—no city air for that child, do you understand!—and when I die you'll be her guardian and have the usufruct of her estate and the residuary legatee and all that sort of thing."

Winkleman Wick knew that his granduncle was a man of his word and that "all that sort of thing" meant a very, very comfortable sort of thing, for the old gentleman was rich and had liberal ideas, and drank more port than was good for him. He had no fancy for marrying a strange girl, but he thought there could be no harm in going out to Boston and taking a look at his, so far, distant cousin. Under pretense of wanting to write up the Wick genealogy, he went to Boston and passed some time under Mr. Thatcher's hospitable roof.



Poor, innocent little Mrs. Wick tried to talk to both of them at once.

He found Angelica Wick all that his fancy might have painted her but hadn't, and, as Mr. Thatcher had six daughters of his own, all of them older than Angelica, and none so good looking, he did not find any difficulty in inducing his pretty cousin to marry him—and she did not back out even when he sprung the baby contract on her. She said that she was a true woman and that she would stand by him, but that she thought it might be a little awkward. Feminine intuition is a wonderful thing. When it is right it is apt to be right.

The elder Mr. Wick was as good as his word—only, as is often the case with people who pride themselves upon being as good as their word, he took his own word too seriously. He died of apoplexy shortly after landing at Liverpool. His will, however, was probated in New York, and thus escaped a legacy tax. The will fully carried out every promise he had made to his young kinsman, but he had drawn it to follow absolutely the terms of his proposition. He had never for an instant contemplated the possibility of his dying before he wanted to—people who make their wills very rarely do—and he had so drawn the document that Mr. and Mrs. Winkelman Wick could come into their inheritance only after carrying out their part of the contract, which was to take care of their aunt, baby Beatrice Brighton Wick, for the space of four years, during which Mr. Aaron Bushwick Wick had intended, without consideration of the designs of Divine Providence, to sojourn in Europe.

This brings the situation exactly down to bedrock. On the tenth of April, eighteen hundred and tumpty tum, Mr. Winkelman Wick and Miss Angelica Wick were married in the old Wick house on Montague street, Brooklyn. On the twenty-fifth of April Mr. Aaron Bushwick Wick ended his journey across the Atlantic at the port of Liverpool, England. On the twenty-seventh of April he started on that other journey for which your heirs pay your passage money—and he certainly was not happy in his starting place. On the twenty-eighth of the same month young Mr. and Mrs. Wick knew the terms of their granduncle's will, and on the thirtieth the old Wick mansion was in the hands of the trustees, and the young Wicks were in a hotel in charge of their baby aunt, Beatrice, who was herself in charge of an aged Irish woman, whose feet were decidedly more intelligent than her brain. That is one of the beauties of Ireland. You can get every variety of human being there from a cherub to a chimpanzee.

They were very comfortable in the hotel and would have liked to stay there, but that awful contract had as many ways of making itself disagreeable as an octopus has. They had pledged themselves, with and for the benefit of the baby, to provide a suitable place in the country without unreasonable delay. Their lawyer informed them that reasonable delay meant three weeks and not one day more. As their contract began on the tenth of April they had, therefore, one day left to them to carry out this provision.

Moreover, the contract, after defining the phrase "a suitable country place" in terms that would have fitted a selling advertisement of the garden of Eden, went on to specify that no place should be considered suitable that was not at least forty miles from any city of twenty thousand inhabitants, or upward. When Mr. Aaron Bushwick Wick wanted pure country air for a baby he wanted it pure. If he could he would probably have had it brought in sealed bottles.

Picking a place of residence for four long years is not an agreeable task under conditions such as these, especially to a young couple prematurely saddled with parental cares and equipped with only twenty days of experience in the matrimonial state. They discussed the situation for hours on end. Mrs. Wick wept and Mr. Wick contributed more profanity than is generally used by a green husband. They even asked the Irish nurse if she could not suggest some suitable place and they stated the whole situation to her very clearly and carefully. She thought a while and then suggested Ballymahon, County Longford, Ireland. However, indirectly, she assisted them to solve the problem. Mr. Wick told her to go to Jericho, and Mrs. Wick suddenly brightened up and said:

"Why, that's so, Winkleman!"

Mr. Wick stared in horror at his wife. Was the sweet young thing going crazy under the strain? But no; Mrs. Wick was looking as bright as a rose after an April shower, and she grew brighter and brighter as she stood thinking in silence, nodding her pretty head affirmatively, pursing up her lips, and checking off the various stages of her thought with her finger tip on her cheek. Finally she said:

"And you could use the little room for a dressing room. Yes, dear, I'm quite certain it will do beautifully."

After a while Mr. Wick convinced his wife that he was not a mind reader and then he got some information. Of course, she did not stay convinced—no woman ever did. All women think that the mechanism of their thought is visible like a model in a glass case.

Mrs. Wick had forgotten that she herself owned a country house. This was more excusable than it seems on the face of it, for she had never seen the house, nor had she ever expected to see it. In fact, it was hardly to be called a house; it was only a sort of bungalow or pavilion which had once belonged to a club of sportsmen and which her father had taken for a bad debt. It was situated in the village of Jericho, of which she knew nothing more than that her father had said that it was a good place for trout, and was accessible by several different railroads. Concerning the house itself she was better informed. She had had to copy the plans of its interior on many occasions when her guardian had made futile efforts to sell or to rent it. She also knew that the place was fully furnished and that an old woman lived in it as caretaker, rent free, and liable to be dispossessed at any moment.

The nurse was told that they would go to Jericho with her. She only asked would the baby take her bottle now or wait till she got there.

. . . .

Jericho Junction is one of those lonely and forsaken little stopping places on the outskirts of the great woods that are the sportsman's paradise, with a dreary, brown painted pine box,—just big enough for the ticket agent, the baggage master, the telegraph operator, the flagman, the local postmaster, and the casual or possible intending passenger. As this makes two persons in all, the structure is not large.

The casual passenger and the full corps of local railway officials were both present at Jericho Junction when the 6:30 p. m. train loomed out of the dreary, raw May twilight and drew up in front of the little box. Now, these two occupants of the tiny station were neighbors but not friends. Farmer Byam Beebe lived "a piece back in the country, over t'wards Ellenville South Farms." Mr. John Wilkins, station agent, telegraph operator, and all the rest of the functionaries of Jericho Junction, dwelt in his little box, midway between Ellenville South Farms, and the nearest important town, Bunker's Mills, a considerable manufacturing settlement. A houseless stretch of ten miles separate the neighbors, but not even ten miles had stood between them and a grudge of many years' duration. Beebe hated Wilkins, and Wilkins hated Beebe. Never mind why. They were close neighbors for that region, and that more close neighbors do not kill each other testifies every day to the spread of Christian charity.

Mr. Beebe so hated Mr. Wilkins that he made it a regular practice to stop at the station after his day's work was done, to wait for this particular train. Silent and unfriendly, he would loaf in the station for an hour and a half, and the station master dared not put him out, for he was possibly an intending passenger on the train as far as the next flag station, which was a railroad crossing a mile and quarter further on. Mr. Beebe never bought a ticket from Mr. Wilkins on the occasions when he did ride. He paid his way on the cars, 5 cents, plus 10 cents rebate check, and this rebate check he redeemed at Mr. Wilkins' office the next day. Furthermore, he made a point of going out just before the train arrived and waiting on the other side of it to get in, so that Mr. Wilkins could not tell whether he boarded the train or walked off through the thick woods that crowded down to the very edge of the line.

Thus it happened that as the train arrived on the evening of the first of May, Mr. Beebe, being on the farther side of the track from the railroad station, saw an Irish nurse blunder helplessly off the platform in front of him, holding a 6 months' old baby in her arms, and stand staring before her in evident bewilderment. Mr. Beebe accosted her in all kindness:

"Your folks got off the other side, I guess. This here ain't the right side for nobody, only me." Then he prodded the baby with a large and horny finger. "How old will that young'un be?" he inquired.

"Six months, sorr," replied the nurse, "gahn on 7."

"Is that so?" said Mr. Beebe with polite affectation of interest. "Folks been long married?"

"Wan month, sorr," replied the nurse.

"Which?" inquired Mr. Beebe.

"Wan month, sorr," replied the nurse.

. . . .

On the other side of the train of cars Station Agent John D. Wilkins saw an old fashioned carryall drive up, conducted by an elderly woman of austere demeanor. She was dressed in black alpaca, and her look was stern and severe, and, necessarily, highly respectable. He saw a young man and a young woman descend from the train and saw the young man hand the young woman into the carryall behind the elderly lady. Then, as the young man turned as though to look for some one following him, he heard the young woman say:

"Winkleman, dear, I don't care what her age is, you must spank your aunt!"

. . . .

When Mr. John D. Wilkins heard what he heard, he forgot the rules of the railroad company, according to which he should have remained on the platform until the train

. . . .

Mr. John D. Wilkins heard what he forgot the rules of the railroad according to which he should have on the platform until the train had left. He knew that just at 6:30 his particular crony, Mr. Hiram Stalls, telegraph operator at Bunker's Mills and news gatherer for the Bunker's Mills Daily Eagle, went off duty in his telegraphic capacity and became an unalloyed journalist. He caught Mr. Stalls in the act of saying good night, and he talked to him over the wire in dot and dash thus:

"That you, Hi? Meet me at the station when the 7:21 gets in. I've got a news item for you that will make the Eagle scream this trip, sure."

If Mr. Wilkins had not been so zealous in breaking his employer's rules in the interest of personal journalism, he would have heard the young man thus enjoined to inflict humiliating punishment upon a parent's sister respond to this cruel counsel in these words: "It will only make her cry more—why, where the deuce is the brat, anyway?" Moreover, he would have seen Mr. Beebe pilot an Irish nurse and a bundled up baby around the rear of the train, and then jump on the platform as the cars started, with all the vigor and energy which the possession of a real mean story about a fellow human being can impart to the most aged and stiffened limbs. But he didn't. What would become of the gossip business if those engaged in it stopped to find things out?

. . . .

When Caesar expressed a preference for being the first man in a village, over a second fiddle job in Rome, he probably never reflected how much it would rile him if he should happen to find out that there was just as big a man in the next village who didn't know Caesar from a cheese cake; yet that is the poor limitation of local bigness. Great is Mr. Way in Wayback, and great is Mr. Hay in Hayville; but what is Mr. Way in Hayville, and what is Mr. Hay in Wayback? Two nothings, two casual strangers, with no credit, with no say so, two mere chunks of humanity, whose value to the community is strictly proportionate to the size of their greenback wads, and the laxity or tenacity of their several grips thereon.

At 9 o'clock that night two local Caesars in two towns, but a score of miles from each other, donned the ermine of power, waved the scepter of authority, and told their pale faced but devoted followers that "something had to be done about it."

The "it," of course, was an "outrage"—it always is when something has got to be done about it, and something generally means just about nothing.

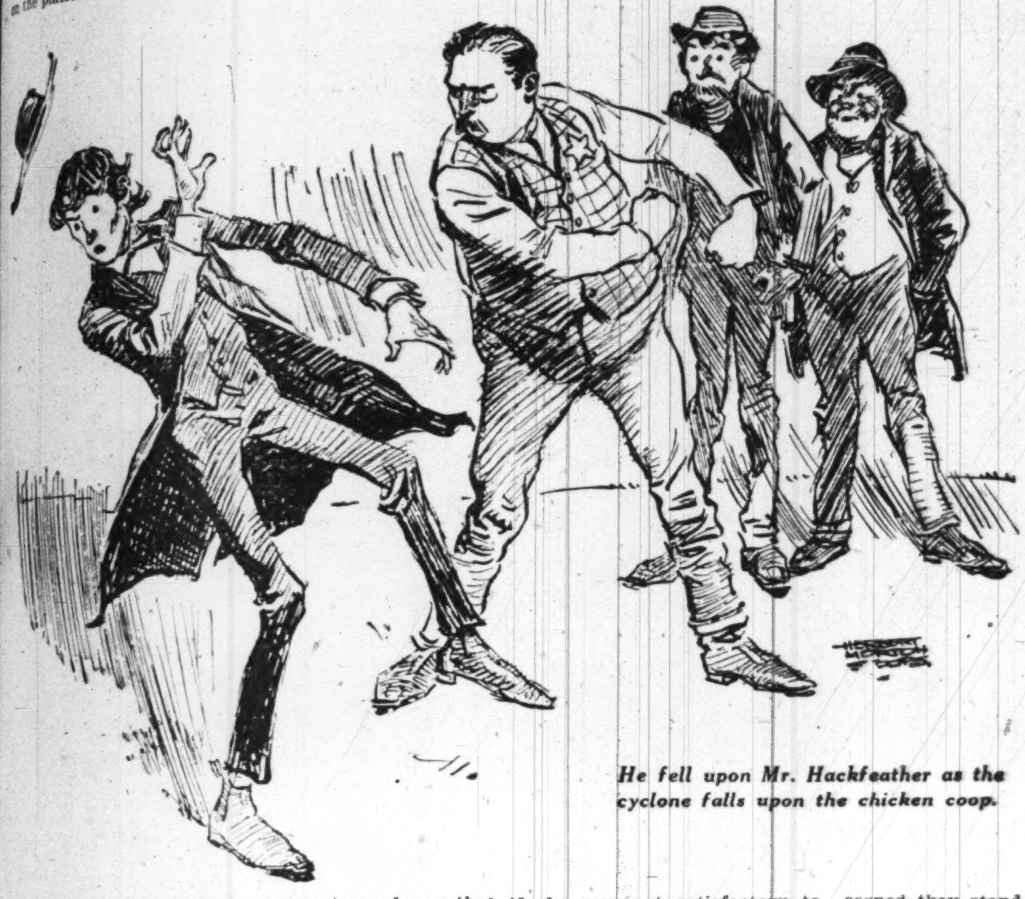
In the front parlor of his large mansard roof residence, Mr. Bodger—Mr. Theophilus Scranton Bodger—prominent manufacturer, pillar of the church, candidate for the mayoralty, and general all around magnate and muldoon of Bunker's Mills, sat amid surroundings of much elegance, black walnut, gilt, plush and hand painted tidies, and slapping a broad palm with a burly fist, told Mr. Stalls, Mr. Wilkins, and Mrs. Bodger that something had got to be done about it.

At the same moment, in the Sunday school room of the Baptist church in Ellenville South Farms, Mr. Manfred Lusk Hackfeather, theological student, Sunday school superintendent, social leader, and idol of the ladies in Ellenville South Farms, told six fluttering feminine things, who gazed at him in affectionate awe, that something had got to be done about it.

Mr. Bodger's business was making socks. Mr. Hackfeather may have been wearing a pair of socks of Mr. Bodger's make at that very instant, yet he never heard of Bodger; nor did Mr. Bodger know that any part of his growing business was built up on the money of a man named Hackfeather.

. . . .

To say that a party of Brooklyn people, conducted in an old fashioned carryall by an elderly woman of austere demeanor, entered the deep pine wood in a chilled twilight of early spring certainly ought to convey an impression of gloom. And certainly gloom of the deepest enshrouded the beginning of that ride. Diligent inquiry elicited from the elderly woman that she was, as the Wicks supposed, Miss Hipsy, the caretaker; that she had received their telegram or she wouldn't have been there nohow; that she had had a contrack with the late owner of the premises; that she had lived up to it, whatever other people had or hadn't done; that if she was not satisfactory to other parties, or if other parties—was not satisfactory to her, which was most likely, to be the case, she was willin', as far as she was concerned, to take herself off just as soon as she could; that she thanked Providence she had folks in Ellenville she could go to, as respectable as some that she knowed of and no obligation to nobody, and that she was not aware that her contrack called for no general conversation.



He fell upon Mr. Hackfeather as the cyclone falls upon the chicken coop.

Now this extremely discouraging way and manner of Miss Hipsy's was entirely general and impersonal, like dampness or a close smell in a long unused house. Congenitally subacid, a failure to accomplish any sort of an early or late love affair had completely soured her, and many years of solitude had put a gray-green coating of mildew over her moral nature. But the Wicks did not know this, and, remembering their peculiar position, it made them feel extremely uncomfortable.

But the moon came out in the soft spring sky, and the mists of the evening rolled away, and a great silvery radiance wrapped the cathedral-like spires and pinnacles of the broad spreading pine forest, and, after a while, the rough corduroy road grew smoother, and the baby stopped crying and went to sleep, and they were all, except Miss Hipsy, beginning to nod off just a little when the wheels crunched on the driveway of white pebbles, and they looked up to see a spacious low building standing out black against the sky, except where half a dozen brightly lit windows winked at them like friendly eyes.

This was the bungalow, and here they found a sportsman's supper of cold meat and ale awaiting them. Miss Hipsy told them, by way of leaving no doubt of the unfriendliness of her intentions, that this refection was provided for in the contract. So, also, must have been the deliciously soft beds in which they were presently all fast asleep, even to the baby. And when a traveling baby will sleep, anybody else can.

In the morning the elder Wicks opened their eyes on a world of wonderment and bewilderment. They found themselves living in a well appointed and commodious clubhouse, on the banks of a broad and beautiful lake, across which other similar structures with pretty, low, peaked roofs looked at them in neighborly fashion from the other side. Mrs. Wick said that it was too nice for anything.

There was nothing mysterious about the surprise which the Wicks had found awaiting them. Sportsmen have a habit of referring to their possessions in a depreciatory way. They call a comfortable clubhouse a "box" or a "bungalow" or a "shack," and they make nothing of calling a costly hotel a "camp." Indeed they seem to try to impart a factitious flavor of profanity by christening such structures, whenever they can, "Middle Dam Camp" or "Upper Dam Camp." And since Mrs. Wick's father's club died out, the further side of Jericho pond had become a fashionable resort, maintaining two or three winter and summer sanitariums.

Thanks to the contract, they made an excellent breakfast, and their praises of the fare mollified Miss Hipsy to some slight extent. Then they remembered the baby, and after some search they found the Irish nurse walking it up and down on a broad, sunny terrace at the back of the house. Below stretched an old fashioned garden, full of homely, pleasant flowers and simples just beginning to show their buds to the tempting month of May.

The scene was so pleasant that Mr. and Mrs. Wick started out for a walk, and the walk was so pleasant that they prolonged it—prolonged it until they reached the settlement on the other side of the lake, and the people there were so pleasant that they stayed to dinner at a club and did not get back until nearly supper time.

You will please observe that so far as the members of the Wick family are concerned they stand as clear at this point as they did when we got them down to bedrock level on the 10th of April, eighteen hundred and umpty-tum. Their ways have been ways of pleasantness, and their paths have been paths of peace. The two Wicks we are dealing with, like all the other Wicks, have kept their engagements and filled their contract. They have minded their own business and nobody else's. They are, in fact, all straight on the record.

But now we have to recount the fortunes of two social reformers, and it is hard for a reformer to keep straight on the record. Whether they have a genuine reform on their hands, like Martin Luther or the abolitionists, or whether they are like Mr. Harold Kettledrum Monocle of New York, who thinks that the mayor of that city ought to be elected by Harvard college, they are all likely to have what one might call a mote and beam sort of time with their neighbors.

Thus did it happen with Mr. Bodger of Bunker's Mills, and with Mr. Hackfeather of Ellenville South Farms, who both found their way to Jericho Pond that pleasant afternoon, the theological student a little in advance of the business man. Mr. Hackfeather came to rebuke a shocking case of impropriety in two so young; Mr. Bodger came to express the sentiment of society at large toward a man who would inflict corporal chastisement on a lady.

Terrible as an army with banners, and consumed with the fire of righteousness, Mr. Hackfeather bore down on the old fashioned garden at the back of the bungalow, in the full glory of the spring afternoon. As to his person, he was attired in a long black diagonal frock coat, worn unbuttoned, and so well worn that its flaps waved in the wind with all the easy grace of a linen duster. Trousers of the kind that chorus together, "We are pants," adorned his long thin, but heavily kneed legs. A shoestring necktie, a low cut waistcoat, and a whole souled, O-be-joyful shirt front added to this simple but harmonious effect, and his last year's hat had a mellow tone against the pale springtime greens.

He tackled Miss Hipsy (who had so far relented from her austerity as to take the baby while the nurse got dinner) in that old fashioned garden; and the benign influences of budding nature had no effect whatever upon his pious wrath. He pointed out the discrepancy in the dates of the vital statistics of the Wick family, and he told Miss Hipsy that she was the servant of sin (who had been a respectable woman for forty-three years, and if some as ought to know better said it was forty-seven there was no truth in it); that she was the slave of iniquity and abettor of sin (and if them she knowed of, one leastways, was alive today she would not be insulted); that the demon vice should not rear its hideous head in that unpolluted community (and she wasn't rarin' no heads, but she could go to them she know of as could rare their heads as high as him or any of his friends), and that if he, Mr. Hackfeather, had to face all the minions of Satan, and all the retinue of the Scarlet Woman, he would purify the stain or die in the attempt. Mr. Hackfeather's allusion to the Lady of Babylon probably was born of a mixed condition of mind and a desire to use forcible language. It did not seem clear to him, and it did not seem clear to Miss Hipsy, either. She said she was no such thing, and never expected to live to see the day she would be so called, especially at her time of life. And, tearful and vociferous, Miss Hipsy marched back to the bungalow, delivered over the baby to the Irish nurse, packed her little old hair trunk with the round top, dragged it down herself to the lake front dock, and there sat on it in stern grandeur until the afternoon boat came down the lake and took her to Ellenville, presumably to the sheltering arms of them that she knowed of.

Meanwhile a thing she did not know of was happening on the other side of the house in that same old fashioned garden. Mr. Bodger, accompanied by Mr. Stalls and Mr. Wilkins, had arrived from Bunker's Mills to interview the new arrival in the county, whose latitude in administering corporal punishment had aroused the indignation of every human heart that had been made acquainted with the stationmaster's story. Mr. Bodger saw the departure of the weeping woman of elderly aspect, he heard her wails, and he saw their cause in a strange young man. This was all the evidence that he wanted. Mr. Bodger made no inquiries into identity or relationship. He weighed 320 pounds, he had two men behind him, and he fell upon Mr. Hackfeather as the cyclone falls upon the chicken coop.

The consequences of these two meetings were so farreaching, extending to warrants of arrest, counter charges, civil suits and much civiler compromise, that it was July before the ladies of the Bodger and Hackfeather families picked up their threads of social intercourse, which were knotted only at one point. To both of them it occurred on a fine summer's day to call on the newcomers at the old bungalow by way of seeing whether the innocent causes of so much dire mischief knew anything about the agitation they had caused.

As the train from Bunker's Mills met the boat from Ellenville, Mr. Bodger's wife and Mr. Hackfeather's mother arrived at the same time, and, sitting in the sunny reception room of the bungalow, glared at each other in chilly and silent hostility, while poor, innocent little Mrs. Wick, much troubled by their strange behavior, tried to talk to both of them at once, and rattled away in her embarrassment until she had talked a great deal more than she had meant to. She told them all the story of Beatrice Brighton Wick, and the will, and the hurried flight to Jericho, and of their surprise at finding Jericho Pond with summer and winter colony so delightful a place that they hardly felt as if they could tear themselves away from it when the four years were up. And she told them that both she and Mr. Wick had thought it might be quite awkward for so newly married a couple to be traveling with a 6 months old baby, and that baby Mr. Wick's aunt.

"But, do you know," she said, "we must have been oversensitive about it, for we never had the first least little bit of trouble. Indeed, the only mishap we had was the other way. The old woman who was in charge of the place here left us suddenly the first day without a word of warning. I couldn't make out why she was dissatisfied, but my nurse, Nora, told me that she thought that Miss Hipsy thought the baby was too young. Some people have such an objection to young babies, you know. However, it didn't the least bit matter, for Nora turned out to be a very good cook, and I took the baby. I wanted to learn, you know."

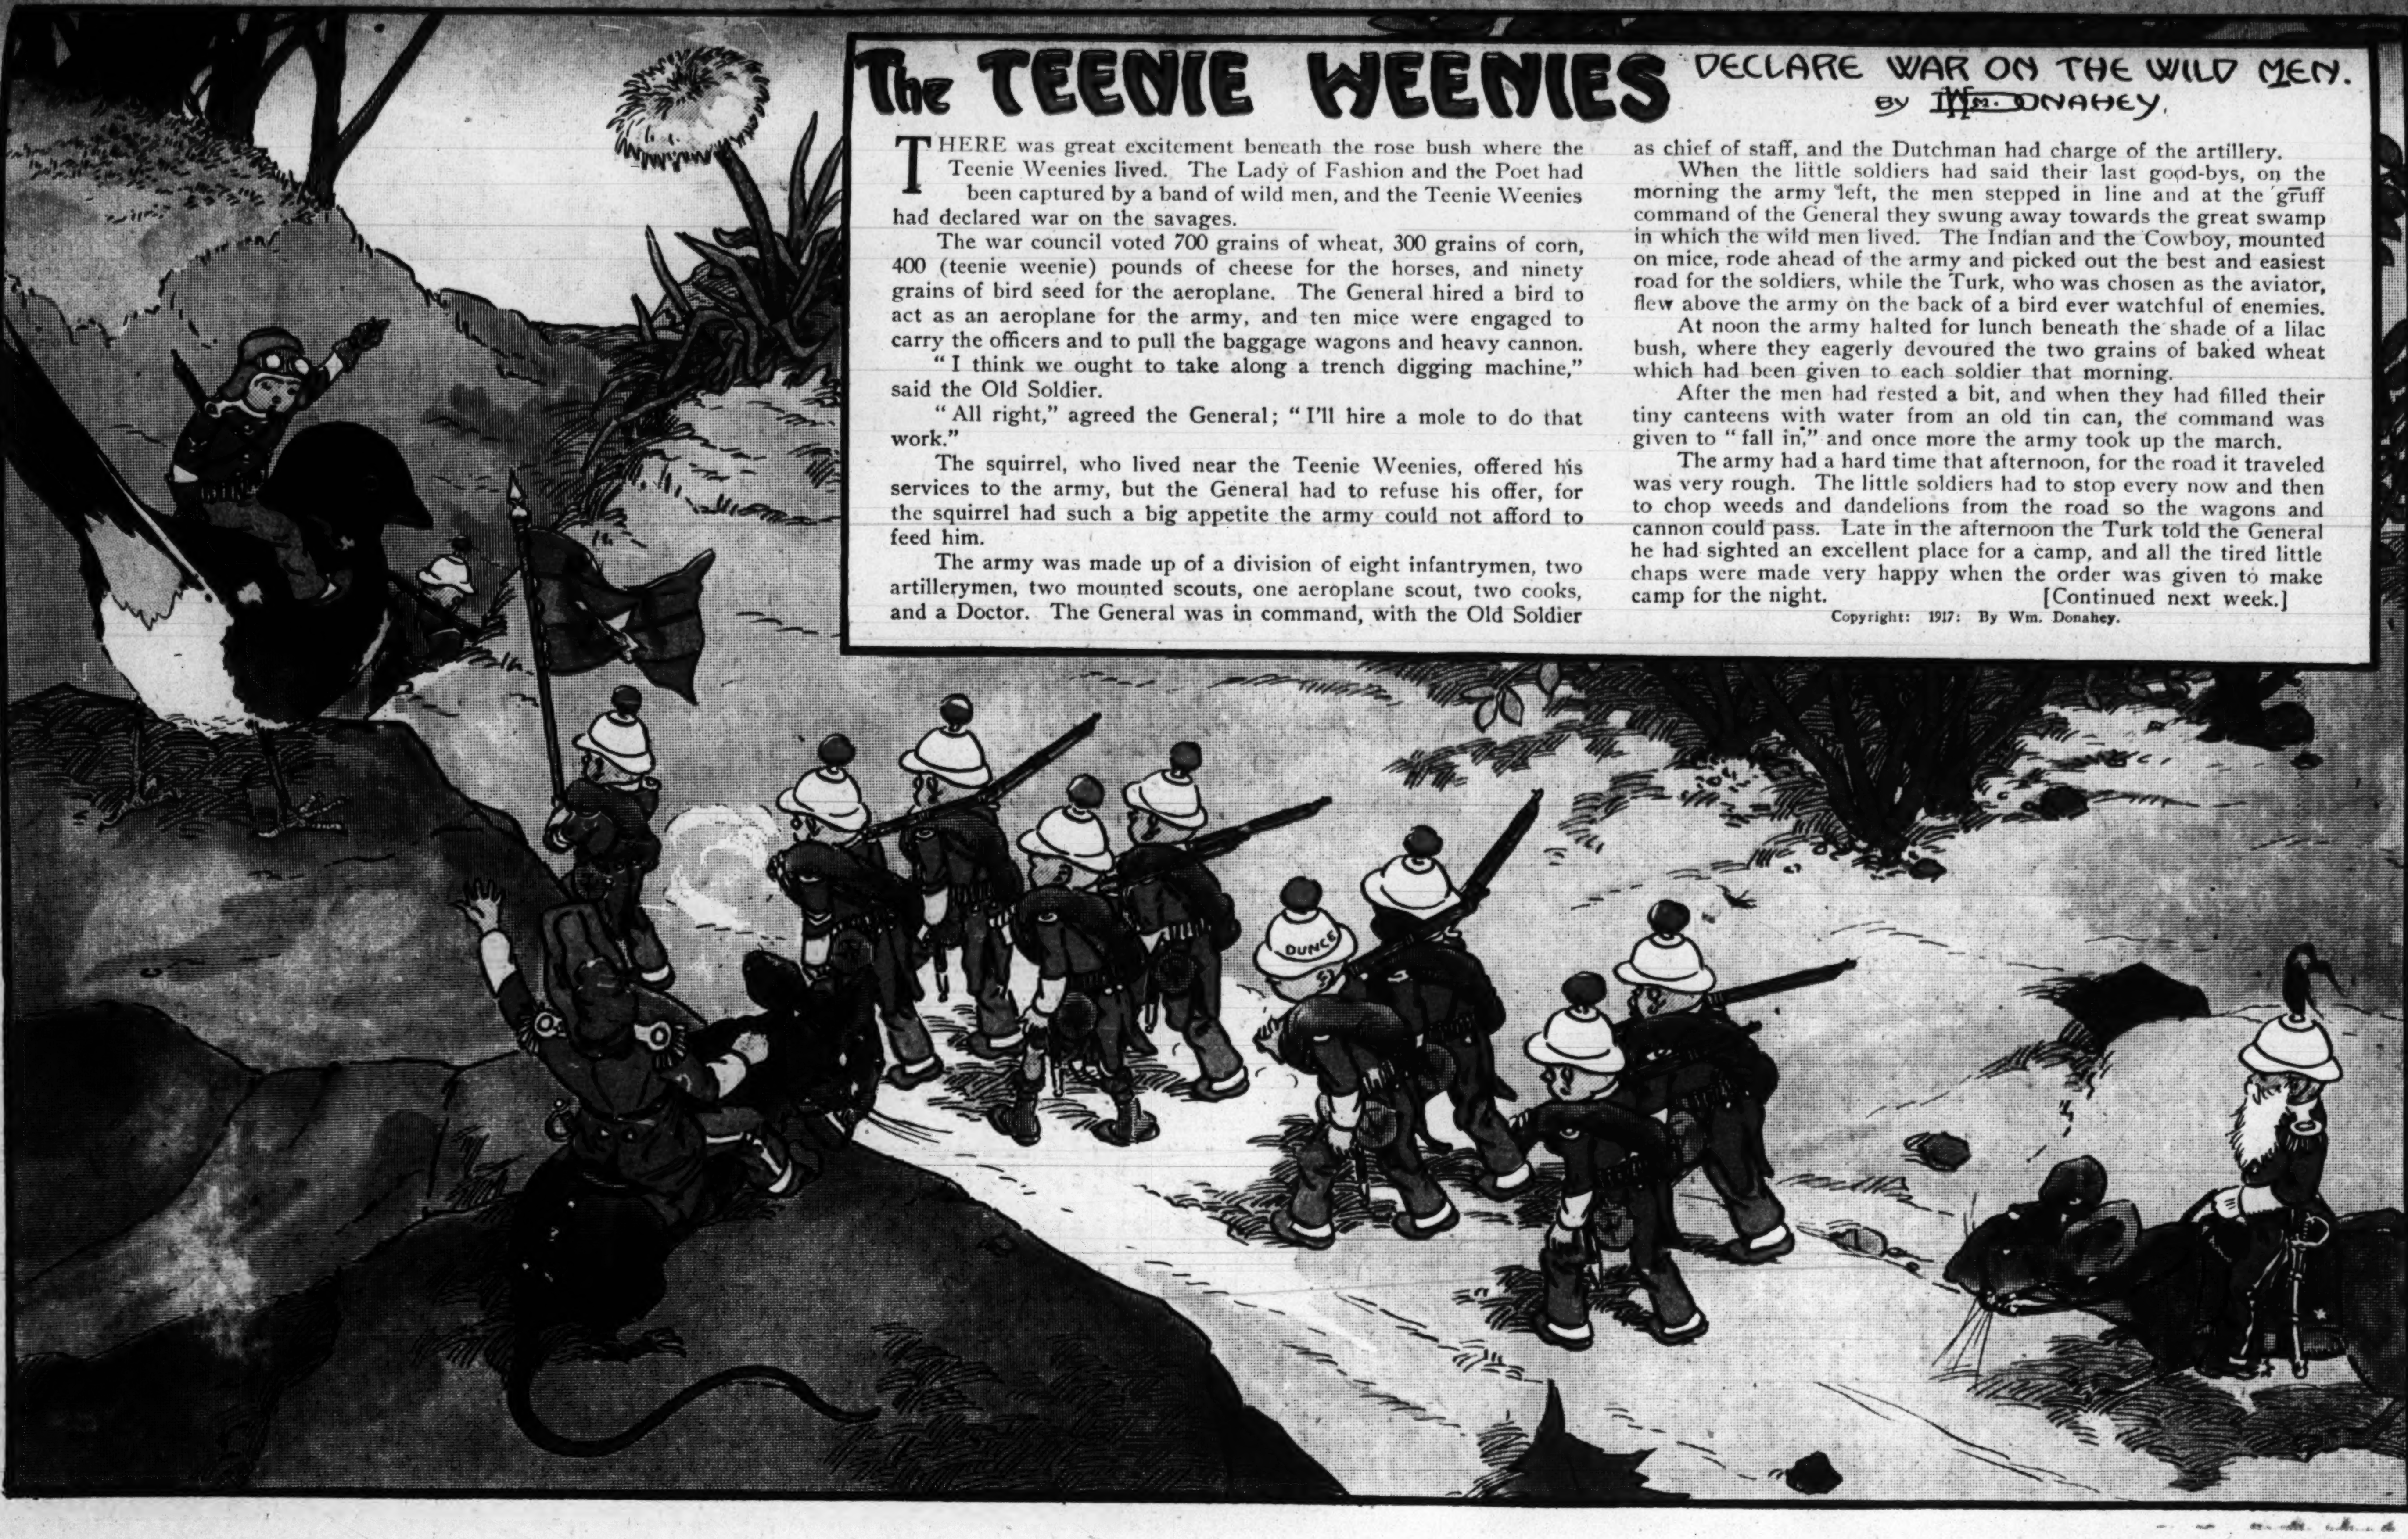
The TEENIE WEENIES DECLARE WAR ON THE WILD MEN.

BY WM. DONAHEY.



THERE was great excitement beneath the rose bush where the Teenie Weenies lived. The Lady of Fashion and the Poet had been captured by a band of wild men, and the Teenie Weenies had declared war on the savages.

The war council voted 700 grains of wheat, 300 grains of corn, 400 (teenie weenie) pounds of cheese for the horses, and ninety grains of bird seed for the aeroplane. The General hired a bird to act as an aeroplane for the army, and ten mice were engaged to carry the officers and to pull the baggage wagons and heavy cannon.

"I think we ought to take along a trench digging machine," said the Old Soldier.

"All right," agreed the General; "I'll hire a mole to do that work."

The squirrel, who lived near the Teenie Weenies, offered his services to the army, but the General had to refuse his offer, for the squirrel had such a big appetite the army could not afford to feed him.

The army was made up of a division of eight infantrymen, two artillerymen, two mounted scouts, one aeroplane scout, two cooks, and a Doctor. The General was in command, with the Old Soldier as chief of staff, and the Dutchman had charge of the artillery.

When the little soldiers had said their last good-bys, on the morning the army left, the men stepped in line and at the gruff command of the General they swung away towards the great swamp in which the wild men lived. The Indian and the Cowboy, mounted on mice, rode ahead of the army and picked out the best and easiest road for the soldiers, while the Turk, who was chosen as the aviator, flew above the army on the back of a bird ever watchful of enemies.

At noon the army halted for lunch beneath the shade of a lilac bush, where they eagerly devoured the two grains of baked wheat which had been given to each soldier that morning.

After the men had rested a bit, and when they had filled their tiny canteens with water from an old tin can, the command was given to "fall in," and once more the army took up the march.

The army had a hard time that afternoon, for the road it traveled was very rough. The little soldiers had to stop every now and then to chop weeds and dandelions from the road so the wagons and cannon could pass. Late in the afternoon the Turk told the General he had sighted an excellent place for a camp, and all the tired little chaps were made very happy when the order was given to make camp for the night.

"TORPEDOED, WITHOUT WARNING"—WHAT IT MEANS—A typical scene after the sinking of any vessel by a German submarine. On this particular ship all the life boats were launched, but a number of men jumped into the sea, and they can be seen being picked up here and there. The boats must, at times like this, reach the distant mainland by the muscle power of those aboard, in storm or calm.

The Food for Summer

Soja Beans

This is the can of Dyer's Beans. Notice the big "D"—it's red on the label. Always look for it.

It is safe to say that no picnic lunch basket is complete without a liberal supply of Dyer's Beans. Keep your pantry stocked up all summer through.

Luncheon size can—over 8 ounces.
Large size can—over 20 ounces.

At All Grocers

Summer demands almost as much nourishment as cooler weather. You and your family work and play. You picnic or spend a day on the water or take the family out into the country. You dislike to be a prisoner in a hot, stuffy kitchen, leaning over a range preparing meals day after day. Frequently "company" comes to stay a week or two. That means extra cooking. And then on Sundays, after dinner, the thought of an evening repast presents itself—which you would prefer not to prepare.

Dyer's Beans Solve the Summer Cooking Problem

At home or in camp, on hikes or at picnic parties, for Sunday evening or any other occasion, Dyer's Beans fulfill your needs very nicely. Always appetizing, always nourishing, always ready-cooked just right with plenty of rich, delicious tomato sauce. And always inexpensive. You can serve them for a few cents per plate.

Please remember that Dyer's Beans are a blend of navy and soja beans to increase their nourishing qualities. Soja Beans contain 34% protein, about 12% more than navy beans. Round steak contains only about 20% and eggs about 14%. But Dyer's Beans, with all their added nourishment, cost much less than any of these.

For health's sake and economy's sake the wise housewife insists on Dyer's Beans.

Once there was a young Bride who collected all of her Beautiful Linens and packed them away in Lavender and never used them at all. She was afraid to have them laundered. So she used Common-Every-Day-Linen all the rest of her Life and her Friends all said "How odd that she has no Nice Things."

Don't be afraid to use your exquisite house linens all of the time. For all of the dainty embroideries and fragile laces—every one of the precious treasures in your trousseau can be washed and come out just as fresh and white as the day they were bought.

You always can tell

With Lux, the new soap product, you are not taking any chances when you wash your fine linens. You always know the results will be all you could hope for.

Lux is quite different from ordinary soaps. It is in pure, opalescent flakes, as light as thistledown. Shake them into hot water and see what a sparkling, frothy lather they churn up into. Lux makes rubbing quite unnecessary.

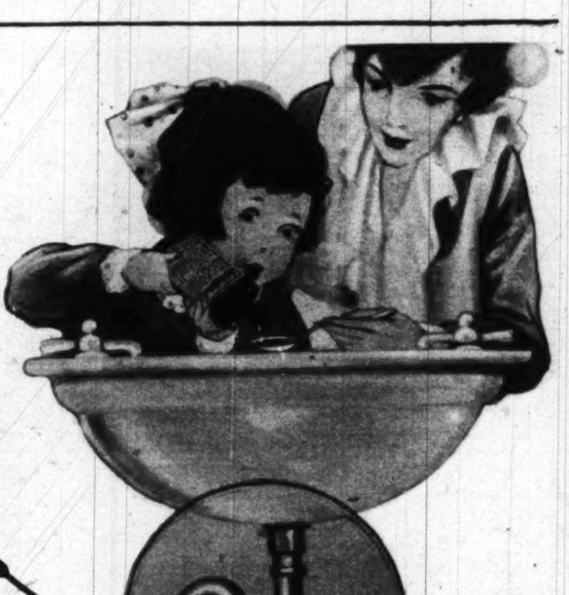
Just dance the clothes up and down, squeezing them a bit, and all the dirt disappears. Out they come as white and clean as you could wish, with every bit of soap rinsed out. Any fabric that is safe in pure water is safe with Lux.

Read the directions for washing fine linens and laces. Get a box of Lux at your grocer's or at any department store. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

How to wash lace and embroidery

Throw a handful of Lux into boiling hot water. Whisk into a thick lather. When cool enough for the hands to bear, put in the lace or embroidery and let it stand in the suds. Do not rub. It may be gently squeezed or dipped up and down unless very tender. In this case just let it stand in the suds.

LUX For all fine laundering



Have you seen what this trap catches?

Have you ever seen the unpleasant accumulation which the plumber removes from the traps of your waste-pipes? Have you ever noticed the tainted odor of an uncared for sewer-trap?

The dangerous odors that form in waste-pipes poison the air you breathe. Often these odors go undetected with their menace of disease.

"Pipes should be flushed often and a good disinfectant used," is the advice of a great specialist on household hygiene. "These measures," he says, "prevent disease, which is far better than curing it."

Guard the health of your family

Use Sylpho-Nathol, the sure disinfectant for waste-pipes, garbage can and scrubbing.

Sylpho-Nathol is a germ killer over three times stronger than the U. S. Public Health Service standard. It is entirely safe. For thirty years New England women have used Sylpho-Nathol.

The leading hospitals of New York and New England use this disinfectant. Let your home profit by their choice.

Fight disease as they do in hospitals

Keep your home really clean and healthful. You can fight disease with germ-killing solutions of Sylpho-Nathol, in the course of your regular housework, without extra trouble.

Pour a spoonful of this powerful disinfectant into the water when scrubbing sinks, bathroom fixtures and laundry tubs.

In the garbage-can, in the dark corners of the house, in the cracks of floors and woodwork where street-dust leaves the taint of contagion, in the closet bowl—in all these places lurking disease is destroyed by Sylpho-Nathol.

Excessive perspiration has no place in your quest for daintiness. Read how to overcome it.

An old-fashioned idea exploded

This woman, like her friends, has at last learned how she may safely and easily rid herself of the annoyance and embarrassment caused by excessive perspiration.

For years, women, and men, too, have been daily embarrassed and annoyed by the excessive perspiration that comes underneath the arms, on the hands, the feet, or the forehead. They have borne with all the inconvenience caused by perspiration because they knew of no safe way in which it could be stopped.

How a physician solved the problem

Then, a physician who knew that it could not possibly hurt you to divert excessive perspiration from parts of the body where it is most troublesome, prepared for his own use an unscented toilet water made from absolutely harmless ingredients, which in even the warmest, stickiest weather would keep him free from all the inconvenience caused by excessive perspiration. This toilet water you know by the name "Odorono."

There is only one safe way you can be absolutely sure of exquisite cleanliness

You, this summer, can keep yourself dainty and fresh even on the hottest day. Odorono used regularly two or three times a week will divert all excess perspiration from the parts of your body where it most troubles you, and will make it come out evenly and naturally over your entire body; and by eliminating the cause will do away with the slightest trace of perspiration odor.

Think of the blessing of knowing one summer of absolute freedom from perspiration annoyance; of needing no other protection for your under-arms and keeping your dresses clean and dainty. Think what it will mean to the men in your family—no more wilted collars; no more stained shirts or clammy hands.

Remember this about perspiration

Your physician will tell you it is "healthy" to perspire only when the perspiration is natural and normal over the entire body. This natural, normal perspiration causes you no discomfort; you are not even conscious of it.

It is the excessive perspiration under your arms, on your hands or feet, or wherever it troubles you especially, that you can, by the use of this effective toilet water, divert and make come out evenly over your entire body, leaving the part to which it is applied naturally dry and sweet.

Odorono is made from absolutely harmless ingredients, as your physician or any chemist can tell you. Two or three applications applied regularly every week will give you complete relief. For underarms, feet, palms, forehead, neck.

One woman writes: "Please send me three bottles of Odorono. I have three friends who are too old-fashioned to give up dress protectors and enjoy the freedom and comfort which Odorono gives, and I want to see if, with a bottle on each of their dressing tables, they won't give Odorono a trial."—Barbara Jefferson, Gilmanton, N. H.

Another tells us: "I have used Odorono all summer, and on the warmest day have never even dampened my dresses underneath the arms."—Mrs. J. C. Franke, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Twice or three times a week is sufficient to keep your under-arms naturally dry. Do away with the need of dress-shields.

It is perspiration which makes your feet so tender. Use Odorono for them once a week and see how small they will feel in your shoes.

RELIEF BAZAARS BRING OUT SIMPLE FROCKS

by Corinne Lowe

FASHION'S BLUE BOOK

Lovely Materials of Guileless Cut Worn by Fashionable New York Women.

AT one of the charity affairs Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt was seen wearing the original redingote frock at the left where a coat of armor gray crepe de chine floats over a foundation of dove gray crepe de chine and where there is not a flicker of contrasting material. A fine set of real filet makes the next gown of supple satin — gray, Priscilla-ish, and altogether charming. "Sweetly pretty" is the navy blue dotted white organdy over raspberry taffeta worn by the persuasive lady with the flowers. And the last gown of pliant taffeta says again how smart it is to be gray, white collared and cuffed, long waisted, and, dear, O, dear! what would we do without our girdles and sashes of this season?.*

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.] — June has only thirty days, but she is a mighty talented month. Aside from the well advertised roses, leafiness, spring airs, et cetera, she has this year developed a great number of charity bazaars, Red Cross relief occasions, and other events shaped out of our great national crisis. Talk about being "knee deep in June!" Why, we are positively chin deep in charities.

Best of all the big things was the Italian festa given in Macdougal alley during the second week of the month. You know Macdougal alley is a little place right near Washington square where famous sculptors and artists live in cute little reformed stables. It generally rustles to the eddying smock and to the sandaled tread. For three days and four nights, however, they did different things to that alley. They trimmed it up with real Italian piazetta, introduced organ grinders, monkeys, Roman models, a real elephant, a waggish little donkey, and some dozens of side shows. Each night the air just rained confetti. Bunting billowed against the roofs; green and red lights pricked the blue sky. It was dolce, bella, fortissimo. And—it was most awfully fashionable!

Everybody who is down in the telephone book with "Private stables" as a third number; everybody who has half a page of literature written after her name in the "Social Register"; everybody whom you have watched as she makes swathed progress from the Metropolitan doors to the crested limousine was there. For was not Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney managing the Italian festa, and did she and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt Jr. not ride an awfully great, big elephant through Washington square up to Mrs. Whitney's studio in Macdougal alley that first night when it opened? It will be remembered, by the way, that Mrs. Whitney was not only born great (a Vanderbilt) but that she has achieved greatness. She is a sculptor and works there at her studio in the alley just as though she had to.

And what did "they" wear, these fashionables? What do they wear at all the charity occasions? Is old, wicked godmother economy among those present? Are they all making over last year's frocks and pinching along with a moldy straw hat? By no means. The costumes which one sees are absolutely new and smart. But they are the simplest—absolutely the simplest—that we have ever seen.

Yes, this is a simple year, but let it not be thought that it is an inexpensive year. No, indeed! A season which provides a little shirt waist frock of crêpe meteor at the little sum of seventy-five dollars or a cool gingham bit at the cool price of sixty-five can hold out no particular advantages to the woman who is trying to economize.

The gown at the extreme left is one of the most beautiful of these gray crêpe de chine gowns which we have seen. It was worn by Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt at the Russian Red Cross bazaar, and if you look you will see that not one flicker of trimming crosses the face of the costume. There is only the play of two shades of gray crêpe de chine and the original design to intrigue you. The underfrock of this gown is a lovely light dove shade of gray and the charming redingote is a dark armor tone. V shaped and knife plaited flounces of self material deck the underskirt and peep from the three-quarter sleeves of the redingote. With this is worn a hat of gray crêpe de chine dotted in armor color, faced with the darker shade, and unfurling ribbons of the same.

Well, well, it is all "sweetly pretty," as our English sisters say. The fact of it is that this year's dressing makes us think more of the big idyllic picture hats and simple, long one piece frocks of Albion's garden parties than of our Gallic sisters. Along with these we are getting the habit of rain—the same old rain which makes those real English garden parties generally take place in the clammy drawing room [except in the clement pages of the illustrated weekly]. Perhaps the clothes are bringing out the rain, or the other way round. At any rate, we've got the association of ideas.

Truly English certainly is the next costume—one worn by a famous New York society woman at the big Macdougal alley festa! This one is also gray, but here the material is satin. And, by the way, one sees everywhere frocks of this material of the loveliest supple quality. It groups beautifully into the knife plaits which run here from neck to hem and often takes no other trimming than the perfectly exquisite collar and cuffs of real filet lace which we see in this costume. So many of these simple one piece frocks of satin or crêpe de chine have the long waist line. Here it is formed by a wide girdle of the material tucked up in the front and sliding down into a great big bow in the back. The buttons down the back are covered in self-material and the only note of color is sounded by the purple pansies on the hat of gray straw.

Along with supple satins, and marvelous crêpe de chines, and soft, pliant taffetas, there is any number of organdy frocks worn at these charity affairs. We caught one—our revenge for her all too successful vending—and the obliging fashion artist shows her just as she looked in her frock of organdy dotted in navy blue embroidery and worn over a foundation of raspberry colored taffeta [please remember just how fashionable is that combination of navy blue and raspberry or rose color]. It is one of those ruffly frocks which have lately been coming out so strongly—just why we don't understand, considering that at first Paris scowled at the flounce so dear to our American heart—and it leaves only a front panel free from the romping frilliness thereof. The little vestee formed by a band of navy taffeta which runs into the girdle of the same material is white undotted organdy shirred in two rather wide rows about the neck. Taken all in all, an adorable little summer frock for the young and willowy!

Taffeta is not perhaps quite so much to the fore as some of the other materials. But there is a certain crisp, immaculate quality about this silk which always attracts. And if you have a taffeta temperament to start out with, you will hardly be able to resist these new varieties. As a matter of fact, they are post-graduate taffetas. They are so soft and pliant and engaging that you would hardly know them for the old standard silk. One of these regenerated taffetas makes the last frock shown. It also is of gray and, joining to the skirt with a bit of shirring, makes several advances upon the cidadel of the waist line by a narrow band of self-material crossing over itself into a pert little bow. A set of fine hand embroidered white organdy—collar and cuffs—says sternly, "This is all the trimming you get, Miss Taffeta," and the costume ends with one of those taffeta hats which turn back in a plaited brim. O, yes, of course, this is of gray also!

The SUCCESSFUL HOME GARDEN

Article 109.

[Copyright: 1917: By J. F. H. Heide.]

Planning a 25 Foot Lot.

THE smallest subdivision of real property for a home site in this vicinity is ordinarily an area of 25x125 feet, usually with street at one end and alley at the other. This, then, will constitute the first in our series of "planning the home grounds."

The average purchaser of such a lot is a wage earner compelled, by stress of circumstances, to manage his household efficiently without denying his family the comforts of a complete home.

Unobtrusively he has the dignity of a householder to maintain, but his ideals and requirements are necessarily more closely circumscribed than those of the man of large estate.

Those are the considerations to guide us in the present plan. The house is probably the most inexpensive that could be devised for a small family, and yet it lacks none of the essential comforts of modern life. It is well lighted and ample for two to four persons. The back yard is fully utilized to render the kitchen as nearly self-maintaining as circumstances permit while still preserving the esthetic in an uncommon degree. The street front has the charm of dignified simplicity, whichever of the variations is preferred; all are in good taste and easily available.

The cellar is an important part of every household, and none need it more than those who aim to raise the winter store of vegetables in their own garden. Coal may be stored there also, both for convenience and to gain space in the back yard. If there is a heating plant in the cellar it should be divided from the remainder that there may be a cool storage room.

Another valuable asset is a small poultry house, sufficient to house four or five laying hens for each member of the family. About four square feet will be required for each hen. The plan admits of keeping sixteen in half the poultry house. The other half and the second poultry run are provided for alternating while cleaning or for separating chicks or pullets.

The fruit trees are conveniently placed, providing shade where required without interfering with the garden or the grape vines. The latter are trained on trellises on the east wall—not the most desirable exposure for grapes, but they will thrive there.

Tomatoes are indicated for the six inch strip between the back yard fence and the sidewalk. This is possible only if the fence is wire. By so utilizing this space, it makes one of the beds available—perhaps for potatoes. The vegetable garden is otherwise identical with that of March 12.

In the parkway at the front, only one tree is indicated. If the adjacent lots have no tree within fifteen feet of the near lot line, it is possible to plant two trees instead of one.

The numbers about the front porch indicate the following:

1. Weigelia (Diervilla rosea).
2. Golden Bell (Forsythia Fortunei).
3. Speirea (Spiræa Vanhouttei).
4. Golden Bell (Forsythia Fortunei).
5. Vases according to zone. See June 3, article 89.

These shrubs are inexpensive and readily obtained. A somewhat costlier selection would be as follows:

1. Snowberry (Symphoricarpos racemosus).
2. Tamarisk (Tamarix hispida).
3. Persian lilac (Syringa persica).
4. Rose of Sharon (Hibiscus syriacus).
5. As above (vases).

If a flower scheme is preferred, an excellent effect is produced as follows:

Under the kitchen windows (which are about four feet above the floor) place a window box according to zone, as described May 27, article 83. Under this and on the south side of the porch make an L of Scarlet Sage (Salvia splendens). On the north side make a reversed L of King Humbert Cannas (two rows) with a row of Fountain grass in front of it. On the two porch standards place vases as above.

If it is desired to have vines on trellises climbing to the porch roof at either side, use Virgin Bower (Clematis paniculata). It is clean and free from insects and diseases.

Thus this modest little bungalow, with its complete establishment, will be the pride of its neighborhood and a joy to its occupants.

Answers to Inquiries.

Q.—1—Is it too late in the season to make an asparagus bed? What is the best time? 2—What is the best way to establish a bed? 3—Should the bed be salted and how?—Mrs. W. H. A.

Ans.—1 Yes. The best time in this vicinity is about the middle of April.

2—Next autumn spade or plow into the depth of twelve inches rich manure at the rate of thirty tons per acre (375 pounds per square rod of 16½x16½ feet), thoroughly incorporating it with the soil. In spring dig or plow trenches a foot wide and eight inches deep, four feet or more between centers of trenches; in the four foot backyard bed two rows two and one-half feet apart. In these trenches make mounds two inches high, one and one-half feet between centers of mounds in the row. Over each of these spread the roots of a vigorous 2 year old plant. Thus the crowns will be six inches below the surface while the roots slope down to eight inches. If two or more trenches are planted the plants should alternate to gain space. In filling back use fine old compost, leaf mold, or other loose rich material. Fill in only three inches above the crowns, working back the remainder gradually in subsequent hoeing or cultivation until the trenches are finally filled by the beginning of July. The asparagus must not be cut the year it is planted except at the surface in autumn (and every autumn thereafter) to prevent the seed from scattering. The following year only the very strong young shoots may be cut; the second year and after that the entire yield may be harvested—until the beginning of the green pea season. To blanch stalks hill up similar to celery. Care must be exercised not to injure the crowns in making cuttings. If the soil is loose and mellow the stalks may be broken off under ground with the fingers. One year old plants are preferred, but the harvest is then delayed another year. If an abundant yield of tender fat stalks for twenty years or more is desired no special care should be considered wasted.

3—Instead of salt or commercial fertilizer an annual side dressing of rich manure after the cutting season will increase the yield and quality and extend the life of the plants

Doris Blake Says

If you were born this week you are

Domestic

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

> Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

IF your birthday falls during the week beginning today Cancer is your sign and the crab the symbol of your sign. Your colors are orange, green, and russet. Your birthstone ruby.

Persons born under this sign usually have large lungs and good breathing power. They are at the head of the department of domestic life and embody the principles of the home and family. A splendid executive ability in the management of a home, a devotion to your children, and a loyalty to those you love, also an intense affection, are yours by right of Cancer.

Your naturally sympathetic and emotional nature qualifies you markedly for a nurse. Overanxious about making money and laying up for the future sometimes brands you as miserly. You are industrious and economical to extremes.

Whether a man or woman, single or married, you are extremely fond of dress and finery. You can arrange flowers, place furniture, or twine a piece of ribbon so that the result will be the last word in artistic decoration. Poetry and love are your basic nature, so it is only natural that you would have special ability to render sentimental music, into which you seem to throw all the pathos of your nature. Air castles are your delight, so it is that you enjoy the company of your own thoughts and while in this state you don't like to be interrupted.

You have self-reliance and you love to rule; however, if, on some occasions you are denied this privilege, you won't break your heart over the deprivation. You desire to be known by every one and your domineering tendencies make this possible. As a teacher, you are sure to succeed and to be loved by your pupils. Along with this quality you have a thirst for knowledge that is truly commendable. It must be added in justice to you that, though you resent compulsion, you are easily ruled by kindness.

An how you do like to delve into the mysterious! Your natural psychic powers and intuitions are strong and you sometimes depend too implicitly upon deductions made in this way. You can often see clearly into conditions that seem like darkness to others. Crablike, you avoid a hole out of which you have once been routed, but you should remember that when you are acting under the influence of your best judgment, you should carry the project through and should not throw it up because some busybody has interfered.

You will be fortunate when the moon is on the increase and should avoid entering on new business during its decrease.

Don't marry too young; be well on the road toward conquering your faults before you think of marrying. A marriage with your opposite pole, Pisces, Feb. 20-March 21, probably would prove most harmonious, for Pisces has a natural sympathy with the contradictions of your nature that would help you overcome them. Scorpio, Oct. 24-Nov. 22, likely will prove a congenial mate, as you may also Aquarius, Jan. 21-Feb. 19.

Professions, manufacturers, and literature, with a special emphasis on the esthetic side in both cases.

Black Work, This.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a girl about two years younger than I am. I am 17. I am the only boy she will speak to. She even waves to me. But she tells her friend to tell me she doesn't like me very well, but still I know she does. Please advise me what the best thing is to do. Harry."

She is a fickle little miss, isn't she, Harry? But you must not build up a whole world of romance on a lady's "wave." That is hardly enough in the face of her own assertion that she does not like you very well.

He Fibs to Her.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am writing you for advice which I think you can give me. I am a young girl of 19 and have been going with a fellow who is 24 for two years.

Do you think he loves me? He brings me candy every week and takes me to theaters and movies.

He has no bad habits only he doesn't always tell me the truth. He has said things that I know are not true. Please let me know if I should speak to him about it. "Millicent."

I think he loves you, Millicent. A man does not bring candy every week and take a girl to the theater and the movies unless he is hit a bit hard. Of course, it is not very nice to think of your hero as one who does not tell the truth, but the next time you find him telling a "whopper," why don't you call him down gently but firmly and tell him that that is the only thing he does that annoys you, and you wish he would tell you nothing but the truth.

Be Merely Friendly.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 15 and I am in love with a boy two years my senior. I have known him for quite a while and he came over to our house a few times. He seems to be rather bashful and he is afraid to talk to me. I like him very much and I would like to know if he likes me as I like you. "Marie."

I am certainly flattered, Marie, that you want the boy to like you as much as you like me, as I appreciate that is quite a compliment.

But don't worry about whether the boy loves you or not, because you have a lot of time left in your life for love affairs. Just think of him as a nice boy friend and let it go at that.

I would not be surprised that he would not be so bashful if you would put him on the plane of simple friendship rather than the hero of your heart.

Good Sense, Margery!

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl 15 years old and go with a boy who is 17. We have known each other since we were babies, but still I do not think that I should kiss him. When he takes me to the theater or the movies he always insists upon holding my hand. I really do like him, but I do not think this is nice. What shall I do? I hate to have him angry at me. I live with my aunt and she approves of anything David does as his mother is her best friend. Will you please answer as soon as possible so I shall know how to act when I meet him the next time? I have spoken to my aunt of this, but she says that David is a nice boy and that there is certainly no harm in kissing him. Margery."

Margery, I certainly must congratulate you for your good sense, and in spite of what your aunt says about David, even though David does meet with her approval, don't let him kiss you. It's not right and the first thing you know your lifetime friendship will end in a tragedy for you because you have allowed these familiarities. There is nothing truer in the world than that old proverb about familiarity breeding contempt.

Give Him Time.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 17 years and working in a store. I have been three years in this country and don't speak good English.

"About three months ago I met a fellow two years my senior and an American. I love him dearly.

"Now, would you please advise me which way I can find out if he loves me? He does say he loves me, but I am not sure. I thank you. Birdie."

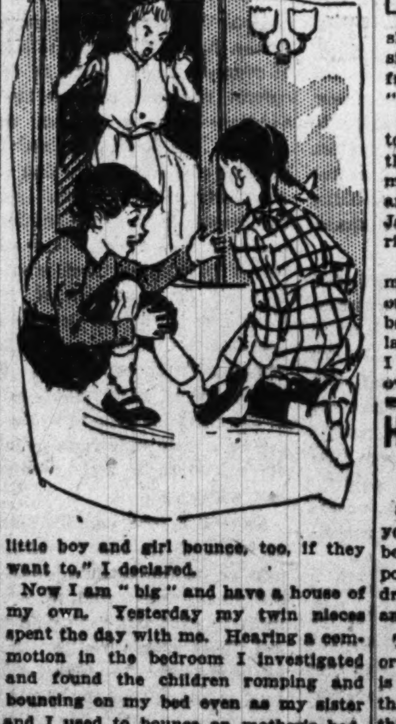
Well, Birdie, it is true you cannot always believe a man when he tells you he loves you, but if his actions indorse the statement by their thoughtfulness and kindness you can believe him. Then your woman's intuition is an aid to determine the exact status of a man's heart. You are young and can afford to give the man time to prove the sincerity of his statement.

Childhood Ambition Contest.

> Did you ever have a childhood ambition—a humorous one? Of course you did. And what you did wasn't anything like what you dreamed. Tell us what your great ambition was—and then tell us how far short you fell. Do it in 250 words, on one side of the paper, and address manuscripts to Childhood Ambition Editor, Chicago Sunday Tribune. For each story printed $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned.

A Childhood Joy Denied.

It was a great delight in my childhood to bounce joyously on the bedsprings, a pleasure, however, forbidden by cruel parents. "When I get big and have a house of my own I will jump on the bedsprings all day and let any little boy and girl bounce, too, if they want to," I declared.



Now I am "big" and have a house of my own. Yesterday my twin nieces spent the day with me. Hearing a commotion in the bedroom I investigated and found the children romping and bouncing on my bed even as my sister and I used to bounce on mother's bed, and what did I say? "Get right off that bed this minute," I cried in horrified tones. Then I remembered my childhood resolution.

Ah, well, twenty years hence the twins will be saying the same thing to other little girls, though they wouldn't believe it now. C. A. P.

Just Reversed.

This is the childhood ambition of a friend, as mine is still an uncertainty. When Janie was a small person in calico she scanned the society columns and sighed. There were none among her friends to whom she hadn't confided her "ambish."

No, she didn't go so far as to wish to be a society lady, but O, just to be the maid of one would be sufficient to make her happy. For years the pleasantest vocation in the world seemed to Janie that of a personal servant to the rich.

By a freak of fate Janie is now not a maid but a prominent society leader in one of our large cities. Recently on being teased about her old ambition, she laughed, but later heaved a great sigh. I wonder, would she be happier as her own maid? H. S.

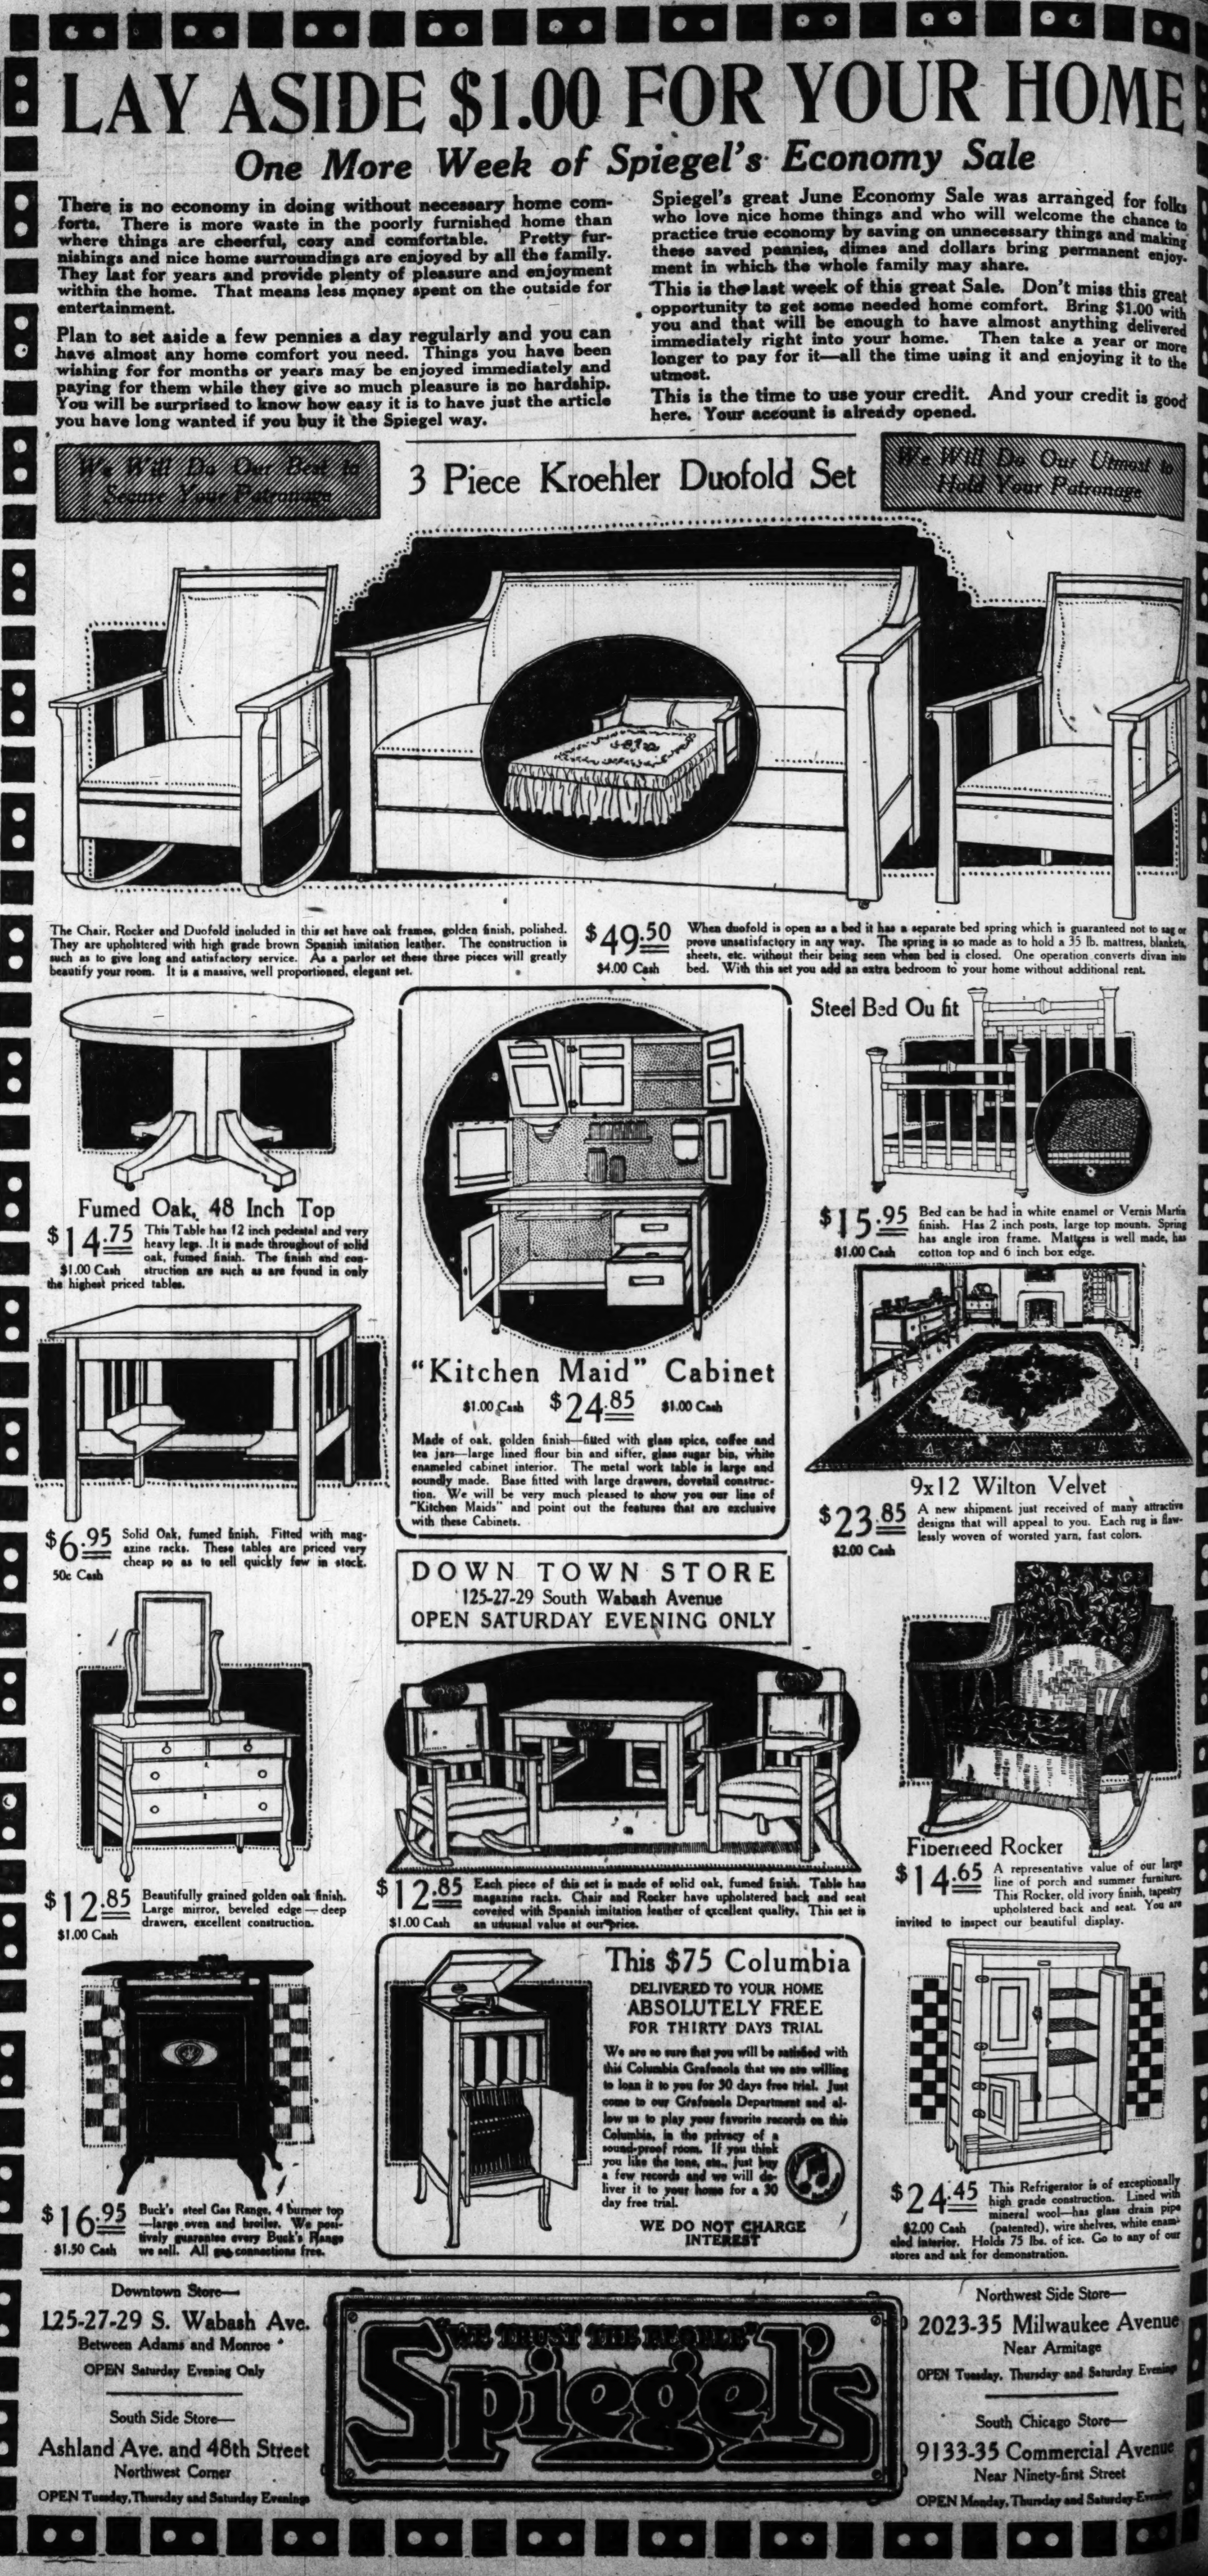
Hair Often Ruined By Washing With Soap

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff, and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.



LAY ASIDE $1.00 FOR YOUR HOME

One More Week of Spiegel's Economy Sale

There is no economy in doing without necessary home comforts. There is more waste in the poorly furnished home than where things are cheerful, cozy and comfortable. Pretty furnishings and nice home surroundings are enjoyed by all the family. They last for years and provide plenty of pleasure and enjoyment within the home. That means less money spent on the outside for entertainment.

Plan to set aside a few pennies a day regularly and you can have almost any home comfort you need. Things you have been wishing for for months or years may be enjoyed immediately and paying for them while they give so much pleasure is no hardship. You will be surprised to know how easy it is to have just the article you have long wanted if you buy it the Spiegel way.

Spiegel's great June Economy Sale was arranged for folks who love nice home things and who will welcome the chance to practice true economy by saving on unnecessary things and making these saved pennies, dimes and dollars bring permanent enjoyment in which the whole family may share.

This is the last week of this great Sale. Don't miss this great opportunity to get some needed home comfort. Bring $1.00 with you and that will be enough to have almost anything delivered immediately right into your home. Then take a year or more longer to pay for it—all the time using it and enjoying it to the utmost.

This is the time to use your credit. And your credit is good here. Your account is already opened.

For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

Mary King.

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Miss Mary King, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

ASKING FOR A RAISE.

LAST week came a letter from a girl who has been working for the same firm for five years. In that time, she states, she received only one increase in salary, and that a small one. According to her letter, she has worked faithfully and efficiently during that time. It is now two years since she has had a raise, and as her work has increased both in volume and importance since that time, she feels that she is entitled to the consideration of a more substantial salary.

She complains that she can barely exist on the salary she is now getting, with her living expenses increased nearly double since she started to work, but confesses at the same time that she is too timid to ask her employer for a raise.

By her own statement she is a conscientious and capable employé; yet she lacks the courage to ask for a raise. Season of inconsistencies! Here is a girl who claims to be capable of taking care of a business man's affairs, but acknowledges that she is incapable of taking care of her own.

As this letter has been answered with a personal reply, the solving of this individual problem is not our present consideration, but it appears that there are many girls in the business world who are afflicted with the same timidity in broaching the subject of a raise with their employers.

When a working girl feels that she is entitled to a raise or that her salary is one insufficient to live on, but lacks the initiative to ask for a higher wage, she deserves to go without it.

Success is an elusive sprite who gambols and sports about us all, but who takes delight in eluding us whenever she can, and, even if caught, loves to slip through our fingers whenever we relax our grip on her for a moment. To reach her, it is necessary for us to enter pursuit with a will and the determination to catch and hold her for our own.

She does not come for the wishing, but requires initiative and effort in overtaking.

As success is nearly always measured by the amount of salary we are able to command, it is necessary for us, if we really desire to possess the sprite, to make every effort toward increasing our earnings. Wishing requires no effort, nor does it bring us nearer to our goal. If we are deserving of an increase in salary, we at least ought to make the effort of asking for it.

It is the policy of some firms and corporations—and the absolute rule of a few—that an employé's salary is to be increased only by request. Of course, that is not true of the great majority of commercial houses, but nearly all employers are to a great extent influenced, when increasing their pay roll, by the requests that have been made for raises.

I have heard a man, who is at the head of an important department in a large dry goods store, say that he never voluntarily recommended a raise for any worker in his department; neither did he ever turn down a request for a raise when he thought the increase was deserved. That was his policy in running the department, although it wasn't a rule of the house, but as all salary increases for the department depended on his recommendations it was necessary for the employés in that department to ask for a raise in order to obtain it.

If any business girl feels that she is worth more money than she is receiving let her ask for it. If her employer thinks that she is worth it she will in all probability get it.

The fear of being turned down ought not to deter her from making the effort, as a temporary defeat is only one of the hazards in playing the game.

Suitors' Mistakes Contest.

Did you make a mistake that cost you the one you wanted to win more than any other? Was it an unkind remark, a selfish deed, a mean or careless one, an error or tendency of your past come to light? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Mistake That Cost Me the One I Wanted Most to Win." Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Tribune."

Postponed Indefinitely.

Marjorie had blue eyes and the most wonderful golden hair I had ever seen, which was always arranged faultlessly on the top of her proud head. I had made up my mind that no other girl in the world would do for me but Marjorie, and so one afternoon I took her walking for the express purpose of asking her to be my wife.

We had gone only a few blocks from the house when a gust of wind came along, taking not only her hat but her wealth of golden hair with it. She gave a loud wail as she saw her precious possessions flying through the air, and when I gave her a swift look I saw, to my surprise and horror, that she had a short, ugly crop of red hair.

I restored the lost articles, and it is needless to say I postponed the proposal indefinitely. G. L. S.

He Didn't Care for It, Either.

Carl had been paying me considerable attention for a year. Although we were not engaged, I was exceedingly fond of him and hoped to win him some day.

He had invited my girl friend, myself, and another young man to dinner with him at a downtown café. In discussing what we should eat the girl friend suggested lobster. Not caring for lobster I in a "trying to be funny way" gave my friend a little pat on the arm and remarked: "I don't care for that as I have a nice little lobster."

My friend left the table at once in a terrible rage. I immediately realized my mistake, but too late. My chance was gone—and is still gone. H. M.

Henna—d are the Blondes of Yesteryear says Antoinette Donnelly

If you missed the Antoinette Donnelly series telling how she reduced Mrs. Eva Lane thirty-six pounds in six weeks, or how she added twenty pounds in five weeks to Miss Helen Barnett's weight, or how she corrected a head of dry, thin, falling hair and an oily scalp with dandruff, or the article on treating Miss Hill's complexion for pimples and blackheads, send a stamped, addressed envelope and the information will be mailed to you. Any other questions pertaining to beauty and hygiene will be gladly answered.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Where are the blondes of yesteryear? They're buying henna by pounds, my dear!

FOR years may come and years may go—but where's the man who'd hope to know what next a woman's going to do?

Here we have her by hundreds deciding that the hair which was wished upon her may be all right for some folk, but for her it might be righter! Whether brighter or darker—that's up to the fancy of the creature. And when a creature a la femme gets to fancying, heaven help the thing upon which her fancy lights!

You know what happened her skirts when she began to fancy her stockings weren't given enough of the light of day. And you know what happened her a couple of summers ago when she took a notion that she'd walked the straight and broad shouldered way quite long enough, and remember the slinker slouch she slouched!

And so on and so on down the whole calendar of time and woman's foibles! They can't be cured—so we may as well make up our minds to endure.

But shades of Titian, what have you started?

Let us pray the Sorolla brilliant hues follow not into the scalps of womankind. Grotesque idea? Not so very! The famous French poet Charles Baudelaire once had his hair dyed a vivid green. And Charles wasn't a woman. The oriental women are notorious for dyeing and bleaching their hair simply to change its color as you would that of your gown. And which one of us western creatures believes ourselves much different from the woman of the eastern hemisphere?

So mebbe the strawberry rash that has been seen much on the avenue and off of late under chic French hats and under hats neither French nor chic is but a harbinger of a complete change of hair coloring for madame and mademoiselle.

If things were as they were when I was young the joke about seeing the white horse would be heard oftener than the sextet from "Lucia" or the end of the perfect day.

Shall we welcome them to our midst—these recruits with the stain of henna upon their brows?

We might as well. For we can't keep from loving them in spite of their folly. Let us forgive if we cannot forget. And to help us foget let us remember our own pet vanity and remember that it is more by good luck than by good management that the silly thing we do in our endeavor to make us more beautiful in our own eyes carries not so loud an insigna as the follower of the henna cult.

"An exhibition of poor taste and extremely dangerous" is what the beauty doctors have been preaching about hair dyes since time immemorial. But time has proved that it takes more on a sign than "bad taste" and "danger" to successfully scare a woman.

But you've got to know your dye! That's the only restraint I put upon you. You can take the responsibility of the rest yourself. I'm not recommending its use, mind you, so don't come swooping down upon me with a switch in your hand that is about to sue for separate maintenance on account of the way the hair on the head has turned against it.

Cases are being constantly reported by physicians where the use of these supposedly simple vegetable hair dyes has been followed by serious and extensive dermatitis of the face, neck, and shoulders. Many of the dyes for coloring the hair black contain lead, and on that account should be avoided; gallic acid is another dangerous element found in many dyes. These dye ingredients are not only injurious to the hair but to the health of the patient as well.

Henna is perhaps the least dangerous coloring for the hair of any. In fact, so far as the health of the hair or the skin is concerned is not dangerous at all.

But the looks! That's something else again! And a matter of purely personal taste!

My personal taste is "agin" it! I don't believe anything can so successfully and hurriedly impart a look of sophistication and hard experience as one red coat of boiled henna leaves. Like the chemical blonde, it suggests the courtesan.

You can't much beat old Dame Nature at her own game. She gives the complexion to match the hair. She has an especially individual coloring for the natural red head. If Nature, of her own accord and in her own due processes, changes the color of the hair, she changes the tone of the complexion to go with it. That is the reason the alterations we make on our last year's hair are so unpleasantly obvious. We cannot get the complexion tone to match.

But if you insist on hennaing your hair, far be it from me to restrain you, for the pent up energy would break out somewhere else and the damage might be even greater. You might take a notion to tuck your skin up over the temples, in order to get an oriental, keep the corners of your eyes up effect. Or you might tattoo the initials of your favorite movie star on your upper left cheek bone!

So here goes for some advice on henna-ing your hair, if it must be done:

Make up your mind before you start it that you are going to keep it up regularly until it is time for your gray hairs to assert themselves. That's the worst thing about using henna. I have seen the ugliest heads ever on women who tired of the Titian coloring and decided to go back to their first and natural love. It takes time, sometimes years, to right itself.

Then, if you can possibly afford it, have it done by an expert in the art of dyeing. You cannot do it yourself and make a good job of it.

Before the application of the dye, remember, the head must be thoroughly shampooed and dried. Rinse several times, in order to get every particle of dirt and oil out, for these will prevent the "taking" of the dye.

If the henna paste is used, it is applied with a clean tooth brush. If the liquid which is obtained by steeping henna leaves is used, some of the liquid is put in the rinsing water. But I cannot tell you how much, for that depends on the present color of your hair, and only an expert in the work of applying the dye can tell you how much should be used.

Whether your hair is light or dark henna will give it a reddish tinge. Henna tea is made by steeping one-half ounce of the dried leaves in one pint of hot water for about a half hour. Let it cool and strain off the liquid.

The henna paste is made by reducing enough henna leaves ground to a coarse powder with hot water to make a paste.

Rubber gloves should be worn in applying this to save the hands and nails from stains.

Answers to Inquiries.

E. H.: YES, TOO MUCH CANNOT be said in favor of swimming for developing. The exhilarating contact with air and water, the healthy strain on the muscles, the correct position of the body, the removal of the excretion from the skin, the stimulation to blood vessels, and the bust development which you particularly inquire about all make swimming the most ideal and healthful of sports.

MR. J. J.: ARE YOU CHAFFING ME, Mr. J. J.? You say you've been drinking for twenty years and recently your nose is beginning to get red. There is only one natural deduction and one natural remedy—move into a prohibition neighborhood and observe the rules thereof rigidly and honorably, else I'll be after you one of these days for a story on "What Drink Has Cost Me."

HENRY M.: IF THE TIGHT KINKS in your hair are hereditary characteristics it will be hard to change them. If your hair is long enough you might have it marcelled and get the waves the desirable size, but that seems a kind of feminine procedure for a man, it strikes me!

ETIQUETTE

by ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

AVOID ALL WASTE.

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

IN times of peace and prosperity large social gatherings and formal parties are suitable and popular. But in times of world distress and self-sacrifice costly and showy entertainments are decidedly poor taste. Diversion and pleasure are permissible if they can be achieved simply and without spending either money, time, or thought. All of these three should be, as far as possible, devoted to one's country.

Leading hostesses, those who set the fashion, are curtailing their menus and cutting out wines and extras, and other less conspicuous entertainers are following suit.

Let the careful woman and provident housewife plan her refreshments with an eye to economy more than ever before, and let her yield to the wishes of the president of her country, who has appealed to the women of the nation to avoid all waste. Those who bear this in mind will lead in the society of the community and will exemplify patriotism, thrift, and good form.

MRS. M.: A porch luncheon would be a charming way of entertaining a bride-to-be. The menu might consist of cold sliced chicken and ham, vegetable salad, hot rolls, iced tea, sherbet, and cake. The weather will doubtless permit an outdoor party of this kind.

R. G.: It is usually the custom for young men to wear white trousers and dark blue jackets for their commencement exercises.

A. C.: Personal notes of gratitude may be written acknowledging kindness in sending flowers at the time of your bereavement, but this is sometimes not possible and the engraved card acknowledging sympathy is an accepted substitute.

READER: When traveling a "tip" to the car porter at the end of the trip is the custom, though some people who get a good deal of extra service from him sometimes "tip" him oftener.

B. T.: Commencement presents are in vogue, particularly between intimate friends, but in time of war elaborate gifts [or, in fact, any elaborate expenditures] are out of fashion. Any simple, fairly inexpensive, personal thing would be correct for you to give an intimate

WAR BREADS.

THE bread question has many different angles. "Wheatless" days are urged in all sorts of government publications, and the cry is being taken up far and wide. Not wholly because of the exorbitant prices are such days urged, but it is prophesied that during the coming year there will be days when wheat cannot be obtained for love nor money.

They tell us that there are thirty kinds of war bread. From news clippings collected since 1913 I should say that there might be 300. Of course, we are going to extremes in this matter, as we are always so inclined to do, and more now in an extreme time.

The advocates of whole wheat flour are to the front. We are told that Germany is milling its wheat up to 95 per cent, while we mill only to 80 per cent, that is, we are being told this among many other things. But Mr. Hoover tells us he saw people die in Belgium from trying to live on this highly milled grain, because some people cannot eat bran breads. In hospital reports, in such a standard work as Taylor's "Digestion and Metabolism," from private testimony, I have found statements enough to condemn bran for all people of sensitive digestions. I never take it myself without being vaguely uncomfortable, with positive results that I consider digestively wasteful.

Real flakes of bran, actually toughened in the process of milling so as to be more easily separated from the rest of the grain, are to be found in too many brands of the whole wheat and Graham flours on the market. In the original Graham, the bran part was cut up fine. In home ground flour it is in a safer form than in some of the commercial brands.

The most important thing after all, in this bread question, is not what the bread is made of, but what it makes of us. We have come to the days when if ever we must speak in plain terms about how food behaves, and what it does, plus us, all the way along from mouth to stomach, to duodenum and all along the long territory where it is absorbed into the blood, past that blind pouch with its terrible little appendage called the appendix, to the innumerable recesses and hiding places of the large intestine, etc. Dramatize this journey to yourself, you man or woman, and you no longer will treat it like a mail chute.

The plain fact is that breads containing coarse and perhaps fine bran are railroaded through this digestion country at much too high a speed. Digestion becomes too convulsive. The body becomes nervous from the hurry and irritation.

Food passing along thus rapidly cannot give up its nutriment, especially as some of it anyway is entangled in that perfectly indigestible and glassy fiber called bran. The chemical processes which must go on in the alimentary tract after every meal are not completed in this rush. The nutritious liquid that should be prepared for the blood which carries it to hungry muscles and glands is scanted and corrupted. When these muscles and glands are not fed the wear and tear on them is highly destructive and their early breakdown under such a regime can be predicted.

To sum up: Many people who eat breads containing bran are not fed. They go through the process of eating, and get small or poor returns for their efforts. From eating too few laxative foods we have now rushed to the other extreme and are eating too many. The results will be of a different order but hardly less harmful. Constipation often means complete digestion of everything eaten, so as to leave no bulk for peristaltic stimulation. The soft cellulose of fresh vegetables and fruit juices remedies that. The other extreme means that food is hardly digested at all. The body is then both abused and starved.

People grasp like drowning men to something tangible like a recipe though it be absurd past belief. A highly tangible and helpful new pamphlet on breads, with recipes and various sorts of instruction, is Farmers' Bulletin 807, "Bread and Bread Making in the Home." It recommends that every woman learn to judge her own bread skillfully, so as to trace good and bad qualities to their causes quickly.

In some of the bakers' books on breads I find that men cooking in a mechanical fashion have gone on ten years making an imperfect bread without discovering the cause of the imperfection. This bulletin gives a score card for judging and suggests where others can be found.

In days like these a writer on the subject like myself needs mainly to be a good reporter, yet I have been making bread and also keeping watch of the record on the bathroom scale, for it climbs when much bread is eaten unless balanced by great activity. However, one person cannot do alone what a whole class of young women working under a competent teacher can accomplish working on this one thing, comparing, judging, etc. For my own part I believe breads made with a sponge, with two raisings after, are sweeter and every way of finer flavor. In this weather the sponge comes up so quickly that the amateur realizes, too, how yeast plants multiply.

Corn Meal Bread.

Corn meal is our most obvious substitute for wheat as it is also the least expensive. The government is printing, I forget how many, but an enormous number of Farmers' Bulletin 565, of twenty-four pages, with sixty recipes, "Corn Meal as a Food and Ways of Using It," for widest distribution.

The government recipe as worked out in the laboratory at the University of Chicago has several additions of value and give the food units in a loaf. It reads:

"One and one-fourth cups of liquid (water, milk, or other liquid), one and one-half teaspoons of salt, one tablespoon of sugar, one tablespoon of fat, one-fourth cake of compressed yeast softened in one-fourth cup of liquid, three-fourths cup of corn meal, two and one-fourth cups of flour. Pour the one and one-fourth cups of liquid over the salt, sugar, fat, and corn meal, which have been mixed together, and heat the mixture gradually to near the boiling point. Cook for twenty minutes. This can be done best in a double boiler. Then allow the meal to cool to lukewarm and add the softened yeast and the flour in portions. Knead thoroughly. This dough must be stiff or the interior of the loaf will be too moist and have a coarse texture. Allow it to rise until double in bulk, then knead and shape into loaves. Allow it to rise again until at least double in bulk. This bread does not expand after it is put in the oven. So it must rise as much as desired before baking. It should be baked in a moderate oven for forty-five minutes to one hour. This loaf contains about 1,470 calories and 40 grams of protein."

Whole Wheat Breads.

Whole wheat in a sponge acts more rapidly than does white flour. An excellent whole wheat bread may then be made by stirring in gradually the two-thirds or half more of the whole wheat or, at the last, kneading a one loaf portion in the bowl to make it finer of grain. If the flour is stirred in little by little it may be baked without kneading.

Rye Breads.

With a sponge of one cup of white flour, one cup of tepid milk, a teaspoon of butter, a tablespoon of sugar, and a little salt, with one cup of rye flour stirred into it after it had risen and another cup kneaded in with two raisings, I have no difficulty in making a loaf to bake on a sheet or inverted dripping pan, which is approximately like the professionally made rye bread. I did not find it too soft to handle after the cup of rye had been stirred in a little at a time.

In a reprint of part of the bulletin 807 is the following:

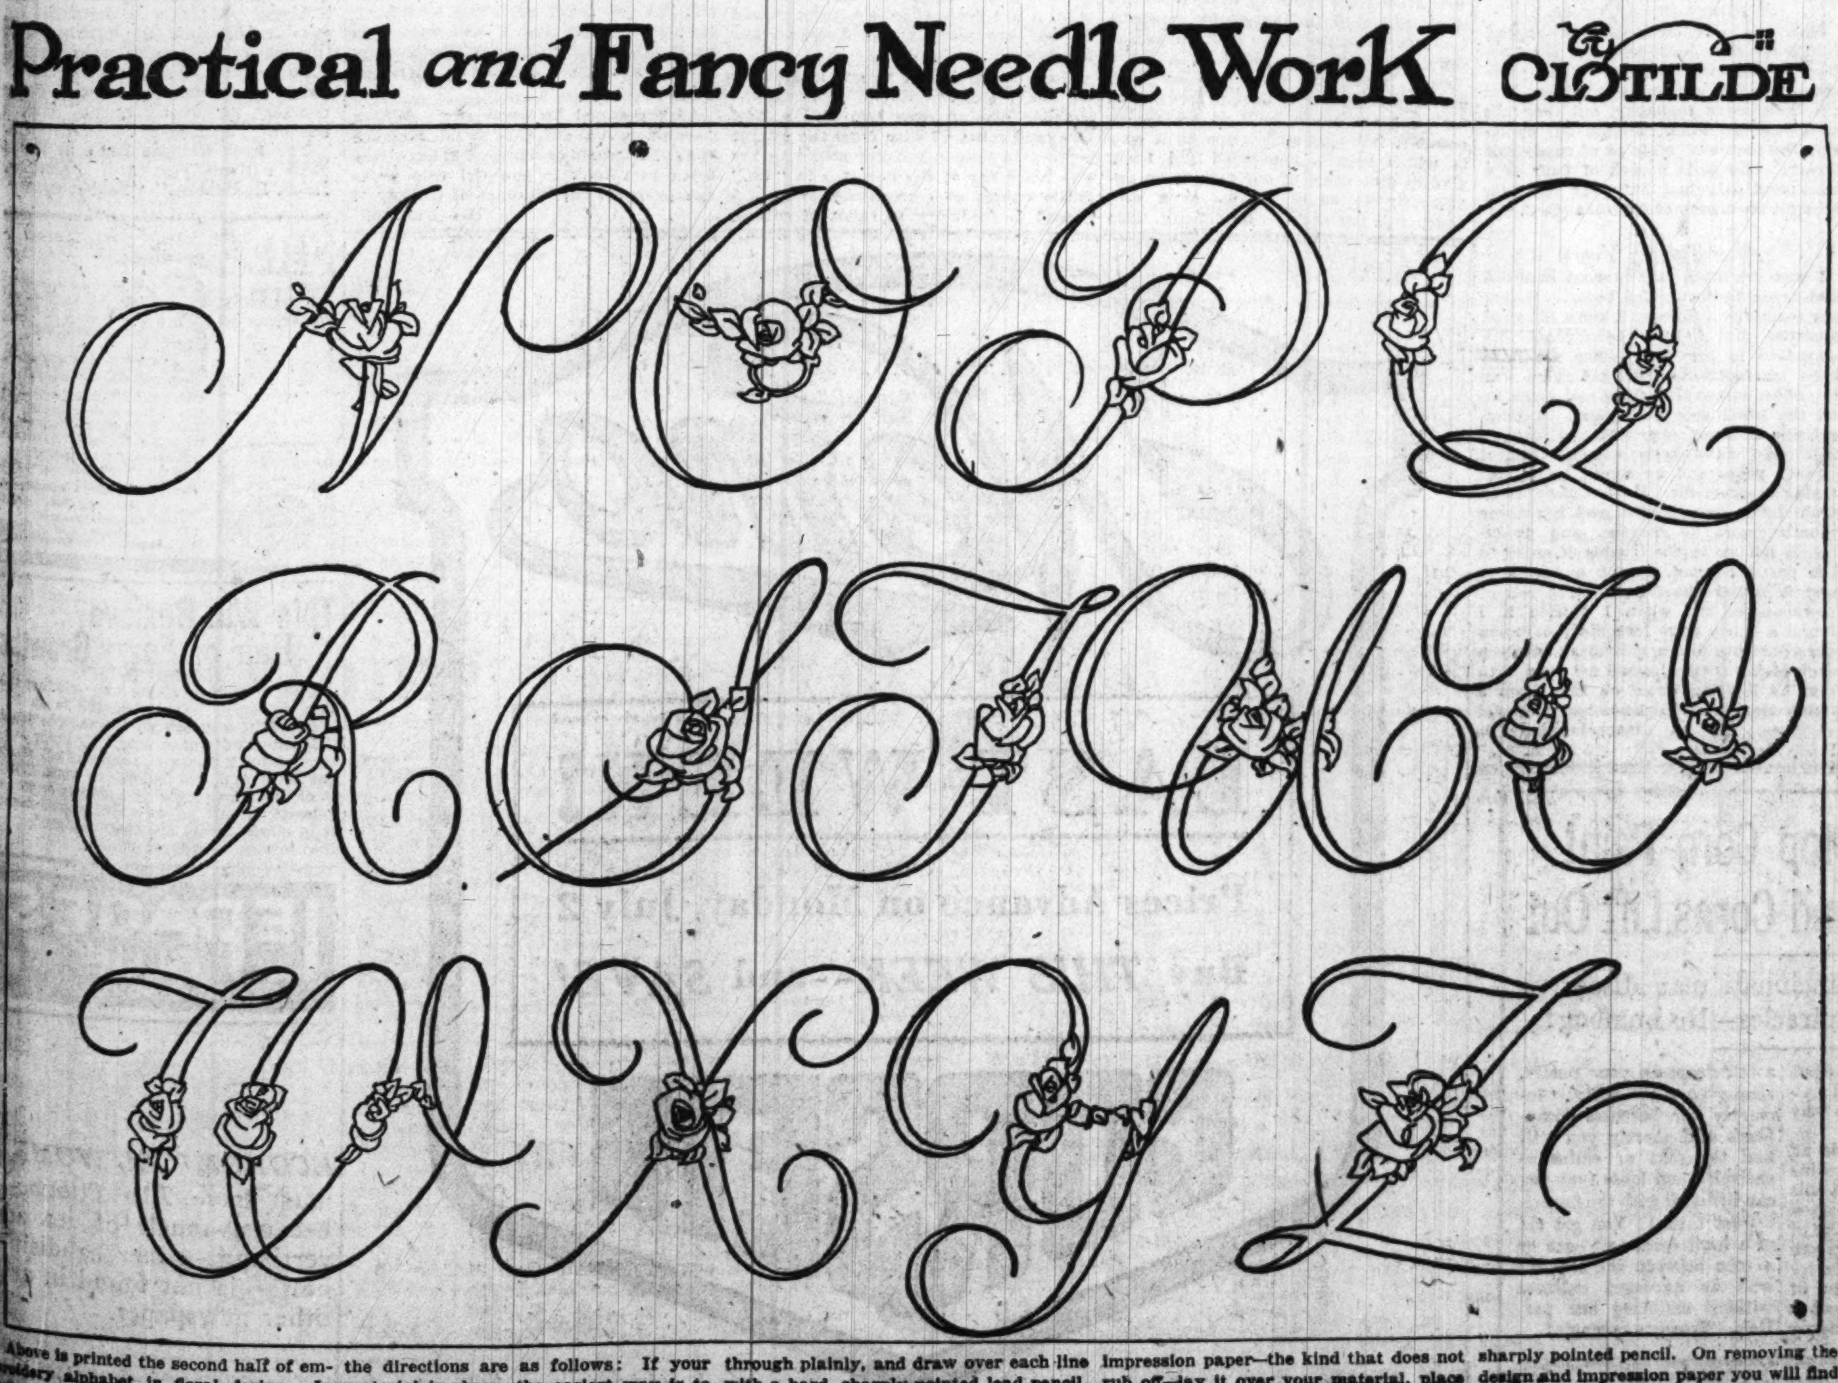
"One quart of milk, two tablespoons of sugar, four teaspoons of salt, two tablespoons of butter, one cake of compressed yeast, three cups of flour, one cup being wheat and the remainder rye. Follow the directions for making wheat bread according to the short process until after the bread has been molded a second time. At this point the dough should be placed in a six quart bowl lined with a cloth, into which flour has been rubbed. When the dough has risen to the top of the bowl, turn out on a hot sheet iron (a dripping pan inverted will do), over which one tablespoon of flour has been sprinkled, and put it immediately into a hot oven. After ten minutes lower the temperature somewhat and bake for one hour.

"This recipe is a modification of an old German household method of making rye bread."

Rice and Potato Breads.

Rice and potato are both cooked before made into bread, therefore contain so much water that the amateur will find them difficult of manipulation. They have not as many food units per loaf, but potato bread keeps moist longer than others under ordinary conditions.

Practical and Fancy Needle Work by CLOTILDE



Above is printed the second half of embroidery alphabet in floral design. In using the printed design from the paper the directions are as follows: If your material is sheer, the easiest way is to lay it over the material, which will show through plainly, and draw over each line with a hard, sharply pointed lead pencil. If your material is heavy, buy a piece of impression paper—the kind that does not rub off—lay it over your material, place the design over it, and trace with a sharply pointed pencil. On removing the design and impression paper you will find the pattern neatly transferred.

Rough, Red Hands Softened and Whitened with Lemon Juice

Girls! It costs but a few cents to make a quarter pint of wonderful lemon beauty cream! Surely try it!

To soften, smoothen, and whiten the face, neck, arms, and particularly the hands when chafed, red or rough there is nothing better than lemon juice, but pure lemon juice is too highly acid and often irritating. A splendid lotion is prepared in a moment by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White. Be sure to strain the lemon juice through a cloth so no pulp gets into the bottle, then this creamy lotion will stay sweetly fragrant and fresh for months. Any grocer will supply the lemons and your druggist or any toilet counter will sell you three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. This is by all means the best lotion you could use. Massage it daily into the face, neck, arms, and hands and see for yourself. It helps remove tan, freckles, sallowness and blemishes, and every girl knows that lemons are used to bleach and whiten the skin.

Genuine Orchard White bears the name, Edward Wesley Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

How to Order Your Clotilde Patterns.

In ordering a waist the size should be determined by the bust measure. Give the bust measure. In ordering a skirt the size of the hip is more important than the size of the waist, but give both the hip and the waist measure. Ten cents for each waist, coat, or skirt.

In ordering misses' patterns the age should be stated—12, 14, 16, or 18 years. Ten cents for each waist, coat, skirt, or dress.

In ordering children's regular patterns order them by the age of the child. Ten cents each.

Clotilde's patterns are made in New York exclusively for "The Chicago Sunday Tribune" and may be obtained through no other service. A Chicago distribution office has been opened, and following this announcement orders will be filled on the day of receipt. An extra 2 cent stamp will allow for letter postage and will thereby hasten delivery. Patrons are requested to send stamps instead of dimes, as money is frequently lost in the mails.

Small Brother Contest.

You've heard that story about two women discussing a wedding. "Who gave the bride away?" asked one. "Her young brother," answered her companion. "He yelled out, 'Susie, you landed him at last.'" Perhaps he was your young brother, or perhaps your young brother got in his demoniacal work before you got as far as the altar. Or maybe the young imp wasn't your brother, but a diabolical young sister who pretty nearly queered the game for you. Write and tell us about it, anyway. "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, Chicago Tribune.

Shelling the Submarine.

In my courtship days our parlor sofa stood across a corner of the room, topped with two or three pillows, and when Jim called we usually occupied this seat. His arm accidentally knocked a pillow off the back, and to our surprise my youngest brother came wriggling out from under us, feet first. The pillow happened to have fallen on his head, and, happily for all concerned, this incident passed off as a merry joke on him, and also saving me "hush money" to him.

Brother Breaks the Ice.

Sometimes the much abused small brother becomes an angel in disguise; it happened so in my case.

A bashful young man had been calling on me for some time, and although I was certain he loved me, he never came to the proposing point. One by one I saw my friends become engaged, still my beau spoke not a word of marriage.

I became rather discouraged and talked the matter over with the family, forgetting that "little pitchers have big ears." To my mother I said: "I am sure Fred loves me, but is afraid to tell me so."

A few nights later, as Fred and I were leaving the veranda to go for a walk, my small brother ran to his side, and in a loud whisper, heard by all on the porch, said: "'Fraid cat, why don't you ask Beth to have you; 'cause she wants you to."

We all tried to laugh it off, but the ice was broken and I lay awake a long time that night planning a trousseau.

Some Red for Eddie's Map.

It was my small nephew who spoiled my chances with the new minister. Just as he was in the midst of an impressive leave taking, Eddie rushed in, excitedly asking: "Auntie, can I have some of the paint you put on your cheeks to color my map with?" My beau never called again.

A Financial Crash.

The other night when auntie and I were discussing, Lee, my best fellow, my little brother Jay listened intently and when Lee called, rushed up to him and anxiously asked: "Do you love May?"

"Gracious!" exclaimed my astounded beau, "why do you want to know?"

"Because she said she'd give a quarter to know, and I want the quarter."

Lee hasn't called since.

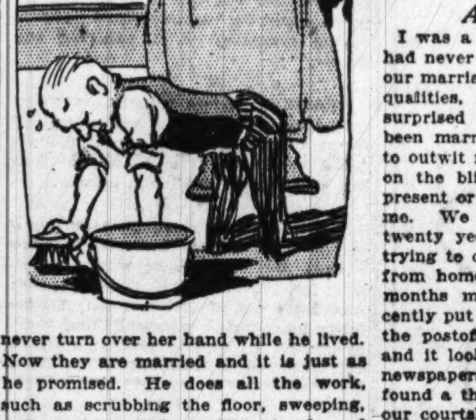
Before and After Marriage.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on marriage disillusions. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." Write on only one side of the paper.

Keeping His Promise.

My sister was engaged to a man who was so devoted to her that he promised all sorts of things after they were married, among which were doing the housework himself and she should never turn over her hand while he lived. Now they are married and it is just as he promised. He does all the work, such as scrubbing the floor, sweeping, and washing dishes. The wonder of this does not lie so much in my brother-in-law, but rather in the brawn arm of his wife and in the stoutness of her form.

E. V. S.



A Prince and a Crœsus.

Since we were married my husand brings me even more presents than before. He has not changed, but the presents have. I get more of them, and get them more regularly, but they are of a different kind. During our courtship the presents consisted of candy and flowers; now it is a sack of flour or a ham, and only last Saturday the dear brought me a peck of potatoes.

After Twenty Years.

I was a widow. My present husband had never been married before. Before our marriage I thought I knew his good qualities, but I have been pleasantly surprised in him ever since we have been married. He manages some way to outwit my expectations and come up on the blind side with some birthday present or some other gift and surprise me. We have been married almost twenty years and he seems to be still trying to court me. He has been away from home two months and has three months more of absence, and he recently put me to the trouble of going to the postoffice and signing a document and it looked like I had only a roll of newspapers, but when I opened it I found a thirty page love story covering our courtship and a greenback between each page. I wish I could get even with him by lighting down on him from a flying machine. We have had financial reverses, but no disappointments in love's devotions.

Women! Stop Corn Pain! Few Drops and Corns Lift Out

Don't hurt a bit! Cincinnati man discovers drug that works miracles—No humbug!

Your high heels have put corns on your toes and calluses on your feet, but why care now?

This tiny bottle holds an almost magic fluid. A genius in Cincinnati discovered this ether compound and named it freezone. Small bottles of freezone like here shown can be had at any drug store for a few cents. Don't limp or twist your face, but get a bottle of freezone and apply a few drops on your tender, aching corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so shriveled and loose that you can lift it off with the fingers.

Just think! You get rid of a hard corn, soft corn or a corn between the toes, as well as hardened calluses without suffering one particle. Freezone is magic!

Genuine "Freezone" bears the name, The Edward Wesley Co., Cincinnati, O.

Making Quilt and Rug.

"It has been my pleasure to answer letters of Cornerites off and on for some time, and I am happy to state that I have gained some lovely correspondents. One charming woman writes to me about her home customs, climate, and social work, and these letters are a comfort to get, as I have been a shut-in for three years from a fall. I have a silk quilt partly finished and should like pieces to complete it. I have also started making a rug and can use any out of date skirts by tearing them in strips to weave. I have some pretty felt mats and different flags of various countries that would make pretty sofa pillow tops that I would be glad to pass on to some one. It must be a comfort in one's declining years to know that one can give happiness to those who are not always blessed with this world's goods. I should like to do what I can, even in a small way, to make life pleasanter for others.

"MRS. J. M. H."

This is another of the cheery shut-ins whom we are happy to number among our constituency, and we are glad to know the Corner has done so much to give her pleasure. She has done her share in the same way, and the response to her request for silk pieces and rags for rugs should be as prompt and plentiful as the applications will be for the articles she offers.

Needs a Wheel Chair.

"I am much in need of a good, comfortable chair and shall write to the friend whose name you gave me for advice as to lending a wheel chair. I had the good luck to sell an old chair for enough to make a good sum towards a new one. I am most grateful for the kindness I have already received.

"L. M. O."

I have printed the appeal of this correspondent before and I am glad there seems to be some prospect of her getting the chair she wishes. Her letter is inserted today on the chance that some one may see it who has some suggestion to make of a means by which she could secure such a chair as she wishes more quickly than is likely at present. Her address will be sent upon application. As a matter of course, we do not ask for money through the Corner, but sometimes counsel can be given which is quite as valuable as cash, and this may be one of the cases of that kind.

Directions for Sweater.

"Is it possible for you to publish directions for making a knitted or crocheted sweater for a child 4 years of age? I have used several of your patterns and find them good and would appreciate this favor much.

"MRS. E. E."

This correspondent is in error about our department. We do not have room to give directions for fancy work of any kind, and she has evidently confused the Corner with some other section of the paper. It may be, however, that some of our knitters or other fancy work experts have the directions she desires and may be able to send them to her. Should such be the case I shall be happy to give the address of Mrs. E. E. to any one who write to me.

In Need of Clothing.

"I read in the Corner so much of the way in which others are aided by the Helping Hand that I am writing to ask if you can be of some assistance to me. My husband and daughter have tuberculosis. I am taking care of them at home and it is hard to furnish everything that is needful for them, as the food they need most to keep up their strength is of the highest. My daughter must be operated upon soon, so that with doing all that is possible for them with food and buying fuel and paying rent I have nothing left to buy clothing for them; as they must be out all of the time, it is impossible for me to buy clothes. So if any one having clothing of any kind that is no longer needed would send me some to make over for them it would be thankfully received. I can sew and perhaps I could do something in return.

MRS. D. J. W."

As I have said upon a number of previous occasions, I do not like to ask for clothing and I do it as seldom as possible, but this strikes me as a case in which help is demanded and I am glad to give some of our friends an opportunity to be of service in a way which will not perhaps be difficult. This is a time of the year when we are going through our closets and wardrobes and in many cases rejecting certain articles as not worth putting up in camphor and keeping until another winter. It ought to be an easy matter to select some pieces which would be of value to this correspondent.

Shy, Not "Stuck Up."

"I read your Corner every week and have seen the favorable results obtained by correspondents. So I wonder if you perhaps would be good enough to help me also. I am a 17 year old girl and am quiet and bashful. People mistake my bashfulness for haughtiness, and I often hear them say how 'stuck up' I am. This is the reason, I suppose, that I am so friendless. I have decided that possibly you could help me find some one with whom to correspond. I will be grateful to you and shall anxiously await a reply.

V. M."

Often shyness and apparent haughtiness are mistaken for one another, and it should be the aim of any one who is afflicted with bashfulness to endeavor to appear pleasant, even if quiet. One easily discerns if a person who has the reputation of diffidence is ready to be of service and to show kindness. Thinking of some one else and forgetting one's self is an excellent remedy for shyness. I will send the address of this correspondent to any girl who cares to correspond. In such cases as this it is always necessary to exchange references.

Words of a Song.

"I should be glad if you would print the words to the song 'Bagdad' in the Corner.

M. L."

Can some one supply the words asked for? A copy can be sent to the person requesting it if she will be so good as to send me her full address and postage for the song.

Home for a Baby.

"With reference to the two boys you speak of as being for adoption, I will say that I should like much to adopt the 7 months old baby. I am in a position to give him a good home and a mother's love, and also will furnish the best of references. I have no children of my own, and for this reason wish to adopt a child if circumstances are satisfactory, and I will appreciate your giving me full particulars. Should you wish any further information I shall be glad to supply it.

MRS. A. S."

I am so sorry to tell this applicant that both the babies to whom she refers are already placed. It is too bad! Is there any one of the Cornerites who can tell us of some baby who needs a good and loving home? Or if Mrs. A. S. cannot find a child in this way, why does she not appeal to some of the many charitable organizations which look after orphan children, and see if she cannot among them find a baby to fill her heart and her arms? I have known of several instances where this course was pursued with great success, and where the children thus adopted were as happily brought up and apparently as satisfactory to their adopted parents as if they had been bound together by the tie of blood. I shall keep the letter of Mrs. A. S. on file, so that if some one has knowledge of a child suitable for her to adopt the references may be at hand.

War Time Economies.

"I went to a 'war tea' the other day and the refreshments were so different from the stereotyped kind that I thought the Corner might like to know about it. The food was good, but simple and inexpensive. There was corn bread baked thin, cut into strips, toasted, buttered, and served piled across one another like a log cabin plan. Then there was rye and Indian bread cut into sandwiches and spread with grated cheese mixed with chili sauce. For sweets we had war cake, made with raisins and without milk, butter, or eggs, and oatmeal and graham cookies. Then we had tea with lemon instead of cream, and black coffee. It wasn't a bit like the teas I had attended earlier in the season, but it was good, and I thought people could afford to entertain like that. Can you give me a recipe for the so-called 'war bread'?

J. T."

I am sorry to say I cannot. Does any one know the recipe? Thank you for the account of the "war tea."

Real Love Stories

COURTSHIP BY WIRE.

SHE sat at a telegraph instrument in an operating room in a city on the Pacific coast. He sat at a similar instrument in one of Chicago's skyscrapers. Every night they worked the same hours and handled the same messages, he sending to her or she to him. For a long time he did not know the operator at "the other end" was a woman, and things went along mechanically as clockwork, and would be still going on in the same old way were it not for a chance remark passed by her one night which disclosed her identity.

Then things began to get interesting on the "local." Every tick on the sounder coming over two and a half thousand miles of wire from the Pacific seemed to take a musical sound to the awakened ear of the operator in "Ch." Little scraps of conversation were indulged in (contrary to rules, of course, but——), and then one day about a year ago he plucked up courage to say "May I expect a valentine next week?" The voice from the Pacific said "Yes," and he got it. After that things became even more interesting on the "local," and the scraps of conversation more frequent and prolonged. Letters followed the "valentine" in rapid succession.

Then came the call to arms for Mexican border service and our hero followed the flag. Down in Texas he was not forgotten, and being one of his closest friends I was informed that no sooner was he back in Chicago than he would pack his grip and go to his "girl of the golden west." I have seen him stagger into camp at the end of one of our long hikes footsore, thirsty, dusty, and weary, rush up to the first sergeant's tent and inquire anxiously for his mail, which invariably included a letter from the Pacific coast. There were always rose leaves in them, too, and all from a girl he had never seen, never heard her voice. He always said, "Jack, old boy, it isn't how they talk that counts—it is what they say." Strange as it may seem, he fell in love with her letters—with her thoughts before he even saw her photograph. That made matters worse.

Now the call has sounded again and when the "fighting Seventh" dons its war paint again our hero will be with it. She has entirely agreed with him that it must be duty first, even though their hearts are breaking, for he has not met her yet, being prevented by illness. He has told me that it will wring his heart assunder to leave for France (perhaps) without holding her in his arms first.

All for a girl he never saw. Will a German bullet kill this sweet romance of the telegraph, or will God in his mercy bring him back to the girl who waits and pines for her "Romeo of the key"?

HIS FRIEND.

GIRLS! LOTS OF BEAUTIFUL HAI

25 cent bottle of "Danderine" makes hair thick, glossy and wavy.

Removes all dandruff, stops itching scalp and falling hair.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair, soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff, is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you can not find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp, and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.—Advertisement.

Small Pimples Itched Badly On Face and Arms

Also Neck, Completely Covered. Cuticura Healed At a Cost of $1.00.

"My face began to break out in small pimples and in a couple of days my face, arms, and neck were completely covered. The pimples began getting larger and more numerous, and they festered and were red. They itched so badly that I kept them sore by scratching and I could not sleep.

"I was troubled about four weeks when I saw an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I began using them. I used one and a half cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Eva Miller, Lewisburg, Ohio, Oct. 9, 1916.

What a world of good hot Cuticura Soap baths followed by gentle applications of Cuticura Ointment have done in soothing and healing eczemas, rashes, itchings, pimples and dandruff. And greater still where they have healed can they have prevented many by furnishing a pure, sweet, gentle soap without the irritation common to many coarsely medicated soaps. Cuticura Soap may be used on the infant at birth.

This Will Remove Hair or Fuzzy Growths

(Toilet Tips)

A safe, certain method for ridding the skin of ugly, hairy growths is as follows: Mix a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface about 2 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is entirely harmless and seldom requires repeating, but to avoid disappointment it is advisable to see that you get genuine delatone.—Advertisement.

Fourth Annual Silk Sale—Tomorrow

IMPORTANT.

Because of the great variety of these patterns we cannot fill mail or phone orders—and none of these silks will be sent on approval.

A Startling One Day Sale—Unquestionably the Greatest Silk Event in Our History

IT was not an easy matter to secure silks for this sale—silks such as we wanted, and at prices we wanted to pay. Because of the condition of the silk market we were forced to use our persuasive powers to the utmost—and then we were compelled to make an enormous sacrifice in order to bring these silks within the range of "sensational pricing." Everything that goes to make a yard of silk has advanced in price. Dyes have soared tremendously, even the coal used to run the plants has greatly advanced in price; every detail costs the manufacturer more money, and to cap the climax mills have been unable to secure help to weave their silks. During the past month, mind you, raw silk has advanced one dollar a pound.

In the face of conditions we believe that our sale tomorrow may be considered in the light of an almost miraculous achievement. We scoured the market—we searched everywhere—we prevailed upon manufacturers to make concessions that they were unwilling to make in the face of the present market—and as a result we have secured thousands upon thousands of the choicest silks which we shall mark at prices that show an utter disregard for the real value of these silks. So remarkable are these offerings that we feel safe in predicting that this will be the greatest silk selling day in the history of The Fair—a day that should bring to our Second Floor every woman needing silks for present or future use.

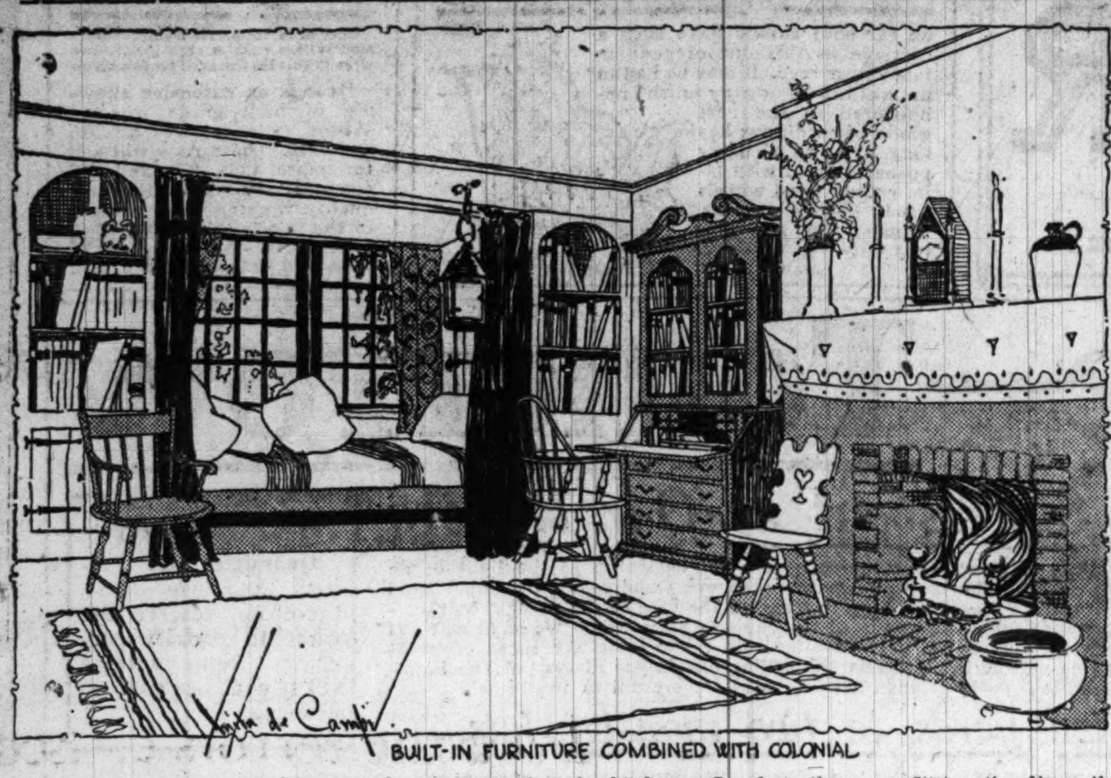
The HOME HARMONIOUS

by Anita de Campi



BUILT-IN FURNITURE COMBINED WITH COLONIAL

Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

HOW pleasant it must be to own a cottage—a cottage in the country where the high cost of living would not be paramount, where muslin curtains would be permanently clean, and where the sweet blossoming shrubs and trees would waft their tribute to a sense more delicate than sight or sound!

I have seen some old English cottages that exemplified the principles of artistic truth no less than the finest examples of classic architecture, honestly designed and correlated part to part, presenting one harmonious whole, with all parts suitable and right. It would be a pity to try to make over such a dwelling. It is all homely to the last degree, most of the furniture built in, but well enough to command respect.

When people deliberately choose to live in the country it is undoubtedly through a preference for the simple life, and consistency demands the curtailment of extravagance. The main characteristic of all appurtenances chosen for the country home should show an appreciative conformity to economy.

Practical matters given their proper attention as means of modifying labor form the basis of good decorative scheming. If the locks, hinges, fireplace fixtures, in sound design, are made of hammered iron that requires no labor of polishing, naturally the woodwork should not be treated with either high polish or enamel that would demand the labor of repeated cleaning and redoing, but should be stained or fumed.

In a well built lifetime cottage moldings if used at all should be of the simplest sort, the skirtings plain, the fireplaces good, and the floors proper.

Italian cottages, simple ones, made generations ago, as well as those more up to date, show floors made of brick, and this is cleanly. Flowers are close about the house and grow in such profusion that great handfuls of rose petals are used as we sometimes use tea leaves here, scattered over the floor to facilitate the sweeping. In this country deal is found to be the most generally satisfactory cheap flooring. Oak, though more desirable, is costlier. Tiles, bricks, or quarries are best for kitchens. Cement is now popular, too, for that use.

Exposed brick is allowed some latitude as an interior finishing material. Particularly is it good in conjunction with exposed ceiling beams and brick fireplaces. The skirting is sometimes made of upstanding bricks, and most attractive window mullions are made of them.

Walls for the all the year round country cottages are most consistent finished in tinted plaster. There is a delightful textural quality about this granular surface. The finish should be natural and as devoid as possible of deadly mechanical precision. The nicest results are obtained by using the same color throughout. Putty is a good tone, or "Caen stone" color.

Wood paneling is correct, if not elaborate. A good paneling made by a country builder was of pine stained and built up to within a frieze depth of the ceiling. Above this the uncovered bricks were allowed to show. The ceiling, of dark beams and plaster, was whitewashed between the beams. In this room the fireplace had a raised hearth of bricks. The mantel shelf was made of a single great beam and the chimney breast of painted Dutch tiles.

Much furniture need not be bought for the country cottage, if thought is given to fitments when the cottage is being built. Many are the conveniences that may be incorporated into the building contract at a far less price than loose furniture. All cupboards, dressers, wardrobes, window benches, and settles, book shelves, drawers, and even beds and tables may be built in. Every little recess may be turned to snug account, leaving freer play for the few necessary movable things.

Built-in furniture must not be held in light esteem, regarded as a makeshift to be discarded in course of time for something better. Its very beauty lies in its air of durability. This is taking it for granted that the best material has been used in the hands of a skillful craftsman. Some of the finest architects in this country and abroad design the built-in furniture for the houses they build, and feel an exalted enthusiasm for the value and strength they embody in their work.

When we come to the matter of furnishing the cottage used for summer months only, that is such a different story. The whole scheme may be treated more superficially. Solid, lasting worth is not an essential quality; in fact, the more flitting the fancy the more appropriate. Rather ornate painted furniture is in vogue throughout, the type of furniture ordinarily used in city sun rooms. There is nothing earnest about it. The best selling furniture for summertime places is undoubtedly wicker.

Country houses furnished in good copies of colonial furniture are in excellent taste. With these things the woodwork is painted and the walls painted or papered. Woven or crocheted rugs are acceptable and muslin chintz or cretonne curtains are quite right.

The accompanying illustration shows the interior of a modern cottage in which the built-in fitments have been supplemented with colonial furniture. Both being hand made gives them unison. An ample bed is built in to the deep window recess. Finished with a draw curtain, it is usable during the day as a window bench and at night is an improvement on a Pullman berth.

The walls are roughly plastered in gray and the floor is gray cement with thick woven rugs.

The window curtains are figured chintz and the inside draperies homespun. The mantel lambrequin of embroidered homespun has an asbestos lining.

The fireplace is of natural brick and plaster. On the mantel is a green pottery vase, and a brown earthen jug, a pair of copper candles and a little clock in a hand made brown wood frame. Two Windsor chairs and an old English fireplace chair are stained brown. The long locker hinges, metal bowl, andirons, and hanging lantern are all dull copper.

Answers to Inquiries.

MRS. WILLIAM D. S.: Yes, the glass curtains should come just to the sill. They are called glass curtains because they are laid just against the glass. A French heading is the best finish at the top. Yes, it is best to allow for shrinkage. The valance is put on one rod and the inside draperies on another rod, so they may be drawn together at night instead of pulling down the roller shade. I think it would be nice to have the bedroom and living room draperies alike.

JUNE: Blue makes an excellent color as a background to walnut furniture. A faint pattern in self-colored blue paper would be good with perhaps blue and gray stripes for the draperies. In this room put accidents of light yellow, either a vase of daffodils or pale yellow silk lamp shades. Repeat the blue in your rag rugs. If your table top is in good condition let the table cloth barely cover it.

MISS LILLIAN O. S.: If you will go to the Chicago public library you will find there a classified list of books on the subject about which you wish to inform yourself. Go into the reference room and order as many of them as you can and choose from among them. That would be the best way for you to familiarize yourself with this literature.

* *

MRS. J. L. B.: Why not have your music cabinet, etc., done over in antique mahogany? It is so much more attractive than the red mahogany. All the good reproductions of colonial pieces are now to be had in brown mahogany and at the same price as the red.

* *

MRS. McM.: Yes, you could remove the varnish from the old oak dresser by using varnish remover. Sandpaper lightly and enamel in old ivory enamel. Linen chintz is fashionable for the upholstering of colonial pieces. It is most attractive and wears well. Why not reenamel the table while you are enameling the other furniture? Finish your walls in a light faun color and enamel the woodwork with old ivory. This, in combination with the chintz and a soft solid colored silk shade, will make a cheerful interior.

M. H.: I should advise you to use tan and mulberry striped draperies. On the French doors use simple square mesh ecru lace net. Shirr it to double rods that don't extend clear to the top of the door.

* *

J. L. L.: Allover carpets are now in fashion, especially where one can have the use of a vacuum cleaner. With the color side walls that you indicate, a brown rug would be nice in the front room hall. This would nicely repeat the color chosen for your dining room. A Wilton is about as serviceable as any you could get. I believe you would like ecru curtains better than the blue. Use gray, buff, and green cretonne for your rocker slip cover. Yes, I believe you could use the draperies you have. The pad for the bench would be nice. Wouldn't you like candles in place of the oil lamp? They are so much more artistic. With the things that you have bayberry candles would be lovely.

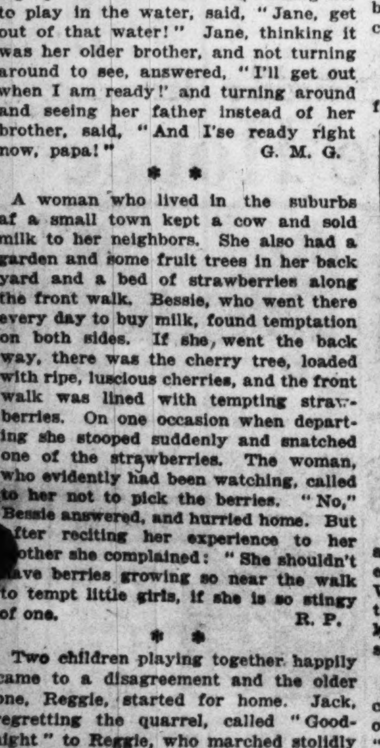
* *

B. G. B.: I quite approve of your selection of paper like the inclosed sample. If your place is small the draperies alike throughout would be excellent. If you wish figured chintz for these then have your upholstery fabric in a solid color. Any diapered pattern in some such material as silk rep in old blue or old blue and tan would be excellent. Use thin square mesh ecru lace net in your French doors. Yes, have a window seat with a cushion neatly boxed and covered with chintz to match your draperies. Why not use a day bed in place of a couch? Make cylindrical pillows, one for each end.

Bright Sayings of Children

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, "Tribune," Chicago.



Jane was out in the back yard playing at the water trough. Her father, coming up back of her and not wishing her to play in the water, said, "Jane, get out of that water!" Jane, thinking it was her older brother, and not turning around to see, answered, "I'll get out when I am ready!" and turning around and seeing her father instead of her brother, said, "And I'se ready right now, papa!" A woman who lived in the suburbs af a small town kept a cow and sold milk to her neighbors. She also had a garden and some fruit trees in her back yard and a bed of strawberries along the front walk. Bessie, who went there every day to buy milk, found temptation on both sides. If she went the back way, there was the cherry tree, loaded with ripe, luscious cherries, and the front walk was lined with tempting strawberries. On one occasion when departing she stooped suddenly and snatched one of the strawberries. The woman, who evidently had been watching, called to her not to pick the berries. "No," Bessie answered, and hurried home. But after reciting her experience to her mother she complained: "She shouldn't have berries growing so near the walk to tempt little girls, if she is so stingy of one. R. P.

Two children playing together happily came to a disagreement and the older one, Reggie, started for home. Jack, regretting the quarrel, called "Good-night" to Reggie, who marched stolidly on, ignoring Jack. Jack called out again and, receiving no response, said, "Well, you don't need to answer, for I was not talking to you, anyway, only saying good-night to myself." H. M. P.

An acquaintance of mine has a little boy who is quite emphatic in his approval or disapproval of things. She was with him one day on a comfortably filled street car and his baby talk had attracted the passengers to him. A man with a small flag in his hat stood in front and, thinking to divert the little chap, his mother said, "Wouldn't you like to have the little flag?" Baby immediately responded in high treble, "Dat flag no dood!" The silence was immediate, and my friend felt that every one in the car was intent on them and wondering if baby's outburst was an indication of his parents' disloyalty. Embarrassed, and flushed, she pointed to a flag on the window and said, "O, you don't mean that. See pretty flag—your flag!" Baby, in a still higher pitched voice, said, "No, dat flag no dood!" Then, in a moment. "Want big flag, like dis," stretching his tiny arms to their greatest length. The tense silence was followed by the passengers' laughter and hand-clapping, and baby's loyalty was proved. D. A. B.

Charles came to his aunt's to stay for dinner. Instead of putting a spoon at his plate like he had been used to eating with, she put a knife and fork. When he came to the table he picked them up and said, "Auntie, take this knife and fork away; I ain't got no sense wif 'em." E. R.

Ellis went to visit his aunt, who had no children. When he would want to take or examine anything his aunt would say, "You mustn't touch that, dear." The next time his mother wanted to take him to visit his aunt, he began to cry, saying, "O, mamma, I don't want to go to Aunt Mary's. Everything there is musn'touch." MRS. M. H.

A Welcome for Johnnie.

O, yes, I well remember it. It was in the Spanish-American war period of 1898, when our regiment had been ordered from the north to go into camp at Savannah, Ga. We had disembarked at Savannah and were on our way to camp.

While passing through the settlement given over to the colored people we were ordered to halt. We boys stood around jollying and gassing with the colored population, when I espied a big fat colored "gal" on the sidewalk, and like a smart Aleck I called out, "Hello, Dinah!"

The most embarrassing moment of my life came immediately, for the big 250 pounds of Africa bounded off the sidewalk and threw both arms around me, exclaiming: "God bless your heart, Johnnie! What's you bin? Ah hasn't seen you fo' a long time."

Can't you hear the roar that went up along the line of soldier boys? Even to this day, when I meet any of the "old boys" that saw the incident, I have to take my medicine. J. W. H.

Minus One Spat.

While parading down one of the streets in the loop I noticed that every one looked at me. Being as homely as they make them, but perfectly healthy, I commenced to think I was getting better looking. After several passersby laughed out loud I looked at myself from head to toe and discovered that in my haste I had only one spat on. To make matters worse I had the spat on over a shoe and the top of the shoe was gray and the spat white. C. B. M.

Uninvited Dinner Guests.

Decidedly the most embarrassing time of my life was when my husband, five children and myself went to a neighbor's home for 6 o'clock dinner. We had just moved in the neighborhood, so felt much flattered at the attention given us by the invitation and was surprised at the way we were received and the many trips of the man of the house to the grocery store.

O, the just wrath of my husband on being greeted next day by an old friend with: "We waited dinner last evening until 8 o'clock."

I had gotten the names mixed when accepting the invitation over the telephone. H. B.

Broke on the Honeymoon.

In order to keep our marriage a secret my fiancé and I went to a neighboring town to be married. He took a $10 bill to cover the expenses of the trip and did not have occasion to break the bill until it came time to pay the minister. The minister, however, graciously thanked him for the $10 fee. Without a cent for the homeward trip my newly wedded husband was compelled to ask for change. J. W. M.

A CHILD DOESN'T LAUGH AND PLAY IF CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! Is tongue coated, breath feverish and stomach sour?

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—Advertisement.

You Can Peel Your Corn Off Just Like Dead Skin

Nothing Else as Simple, Easy and Painless as "Gets-It," the "Dead-Sure," Peel-It-Right-Off Corn Remedy.

"GETS-IT" for Corns and Calluses is one of the most remarkable discoveries of any age. It has saved millions from pain and agony. It has relieved the terrors caused by the modern tight shoe. It has made joy-walkers out of limpers. It has made the race smile.

Two drops of "Gets-It" will start you to freedom from the agony of a corn. Nothing known acts so marvelously, so painlessly. No longer need you lay aside your new shoes because you are afraid of pressure on your corn.

It Peels Your Corn Off in One Complete Piece, Painlessly

No more walking sideways or on the edge of your shoes trying to get away from corns, with your face wincing from corn-pains shooting to your heart. Take two or three minutes' vacation, put 2 drops of magic "Gets-It" on, and put your shoe and stocking or sock back on again. There's no work to do, no fussing around to get ready, no puttering or wrapping. Blessed relief! You can walk about with ease immediately afterward—or kick—from sheer joy!

"Gets-It"

The First and Only Discovery of Its Kind in Existence

Remember this—"Gets-It" makes your corn shrivel. It does not make your corn swell up into a white, gristly button and make corn-pains still more intense and unbearable. It gets away from the bundle-toe. If you wear a "cotton ring" or plaster, it makes your corns pop-eyed and bulge upward through the hole in the corn-plaster—it makes corns bigger, increases pressure and pain. None of that with "Gets-It." You can dance in comfort with your corns on, if you have used "Gets-It."

No More Fussing or Puttering With Corns, if You Use "Gets-It"

You can forget you have any corns at all, if you use "Gets-It." It is unnecessary to cut, jab, pick or gouge at your corns any more in a desperate effort to reduce the pain—if you use "Gets-It." Cutting corns, anyway, always makes them grow faster, makes toes sore, often makes them bleed, causing probable blood-poisoning and danger to life.

You Apply It in Two Seconds

"Gets-It" is the new way of getting rid of a corn. Millions of corn-pestered people have been quick to appreciate its wonderful work—and the result is that "Gets-It" is today the biggest-selling corn-remover in the whole wide world.

No matter how tough and obstinate your corn or callus may be, you simply apply 2 or 3 drops of "Gets-It" on it. It dries at once. That's all you have to do. You can put your sock or stocking and shoe right on, and walk about as though you had no corn at all. The corn begins to loosen from the true flesh, and then you can pick it right off like a banana peel. And your corn is gone!

There's Only One Genuine Corn-Peeler—"Gets-It"

Why make it miserable for yourself by using the old ways? Try "Gets-It" once, and you'll see the reason why it is today the National Corn-Remedy of America. Refuse plasters, salves and "contraptions." Do it the simple way that the common-sense millions use—buy "Gets-It" and end your corn-misery without fail. You needn't take our word for it—your first trial of "Gets-It" will prove it to you. Let no one tell you there is any corn-remover as good as "Gets-It"—there isn't any. "Gets-It" does "all" the work every time.

For 25c, You Get the Easiest Corn Remedy in the World; Never Fails, Painless

Science has up to the present minute discovered nothing as good, as simple, as wonderfully efficient as "Gets-It." It is the tried and true. We have constantly at work a corps of chemists in our own research laboratories. Their work is to search out improvements in our already remarkable products, if possible. If any improvement is found, you get the benefit. So "Gets-It" is always, and always has been, the very latest perfected discovery in corn remedies—and you can get this best corn and callus remover in existence for just 25 cents.

Every Corn Touched by "Gets-It" Is a "Dead Goner!"

Get relief at once. Take no chances of continued suffering by trying something which is alleged to be new—but use the self-same remedy that the jury of millions of people have used and are still using whenever they have corns, "GETS-IT."

"Gets-It" is sold everywhere at 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of the price by manufacturers, E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Remove Superfluous Hair the Toilet-Cream Way

You've tried everything so far known, perhaps, to remove superfluous hairs. Your skin has perhaps been irritated and reddened—and the removing of superfluous hairs has been a drudgery. All this is past and gone, now, with the new, easy, safe, "toilet-cream" way. "Solv-It" is a new, scientific discovery. It is as easy, as pleasant, as absolutely safe to use as a toilet cream. You get rid of superfluous hairs with the most remarkable ease—you don't mind it at all any more. You can use it every day, just as though you were applying your face cream. It leaves the skin smooth, white, soft—beautiful. It never reddens or irritates, and it never fails even on the thickest hairs. It cannot hurt the most delicate skin. Try it—you'll be surprised. "Solv-It" is put up in easy-to-use collapsible tubes, 60c. Sold at all drug stores, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Clean and Polish Your Teeth the New Way

It has been almost impossible to get off of the teeth everything that should come off, even by hard rubbing. That's because the ordinary pastes and powders are too soft. But now you can remove these substances almost like magic, with

POMONA
FRUIT FLAVOR
TOOTH CRÈME

It is because of the scientifically-composed "body" in Pomona that does all the cleansing, without hard rubbing. It cleanses the teeth as they were never cleansed before, on the visible surfaces, back surfaces, right up to the gums, and in the hard-to-get-at places. Your teeth will glisten with pearly whiteness. It leaves a new exquisite fruit-juice taste in the mouth. It has none of that usual "druggy" taste.

Buy a tube today and give yourself a surprise—35c a tube at all druggists, or sent direct on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Try This New Liquid Court Plaster

Try the new easy way of treating that cut, scratch, scraped skin, or small wound. Why fuss any more with old-fashioned, unsanitary, stiff court-plaster, and ugly bandages and other things when the new liquid, waterproof court-plaster is applied in two seconds, and gives absolute, pliable protection to any wound, and helps nature heal it quickly? You can wash right over "Coats-It," it never cracks, it is invisible, dirt-proof.

COATS-IT

"Coats-It" is an ideal Home Treatment for any minor injuries to the skin and soft parts. It makes a neater, cleaner dressing than anything else you can use.

"Coats-It" has hundreds of other uses about the home, in the library, at the office. Use it to prevent the skin of the hands from becoming callused from any cause.

"Coats-It" dries immediately. It is put up in tubes of two sizes, the 10c vest-pocket size, and the 35c traveler's size. Sold at all drug stores, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Red Cross volunteer workers have free use of our Ivory room, ninth floor, for making surgical dressings, etc. Official instructor is present.

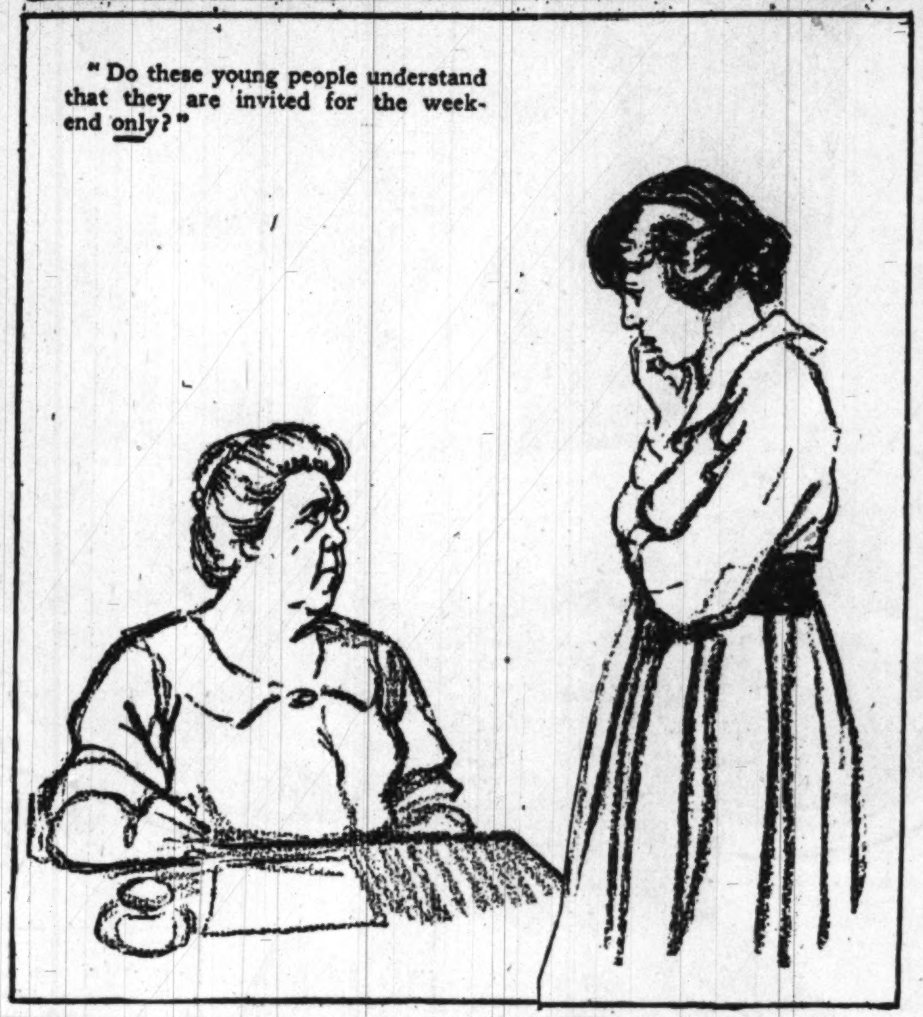
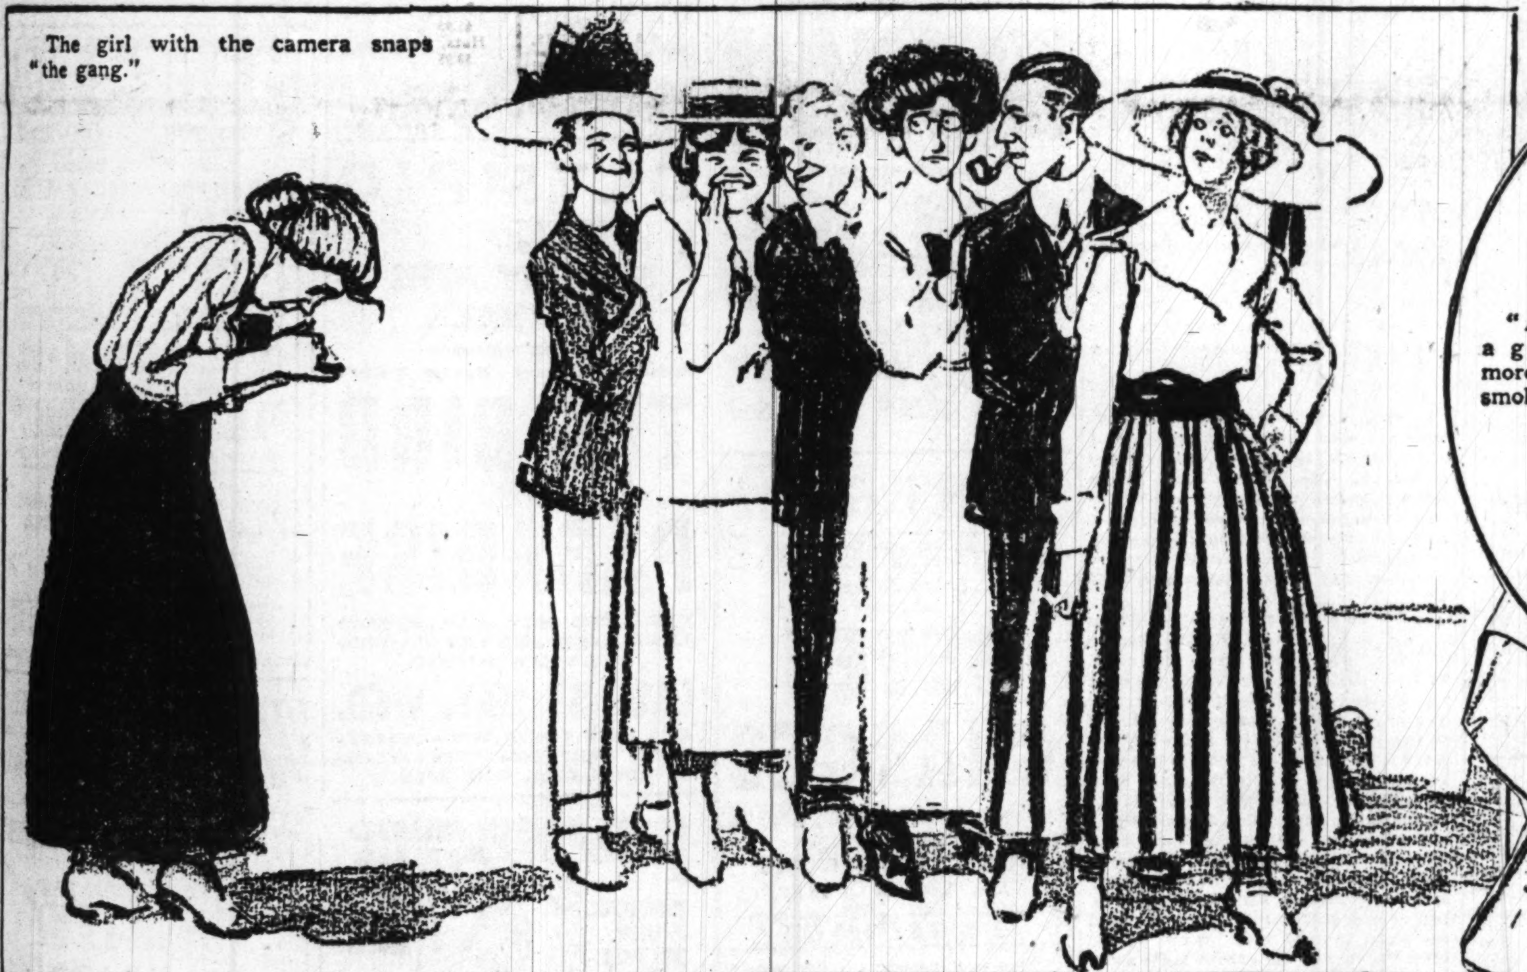
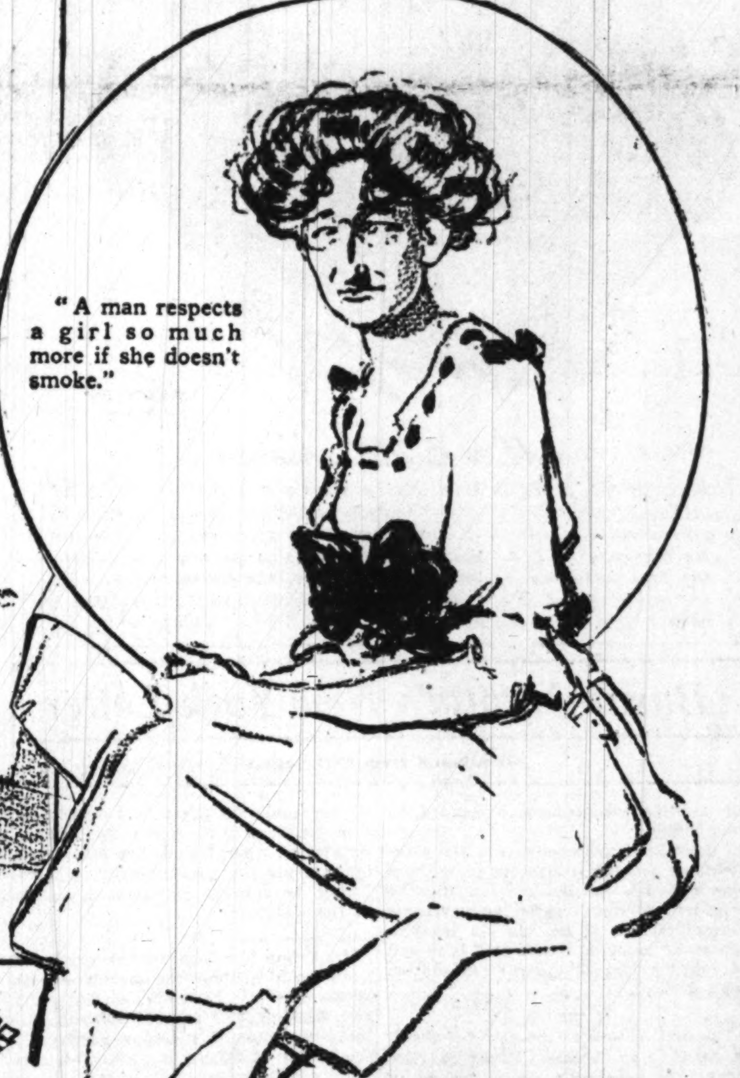
A little music in the evening. The comic boy does some clever pantomiming.



"Do these young people understand that they are invited for the week-end only?"



The girl with the camera snaps "the gang."



"A man respects a girl so much more if she doesn't smoke."

Summer News of the Theater

RING LARDNER is credited with the best of the several songs used by Bert Williams in this year's "Follies." Another Chicago interest in that entertainment has to do with Carl Hyson and Dorothy Dickson: they are dancing in it, in "O Boy!" and in Mr. Ziegfeld's roof-show, the Midnight Frolic. They take in each week twenty-five hundred dollars, it is said.

Informing Mr. Lardner of his first success as a troubadour, Mr. Williams telegraphs him as follows:

"Congratulations. After many years you have written a great big hit." BERT WILLIAMS."

An impending matrimonial venture, according to the dramatic trade papers, is that of Miss Pauline Frederick and Willard Mack, author of "Kick In" and recently the husband of Miss Marjorie Rambeau.

The latest of the Saturday Evening Post fables to be dramatized is "Piccadilly Jim," by P. G. Wodehouse, who will call it "Fifty-Fifty."

Spoken of as a bad actor by a Sacramento dramatic critic, Henry Miller announces that he will never appear in that city again. Never!

Henry Askin, for years the executive head of the Grand and the La Salle opera houses, and recently manager of the Hippodrome, New York, as been appointed manager of the Century theater there.

Maude Fealy and James Durkin, once leading man of the Chicago New theater, are planning to be divorced.

Following the grand opera next season the Auditorium will have "The Wanderer," a melodramatic and spectacular version of the parable of the prodigal son.

William Elliott and F. Ray Comstock have purchased for exhibition in America an oriental fantasy called "Chu Chin Chow," now a great success in London. It is a tale of old Bagdad by Oscar Asche, with music by Frederic Norton.

Alan Brooks will call it enough tonight, when his play of "Dollars and Sense" will be acted for the last time in the Princess.

Mitzi, the Hungarian soubrette formerly known as Mizzi Hajos, is to experiment this week in a New England town with an operetta: if good, it will be her implement for next season. Her part is a circus-acrobat.

John Drew is to act in "The Gay Lord Quex": the notion seems, in advance, good. John Hare brought the play to Chicago in 1901, on his last tour of the United States; and it was then the opinion here, as elsewhere, that he was miscast. Irene Vanbrugh and the late W. S. Gilbert's once-celebrated protégé, Miss Fortuscue, were in Hare's company; and the former left a lasting memory by her acting in the grateful part of Sophie Fulgarney, the manicurist. Mrs. Carter once tried this part with dire results; and Rose Stahl has given it a measure of attention since somebody told her that it would be a fine medium for her.

Mr. Drew prospered in "Major Pendennis" in communities not so metropolitan in surface aspect as Chicago and New York. He did not end his tour till a week ago.

Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr, who originated the roles in the first of the Potash-Perlmutter pieces, four years ago, will be together again next season in the third of the series, tentatively called "The Potash & Perlmutter Film Company."

Miss Frances Freyne joins the Lieb-Harris Players for this week's revival in the Wilson-Avenue Theater of "Potash & Perlmutter." The name is assumed for the stage: she is a young Chicago singer for whom the opera-hounds are predicting a brilliant career in the lyric drama because of an equipment of voice, personality, and temperament which has been revealed at a number of drawing-room musicales.

"U. S. A." is the name of next season's New York Hippodrome show. Sousa will be in it, with his band; and he and Raymond Hubbell, who drew his first royalties on "Chow-Chow," a piece he composed for the La Salle, are to make the music.

Digby Bell, who died last Wednesday in New York, made his last light-opera tour in 1910 as Ko-Ko in the revival of "The Mikado" which had Fritzi Scheff as the star. He was not happy that season: "The Mikado" meant nothing to her save $300 a performance, but meant a lot to Bell, who had Sullivan's own word for it that he was a fine Ko-Ko when, in 1885, the opera was imported. Miss Scheff did not care to have comedians in her company.

George M. Cohan went to Raymond Hitchcock's rescue the day before the latter's revue, "Hitchey-Koo," was to be shown in New York, and not only did a quick job of condensation and speeding-up, but also provided the star with the words and music of a new song. This ditty, it seems, is the hit of the entertainment.

Irene Bentley, off the stage ten years since "The Belle of Mayfair," is to return next season in "Rambler Rose," which will have Julia Sanderson and Joseph Cawthorn as stars. Donald Brian is to go into "Her Regiment."

Bairnsfather, some of whose witty cartoons of the war from the English angle have been printed in THE TRIBUNE, is trying his hand at the drama. A piece of his called "The Better 'Ole" [the ellipsis is for H] is to have Arthur Bourchier as its chief actor. Capt. Bairnsfather already has had stage-trial as part-writer of one of the numberless London revues.

H. B. Irving, whose American experiences in 1906-07 discouraged him from coming again, has been acting two of his father's famous parts, the old corporal of "Waterloo" and the murderer of "The Bells," in London. The critics say he is just as good as his father was.

Charles Irwin, who comes now-and-then to the Majestic or Palace to tell stories in Scotch dialect, is next season to play Clifton Crawford's part in "Her Soldier Boy."

Nora Bayes and the two-a-day magnates have accommodated their differences; and she has been taken from the black-list. She and that one of her former husbands for whom she did most [professionally], Jack Norworth, are to share the electric sign next week in a New York City theater. He, later, will take Miss Lillian Lorraine as a team-mate.

Miss Jane Cowl, deciding that it is her duty "at a time like this" to make 'em laugh, explains that she will abandon the play she wrote for herself, "Lilac-Time," and perform in a comedy. Another play of her making, "Daybreak," was tried out last week in Atlantic City, with Miss Hilda Spong as its principal player.

"A Man's Home" is a play about lounge-lizards by Edmund Breese, who feels strongly on the subject, although he does not take part in the performances.

Figuring that the pay of the average soldier in camp will be $42 a month, and that he will have nothing else to do with it, some patriotic theatrical managers plan to do their bit by forming a vaudeville circuit which will have its tangents wherever the men are in training. The plan, if it goes through, will save the recruits from worrying about what to do with the $42.

Burns Mantle's New York Letter

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Congratulations on your new Ravinia season! I have just been talking with some of the folk at the Metropolitan opera-house offices. They are genuinely impressed with the increasing importance of the enterprise. With that superior provincialism of our fellow townsmen they have been looking upon it for the last few years as worthy, but—you know—quite westehn.

But this year, when your Louis Eckstein quietly drifted in, signed Gennaro Papi as one of his conductors, and took Edith Mason as an additional soprano, and the lads and lassies around about the opera heard that their beloved Rosina Galli had been reëngaged, and that Hageman was going back for another year, and that several of the Chicago company were staying on—they suddenly came to look upon Ravinia as a place decidedly worth while.

I suspect the engagement of Papi was what most impressed them. This young man has not only established for himself a fine, substantial reputation as a conductor this last season but he commands an astonishing popularity as well. Where Papi goes the best of the Metropolitan singers would not hesitate to follow, and the enterprise that Papi indorses is, I gather, artistically established with these exclusives through their belief and faith in him.

He is, in a manner of speaking, a "homebred." For a number of years he has been a conductor at the Metropolitan, doing all those things for which the younger fellows are paid, but seldom given credit—directing rehearsals, coaching new singers, smoothing out new scores with the orchestra, and other imperative tasks. Gradually his reputation for a very genuine artistic sense and thoroughness of method grew, both with orchestra and singers. "Let Papi do it," they tell me, became a frequent suggestion possessing a significance all its own. So, quite naturally, when Bavagnoli failed to harmonize completely with his new surroundings the directors were advised from every side to "let Papi try" the bigger job.

They did let him try, and no conductor, however great his reputation, has ever scored so immediately with the rather critical Metropolitan subscribers as did this newcomer. He conducted practically all the Italian operas last season, achieving a particularly fine success with "The Elixir of Love," the best of the novelties and the one in which Caruso took a new hold upon the loyalty of his aged following.

Galli, as you know, goes back with her success in "Iphegenia in Tauris" still ringing pleasantly in her ears. If it had not been for her and the Grecian dance with which she illuminated that work the management is ready to agree in its whispered confession that particu-

ROSINA GALLI is so ill, the Ravinia Park management explains, as to be unable to take her scheduled part in the first weeks of the season, starting next Saturday night. Carolina White, previously announced for some special performances later in the summer, is to come for the entire ten weeks, making her first appearance at the opening in an excerpt from "The Jewels of the Madonna."

Miss White, after Ravinia, is to try operetta: she and Donald Brian are to be the somebodies in the cast of "Her Regiment," which is Victor Herbert's new opus.

Zenatello and his wife, Maria Gay, are at the head of a project to give opera coöperatively: that is, with the singers taking a chance instead of insisting on a fixed fee irrespectively of the public's reaction to their plea. The Zenatellos, who are believed to be wealthy, were investors in the Boston-Pavlowa venture, which, it is thought, will not be pursued farther. They have enlisted, so far, Maggie Teyte, Luisa Villani, Florence Macbeth, and Anna Fitziu, of singers known in Chicago, and, it is said, Polacco, Toscanini's successor in the Metropolitan, as conductor. They have done better than that in enlisting, however: Otto Kahn says that they may advertise him as chairman of the honorary committee of the venture; that they may give Gatti-Casazza a line in the ads as honorary advisory director; that they may inform the communities visited that they are under the auspices and patronage of and affiliated with the Metropolitan, itself. This, perhaps, is to be the instrument of punishment for Campanini—a sort of vicarious reprisal. The enterprise is styled the Artists' Opera Association.

Campanini's formal prospectus for his New York City venture lists for revival Meyerbeer's "Dinorah" as well as "L'Africaine," announced for last season in Chicago, but not given; Bellini's "I Puritani," Verdi's "Ernani," Massenet's "Sapho," and "Don Quixote," with "Lakmé," "Pelléas and Mélisande," and "Fédora." He has, apparently, dropped his notion of giving Giordani's "Siberia," a stupid and futile piece.

Eleanor Painter, an American singer as yet unknown in Chicago, is to try the tuneless drama in a sample, "The Pursuit of Pamela," by Chester Bailey Fernald: his "The Cat and the Cherub" was a measurable sensation twenty years ago. The newer piece has had a London hearing, with the lovely Gladys Cooper in the chief part. Miss Painter, after a start on the opera-stage in Europe, came home to sing for Andreas Dippel in the New York City run of "The Lilac Domino," and afterward successfully took part there in Victor Herbert's "Princess Pat." She was, in the former piece, vis-à-vis with a shaven baritone named Wilfred Douthitt: he changed his name to Louis Graveure, called himself a Belge, grew whiskers, and was married to her. He was among Miss Kinsolving's entertainers last season in her Blackstone Hotel musicales.

Miss Kinsolving has already made up her schedule for next season's series: as before, Tuesdays at eleven in the morning. Matzenauer and Percy Grainger will divide the first program, November 6. Theo Karle and Mischa Levitski, Anna Case and Francis Macmillen, Pablo Casals and Adelaide Fischer, and, for the final morning, Eddy Brown and Arthur Alexander. Levitski gave a mid-season recital in The Playhouse, and definitely in that one hearing placed himself as an entity. Eddy Brown's success was one of the notable matters of the Orchestra's season. Arthur Alexander delighted those who heard him one Monday afternoon in Orchestra Hall foyer, where he played to his own singing. Miss Kinsolving's roster is an excellent reason for getting up those especial Tuesday mornings.

Bizet's "The Fair Maid of Perth" was early in the month given its first London performance by Sir Thomas Beecham's company, with Mignon Nevada in the chief part. Some of the music of this opera is known in the United States through its being included in concert programs: Mr. Stock used part of it last season in one of the Orchestra's Pops.

"Louise," "The Girl of the Golden West," and "Boris Godunoff" also are made known in London by Beecham, who is using Drury-Lane, with its 3,200 seats.

Fritz Kreisler has been talked and printed about as considering a deal whereby he would take the founder's place as head of the Kneisels and hold the quartet together. He has arranged to do this for three performances next season in New York City, with his share of the receipts going to the Musicians' Foundation. Franz Kneisel's son-in-law, Willeke, 'cellist of the quartet, has been making plans to enter the lists as a recitalist: his plan is to divide the programs with pianists of distinction.

Posthumous comment on Teresa Carreño brings out that she did not, despite widespread belief to the contrary, compose the national hymn of her native land, Venezuelo: this anthem, beginning "Glory to the Brave People!" was written in 1810 by José Landaeta. One of the gifted woman's daughters, the eldest, is the wife of a brother of Hans Tauscher, Gadski's husband.

Edgar Stillman Kelley, regarded thirty years ago as the white hope of American music, has been made a doctor-of-laws by the University of Cincinnati, where he teaches. Orville Wright received like distinction at the same time. Kelley's essay in rococo-Japanese, "Lady Picking Mulberries," persists as an item in countless collections of piano-pieces.

"Carminetta" is a Paris operetta which has been as successful there from all accounts as anything else in war-time. It is listed among next season's importations. Emile Lassailly wrote the score.

The veteran Jimmy Glover, known to every American musician who has tarried more than overnight in London, has been experimenting in England with the light-opera répertoire of the eighties—"The Chimes of Normandy," "The Mascot," and Chassaigne's "Falka," among other pieces. Chassaigne's music has disappeared even from the entr'acte stockpot of the orchestra-leaders in the theaters; but it was as good as anything composed for the format: Offenbach, himself, wrote nothing better than "Falka" and "Nadjy."

"Perhaps he is. We lived in Gary."

"Oh, is that so? I know the American consul there."

"They used to ring the curfew at 9 o'clock in Gary, but they had to stop it. It woke everybody up."

"Are you temperate?"

"Yes, indeed. I never drop a drink."

"How old are you?"

"I'm just going on 16."

"Well, go on, go on!"

"I live in Detroit now."

"O, Detroit! That's where those things come from."

"Father used to own one of the largest furniture houses in Detroit. But he failed."

"Why?"

"Is your name Bill?"

"Well, I was born on the first of the month."

"When I wanted to marry you several years ago, your father told me that $500 a year wouldn't keep you in handkerchiefs, so I told him I'd wait till your cold got better. That was too much to blow in."

Three of this year's Ravinia Park singers are in the picture. Miss Ingram, whom "The Tribune" regards as the best young contralto in present activity, will be the soloist of the Wagner program there on Monday night, July 2. Miss White and Miss Mason will take part in the first performance, next Saturday night—the former in the duet and finale of Act II of "The Jewels of the Madonna"; Miss Mason as Nedda in "I Pagliacci."

Burns Mantle's New York Letter

lar novelty would have amounted to very little.

I don't know whether or not Mr. Eckstein has had any trouble inducing these bigger artists of the Metropolitan to consider Ravinia park engagements heretofore, but if he has his troubles are over. Another season and they will be meeting him at the railway station with a band.

The first episode in the new "Follies" is called "An Arabian Night in New York," set, apparently, on the roof of an apartment house while the residents are giving an exceedingly fancy dress ball.

There is at back one of those sweeping blue skies in which Joseph Urban, the scenic artist, specializes. In the middle distance a plastered wall of cream white, broad enough at top for a double line of marching choristers. Below the wall a semi-circular table spread with golden dishes heaped with fruit and bathed in the amber light that is the same Urban's second choice of colors. And in the foreground a row of silken cushions.

As the overture melted into the introductory musical number the opening night certain of the principals sauntered on, coming up from below stairs on the other side of the wall, and from either side of the stage. They were followed by the chief beauties of the chorus, gowned this time by Lady Duff-Gordon, each of them stopping momentarily to pose on top of the wall, as one saying: "You see, ladies and gentlemen, I, too, am wearing nothing, and yet fear not, for I am completely clothed. Thank heaven for the man who invented the union suit."

Consciously, and yet with so much unconscious grace as it had been possible for the directors to teach them during a month's rehearsing, the beauties worked their way toward the cushions fringing the footlights and carelessly cast themselves upon them.

Quite shameless, these show beauties; quite wonderfully shameless. Proud they were of their youth and their white shoulders, and trained in the ways of a brozen display that skillfully draws the line just one paragraph this side of the civil law dealing with minor crimes and misdemeanors. A calm crew, too, and one that peers wide-eyed over the blinding "foots" and into the very center of the spotlights' glare in a search for expected faces in the first rows; smiling, sometimes, when friends are discovered, but playing the game, mostly, and refusing to publicly recognize intimates in the audience.

Mr. Urban has done nothing scenically more beautiful than this opening episode of the current "Follies," and the crafty Mr. Ziegfeld has never displayed his beauties to more generous purpose in the matter of display in any of his previous entertainments. A hungry infant might create a riot in this opening scene, but, pshaw, whoever would think of taking an infant to the "Follies!"

This, the eleventh of the series, is easily the most gorgeous of all the Ziegfeldian entertainments. Not the wittiest nor yet the most entertaining, but the most costly and therefore the most beautiful. He paid out, declares the generous Florenz, $100,000 in staging it. And he considered he was doing a patriotic act when he did so. This, argues the manager, is no time to hoard money. Hurrah for the red, white, and blue silks and chiffon! Let's keep the boys and girls at work.

Following this incident of the silken cushions and the double exposures the "Follies" swings into its usual search for the comic interlude. And has the same trouble finding it. It is customary to marvel at this. "Why should Mr. Ziegfeld spend a fortune on scenery and costumes and never a cent on wit?" is the cry. "Where, O, where, is the librettist worthy of a decorator such as Urban?"

And the answer is a double header. First, there's no such person, and, second, if there were he couldn't prove it because no manager would give him a chance. Comedy, to get into the "Follies," must be comedy to Florenz Ziegfeld, just as anything that is put into a Winter Garden revue must first be approved by Jacob Shubert, or anything that goes into a Klaw & Erlanger spectacle acceptable to Mr. Erlanger.

These men are experienced selectors of entertainment for the people to whom they expect to sell entertainment; their sense of what is funny and what is not funny is no more limited than that of any other individual, which is quite limited enough. But the experience that defeats them, and the experience that makes for dull spectacles, and throws all the burden on the girls and the scenery, is that deadly experience of listening day in and day out to rehearsals.

Even a good joke will not stand many repetitions, and think of listening to a George V. Hobart or even a B. L. T. joke or a George Ade joke told and retold daily for three weeks! Do you wonder that the day invariably arrives when the manager orders it cut out and a new one substituted? Or that by the time the "show" is ready the libretto has practically been written and rewritten a dozen times? Or that by the time the public sees it, it is, as to wit, usually hopeless? If you do you can put in your time to better advantage marveling that it ever reaches production at all.

However, this theory of why these affairs are what they are is probably of little interest to any one away from Broadway. The "Follies" will be an entirely made-over entertainment by the time it reaches other amusement centers. And doubtless as good in the comedy department as it is exceptional in investiture. For it has a star cast to build with.

So, let us return to the ladies. There is another episode called "The Garden of Girls." A pretty thing, this, with part of the music by Victor Herbert and the costumes by Lady Duff-Gordon. The prima donna sings a song relating to the virtues of flowers and when she reaches the chorus she pretends to sprinkle seed upon a trap in the stage floor. Immediately, these seeds being excessively fertile, the garden of girls begins to bloom and up through the trap, garbed in all the glory of the posies they represent, rise the Misses Pansy and Forget-me-not, Cornflower and Violet, Orchid and Rose, and so on until the stage is lined with them. Whereupon the rear of the garden fades away and there at back, in two huge, iridescent reflectors, appear two Venuses de Ziegfeld ready for the bath. "Bubbles," the program calls them, but they are nothing like as light as air.

Again there is "The Episode of Chiffon." And this is where Lady Duff-Gordon shines. It really is a fashion parade, a line of models emerging from between the folds of chiffon curtains in all the later than latest designs in things for rich ladies to wear. A Miss Hopkins, for instance, appears in a gown described by L. D.-G. as a "Terrible Temptation," and we can believe it. A Miss Tashman wears "A Symbol of Change and Emotion," which is very beautiful, but not much to speak of in the matter of cloth. A Miss Wallace fills out the folds of a dainty thing called "Lonely Loveliness Means Danger," and Miss Arthur, representing "The Call of the Wild"—but we know little of these things. It is enough to say that it is a quite unusual display.

And there is a scene near the close, called "The Episode of the Chinese Lacquer," decorated at back with a network of crossed ladders extending from far below stage to a point in the flies beyond the view of the audience. As the prima donna sings the song that goes with this effect the chorus, half the girls coming up the ladders from below and half down from above, march rhythmically to the time of the tune, executing a series of evolutions that gives an effect not unlike that of the old Chinese puzzle that apparently fell all apart as you twisted it in your hand, yet always remained in perfect working order.

There are the scenic high lights of this expensive entertainment. And when you know that Bert Williams, Will Rogers, Eddie Cantor, Walter Catlett, W. C. Fields, the juggler, and Fannie Brice are the comedians you probably will wonder why there is no comedy. When they confine themselves to their specialties there is.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE AS A STAR.

It will be interesting to watch the work of Constance Talmadge at the head of her own company. She has always been popular, but when "Intolerance" came she proved one of the big hits with that spectacular production. So vivid an impression did she make on Mr. Selznick of the Selznick Enterprises that he "kept tab on her," as the saying is, with the result that she is now one of the stars of his organization.

Do you look like William S. Hart? There are a number of long, lean gentlemen we know who, having been told by somebody or other that they resemble the "good bad man" of pictures, take pride in the mirrored visages that never before struck them as being anything out of the ordinary. A picture of Mr. Hart, which may be found in another part of the paper as a supplement, may, it is suggested, be held beside your countenance—providing you're of male persuasion—before a reliable mirror in order that you may prove to your own satisfaction whether or not there is the longed for resemblance.

William Desmond's new picture will be called "Timelock and Diamonds." As you may suppose from the title, it is one of those gentlemanly crook stories.

The initiation of Olive Thomas, that cunning thing from the Ziegfeld shows, was certainly something to make even the most enthusiastic actress sit down and cogitate. Here's what happened to her: Three days in a gymnasium and a whole day in the rain, sitting in the mud under an automobile. Then nearly a week on roller skates and riding on the back of a calf, who's back, Miss Thomas declares, "was just like a broom handle."

Read what Gilson Willets, the scenario writer, says about scenarios:

> A motion picture scenario as such is a nuisance. The detailed scenario, I mean, which purports to give action scene by scene technically correct for the director. In a majority of the motion picture manufacturing companies' offices the detailed synopses are never read. And when they are read by the scenario staff they are seldom read by the director who is given the script to produce. The idea is the thing. So it is the synopsis that carries the idea. The synopsis should not be too long, either. It should present clearly, and as briefly as possible, the idea or the plot the author has in mind. It is the idea and the boiled down plot, after all, that is desired.
> The author's ideas as to locations, as to finely written subtitles, etc., are generally valueless. Of course, I am alluding to the work of the free lance author and not to the writer in the studio, who may be working side by side with some director and who is advised just what scenic action is essential to put down on paper.
> There have been many textbooks written on the art of writing movie scenarios. Volumes have been printed in magazines and other publications. Many of these articles and books contain beneficial information. But when these articles and books purport to teach the art of writing scenarios, to tell how scenic action must be written, to my mind they are valueless. The reason is that scenarios cannot be produced as written; that the film companies do not want detailed scenarios, but synopses of plots.

The Metro stars are long on pets. Emmy Wehlen has a dog, Mabel Taliaferro a cat, and Beverly Bayne birds. Viola Dana has the queerest pet of all, which is a green back turtle. This acquisition is named John or Helen, and is said to be the most intelligent creature. Since acquiring John or Helen, Miss Dana has learned all about turtles. Turtles grow an inch a year, she says. Such being the case, John or Helen is not very old. She feeds him raw ant eggs, because the doctor said raw eggs are nourishing. (Believe this last if you want to—I don't.)

Charles Chaplin, it is said, responded to the selective draft call and is willingly waiting his turn to declare himself.

"Two Little Imps" is the name of the picture shortly to be released by Fox, in which Jane and Katherine Lee play the leads.

June Mathis, the Metro's scenario editor, is the possessor of a one-third interest in some large potash deposits in Murraysville, Utah. If things turn out as well as she expects them to, Miss Mathis will not need to write scenarios for a living.

The Goldwyn Pictures corporation announces it has won the honor of opening the annual exposition of the Motion Picture league, which is to be held at the Coliseum beginning Saturday, July 14. The first day of the convention will be known and advertised as May Marsh day. Miss Marsh is expected to arrive in Chicago on the morning of the 14th, accompanied by the big men of the Goldwyn corporation.

Pearl White is filling the aching void left by the exile of Annastia, her pig, with Darwin, a monkey. It is said that Darwin is the sole possessor of the information as to the present location of seven watches, four scarf pins, two rings, three hand mirrors, about $12 in change, one bottle of perfume, five nail files, three packages of chewing gum, two sticks of lip rouge, and other articles not mentioned. We surmise that he is popular with his mistress—and just his mistress.

The management of "The Deemster," now being shown at the La Salle theater, is arranging a series of special performances for high school pupils, to which they will be admitted at a reduced rate when provided with a card from their history or literature teachers. The film follows so closely the story of Hall Caine's great novel and the costuming and scenic effects are so true to the period that it is believed the picture will be of great value to the students, both as to a better understanding of Hall Caine's works and to arouse a greater interest in the study of the customs and manners of the early eighteenth century.

Ora Carew's favorite hobby is taking the neighborhood kiddies auto riding through the long, scented evenings.

Charles Murray wants to know—
Is a horse fly?
Is an ink well?
Is a bed spring?
Is a bird song?
Is a copper lining?
Is a paper weight?
Is a book worm?
Is a cuspi door?
Is a shirt waist?
Is a glass plate?
Is a sealing wax?
Is a boot leg?
Is a cow pony?
Is a bar tender?
Is a rose wood?
Is a shoe string?
Is a bird dog?
Is a shoe horn?
Is a bay rum?
Is a corset cover?
Is a rope ladder?
Is a window shade?
Is a sea sick?
Is a drug store?
Is a key stone?
For heaven's sake, somebody tell him!

Douglas Fairbanks had a birthday recently. He says smilingly everybody came across and a nice time was had by him.

Seventy-five thousand dollars was subscribed by the Lasky employés for Liberty bonds.

Marshall Neilan has returned to California from his vacation in New York. He will direct the third Mary Pickford picture to be made in the west, it is said.

Pslams of Life

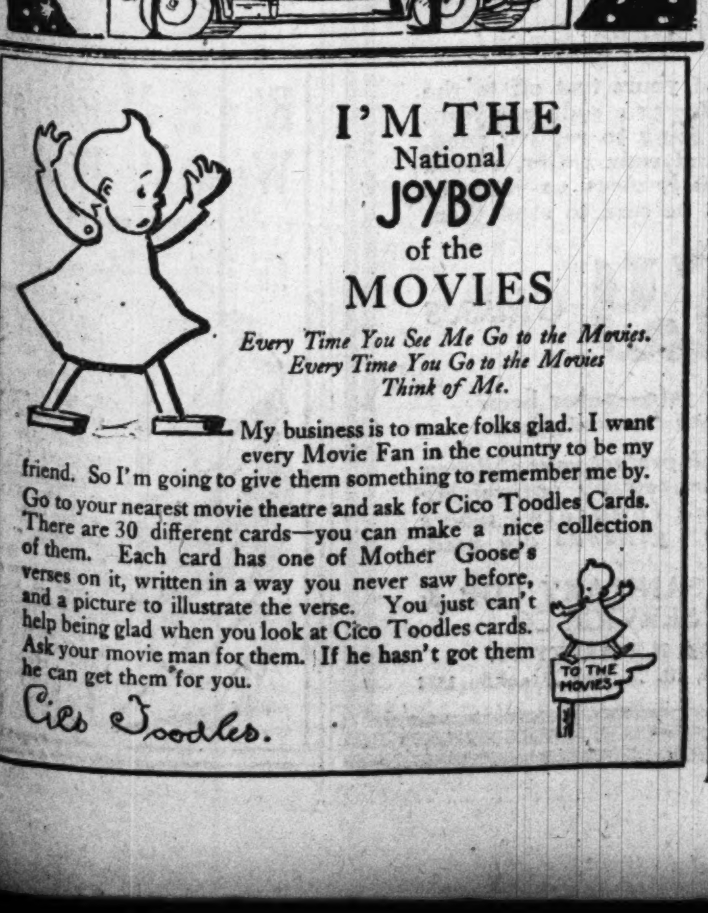
by J. P. McEvoy

LINES TO OFFICER NO. 2379.

He smiled at me!
He didn't curse and swear
And gnash his teeth and tear his flowing hair,
Ah, no, not he,
But gently on my fender did he lay
His hand and in a soothing voice did say:
"You must not park your car in loading zones."
Another would have bust out into groans
And moans
And call down curses on my fragile bones;
But Two Three Seven Nine—
That officer divine—
He was not guilty of such crueltee,
Ah, no, not he:
He smiled at me.

He smiled at me,
And speechless I became.
It was a new and unaccustomed game,
For I could see
The thousand others who had stopped my bus
And handed me some new official cuss,
And sprinkled raucous phrases o'er the lea,
And rudely whittled on my family tree—
I say, I saw
The thousand others who laid down the law
With so much jaw,
So when this officer, who has his stand
At Madison and Dearborn, laid his hand
Upon my car and softly said his say,
It took my breath away—
He knocked me dead, did he—
He smiled at me.

He smiled at me,
His neck took on no redder hue,
His words were not a bright sulphuric blue;
Ah, no sirree!
A gentleman was he of courteous mien,
Who saw, perhaps, I had an oblate bean,
And chided me, but did not make a scene.
And so I thank him in these stanzas three
For what he did, I thank him earnestlee—
He smiled at me.



I'M THE National JOYBOY of the MOVIES

Every Time You See Me Go to the Movies. Every Time You Go to the Movies Think of Me.

My business is to make folks glad. I want every Movie Fan in the country to be my friend. So I'm going to give them something to remember me by. Go to your nearest movie theatre and ask for Cico Toodles Cards. There are 30 different cards—you can make a nice collection of them. Each card has one of Mother Goose's verses on it, written in a way you never saw before, and a picture to illustrate the verse. You just can't help being glad when you look at Cico Toodles cards. Ask your movie man for them. If he hasn't got them he can get them for you.

Cico Toodles.

ASK ME! ASK ME!

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

GERTRUDE H.: I assure you that the companies are so glad when a new plot unfolds itself before their eyes that they care not at all if technique is omitted from the writing of the plot. As a matter of fact, they would much rather have the idea sent them in story form. Marguerite Clark is with the Famous Players company, 130 West Fifty-sixth street, New York.

INTERESTED: What is meant by "clinch"? Let's see. Clinch is describing the action of the leading man and woman just before "the end."

FLORENCE: Following is the cast of "The Hawk": Count George de Dazetta, Earle Williams; Marina, his wife, Ethel Grey Terry; Rene de Tierrache, Denton Vane; Mme. de Tierrache, Julia Swayne Gordon; Marquis de Sardaloup, Mario Majeroni; Jeannine Duperre, Katherine Lewis. You are entirely welcome.

DAN C.: If you send me any more postal cards like that I will break away and never stop running until I get to the woods! Tell me, Dan C., are the fish biting?

C. G.: Yes, I have a list of the various studios which I shall take great pleasure in mailing you, if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

H. L. P.: Don't apologize. It wasn't your fault: Besides, I think the outcome was splendid. Write again.

DANIEL B.: You are not what you pretend to be. You see, I am a penmanship expert. Ormi Hawley was with the Fox Film company, 130 West Forty-sixth street, New York, the last I heard. Not that I know of. Who ever told you to send a dollar for a photo? A quarter is ample and some of the stars are glad to mail their pictures on request. Quite a collection, I should say. Glad to have heard from you.

G. U.: The cast of "The Empress" is as follows: The man, Holbrook Blinn; the model, Doris Kenyon; the artist, William Morse; the woman in the dark, Lyne Donaldson. Not always.

B. M. T.: I should say I consider your title a good one. I doubt, however, whether it will find favor with those to whom you sent it.

H. E.: I agree with you that the Washburns are a delightful family. I am awfully glad I printed the picture, since it gave you pleasure. If you want to make somebody happy, you keep right on loving that somebody, 15 year old. Write again some time.

YVONNE: You have a regular story book name, haven't you? Norma Talmadge is with Selznick, Forty-ninth street and Seventh avenue, New York; Grace Cunard and Mignon Anderson are with Universal Film company, Universal City, Cal.; Alice Joyce is with Vitagraph, East Fifteenth street and Locust avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.; and Elsie Ferguson is with Artcraft, 729 Seventh avenue, New York. Yes, indeed. How could I forget?

DOLLIE D.: I shall not answer your letter in the paper because I don't believe you really want me to. Send me a stamped, addressed envelope and I shall tell you honestly just what I think. If you decide not to do this, do a little thinking for yourself, my dear. You've a wise little head, I'm sure—if you only care to use it. But I'd love to write you, Dollie D.!

MRS. M.: It was Harry Benham you saw in the Thanhouser production, "Helen's Babies." He had not left that company then. Lorraine Huling played the part of Alice Mayton. Helen Badgley was Budge and Baby Stewart was Toddie.

THIS GETS A LAUGH FROM SOME IN VAUDEVILLE

RIALTO.

Bell and Mayo:

Ain't your name Edna Mayo?

Yes, that's my name.

Haven't you got a currant mark just above your knee?

Not a currant mark—a strawberry mark.

I know it's some kind of a berry.

Say, how do you know it's just above my knee?

I've seen it.

Sir, how dare you!

Don't get excited. I saw it when you were 5 years old.

I don't remember seeing you before.

Don't you remember little Irving Bell, who used to play with mud pies?

You're not Irving?

I'm Irving.

Irving Bell, who used to play hookey from school?

That's me.

Not Irving Bell who all the boys used to call monkeyface?

Never mind, now.

Well, Irving, I'm glad to see you. Put it there. (Holds out hand. He clasps.)

And I'm doubly glad to see you, because there is a great secret connected with your family history that I wish to unfold to you.

A secret connected with my family history?

Yes, a secret concerning your father.

Why, my father died while I was a baby.

But you never heard how he died.

No, I never did.

It's a long, sad story and I promised your mother I would never disclose it to you until you're 40 years old.

But I'm not 40 years old yet.

Then I can't tell you.

O, you brute, you know I'm crazy to hear the story of my father's death.

But I can't tell you till you're 40.

Then I suppose I'll have to own up. I am 40.

And now tell me, how did my father die?

[To melodramatic music] One cold winter night in the middle of July your father took your mother to a revival.

A revival?

Yes, a revival of "The Black Crook." In the second act twenty-five dashing young women appeared in tights.

Yes, yes.

Your father was enchanted by the scene, when suddenly one of the young women bent over, and in doing so ripped her tights. Immediately there was a scene of wild confusion on the stage and the manager stepped quickly to the footlights and asked if any one would please oblige with a pin [sobs] and your poor father——

Yes, yes.

Your father was killed in the rush.

McVICKER'S.

Knight and Carlyle:

I'm surprised that you, you whom I have always regarded as an upright member of society, should turn out to be a chicken thief.

No, sir, I ain't a chicken thief.

Your next door neighbor says that you are a chicken thief.

No, sir; he is mistaken.

Didn't you enter his henhouse the other night and take six of his chickens?

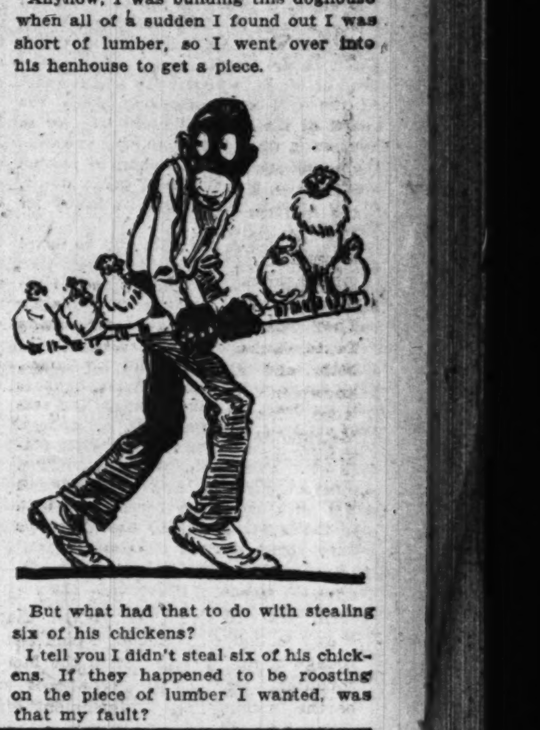
No, sir, I didn't. It was like this: I was building a doghouse.

Yes, you were building a doghouse.

And, by the way, I want you to come over and sleep in it some time.

Don't get smart.

Anyhow, I was building this doghouse when all of a sudden I found out I was short of lumber, so I went over into his henhouse to get a piece.



But what had that to do with stealing six of his chickens?

I tell you I didn't steal six of his chickens. If they happened to be roosting on the piece of lumber I wanted, was that my fault?

Navy Relief Ball to End Big Day at Great Lakes

By Mme. X.

OF course you're going to that navy relief ball at the Great Lakes naval training station next Thursday. It's going to be Navy day from 10 o'clock in the morning until half past 11 in the evening. Therefore, if you're so minded, you can put in a long, thrilling day there, a day of heart stirring experiences which you'll never forget; a day when every drop of blood in your body will respond to the call of patriotism; when the sound of martial music will be ever in your ears, while wherever your eye falls there will be flags fluttering to remind you of the nation's past great deeds, of its present needs, and its hopes for the future.

From 10 o'clock on there will be naval drills, exercises, and athletics on that beautiful campus at the east end of the station. There's nothing this country can offer more inspiring as a spectacle than the sight of those thousands of jackies marching in solid phalanxes, each division headed by flying banners and its band, on parade before the station commandant, Capt. W. A. Moffatt. The first drum major is an especial feature of the occasion. His lithe figure, wonderful carriage, and the skill and grace with which he beats time with and twirls his glittering baton always evokes applause from onlookers.

"Eyes to the right!" shouts each officer as his company approaches the review stand. Like a machine those hundreds of eyes turn towards Capt. Moffatt, all except those of the man at the end of each row of men, whose business it is to keep the line straight.

Athletic Stunts a Feature.

To see that great sweep of green lawn lined solid on three sides by the sailor lads three deep, while all the bands, melted into one splendid blare of trumpets, drums, and bugles, of 250 pieces, march about, now near and resounding, now remote and rather tragic, makes the heart beat faster and many a tear duct forget that its chief duty is restraint.

There will be boxing matches and other athletic stunts next Thursday and, to judge by the fine, lithe, bronzed, muscular sailor lads, who swarm about the station, this part of the show will be one of the best features of the day.

Hugh Garden, who has charge of the decorations, will be assisted by Lieut. Muir, Ensign Waite, and Chief Warrant Officer McHaley. Every bit of bunting that the station boasts will be on duty that day, fluttering from roof peaks, flag staffs, and especially in the huge drill hall where the evening's ball will take place. The lighting planned will be most effective. Four big battleship searchlights will be so turned on the nag hung ceiling, high above the heads of the throng, that the place will be flooded with a most brilliant but becoming reflected glow of light.

There will be eighty-six boxes ranged along the sides of the hall. These are selling fast at $50 per. Mrs. John Stevenson of Lake Forest is in charge of the sale of these. Mrs. Laurence Armour and Mrs. Frank Hibbard, also of Lake Forest, are managing the ticket selling. Those whose tickets have gone astray or who want more tickets can apply to them. Tickets at $5 admit two people, while single tickets are $3.

Every one is requested to wear "sports suits." All the naval and military men will be in uniform. The music from an orchestra of 250 jackies will put the dance fever into every pair of feet in the big hall, which, rivaling in size as it does, the Coliseum, will accommodate on its broad, smooth surface over 3,000 dancers.

Canteen to Serve Lunches.

Nor is the inner man to be forgotten. The navy relief canteen, of which Mrs. John C. Pitcher is the guiding force, being chairman of the committee running it, will have stands for selling box luncheons all over the station and will run the present big tent canteen just north of the administration building all day long, serving hot coffee, cold soft drinks, sandwiches, etc. Two thousand sailor boys will police the grounds and look after the crowds. Every Northwestern train running between Chicago and Milwaukee will stop at the naval station that day. A special train at 11:30 in the evening will wait at the gates to take the Chicago people back to town. The Chicago and Milwaukee Electric will run trains at ten minute intervals all day to accommodate the throngs.

As for the unfortunate rich people who live south of Lake Forest and prefer to motor to the naval station, all we can say is that we pity them that part of their trip that takes them from Fort Sheridan to Lake Forest. Any road now open between those two much frequented places would be a disgrace to the remotest regions in Siberia or Liberia. How the wealthy and powerful who inhabit that district can endure the five miles of bumps and dust that are now their portion is beyond the comprehension of the lowly pedestrian or patron of electric or railroads.

From Lake Forest up to the station there's a good route via the Green Bay road and motors will be parked in the big rectangular approach to the naval station's principal buildings.

Mrs. Moffett and the committee of women in charge of the ball will receive the guests.

Open Homes to Soldiers.

One of the chief concerns of every woman on the north shore this summer is how best to help the men at the officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan. There's hardly a household that doesn't fill its guestrooms every weekend with lads from there. How they revel in a night's sleep in a good bed with sheets, a bath in a porcelain tub, and a daintily prepared meal—these khaki clad stalwarts! And Mmes. Ogden Armour, Cyrus H. McCormick, Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor, Robert G. McGann, George McKinlock, William G. Hibbard Jr., and hundreds of others are never without their quota of appreciative Saturday nighters.

In line with the many enterprises to help the soldiers and sailors of our country is a movement started in the east by the Young Women's Christian association to supplement the work of the Young Men's Christian association. The latter is commonly acknowledged, both at home and abroad, to have been of invaluable assistance in camps and military centers and naval stations.

Coöperating with the men's war council in the east, the women of the Y. W. C. A. have already accomplished much of value. What they have done and what is yet to do, both there and here, will be described next Sunday afternoon when Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick will throw open her beautiful drawing room at Walden, her Lake Forest home, for Mr. Whitehair, said to be an extraordinarily good speaker, to tell us all about it.

Oddly enough—for we don't out here associate fashion and the Y. W. C. A.—this particular branch of work has attracted the attention and secured the coöperation of some of the most prominent and socially conspicuous women in New York and Philadelphia. Miss Martha McCook, a niece of Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, is the secretary of the committee that brings the possibilities of the Y. W. C. A. work to the attention of western women.

In New York the list of social leaders associated with the enterprise includes such well known names as Mmes. Vincent Astor, August Belmont, Robert Bacon, Bayard Cutting, Andrew Carnegie, John R. Drexel, Oliver Iselin, Douglas Robinson, Theodore Roosevelt Jr., Willard Straight, Ogden Mills Reid, Cornelius Vanderbilt, William K. Vanderbilt, Frederick W. Vanderbilt, and John Hays Hammond. In Philadelphia Mrs. Robert Strawbridge heads the movement, and working with her are Mmes. George Widener, William Elkins, Barclay Warburton, and Miss Cassatt.

Illinois Women to Confer.

The Illinois woman's committee of the council of national defense, under the energetic leadership of Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Mrs. Dowe, Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, Mrs. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, Miss Harriet Vittum, and Miss Mary Waller, is so much further advanced than other states in organization that there is to be a two days' conference of the city committee and the state council here on the coming Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. Part of the intention of this gathering is to educate all the women of the state in the intelligent understanding and use of the registration cards which will be ready in a few days.

The meetings will be held in the assembly hall of the Fine Arts building daily from 10:15 a. m. to 12:30 and from 2:15 p. m. to 4:30, with a round table luncheon each day and a dinner Tuesday evening. Some of the delegates will be entertained as house guests by the Mmes. Bowen, Armour, McCormick, and Dowe, and Miss Waller.

What a wonderful amalgamater is all this war relief work! It brings together women from widely separated districts who, but for a common aim, would probably never meet. It takes them out of ruts and beaten tracks; it widens horizons; it broadens sympathies and all tends to eliminate the petty, the trifling that has often hitherto checked the developement of the best in women.

Nothing has been more interesting than the work of the women coöperating with Secretary McAdoo in the sale of the Liberty bonds. Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank has hearself sold some $30,000 worth, while Mrs. Antoinette Funk has disposed of $1,500,000 worth of them, and this before the work of this committee has been put on a really efficient basis. The local women engineering their part of the work have a list of thirty-five speakers and are glad to get requests from any body of 500 or more women to provide a speaker to explain the bond issue. They hope to bring it home to the women of America that they are as responsible as the men for the taking up of these national bond issues.

Great Waste of Food.

In line with the work of these Liberty bond women is the nation-wide effort to educate women in household thrift. Not to coördinate with this movement is to prove yourself distinctly unpatriotic. As an evidence of her belief in this thrift movement, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, for instance, has introduced in her household one wheatless and one meatless day a week.

But why don't Mr. Hoover and his food commission, who are so full of counsel for the housekeepers of the country, attack the terrific waste that goes on in hotels, restaurants, clubs, and saloons? This is one of the crying evils in the food situation. What changes are being made in these in handling food supplies? In one Wabash avenue saloon an easterner recently noticed a bartender who—the day was a warm and thirsty one—was making a rapid succession of gin fizzes or some such beverage that required the addition of beaten white of egg to complete its charm. As fast as he broke each egg and separated white from yolk the drink artist threw the latter into a refuse pail under the counter where it mingled with bar slops—a dead loss as a food possibility.

Chicagoans Called to Washington.

Chicago society is going to be much affected by the many forms of national activity which are drawing and will continue to draw our younger men and women away from here. Arthur Cable, Edward L. Ryerson Jr., and Albert Farwell thought they were hardworking young business men. But when they were called to Washington and set to work on the aircrafts production board they found out what real toil was. The Cables and Farwells have given up their houses in Hubbard Woods and the Ryersons theirs in Lake Forest and are settled in the country near Washington.

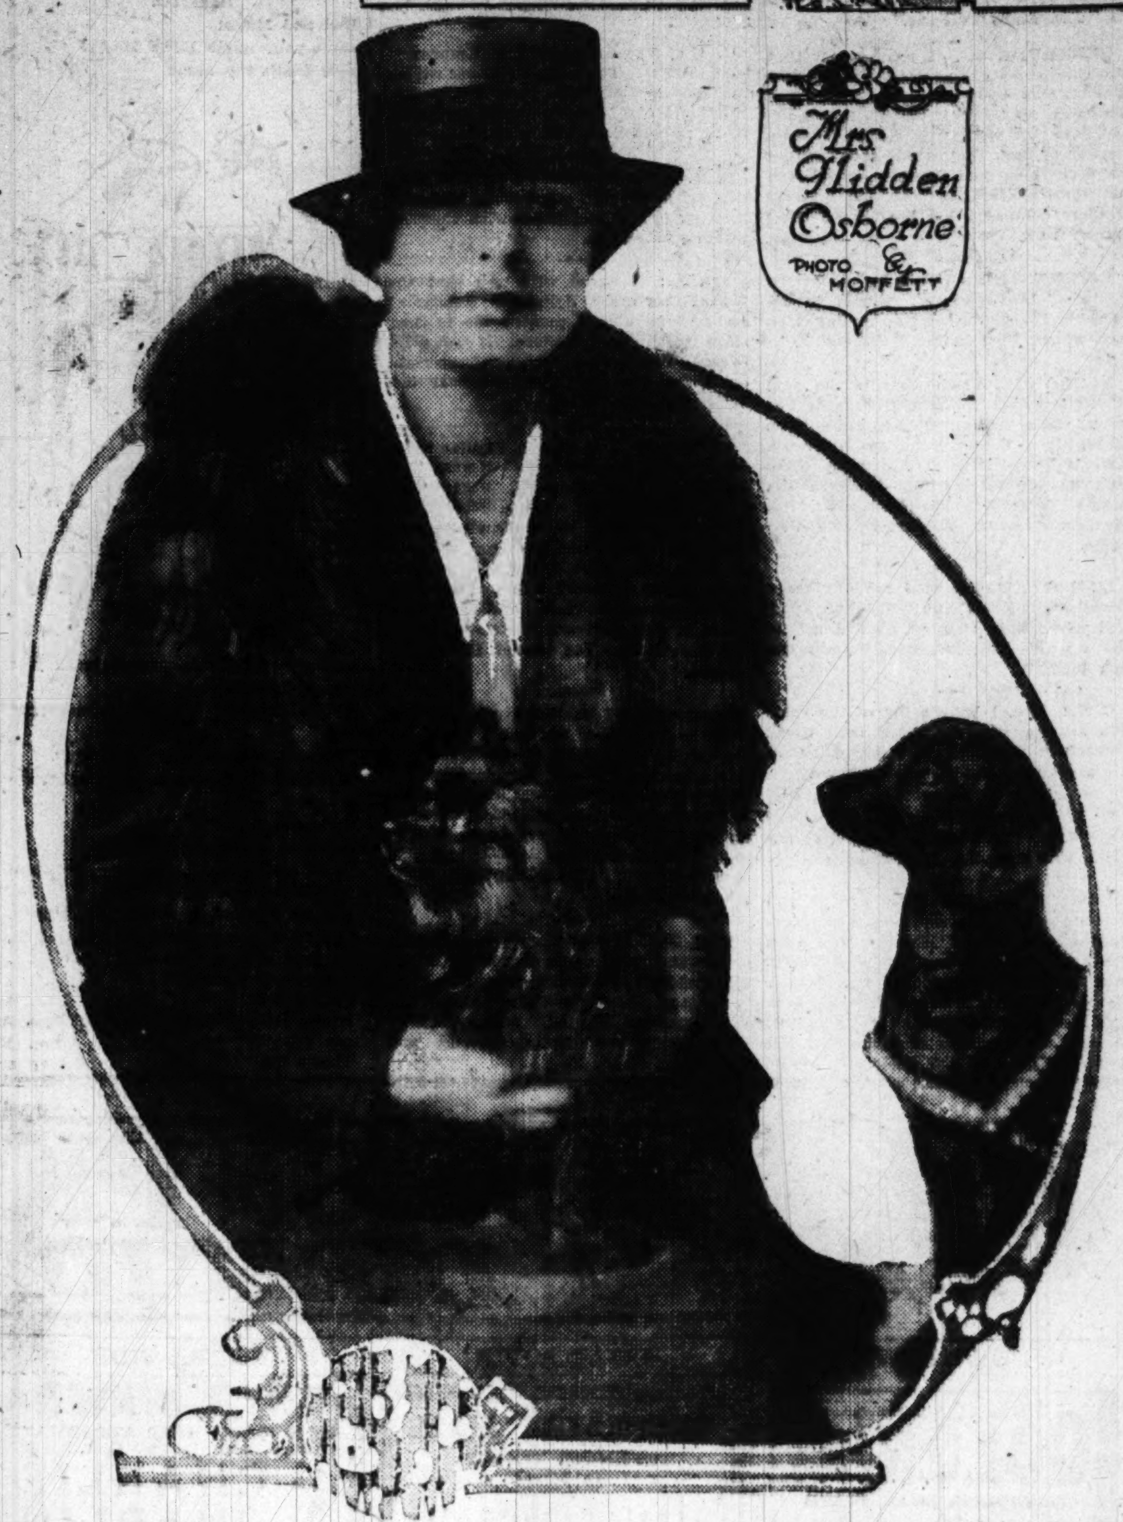
George Porter, who is chairman of the states relations committee, with headquarters at the national capital, has working with him William B. Hale of Winnetka and Elliott Smith of Chicago.

Mrs. Ira Couch Wood's accepting the position of active manager of the women's committee of the council of national defense took her and her children to Washington, robbing the Winnetka village board of one of its most energetic and capable members, as well as depriving the Illinois division of the council of national defense and the Illinois Training school of her extremely valuable guidance.

His work in the Red Cross probably will take A. A. Sprague II. and his family to Washington next winter also. All these removals to Washington promise to make the Chicagoan feel more at home on Pennsylvania avenue than on our own Bold Mich.

Business, not duty to the country, threatens also another vacancy in our social ranks next winter when the Joseph Cudahys are expecting to take an apartment in New York. And so passes the great procession.

A Popular and Charming Wheatonian.



Of Mrs. Glidden Osborne of Wheaton as many interesting things may be said as of almost any one in society. She is, firstly, a decided and beautiful blonde and has a reputation for dressing in exquisite taste. She is an outdoor sports enthusiast, loves bowwows (here are two of the adored ones), and oversees the laying out of her charming country garden in Wheaton. Besides all this, Mrs. Osborne is an effective worker for suffrage and other public causes. Mr. Osborne is now in France with the American ambulance commission.

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

Illinois Women to Help Circulate Food Pledge Cards

FINAL plans for the registration of every woman in Illinois for the defense of her country will be completed at the convention of the woman's committee of the council of national defense, which will meet on Tuesday and Wednesday at the assembly hall of the Fine Arts building. Women of every organization in the state have been invited to send representatives to the convention. Special committee meetings will be held as well as large mass-meetings each day.

The honorary chairmen, Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, Mrs. Frank Funk, and Miss Agnes Nestor, with the officers and the executive committee, will be the hostesses. Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, who is at the same time the appointee of Washington and of Springfield as chairman of the Illinois division of the woman's committee of the council of national defense will preside at the meetings.

A telegram received by Mrs. Bowen from Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, the national chairman of the woman's committee, reads:

"Mr. Hoover has called upon the woman's committee to secure signers for the food pledge to be issued July 1. Every woman in this country should respond to this call. Will you extend your organization as rapidly as possible through the state so that there may be in every town, however small, a woman or group of women who will agree to get the food pledge into the hands of every woman in the community?"

The way in which the Illinois division will accomplish the end suggested by Mr. Hoover through Dr. Shaw is to give out at the same time the cards for registration for service are put into the hands of every woman in Illinois the food pledge cards which the food commission is sending from Washington. Both cards will be signed and returned to the committee headquarters in Chicago and the food pledges will be forwarded to the food commission.

Neither the registration nor the signing of the food pledge is required by the government, as it was required that men register, but the request for the signing of both of the cards comes directly from Washington.

Up to this time registration has been going on slowly, so that the two ends might be accomplished with the single effort.

The massmeetings at the assembly hall are open to any woman who wishes to attend them, and any one who does not exactly understand the scope and proposed work of the committee will be enlightened there.

WOMEN IN WAR WORK

At the first meeting of the officers and board of managers of the Great Lakes auxiliary, Navy Relief society, at the Hotel La Salle the following officers were elected: Honorary president, Capt. W. A. Moffett, U. S. N.; president, Mrs. W. A. Moffett; executive secretary, Lieut. J. Allen Haines; vice presidents, Arthur T. Aldis, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, H. C. Chatfield-Taylor, Admiral Albert Ross, U. S. N.; Ambrose Cramer; treasurer, John J. Mitchell; recording secretary, Miss Lolita Armour; corresponding secretary, John C. Pitcher; assistant treasurer, Chauncey B. Blair; assistant executive secretary, Ensign H. E. Leonard. The Navy Relief society, organized in 1904 by Admiral Dewey, gives aid to families of officers and enlisted men of the navy and marine corps who die in the service.

The Chicago Political Equality league Red Cross auxiliary No. 126, announces a card party on Friday at 2 p. m. in the Masonic temple drill hall. The proceeds will be used to purchase materials for use in the league's workshop at 30 East Randolph street, where tickets may be obtained. The officers of the auxiliary are: Mrs. Edward D. Gotchy, chairman; Mrs. Harriette Taylor Treadwell, vice chairman; Mrs. Alonzo C. Tenney, secretary; Mrs. Samuel B. Shirk, treasurer; Mrs. Julius Reynolds Kline, chairman of the ways and means committee. The work shop is open between 10 and 5 every week day and members of the league are urged to contribute funds and personal service. The league will open headquarters on July 2 in the Stevens building, room 1507, for the conduct of all business of the league, with the exception of the Red Cross auxiliary.

Before the class of military medicine and surgery, of the Medical Women's club, Maj Gustavus Blech will give a course of lectures Wednesday evenings during July on military surgery at 8 o'clock in room 1402 Stevens building. Dr. H. W. Gintles will give a course of lectures Friday evenings at 8 o'clock on "Method of Teaching First Aid." Lectures will be given Wednesday and Friday evenings this week.

There will be a meeting of the housewifely thrift section of the Chicago Woman's club unit for patriotic service on Friday.

The young ladies' auxiliary of the Rogers Park Catholic Woman's club will give an informal dancing party for the benefit of the Red Cross on Saturday evening at the Rogers Park Woman's club, Estes and Ashland avenues. The hostesses will be Mrs. Simon O'Donnell, Miss Genevieve McGinn, Miss Ruth I. Ure, Miss Honor Smith, Miss Florence Byrne, Miss Marjorie Douglass, Miss Ethel Hayde, Miss Kathleen Galavan, Miss Marie Shad, Miss Abigail Cannon, Miss Grace O'Connor, and Miss Ruth Daly.

Miss Jean Cattell

Miss Jean Cattell, a sophomore at Grinnell college, is one of the ardent workers in the junior war aid of the Chicago College club. All subgraduates are invited to join the junior work.

A Red Cross benefit will be given tomorrow evening at the River Forest Woman's club house, when the River Forest Red Cross auxiliary will have a recital.

The woman's section of the Navy league is issuing a call for fifty blankets for boys from the Great Lakes Naval station who have just been placed on the training ship Commodore, now anchored off Grant park.

At a meeting of the Woman's Trade Union league Mme. De La Ruelle, a member of the French bureau of labor, expressed a desire to have women's organizations of all kinds go on record as being in favor of equal pay for equal work for women. The committee on women and children in industry of the woman's committe of the council of national defense has taken the step in the form of a resolution offered by Miss Edith Wyatt, which indorsed the principle.

A committee, consisting of Mrs. Annie P. Tenny, president of the Chicago College club, as chairman, and Mrs. P. S. Peterson and Mrs. J. B. Burt, has turned over to Chauncey McCormick, Chicago representative of the American Ambulance Field Service in France, a check for $1,600 in the name of the college women of Chicago for an ambulance to be sent at once to France.

A junior Red Cross department has been formed at the College club under the chairmanship of Mrs. Archibald Cattell, 5474 Hyde Park boulevard. All college girls, daughters of members, and their friends are invited to join the new organization.

The Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, in fixing allowances for Chicago families left dependent by the soldiers, sailors, and others called by the government for war service, will use the maximum budget system of the United Charities.

The Bryn Mawr auxiliary of the Red Cross was organized on May 9 and has now ninety-two members enrolled. Mrs. Frank Morgan of 7216 Jeffery avenue is the chairman. The women meet on Mondays and Fridays to sew for the foreign relief work and to knit socks, scarfs, and wristlets for field comfort supplies.

Tomorrow evening at Central Music hall a concert will be given by the International College of Music and Expression for the purpose of purchasing an ambulance to be sent to France. Following the musical program the official moving pictures of the American ambulance field service will be shown.

The St. Gertrude auxiliary of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross has been organised by Miss Ella M. Cullen, a member of the propaganda committee. The auxiliary will meet on Wednesdays from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. and Monday evenings in St. Gertrude parish hall, 6220 Glenwood avenue, for the purpose of making hospital supplies. The auxiliary numbers seventy members at present and willing workers are rapidly enrolling. Many are also knitting sweaters, socks, wristlets, scarfs, etc. Mrs. M. J. Welch is chairman; Mrs. L. E. Sauter is vice chairman, and Mrs. M. E. McGlenn is secretary and treasurer. Arrangements have been made for a card and dancing party at the Edgewater Beach hotel Friday evening. The proceeds will be used for the purchase of materials to be made into garments for the wounded or sick soldiers.

For the benefit of the Red Cross a lawn party and bazaar will be held at the home of Miss Edith Katsmann, 6318 Kimbark avenue, July 2 and 3.

NEW YORK SOCIETY by MME. Y.

Reggie Vanderbilts Now Living Apart; Home to Red Cross

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Announcement was made the other day in the public prints that "Reginald C. Vanderbilt of New York tonight offered his estate at Portsmouth, near here [Newport] to the Newport chapter of the American Red Cross for use for hospital purposes in the event of war. The estate comprises seventy-five acres of land, Mr. Vanderbilt's home, and other buildings."

Following this shortly came the news that "Reginald C. Vanderbilt arrived yesterday at Sand Point farm." In a few days the further information followed, "Reginald C. Vanderbilt returned to New York today." After this the word was printed; only yesterday, "Reginald C. Vanderbilt is at Sandy Point looking over his place and putting it in order before turning it over to the country for government purposes."

Many people who have never thought on the situation before are now pausing, with war pending, to ask the question, "Where is Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt throughout all of this activity? Is not the lady of the house usually, at least by courtesy, included in such statements as that her liege lord is about to give away their home? And is not she the one who usually stops what she is doing to go pack the furniture and see that the ice box and the back porch are left clean? Where, indeed, is Mrs. Reggie while the young scion of one of America's noble houses is packing the bedclothes and counting the dishes preparatory to making over his estate?

Not Living Together.

As a matter of fact items have run separately concerning this pair for many a long day, although it has never been so conspicuous as when one of our society organs announces that the man of the house has gone to pack up the household goods. It does attract public attention to hear that Reginald is doing anything save following his horses round to shows and acting himself as judge where they do not appear.

Still, as far back as some eight years ago the doings of Mrs. Vanderbilt were narrated in a different paragraph from Reggie's. When an item on the editorial page the other day mentioned that he had just arrived in Newport the society columns of the same paper narrated that "Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt has closed her villa in Newport and returned to New York." One paper mentions during the winter that "Reginald C. Vanderbilt is at Palm Beach attending the races." Another paper of the same date in New York mentioned that Mrs. Reginald had gone to Newport for a little midwinter rest.

All of which is by way of saying that Mr. and Mrs. Reggie are not living together any more. It is known so well and lamented so sincerely by friends and relatives and yet this is probably the first time it has been openly stated before.

Familiar Figures at Horse Shows.

You will say it proves nothing that a man's wife is in Newport when he goes to the races, even if it is in Palm Beach, where women like to trail their lovely clothes. Maybe not for women in general, but you of Chicago ought not hazard such a defense of Reggie Vanderbilt and his wife.

Don't you remember those years when he used to come out to your horse shows with his train and the lovely, the young Kathleen Vanderbilt, who looked and seemed like his bride? Don't you remember how she used to sit in her box, handsomely gowned, with men talking ardently on either side of her, pleading for her attention, and her eyes following Reggie's horses if they were driven by a groom and Reggie himself if he was driving—as he mostly was? Don't you remember how one night she got herself up in the handsomest of costumes, all pale yellow and lavender and lace, subtly blended, as if she were for Reggie's sake making herself the most attractive thing in the house? And there about three boxes away from her sat Mrs. Stanley Field in a costume exactly like hers. And don't you remember Kathleen's lovely dimples when she smiled—as she always did, with applause when Reggie won something—as he did in almost every show?

You of Chicago ought to say, "O, dear, it does mean something indeed if Kathleen doesn't accompany Reggie to the horse shows!" It was the treat of the year for the city on the lake when they used to come out, so like a breath of young romance was it.

Hope for Reconciliation.

And so it was when they were wed, a decade and more of years ago. Ah, time and change! But there is no talk of a divorce! Matrons of lower Fifth avenue exclaim that it was the most beautiful of romances and wonder if there will not be a reconciliation before all is over. There is one householder of the avenue near Fourteenth street who reminisces on the subject of the externals of their courtship as she saw it. Details are meager, but she tells about how his pair and carriage used to be out in front of Kathleen Neilson's mother's house every afternoon. And the flowers came daily. For a long time there was great variety; then they settled down into pink roses—Kathleen's favorites, so she exclaimed. It seems to this woman that anything so dainty, so sweet, so young as that affair, ought not to die. She says they will come together yet.

As for Mrs. Vanderbilt, Reggie's mother, they say she simply can't stand it to have the family led through another divorce. This, so word has it, is why it has not taken place in the years past. And not having taken place so far, there is a strong hope expressed that the union will be brought about again. At any rate, Mrs. Vanderbilt was humiliated and grieved nearly to death when her son, the late Alfred, was divorced by his first wife, who is known now as Mrs. French Vanderbilt. Mrs. Vanderbilt took it so hard, too, they say, when Willie K. was divorced by his wife, who is now Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont—not but that she was glad to have him released from a bondage irksome to him. But the disgrace of it! Of having the name of Vanderbilt trailed through divorce courts! Willie K. and Willie K., Jr., between them nearly broke her heart. She could not bear to have Reginald go through it.

Tent Erected for Summer Campaign of Presbyterians

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

A LARGE tent, to be used for the purpose of an all summer evangelistic campaign under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church Extension society, will be dedicated today at 3 o'clock. The tent was erected last Thursday on a vacant lot at Cottage Grove avenue and East Thirty-sixth street, and for the first three weeks will be under the special patronage and care of the Sixth Presbyterian church, Thirty-sixth street and Vincennes avenue, less than two blocks from the tent.

The three choirs of the Sixth church will lead in the singing. At the dedicatory services today the South Side Christian Endeavor societies have promised to assist by their presence.

The tent is lit by electricity, seated with canvas covered seats, the floor covered with sawdust, and from the top floats the Stars adn Stripes.

The pastor of the Sixth church, the Rev. Robert R. Bigger, will be in general charge while the tent is in its present location. The evangelist, the Rev. Frank McKeegan, and his wife will lead in the evangelistic service and will work in connection with the tent all summer.

The Unity Evangelical Lutheran church, Magnolia and Balmoral avenues, where the general synod of the Lutheran church is meeting, will be dedicated today at 10:45 o'clock by the Rev. Victor G. A. Tressler, D. D., of Springfield, O., the newly elected president of the synod. He will be assisted by other ministers. Services in connection with the synod will also be held in the church afternoon and evening.

Benjamin Scovell, who has made it a part of his patriotic duty to make soldiers in hospitals laugh and forget their illness and wounds, will speak this morning in Grace Protestant Episcopal church, Oak Park, and in the evening at the First Congregational church, Evanston. He is a veteran of the Boer war and has recently been in Belgium and France giving recitals to the soldiers. He is the nephew of Sir Henry Irving.

A flag will be raised this afternoon over the convent of St. Brendan's parish, Sixty-seventh street and Racine avenue. A procession will start at Bishop and Sixty-seventh streets and move to the convent. It is expected there will be 700 children besides representatives of many societies in line. Owen J. Shevlin will be master of ceremonies and J. A. Byrne will be marshal. A patriotic program will be given.

The First Presbyterian church, Forty-first street and Grand boulevard, will give through its various organizations a series of suppers on Saturdays at 6:30 to the soldiers and sailors. The first one was given last evening by the young ladies' Bible class. Today at 10:30 the pastor, the Rev. W. C. Covert, will speak on "America's Baptism," as illustrated by what the government is now calling on the nation to give through the Red Cross and in other ways.

Mrs. Daisy Douglas Barr, the first woman to head a company of evangelists in conducting a big union tent or tabernacle campaign à la Billy Sunday, will begin today a series of lectures in the interest of a dry Chicago. She will speak at 3 p. m. in the Hibbard school, Ainslie, Argyle, Sawyer, and Spaulding avenues, and at 8 p. m. in the McPherson school, 4728 North Lincoln street. Her subjects will be "A Bloodless Battle" and "First Step in Home Defense." Her other engagements will be: Tomorrow, 8 p. m., Austin Baptist church; Tuesday, 8 p. m., Salvation Army citadel, 1512 West Madison street; Wednesday, 8 p. m., Trinity Methodist, Thirtieth street and Prairie avenue; Friday, 8 p. m., First Presbyterian, Oak Park; next Sunday, 3 p. m., Buena Memorial Presbyterian; 7:30 p. m., First Methodist, La Grange.

The Rev. Frank M. O'Brien is the pastor of St. Thomas of Canterbury Roman Catholic church, Kenmore avenue, north of Lawrence avenue, which will be dedicated this morning at 10:30 by Archbishop G. W. Mundelein.

Father O'Brien was assigned to the newly created parish of St. Thomas of Canterbury a year ago last March. Ground for the new church was broken last August. The church cost $90,000. The seating capacity of the auditorium is more than 800. The style of the building is colonial, and in this respect is said to differ from every other Catholic church in Chicago.

In the service of dedication today the Very Rev. E. F. Hoban, chancellor of the archdiocese, will be the celebrant of the solemn high mass, assisted by the Rev. D. L. McDonald as deacon and the Rev. Joseph H. Phelan as subdeacon. The Rev. Dennis J. Dunne and the Rev. William O'Brien will be masters of ceremonies. The sermon will be preached by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Francis C. Kelley, president of the Catholic Extension society.

Services are held Sunday mornings and evenings in the old Ogden theater, Sixty-third street and Ashland avenue, under the direction of the Rev. Thomas M. Porter, superintendent of Burr mission, Twenty-fourth street and Wentworth avenue. He is assisted by several other ministers.

The Hyde Park Disciples church and the Disciples house of the University of Chicago are planning to merge interests so that the church can have a new building erected on the site owned by the divinity house and the church become the chapel of the divinity house. The Rev. Edward Scribner Ames is pastor of the church and the Rev. Herbert L. Willett is dean of the divinity house.

Work was begun last week on two Methodist Episcopal churches in the Chicago area. The first was the Washington boulevard church, Austin avenue and Washington boulevard, Oak Park, which will cost when finished $35,000, and the second the Sheridan road church at Sunnyside and Hazel avenues, to cost when complete at least $60,000 and may cost more. The new Hawthorne Methodist Episcopal church and the new Sunday school building of the La Grange Methodist Episcopal church will be dedicated July 22.

The union meetings of the five churches of Rogers Park are held Sunday evenings during June in the Lutheran church, Morse avenue and Paulina street. The same plan will be pursued in the other coöperating churches. The union meetings will be held Sunday evenings one month continuously in each church.

Steps were taken last Wednesday evening to merge the Leavitt Street and the New First Congregational churches. Each church appointed a committee of five to arrange details. It is the intention to maintain in the Leavitt street building a Sunday school and perhaps an evening preaching service, while the church membership will be transferred to the New First church, which will then become responsible for the maintaining of both plants. The Leavitt street church was organized almost fifty years ago and has a property valued at $45,000. Prof. R. A. Jernberg, a member of the First church and the acting pastor of the Leavitt street church, has been active in promoting the merger.

The First Congregational church, Byron, Ill., will celebrate today the eightieth year of its organization. It has had twenty-three pastors, several of whom are expected to be present.

The St. Angarius Protestant Episcopal church, 845 Sedgwick street, the first Swedish Protestant Episcopal church in Chicago, will observe a home coming today of all former members and confirmation classes. Services will be held at 10:45 a. m. and 7 p. m. The Rev. C. A. Nybladh is rector of the church.

Baptist ministers and their families will picnic tomorrow in Lincoln park. The outing will take the place of the weekly Baptist ministers' union, which has adjourned until September.

The Rev. T. P. Van Zandt will assume the pastorate of the First Baptist church of La Grange next Sunday. Mr. Van Zandt was formerly pastor in Fond du Lac, Wis., and a regular contributor to the Standard of Chicago, the Baptist weekly, concerning young people's work.

The Young Men's Christian Association college begins its summer courses at the Y. M. C. A. camp on Lake Geneva, Wis., next Wednesday. The Rev. F. H. Burt is president of the college.

The Rev. H. Fay Tyler, pastor of the Auburn Park Congregational church, who recently declined a call to the Irving Park Immanuel Congregational church, has accepted a call to the Congregational church, Eagle Grove, Ia. He will preach his farewell sermon at the Auburn Park church today.

The federated daily vacation Bible schools, representing several denominations, will open tomorrow morning and continue in session until Aug. 3. Training schools for teachers will be held at Hull house tomorrow at 2:30 and at the same time and place on July 2, 9, 16, 23, and 30. Emerson O. Bradshaw is superintendent.

The Presbyterian daily vacation Bible schools, of which the Rev. W. Clyde Smith is superintendent, will open July 2.

A four days' convention in the interests of the standardization of Roman Catholic colleges will be held in Buffalo, N. Y., beginning tomorrow.

The joint committees on the unification of the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Episcopal church, South, will meet next Wednesday in Traverse City, Mich.

Epworth camp meeting, Belvidere, Ill., and the Dixon district camp meeting at Franklin Grove, Ill., begin next Thursday. They are under Methodist auspices.

The Granville Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Granville and Lakewood avenues, will celebrate today its eighth anniversary. The Rev. E. R. Zaring will preach in the morning and the Rev. L. F. W. Lesemann in the evening.

The Rev. C. E. Ames, who is in charge of the Community Congregational church in Evanston, was formerly executive secretary of the church federation of St. Louis, Mo.

The Olivet institute, 144 Sedgwick street, of which the Rev. Norman B. Barr is superintendent, received last week a gift of $5,000 for its endowment fund.

An appeal has been sent out signed by the Rev. John Timothy Stone, the Rev. Myron E. Adams, and Capt. F. R. Kenney, calling on all citizens to help in securing recruits for the regular army of unmarried men between the ages of 18 and 40. "Placing the right kind of men in the ranks is the best way of securing the morale and raising the standards of the army," the letter reads. Army volnteer work begins today and closes with July 4.

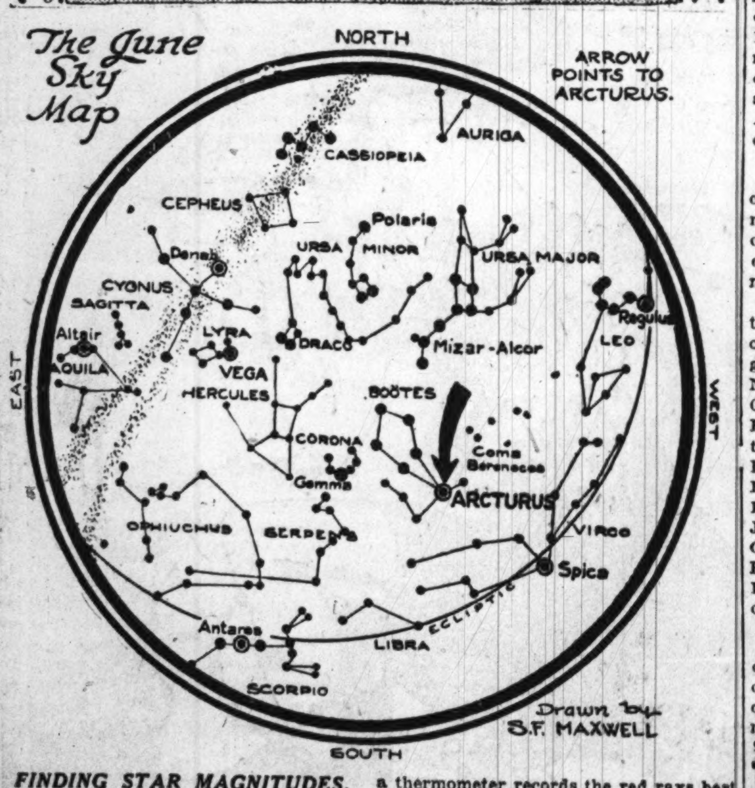
Announcements sent out by the chancery office of the Roman Catholic church names eight pastors, thirty-eight curates, two professors, and a prefect of discipline who receive new appointments.

The list of pastors is: The Rev. Peter P. O'Dwyer, St. Rose of Lima church; the Rev. T. J. Hurley, St. Margaret's; the Rev. A. Evers, St. Peter's, Niles Center, Ill.; the Rev. James A. Griffin, Assumption, Coal City, Ill.; the Rev. A. Korthals, Immaculate Conception, Kankakee; the Rev. William C. Burke, St. Patrick's, Wilton Center; the Rev. A. Baltutis, St. Casimir's, Chicago Heights; the Rev. I. Mazarowski, St. Joseph's, Rockdale. Professors in Cathedral college, the Rev. George L. Beemsterboer, the Rev. Gerlad Kealy. Prefect of discipline in the Cathedral college, the Rev. J. G. Mielcarek.

The Albany Park Methodist Episcopal church, Wilson and Albany avenues, celebrates today the first anniversary of its dedication. The Rev. I. E. Putnam is pastor.

ASTRONOMY

The June Sky Map



Drawn by S.F. MAXWELL

FINDING STAR MAGNITUDES.

ARCTURUS is the second brightest star in the northern sky, Vega exceeding by 5 per cent. Finding the true magnitude of stars is an exceedingly trying task. We know that light consists of minute waves, so small that 220,000 of them are contained in a beam of yellow light one inch in length. If exactly the same sort of waves were emitted by every star it would be easy to compare them to find out how much light each one sends forth. As it is, there can hardly be said to be two stars in the sky exactly alike in composition and temperature, and therefore every star has a peculiar wave structure, or color, all its own. It is this problem of comparing two lights of different colors which causes the difficulty in ascertaining the true brightness of the stars.

The human eye is sensitive to orange, yellow, and green light, and, to a lesser extent, to blue and red. Therefore every object appears to us yellower than it really is. A camera, on the other hand, sees everything as blue and violet, while a thermometer records the red rays best of all. We are confronted by the fact that no single means can be used to register all the rays alike. The spectroscope is most valuable at this point. It takes the various beams of light and reduces a seeming chaos to order by spreading each ray out in an even band, so that the waves are revealed and the strengths and colors of all may at once be seen.

A person of keen vision can see Arcturus in full daylight if the sun is not too near and if he knows just where to look. At such times it appears a small but brilliant rosy speck against the cerulean face of the sky. Vega, although brighter, is much harder to see, because its blue color gives no contrast against the sky. Arcturus sends us 1-38,000,000 as much light as the sun, and Vega 1-40,000,000. Arcturus, however, is much the hotter of the two, the ratio of heat being 1 to 2.2. Another comparison would be that Arcturus gives us the same amount of heat that a candle would if placed 5.8 miles away, and Vega as much as one at 8.7 miles.

Today's Aid to Beauty

Hair is by far the most conspicuous thing about us and is probably the most easily damaged by bad or careless treatment. If we are very careful in hair washing we will have virtually no hair troubles. An especially fine shampoo for this weather, one that brings out all the natural beauty of the hair, that dissolves and entirely removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt, can easily be used at trifling expense by simply dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox (which you can get at any druggist's) in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. This chemically dissolves all impurities and creates a soothing, cooling lather. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft, and pliant, while the hair takes on the glossy richness of natural color, also a fluffiness which makes it seem much heavier than it is. After a canthrox shampoo, arranging the hair is a pleasure.—Advertisement.

The TRIBUNE'S WEEKLY ALMANACK

JUNE

June Dawn

CHATTER of the oven bird and chit cher of the tanager; song of the thrush and song of the chewink. A late June dawn breaks with light melody, beginning the new writing upon the scroll which night has cleaned.

In the brevity of life the importance of days is increased. Each is a new writing upon the scroll. Each night erases part of what was written and what remains of what was written is dimmed. It becomes experience upon which hope writes anew.

It is human salvation that night should be an eraser, a sponge, a cleansing of the writing, leaving to endure that which should not be wiped out by the turn of the wet rag of forgetfulness.

What endures out of the day's writing, beautiful or painful, is important to the life which each day helps to construct. But across and upon such writings as endure, hope, springing up again with the new dawn, writes its newer promises and later, as the thrush sings to the sunset, experience again writes its latest conclusions.

Nevertheless we, knowing that the last hand which will touch the pencil will be the hand of experience, arise with clear eyes in the clear and songful dawn to see what hope may put upon the scroll.

CLIFFORD RAYMOND.

ART by Louise James Bargelt

Etchings Exhibit Yields to Posters After This Week

SINCE summer is an uneventful season at the Art institute and art exhibits have, for the most part, ceased their journeyings about the country, one is able to draw a deep, peaceful breath and really enjoy in a leisurely European sort or fashion, the permanent treasures the institute contains.

In the gallery of etchings, which boasts one of the best public collections of its kind in this country, there is soon to be hung an exhibit of posters. Therefore this week will be the last opportunity for some time to see the large display of etchings by modern exponents of this most personal art.

Although etching has never been popular with the vast public which visits galleries and buys pictures, it possesses a charm that is all its own and once you have fallen victim to its subtle fascination you will never be able to saunter indifferently by an etching filled gallery. Indeed, it is hard to understand how, for 200 years it could have been the Cinderella of arts and why, from the time that Rembrandt laid aside his needle in 1661 up to the middle of the nineteenth century, hardly an etcher of importance was given to the world.

Perhaps it was that its art was too spontaneous for an age that grew more formal every day, especially since its revival, dated from the defeat of the classicalists and the ultimate triumph of the French romantic school. All new artists were on the lookout for new and disregarded renderings.

As Meryon was among the first of the modern etchers and has achieved highest rank among them, it is only fitting that he should be superbly represented in the Mansfield collection. Many of the best pieces he ever did are there, including his Paris set of etchings.

Arthur Symons has written somewhere that cities have souls. One can also say that streets have, too, and houses and even individual rooms, certain ones at least. This Meryon knew. He knew his Paris, stone by stone. To him it is not a town; it is a living being, the very pavements breathing forth a life of their own. His imagination enabled him to draw architecture in a fashion no etcher has ever rivaled. Balzac said that the streets of Paris have human qualities and Meryon shadowed them with a mysterious atmosphere few etchers have the temperament to feel.

Take his "La Morgue." At the right is the old Doric building, now destroyed. To the left, close to the quay's edge, two men are bearing a corpse they have just recovered from the Seine. In front a woman throws herself backward in despair; a girl stands sobbing behind her; some one restrains a sobbing woman who is rushing down to the bottom of the steps; on the parapet is a crowd of people, totally unconcerned for the most part. This is a painful, impressive thing, and yet instilled with a poetry and a picturesqueness difficult to infuse into such a scene.

Meryon was a visionary who lived in the spirit of the past. He was unallured by the glories of the second empire, no adherent to the Napoleonic cause; to him the national banner still flew emblazoned with the lilies of France and St. Louis was no dead saint but a living reality.

He was a child of a London physician, a suave, brilliant man, correct in all things save in his infatuation for a French dancing girl, whom he met and pursued and finally captured. Meryon was the offspring of that infatuation. There was also a daughter, but the father took his daughter with him back to London when his passion waned and grew cold. He left an allowance for his mother and their son, but she squandered the substance and her life went out in obscurity when Meryon was still a young boy.

No success of a substantil kind ever came to Meryon when he was alive. His days became more and more failure filled, and madness began to creep on him.

"I became insane," he said, "the day I went to sea when I was a boy and they told me of my birth." This is hardly likely, however. His insanity was the result of suffering and misery. He died finally in the asylum at Charenton, his death caused by actual, though self-imposed, starvation. He had the fixed idea that the world was in need of food and that if he took any sustenance he would be robbing the poor.

There are a number of other distinguished etchers, including Le Gros with his serene visions of landscape, Millet with his incomparable peasants, Zorn with his portraits, Alphonse de Neuville with his pictures of war, and Huet with his romantic bits of French scenery.

The exhibit of posters which is to be hung in the gallery now occupied by the etchings is to be an extremely interesting one. Its idea is primarily to keep the public conscious of its responsibility at this time and to keep before it, too, a realization of the stability of art and artists in relation to this national crisis. This exhibition of posters relates to the war and its implications as far as the American people are concerned.

Artists and students from all over the country have been invited to contribute to this exhibition. The receiving of the posters was closed June 15. The exhibit is to open Monday, July 2, and will last through the month.

On the committee of selection are Robert Reid, John McCutcheon, Ralph Clarkson, Alfonzo Iannelli, B. F. Babcock, Capt. F. R. Kenney, and Capt. W. Brackett.

The posters are to encourage the cultivation of the soil, the conservation of food, the Red Cross, the army, the navy, and the purchase of war bonds.

Batik is centuries old in itself, dating as far back as Budha, and was introduced into Java in the time of Guatama Budha. It was brought to Europe in the seventeenth century by Dutch discoverers of the Island of Java, and it flourished in France long before it was ever brought to this country.

Since this Batik movement goes hand in hand with our desire for the decorative along every line of household furnishings, and since it can be applied to any kind of woven material and also to bone or wood or any smooth surface, it is likely to increase in popularity now that it has been well launched here.

It is of interest to learn that John S. Sargent has been asked to paint the portrait of Wilson. Sir Hugh Lane, who went down on the Lusitania, had offered $50,000 for a portrait which Mr. Sargent had agreed to paint in behalf of the Red Cross. The purchaser thereof was to choose the subject. The High Court of Chancery in England decided recently that the Dublin National gallery should nominate the person to be painted, and the trustees of the gallery accordingly decided on Wilson. Mr. Sargent accepted the work and the offer has been forwarded to President Wilson.

Ice-Mint Brings Joy To Tired, Aching Feet

If warm days and modern foot-wear have given you aching, burning, swollen feet, corns, or painful callouses, here is real foot-comfort for you at last.

From the cooling, dewy mint-beds of old Japan come the fresh, soothing ingredients that in just a few weeks have made Ice-Mint the most popular foot remedy in America.

Rub a little Ice-Mint on any tender corn or callous. Instantly the soreness disappears, and shortly the corn or callous will loosen so that it can be lifted out easily with the fingers.

ICE MINT

is a clean, creamy, snow-white, nonpoisonous substance and does not inflame or even irritate the most tender skin. There is no pain and not one bit of soreness while applying Ice-Mint, or afterwards. It acts so gently, so magically, that you will never again run the risk of blood poisoning by cutting a corn. Hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes, also toughened callouses, soon loosen and come off under the remarkable influence of Ice-Mint.

No matter what you have tried or how many times you have been disappointed, you will revel in the cooling, soothing comfort that Ice-Mint brings. Try it! Ask your druggist today for a small jar of Ice-Mint and learn for yourself what solid foot-comfort really is. You'll like it immensely.

Good Roads All the Way to Noted East Shore Resort

By John De Long.

OF all the old standby routes, to which motorists turn when they want to be sure of good, hard roads, the trail that leads around the foot of the lake and on to St. Joseph, Mich., undoubtedly is as popular as any. The tour to the famous old east shore resort is as good as any to be found in this section. It leads through a territory that is interesting, both scenically and historically, and runs over roads that may be driven in any kind of weather.

This route follows the line of the West Michigan pike, a branch of the Dixie highway which has been considerably improved and which is being exploited by the citizens of the Wolverine state. No tourist is likely to lose his way between Chicago and St. Joseph, as the route is well marked and easily followed. Chicago Motor club signs bearing the inscription, "St. Joe," will be found liberally distributed along the way, particularly after leaving Gary. The trail described in this week's tour suggestion and shown on the accompanying map goes through South Chicago, the extreme northeastern edge of Hammond, East Chicago, Calumet, Gary, Porter, Michigan City, New Buffalo, Three Oaks, Sawyer, Bridgman, and Stevensville, and measures a trifle over 106 miles, just a comfortable day's drive.

In starting out the principal southern exit is followed over the south side boulevards, through Jackson park and along the South Shore drive, Eighty-third street, Burley avenue, Buffalo avenue, Ninety-second street, Ewing avenue, Indianapolis avenue, and Sheffield avenue across the Lake George concrete causeway to One Hundred and Forty-fifth (Gostlin) street, where a left hand or east turn leads through the towns along the foot of the lake. In laying out this route an idea was to avoid the abominable stretch of chuck holes that takes the motoring joy out of tourists who travel the old, wornout macadam road leading into Fifth avenue, Gary.

Instead of keeping straight on east from Calumet to the end of the road and winding around past the packing plant on to the concrete road running to Fifth avenue, the tourist is advised to turn south at the bank in Calumet and go past Grasselli station and to the prominent four corners beyond. Here the trolley line is followed to the left as far as the end of the road. Then a left hand turn takes on to Clark road, which is followed north to Fifth avenue. Here the other route is picked up, after having avoided a couple of miles of the roughest driving in these parts.

Between Gary and Aetna one receives a grim reminder that a state of war exists when he passes a military camp pitched in a grove at the right hand side of the road. The idea is further accentuated by the sight of armed sentries guarding the approaches to nearby mills. The road, which, by the way, follows the historic old Detroit-Chicago Indian trail of pioneer days, leads past the wonderful dune section of Indiana. The dunes are easily reached from Miller and Porter, both of which are on the St. Joe route.

Michigan City, a little over sixty-five miles from Chicago, is reached after a drive through some pretty country. Michigan City, noted among other things for its large car works and penitentiary, was an important post in the eighteenth century when missionaries, explorers, and traders made their headquarters there. The banks of Trail creek, which is now a wide and deep river flowing through the city, were used as meeting places by the Pottawatamie and Blackhawk Indians. Father Marquette, on his final voyage from Quebec to New Orleans, made his camp on the banks of the creek.

Continuing on his way, the tourist passes Grand Beach, which has developed into one of the leading summer resorts of lower Lake Michigan. Its unbroken four miles of beach, with its sand that is almost as pure and white as fine table salt, offers unrivaled bathing facilities. The scenery in the vicinity of Grand Beach is particularly fine. A good road passes through several small and quaint villages as it winds its way toward St. Joseph, the end of the tour.

St. Joseph is almost too well known as a summer resort to need any description. The city, located eighty feet above the level of Lake Michigan, is situated on the banks of the historic St. Joseph river. It is recorded that the first white men visited the place in 1669. Father Allouez, Father Marquette, and La Salle made various explorations about St. Joseph and were instrumental in having Fort Miamis built there in 1672.

St. Joseph is the most important fruit shipping point on the east shore of Lake Michigan. The river, which is navigable for fair sized boats for a length of some thirty miles, runs through one of the most highly developed fruit sections of the United States. Both St. Joseph and its sister city, Benton Harbor, just across the river, are noted for their mineral baths.

The House of David, to which are attached members of a religious sect, is located in Benton Harbor. All of its many male members wear long hair and beards and own large tracts of land that are kept well cultivated. The House of David maintains its own industries and has large buildings, a fine park, and a large and interesting menagerie.

Organizes Track Racing.

The Wisconsin motor contest board is the name selected for the new association of Wisconsin dealers and others interested in dirt track racing, which will conduct its first meet on the mile track at State Fair park, in Milwaukee, July 4. Leslie D. Frint, Monroe distributor, has been elected president, and Bart J. Ruddle, secretary and manager. Mr. Ruddle is assistant secretary and manager of the Milwaukee Automobile Dealers, Inc.

One Less Toll Road.

The Pennsylvania state highway department has taken over by purchase that section of the Lincoln highway extending from the Philadelphia city line to Paoli, a distance of fifteen miles. The change will become effective and tolls abolished beginning the first of July. Up to this time the road has been a toll road controlled by a private company. The purchase price is understood to be $165,000.

How are the Roads?

Desplaines avenue from Twelfth to Twenty-second street, closed recently for paving operations, is open again. The new pavements afford fine going over the entire distance.

E. L. Gates, superintendent of highways for Du Page county, issues this warning: Chicago avenue, sometimes called Twelfth street, is being treated to road oil for a distance of three miles immediately east of Wheaton. The road is not closed, but motorists had better avoid it if possible.

South Chicago avenue, between Seventy-ninth and Eighty-seventh streets, is to be paved with creosote blocks at a cost of $143,000. The same material will be used in resurfacing Broadway between Wilson and Foster avenues, the latter improvement to represent an outlay of $110,000.

Motorists who have been trying to work out the Chinese puzzle caused by the blocking of Western avenue and Halsted street, north of Chicago Heights, are advised that a better detour than the ones heretofore in use has been discovered. This runs south on Halsted street to the end of the concrete pavement, which is 6.7 miles from Ninety-fifth street. Here a turn is made to the right on Columbia avenue. At Center avenue a turn is made to the left and followed as far as One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street. A left hand turn is then made and followed for a half mile to the diagonal four corners beyond the third railway tracks. At this point a right hand turn takes the motorist into Thornton, where the regular route to Chicago Heights is picked up.

The county authorities have cheerful tidings this morning for motorists who use Milwaukee avenue as their chief northern exit from the city. The section between the Desplaines river and Wheeling, which has been under construction for several weeks, is now open to traffic. The barricades were removed yesterday and it is now possible to have an unbroken drive from the city north. Most of the twenty-six miles between Chicago and Wheeling is over the new concrete road. Now that no detours are necessary, Milwaukee avenue is expected to carry the heaviest motor car travel it has ever been called upon to bear.

Concerning transcontinental travel to the west, the Lincoln Highway association bulletins thus: "Tourists who have planned transcontinental drives are advised to delay their trips two or three weeks if they wish comfortable driving conditions en route. Reports from Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and California indicate that the season is particularly late there. The snow in the Sierras is now melting and the roads over the passes are in bad condition. Wyoming roads are also reported very muddy and in poor condition, comparable to what they would be in late March or early April of other years. A few days of sunshine in Wyoming will improve matters there, but if it keeps on raining tourists simply will have to stop."

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS by HIGH SPEED

Owing to the large volume of inquiries for automobile routes and the relatively small amount of space in which to answer them, readers wishing immediate replies are advised to inclose a 2 cent stamp with inquiries so they may be answered by mail. Only routes and answers to questions of general interest will be published.

We are planning a motor car trip to New York City and expect to start about July 1. Please tell me which routes you consider best and what road guides or maps would be necessary. Expect to remain in New York state about one month. Would my Illinois license be good for that length of time?
E. J. J., Chicago.

There are five main routes between Chicago and New York, and all of them are good. It all depends upon what way the tourist chooses to go. These routes are as follows: South Bend, Toledo, Cleveland, Erie, Buffalo, Canandaigua, Ithaca, Cooperstown, Kingston, Newburgh, 1,076 miles; Buffalo, Syracuse, Utica, Albany, Poughkeepsie, 1,030 miles; Buffalo, Avon, Elmira, Binghamton, Goshen, 1,000 miles; Buffalo, Ithaca, Oswego, Binghamton, Scranton, Delaware Water Gap, 985 miles; South Bend, Fort Wayne, Lima, Marion, Columbus, Zanesville, Wheeling, Pittsburgh, Bedford, Gettysburg, Trenton, 930 miles. The latter named route follows the Lincoln highway. Of all these routes, the Cleveland-Buffalo-Syracuse-Albany one, perhaps, is the most popular with New York bound motorists. You should provide yourself with volumes 1 and 4 of the Automobile Blue Book. You may drive in New York state thirty days without taking out a state license. Motorists should take note of the fact that a recent ruling of the New York state authorities requires all operators of machines to take out driver's licenses after July 1 in addition to the state licenses. Visiting motorists are allowed to drive their cars for a period of ten days, at the end of which time they are compelled to obtain driver's licenses.

Please publish the best route from Chicago to Wausau, Wis., via Milwaukee. Kindly state the number of miles.
E. W. F., Chicago.

The lake shore route to Milwaukee is in rough condition now and cannot be recommended. In fact, none of the Milwaukee routes is good, but about the best one runs out Lincoln avenue, through Niles Center, Glen View, Everett, Spalding, Corliss, and Franksville to the Cream City, ninety miles. From Milwaukee drive through Lakefield Corners, Port Washington, Cedar Grove, Gibbsville, Sheboygan, Manitowoc, 84.7 miles; Kellners Corners, Denmark, Green Bay, 37.1 miles; Duck Creek, Howard, Angelica, Shawano, 36.9 miles; Thornton, Tilleda, and Bowler to Wausau, 60.6 miles.

As I am contemplating a transcontinental trip, to be started within the next two weeks, would like your advice as to the best route. Most of my friends advise me to take the Lincoln highway to the coast. Is this route as good as those that cross the northern portion of the west? My intention is to eventually land in Los Angeles, but would like to visit San Francisco. I have been told that one has considerable trouble with the water in the radiator boiling while crossing the mountains. If this is so, am curious to know the reason.
THOMES ACKERT, Chicago.

Just now the Lincoln highway is in bad condition between Salt Lake City and the coast and tourists are advised to delay their trips that way as long as possible. The western roads are in the worst condition known in several seasons, and it will take some time for them to get in shape for touring. It is likely either the National Parks highway or the Yellowstone trail would be found superior to the Lincoln highway at this time. If I were going to the coast myself I would follow the Chicago, Kansas City, and Gulf highway to Kansas City and then take the Santa Fé trail to Los Angeles. Your information that water in the radiator boils more in crossing the mountains is correct. At an elevation of one mile water will boil at a temperature ten degrees below that at sea level. In crossing the Rocky mountains the road is frequently more than a mile above sea level and water boils away rapidly.

A few weeks ago I had a collision with another car and my machine was considerably damaged. Among other things the front axle was badly bent. I had it straightened out, but now I notice that at speeds from twenty-five miles an hour up, the machine sways so much I am compelled to slow down. By what method can I determine if the axle is still out of true and if the front and rear wheels are in line?
ELMER HILDEBRAND, Rockford, Ill.

It is likely the swaying is caused by bent wheel felloes. Jack up the wheels and set them spinning. Then stand in front of them and notice if they wabble. Also make sure the front axle is at right angles with the frame of the car. To determine if the wheels are in alignment measure the distance from the front axle to the rear axle and see if the wheels are exactly parallel to each other. Do this on both sides of the machine. Fix the front wheels so they point straight ahead. Then measure the distance from rim to rim, both back and front. The front wheels should slightly toe in—that is, the rims should be about a quarter of an inch closer together in front than they are in the rear. If the wheels all line up properly the swaying of your car probably is due to some other cause. Are you sure the frame is not bent or cracked?

Is Milwaukee avenue, between the river and Wheeling, still closed to traffic? If so, when will it be opened up?
JOHN McGREGOR, Chicago.

The section referred to has been completed for several days, but it has been closed in order to allow the concrete to become thoroughly set. The barricades were removed yesterday, so it is now possible to use Milwaukee avenue clear through to Wheeling.

How may the government aviation field at Ashburn be reached by motor car? Please state the distance from the loop.
A. J. P., Chicago.

The flying field is located at Crawford avenue and West Eighty-third street. Drive south in Michigan avenue to Garfield boulevard, right to Western avenue, left to Sixty-third street, right to Crawford avenue, and left to Eighty-third street.

Advice to Motorists.

If you use an enameled cover for your spare tires, be sure you put it on right side up. One frequently sees such a cover upside down, in which case it holds rain instead of shedding it.

The holes drilled in the muffler are sometimes rough and ragged, with the result that escaping gases set up a whistling noise that is anything but agreeable. Smoothing off the rough edges usually will eliminate the unwelcome sound.

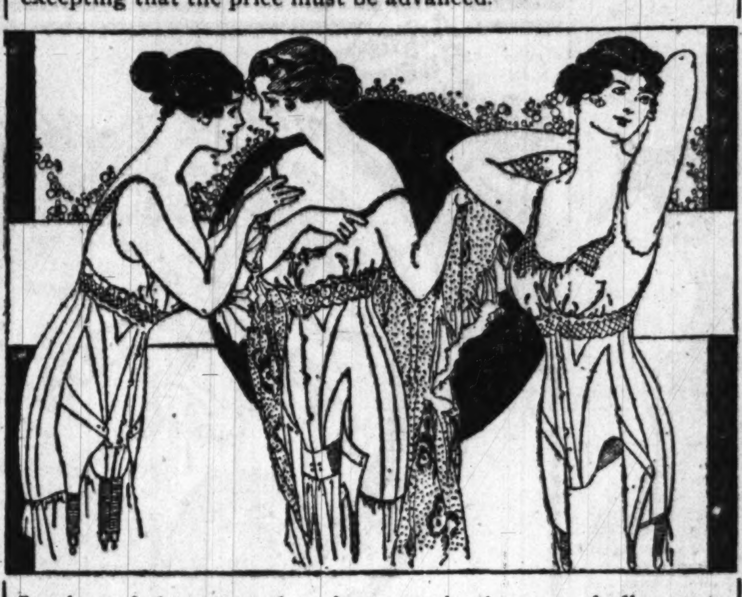
A number of models of Nemo Corsets must be advanced in price July 1st, for the Nemo folks will not alter their standard of goodness in any way—the famous No. 523 or any of the other models will be exactly the same in every way as before excepting that the price must be advanced.



In view of the tremendous increases in the cost of all corset-materials, these advances are slight. They do not nearly cover the increase in the cost of production. For instance, one of the Self-Reducing Corsets at the new price, $4.00, will be a comparatively greater value than when it sold for $3.00.

First Motorized Artillery Unit Is U.S. Achievement

WHAT is believed to be the first complete unit of horseless artillery in the world has been created through the development of a fully motorized field battery of medium caliber guns by the United States. Both European and American engineers worked on the problem of eliminating the horse entirely from the work of dragging such guns to the front for years before the outbreak of the great war. Successful experiments by the government now seem to promise an early substitution of the machine for the horse in handling nearly all forms of ordnance.

Experiments were first made with various types of tractors under the direction of the field artillery board at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and by the ordnance department of the army at the Rock Island arsenal, followed later at Fort Bliss, Texas, with a completely equipped battery. The tractor standards committee of the Society of Automotive Engineers has been actively coöperating in the study of the problem since the outbreak of the war.

The large howitzer types are sure to be motored, according to Maj. Lucian B. Moody, who has been in charge of the work. The French 75s and other light types will have to wait for the development of tractors capable of developing a combination of speed for emergencies and pulling power in mud equal to that of horses.

European armies have reduced greatly the number of horses in artillery use. It has not proved possible to eliminate them in hauling certain of the smaller and medium types of ordnance because of the lack of a proper tractor combination of speed and power.

The new creeping, or self track laying, type of small or medium size developed by the American army is built without the steering arrangement in front, and while possessing relatively as much power as the type now used in Europe, is at the same time capable of turning within its own length by reversing or stopping one of the creeper drivers while the other side continues to move ahead. The experiments with the new types have proceeded far enough to justify plans for the successive motorization of all American artillery units except the smallest calibers required to move at high speed over bad ground.

You Kick It Up.

Earl von Osterheldt and Ralph A. Kauffman of Des Moines, Ia., have received a patent on an automatic automobile top so constructed that the pressure of a foot lever by the driver of a car will either raise or lower the top. Compressed air is the medium used to perform the work.

Many methods of silencing a noisy transmission are in vogue, from the ground cork of the "gyp" who is trying to sell a broken winded old crock, to the new transmission that suggests itself to the car owner with a fat pocketbook. However, a little flaxseed meal placed in the transmission gear is a really effective and harmless silencer.

Funny, isn't it, what some folks will do? Here, for example, is Miss Ruth McCord, who plays in the movies for a man named Ince (you've heard of him) and who left Culver City, Cal., the other day for a little trip of 25,000 miles to the four corners of the United States—on a motorcycle! Why? O, well, these movie folks have to get their names in the papers somehow.

Motor Notes

The Chalmers Motor company is bringing out a complete new line of open and closed cars comprising a five passenger touring car, four passenger phaeton, roadster, and cabriolet on the 117 inch chassis and seven passenger sedan, limousine-landau, town car, and town car landau on the 122 inch chassis. The Chalmers company now secures the bodies in the rough and completes them in is own factory. James Levy, the Chicago distributor, has received his first allotment of the new models.

OLDSMOBILE prestige is an asset to every owner of an Oldsmobile.

It really means something to own the car that has been the "Master pattern" for all automobiles since the very dawn of the day of motor cars.

Add to this the remarkably flexible power of these cars—their ultra-rich appointments—their long sweeping lines, "as graceful as a greyhound"—their masterful construction in each detail, and you have the car to express your motor car standing in the community.

Consider also this—you are protected for twelve months when you buy an Oldsmobile. The strength of our guaranty is as famous as the prestige of our cars. Furthermore, we provide definite service in the form of a coupon book containing coupons for fifty-two hours of service. These coupons are accepted by any one of the twelve OLDSMOBILE service stations located at convenient points in Chicago.

Let us demonstrate any of these models to you. Let us figure on any car you may wish to exchange in part payment for a new Oldsmobile. Be sure to do this before July 1st! Why not today?

Peerless
"All that the name implies"

Race with the Hare
—Hunt with the Hounds

You can—in your Peerless Eight—for it has two separate and distinct power ranges that give it a "dual personality."

The "Loafing" Range

In its "loafing" range you may "race with the hare." You have the nimble "getaway" for quick acceleration at all speeds, you have the soft, smooth, purring motor that will wind its way through traffic taking the slow crawl or the swift spurt, or the smooth, even gait—everything required in ordinary driving—with the utmost grace and distinction.

You would imagine that the car was designed and built only for that kind of work and to utterly excel in it. In ordinary driving it performs entirely in its "loafing" range at half rations, using fuel so sparingly as to shame many a six of less power—even many a four.

The "Sporting" Range

But when you want to "hunt with the hounds" you have a brute of a car ready to pace the best of the pack. You have only to open your throttle wider to call upon your "sporting" range and utterly change the character of your motor.

That same softly purring motor now utters a deep growl of brute power. No ordinary car can hold with you now. You have unleashed eighty horsepower on full rations and few indeed are the cars that can contend with you—only the few that are built especially for thundering speed and prodigious feats of power without regard for the gentler virtues which the Peerless exhibits in its "loafing" range.

Let us demonstrate what it means to drive a car capable of almost unbelievable contrasts of performance, a car that will maximize your pleasure yet minimize your expense.

Winter Tours to Florida May Be Feasible by 1918

By V. D. L. Robinson.

[Secretary Dixie Highway Association.]

MOTORING from Chicago to Florida over the Dixie highway has been in the past an adventure which those who know the roads have never recommended. Progress hoped for in the immediate future, however, makes it possible now to tell another story.

Along the western division of the highway, between Chicago and Tallahassee, Fla., a distance of 1,152 miles, remarkable improvement has been recorded. In two years the mileage of natural trail has been reduced to twenty-eight and the unsurfaced road mileage to 141.

By November there will be completed at least 75 per cent of the entire new road between Nashville and Chattanooga. The routing of this division previously existed only on paper. This completed section, with a short detour which may temporarily be required, will afford tourists to Florida this winter a crossing of the Cumberland divide.

Between Chicago and Tallahassee there are today ninety-four miles of permanent road, 38 miles of asphalt, 578 miles of macadam, rock or gravel, and 276 miles of sand, clay or chert surfacing.

The remainder of the 650 miles of the western division between Tallahassee and Miami, via Gainsville, Ocala, Arcadia, Fort Meyer, and Marco, has shown greater progress than any other similar mileage of road in the United States. Over 190 miles of the most southern section of this division extends through the famous Everglades of Florida, calling for extremely difficult and expensive road and canal construction. Starting with less than 10 per cent in travelable condition two years ago a well surfaced road from Tallahassee to Fort Meyer is in sight by Jan. 1. Within a year from that date a well surfaced road will be extended through Marco and across the state to Miami.

On the entire western division from Chicago to Miami via Tallahassee and Marco, a mileage of 1,802, there has been expended, and bnnds issued, in excess of $5,500,000.

By fall of this year more than 50 per cent of the mileage in Illinois will be of concrete, brick, or asphalt. Progress toward the goal set by W. G. Edens, president of the Illinois Highway Improvement association, that the Dixie highway be permanently improved by the close of 1918, has been temporarily held up by the failure of two counties to carry bond issues. The counties are planning to again take up the issuance of bonds.

In Indiana the entire mileage consists of macadam, rock, or gravel road, with the exception of twenty miles of permanent improvement. With the resurfacing to be carried on this year there will not be a mile of the Dixie highway in this state which cannot be traveled at any time of the year.

In Kentucky, on the western division between Louisville and Nashville, approximately ten miles remain to be surfaced. This division was used by thousands of tourists last year. The section between Cave City and Bowling Green, where the unsurfaced mileage exists, has been included in the first federal aid project to be taken up by the state highway department.

The crossing of the Cumberland divide, between Nashville and Chattanooga, presented a grave problem. Today this puzzling question has almost reached a solution as far as financial preparations are concerned. All questions of routing have been satisfactorily settled, insuring a travelable highway between Nashville and Chattanooga by fall of this year.

The state highway department has indicated that the Dixie highway along this division will receive federal or state aid. An enabling act passed by the last Tennessee legislature permits Marion county, where the most difficult and expensive work has been necessary, to vote a bond issue of $160,000 on July 7. In order to lighten further Marion county's burden of constructing forty-four miles, most of whic his mountain road, President Allison secured the annexation of a narrow strip through Suck Creek gorge, by Hamilton county, thereby transferring the construction of four miles of expensive road to the wealthier county. If the $160,000 bond carries with the state aid promised Marion county, ample funds will be provided to remove the last of many obstructions to the completion of the western division of the highway in Tennessee.

South of Chattanooga the Dixie highway as far as Rome, Ga., will be well surfaced road by the end of June, which will mark the completion of the work in Chattanooga county south of Taylor's ridge. From Rome to the junction north of Cartersville, Ga., of the eastern division to Atlanta, a well graded but unsurfaced road is provided through Bartow county, between Rome and Cartersville. Bartow county has given assurance from time to time that this would be surfaced. The state highway department has designated a road from Rome through Summerville to the Alabama line for federal aid.

One of the most stupendous undertakings in the way of difficult road construction attempted by any state is the building of the Dixie highway through the Everglades of Florida, across the state from Fort Meyer to Marco, thence east to Miami, joining the eastern and western divisions, and completing the loop around the state of Florida. The funds for this work, which will be carried on in conjunction with the construction of canals for drainage of the Everglades, have been provided. Land dredges are now at work excavating for the canals and throwing up the suitable material for the construction of the roadbed. At least two years will be required for the completion of the task.

The connecting links of the highway between Tallahassee and Jacksonville and from Arcadia on the western division to Jupiter on the eastern division are also being improved. Following a survey of road construction completed or under way, of bond issues voted, which in practically every instance specify the roads to be improved, together with the plans being worked out for a state system of roads, Florida will have a network of 3,000 miles of well improved highway by the fall of 1918. It will then be possible to reach any point in Florida without difficulty.

"Our country—your country and my country—is at war," says Henry Ford. "All else must be forgotten. To end this terrible struggle we must win. We are now making 2,500 ambulances here, and if the president or congress can suggest anything else for us to do we will be only too willing to comply."

The National Rubber company has announced an official guarantee that its Speedway tires will outwear any other tire made, regardless of price. A moderate price scale, according to officials of the concern, is achieved through a plan of selling directly tnrough factory branch stores instead of through jobbers, wholesalers, and agencies.

Abner Doble, inventor of the power plant used in the new Doble-Detroit steam car, has devised a steam cooking outfit for a two and one-half ton truck, the vehicle, range, and its equipment being designed as a single, self-propelling unit. The contraption is to be submitted to the war department for army use.

Chicago Women Prove Value as Military Aids

IF Uncle Sam needs them, members of the Emergency Drivers' league beg leave to report that they are ready for service. On the registration cards to be given out at the state meeting of the woman's committee of the council of national defense this week there are two classifications under which women who own automobiles can donate them to the government for part time use, or can offer themselves as drivers. On these lists the league will be enrolled en masse.

Not so generally known as their readiness for service, however, is the fact that members of the league have been driving their cars in regular daily government work for several months past.

The organization, which is coöperating with the council of national defense, is a part of the Navy league and grew out of the fertile mind of Mrs. Frederick Countiss. When every one was talking of organizing for future service, Mrs. Countiss urged the need of something more immediate.

The emergency drivers were the result. Under the chairmanship of Miss Florence Spofford about seventy-five women, all prominent socially, have been quietly donating their cars and their services as drivers wherever the authorities have demanded them.

Mrs. Lawrence A. Meeker and Miss Merwyn Shenton have been among the most faithful in their daily work as volunteer chauffeuses. Others who have been particularly active are Miss Alice Ryan, Miss Miriam Steever, Mrs. E. W. Richey, Mrs. W. S. Pettit, Mrs. Sydney Goldenberg, and Mrs. E. C. Morton.

The drivers have covered thousands of miles in Chicago and the nearby territory, aiding in recruiting for the navy, transportation of supplies for the Red Cross, carrying light office fixtures for the recruiting offices, taking sick or injured jackies and soldiers to hospitals, and providing a line of communication with Fort Sheridan. There's been other more serious work, too, which cannot be divulged for military reasons.

And the calls are coming in so rapidly that the league is seeking to recruit 100 more cars and drivers.

Ford Show Dates Set.

Chicago's first Ford show, planned recently at a dealers' conference here, is to be held at the Coliseum Sept. 22 to 29. The exhibit will be concerned entirely with Fords and appliances designed to improve their performance and appearance.

Why, you couldn't buy enough to feed the "rats" in my hair.

Don't say that. I've got friends down in Wall street.

[Interested]—Oh, have you?

Yes, John D. Rockefeller once gave me a pointer.

Then why ain't you a rich man?

Because the "pointer" bit me.

[Impatiently]—There you go again.

All the same I want you to understand that I'm a financial wonder.

You are?

Yes; I once cleaned up ten million in six months.

[Eagerly]—You cleaned up ten million dollars in six months?

Yes. I had a job in the mint, scrubbing dirty money.

Do you dissipate?

I chew gum occasionally.

And smoke cigarettes?

Moderately.

And do you drink as well as smoke?

I drink even better than I smoke.

I'm an actor—a moving picture actor.

Are you in three or seven parts?

I'll ask myself.

I'd love to act before the camera.

You might break it.

I know I'd be a success as an actress. I can carry my audience with me.

That's the only way you can be sure of an audience nowadays.

Do you know, I'd like to run a theater of my own. I'm a regular female David Belasco.

Am you?

I've got some wonderful ideas for staging a play.

You'll have to spill out a little more chatter before you convince me.

For instance, if I were to produce a play with a scene laid in Chinatown, I'd have the stage smelling of incense. Or, again, if the scene were the garden of a country home, I'd have the stage perfumed with roses.

Very pretty, indeed. But suppose the scene was laid in an Italian tenement, would you have the stage perfumed with garlic?

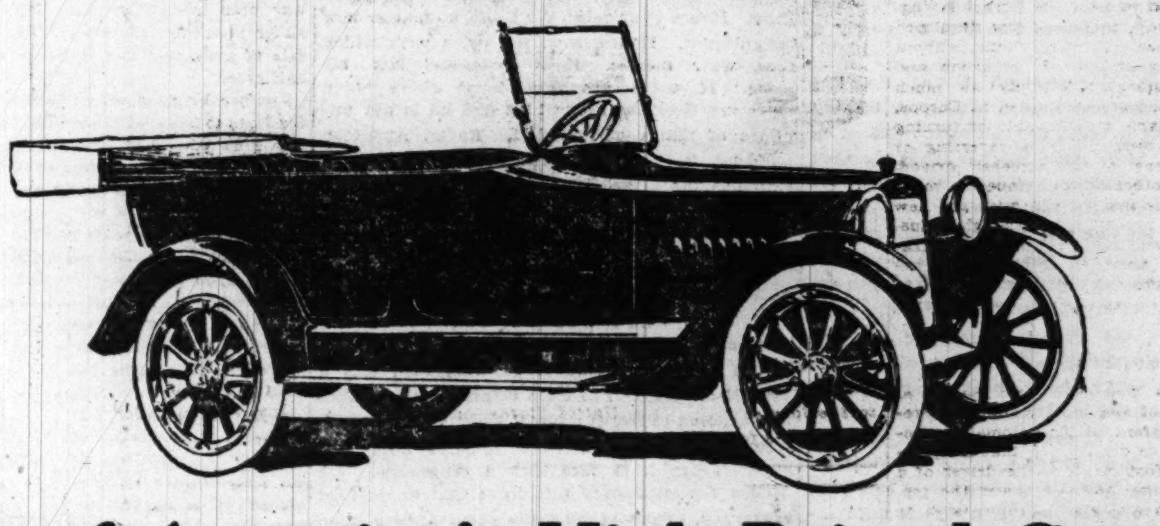
SAXON "SIX"



40 of America's High Priced Cars and SAXON "SIX"

Make This Test Yourself

See How They Compare Feature for Feature

Here we have taken 40 fine-quality cars built in America. They range in cost from $1,147 to $6,000 for the chassis alone.

Let us together compare these costly cars to Saxon "Six"—checking off feature after feature.

First the motor—Saxon "Six" has a Continental motor. So have 12 of these 40 cars, costing from $1,175 to $2,200. Saxon "Six" costs $935.

Then the axles. Saxon "Six" has Timken axles. So have 13 of these 40 cars, costing from $1,250 to $5,000.

Now the bearings. Saxon "Six" has Timken bearings. So have 11 of these 40 cars, costing from $1,295 to $5,000.

And the carburetor. Saxon "Six" has a Stromberg carburetor. So have 9 of these 40 cars, costing from $1,195 to $5,000.

Next the ignition. Saxon "Six" has Remy ignition. So have 9 of these 40 cars, costing from $1,175 to $5,000.

Then the radiator. Saxon "Six" has a Fedders radiator. So have 16 of these 40 cars, costing from $1,150 to $6,300.

Now the gear. Saxon "Six" has a spiral bevel gear. So have 18 of these 40 cars, costing from $1,175 to $6,000 for the chassis alone.

And the axle type. Saxon "Six" has a semi-floating axle. So have 11 of these 40 cars, costing from $1,200 to $4,800.

Next the storage battery. Saxon "Six" has the "Exide" battery. So have 9 of these 40 cars, costing from $1,145 to $4,800.

Last, the starting and lighting system. Saxon "Six" has a Wagner. So have 12 of these 40 cars, costing from $1,145 to $2,695.

We find, you see, that the ten most important features of Saxon "Six" are also features of these 40 costly cars.

Or, look at it this way. Saxon "Six" sells for $935.

This price is the lowest level that shrewd and careful purchasing, that strict economy, that highly developed manufacturing efficiency and volume output can bring it to.

These 40 other cars cost from $260 to $5,000 more than Saxon "Six," yet we find them duplicating Saxon "Six" features in 10 important points.

That proves—from one angle—the high quality of Saxon "Six."

From another angle it proves that for $250 to $300 more you cannot buy a better car than Saxon "Six." So why pay more than Saxon "Six" price?

You don't get more in car value, or in beauty, or in performance, and your car will cost you more in upkeep than Saxon "Six."

So in every way you figure this matter Saxon "Six" is a better buy than any car at from $250 to $300 more in price.

Saxon "Six" is a big, roomy car, seating five passengers in perfect comfort.

There is plenty of seat space and more than ordinary leg length.

And Saxon "Six" is a spirited car in performance.

It responds to the lightest touch on the accelerator.

It handles easily and holds the road well when traveling at high speed.

Furthermore, Saxon "Six" is a vigorously flexible car and a wonderful high-gear performer.

The price is $935 f.o.b Detroit.

THE HINDENBURG LINE.

We shall begin to realize soon what the Hindenburg line is. It is the furthest western advance of the Prussian people, whose empire has been going not only east and south but west—the furthest western advance which has been maintained. We may regard the advance which was a little deeper into French territory as an aborted thrust, but the present line represents at the present an extension of the German empire which, if maintained, would so weaken France as virtually to destroy her as a power.

Behind the Hindenburg line Germany has absorbed the resources of Belgium and France—metals, coal, and materials of industry. They are German today and will be German so long as the Hindenburg line holds.

The line represents the furthest advance which Germany has been able to maintain, but it does not represent the attainment of all German ambitions or the possibility of conquest to its full extent.

It is estimated that there are from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 German troops of all kinds and that 5,500,000 are in or near the first line. Each year's class of recruits increases the total by nearly a half million.

That indicates the strength behind the line which the British and French are trying bravely and desperately to break or push back. Russia, by the surrender of its initiative, has made the task inhumanly more difficult. With Russian resistance disappearing and with the full force of Germany thrown west, the line may advance again, spreading the field gray of the German soldier over France and bringing the German empire up to the edge of the Atlantic, a threat to America.

It is up to the United States, for its own security, to see that there not only is no advance but that the line is broken or beaten back. It may require every force the United States can muster and every activity it can display, but it must be done. There will be no peace in the United States if it is not done. The alternatives are to break the line or take the consequences, and it is unthinkable to take the consequences.

If the line advances it means the humiliation of the United States. To break it may require here, as it has in France, the energies of nearly every man and woman and nearly every organization in the country. Men and material, guns and foodstuffs must be sent in an ever increasing stream until the men and material break the line.

It is the most stubborn line of concrete and iron, men and guns, bayonets and wire that the world ever saw. Before the United States has done its part, which, we must consider, may be the greatest part played in breaking it, we may have found it necessary to bring up nearly every reserve of strength in the nation.

Factories which now are making pianos or sewing machines or steel parts may be making shrapnel or rifles. Women may be in the munition works and in the fields. We may be plowing by night. We may be taking our young men by classes, not by selective conscription, but by the application of real universal service, and sending them in waves through the processes which make soldiers to the glorious deaths that preserve liberties.

We shall be building ships and filling them with cargoes for the sustenance and equipment of half the world. So long as the Hindenburg line stretches unbroken from the sea to Switzerland there is an iron hand resting on the American future, and for the sake of the future every American activity may have to be directed against the hand.

That is our work, and it may come to be the only work to which an American can give a thought or activity.

VICIOUS POLICE WORK.

Judge Gemmill's rebuke of the policewoman who brought an elderly Chinaman before him on a charge of annoying her was none too severe if the judge was not misinformed. It is to be assumed that he did not speak without at least plausible grounds.

The situaton here broached is vicious in the extreme. The community should take note of it. If we are to have women in charge of police regulations touching sex in any way, we demand that they be selected with the greatest care. There have been too many indications that they have not been and this presents a condition that may become a peril to the individual, a public scandal, and an injury to our good name as a community.

The power possessed by a woman over the reputation of a man is in exact proportion to the man's honorable character. Her accusation, if it touches sex, may be as false as hell, but it makes a stain that nothing can wholly wash out. The panic of a neurotic woman, the attack of a blackmailer may bring down in ruin the happiness of a family, the whole structure of an honorable man's life.

This is too great power to be given to any one without making certain that the recipient is responsible morally and mentally. That honest, level headed women can do service in certain lines of police work, especially those which have to do with the protection of children, is clear. But a woman of low grade morality or intelligence, a woman who may have ulterior purposes, or abnormal susceptibilities, or a false theory of her duties may become a public nuisance and a private peril.

It is no business of the administration of law or public morals to provoke offenses for the sake of punishing them. It does not make for public decency or social cleanliness that a woman should be permitted to ogle and tempt men for the purpose of making an arrest, winning a place in the news, or other even less undesirable motives. Nothing could be more foolish or perverted than to think evil minded men can be disciplined or weak women protected by such tactics. They must not be tolerated, and Judge Gemmill is to be thanked for calling attention to the situation. American women must be protected from offense in public places, but it can be done without creating a peril to decent men.

GERMAN FEUDALISM.

"Gentlemen," Wilhelm II. once declared, "opposition on the part of the Prussian nobility to their king is a monstrosity," and the remark lets in a flood of light upon German government. It is not only autocracy, and one man autocracy at that, it is autocracy backed up by oligarchy. Let us analyze the system and see if Wilhelm's remark was not true.

Who are the Prussian nobility? A clique of landholders. Who is Wilhelm? The greatest noble and greatest landholder. There prevails, consequently, a community of interests, with Wilhelm serving as president, vice president, and board of directors in a gigantic real estate trust. Politically it is at the same time a gigantic power trust. So it behooves the nobility to back up Wilhelm. Meanwhile Wilhelm's revenues leave him independent of the trust. He can dictate without fear. Nor could the trust get rid of Wilhelm if it tried. King and emperor he remains by constitutional as well as hereditary right.

Observe now what the nobles gain, apart from mere business advantage, by backing up Wilhelm. He appoints nobles and nobles only to high offices of state. He chooses nobles and nobles only as his chancellors and ministers. He officers his army and navy with nobles and nobles only. He makes the Prussian nobility a ruling caste. Through Prussia it rules the empire. If in turn it is itself ruled by Wilhelm, what matter? The arrangement pays. "You scratch my back, I'll scratch yours," sums up the situation. It is no new thing in the world: in the middle ages they called it the feudal system. It deserves that name today.

Prussians know it. Some few protest. The vast majority, however, accept the feudal system and support it gladly. They were never taught that "all men are born free and equal." They believe in class distinctions and delight to emphasize them. Hence their relish for titles, no matter how insignificant. Hence, also, the pride with which they wear medals. Each individual has his place. If there are Prussians above him, there are Germans below him, and he is not unaware of that consoling fact. As an American has put it, jocosely, "Hans beats Gretchen, Gretchen beats the Kinder, and the Kinder beat the cat." Political inequality as expressed in limitations upon the suffrage, the unfair allotment of seats, the sway of feudal landlords, the grip of ancient, hereditary aristocratic cliques upon the empire, and the grip of a divinely anointed potentate upon the ruling cliques, with only a semblance of popular control anywhere—all this a Prussia accustomed to class distinctions and class prerogatives tolerates without serious difficulty.

Before the war it was the Germans' affair, not ours. Today it is ours with a vengeance. We decline the missionary attentions that would foist autocracy, oligarchy, and the caste system upon free America. We especially object when the attempt is made in the name of progress. Beautiful progress! Forward—to the Dark Ages!

FOOD CONSERVATION IN ALASKA.

"Whereas, the maintenance of a food supply is absolutely essential to preparedness," writes the governor of Alaska, "now, therefore, I," etc., etc., and the Alaska railroad record prints his proclamation in full on page 239. On the opposite page we find the menu enjoyed by a merry crew of Alaskans known as the Tanana Farmers' association, who ate substantially as follows:

Oyster cocktail.
Relishes.
Queen olives. Gherkins. Sweet pickles.
Salads.
Crab en mayonnaise on lettuce.
Meats.
Young turkey with apricot jelly.
Ox tongue.
Prime ribs of beef.
Westphalia boiled ham.
Dessert.
Roman punch. Macaroons.
Water crackers. Cream cheese.
Cafe noir.

It is sweet to see the Alaska farmers go in so heartily for conservation. Indeed, we feel constrained to adorn our congratulations with a few lines of poetry, thus:

How doth the little busy bee
Delight to bark and bite,
And gather honey all the day
And eat it up at night.

Editorial of the Day

NOTHING THE MATTER WITH THE WEST.

[From the New York World.]

"What is the matter with the west?" The question has been a fruitful subject of magazine and newspaper discussion ever since America entered the great war. Was the west really a part of the nation? Had the west forgotten the honor of the nation in a riot of profits from the allied demands for wheat and horses? Did the west actually feel that it was unconcerned with a war against Germany so long as the menace of an invasion was confined to the coast sections?

These questions are now being answered. We have had one answer in the greater response of the west over the east to volunteering for the regular army and the national guard. We have another answer from Secretary McAdoo, who reports a west alive with enthusiasm in support of the great financial measures for the prosecution of the war. Everywhere he went people and communities were rising to any sacrifices needed for war taxation and to any demands within their means for the purchase of war loans.

There is nothing the matter with the west. There has never been anything the matter with the west. Those who thought there was saw darkly, and those who were thought to represent it in congress misrepresented it.

DAD'S CHOICE.

"So your father has given up the idea of making a garden?"

"Yes. He was very enthusiastic at first, but our soil is mostly yellow clay and it blistered his hands to dig in it."

"But I thought he was going to plant vegetables?"

"So he was. Now he says that if next winter's food depends on his digging like that he prefers to die of starvation."—Detroit Free Press.

A TEST.

"He must love her."

"Huh?"

"There was a procession going by. She couldn't see very well, and he let her stand on his foot."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

[Copyright: 1917: By the Brentwood Co.]

NOWHERE has the recent decision of the United States government to inaugurate a policy in the navy and in the army of promotion in the higher ranks and of appointment to command by selection instead of by seniority attracted a greater amount of attention than in British naval circles. The most progressive officers there have for a long time past been urging this reform upon the admiralty, but without avail, and the hope is expressed that now that the United States navy has blazed the path for this new departure the reorganized admiralty at Whitehall may follow the lead.

It is urgently needed. For in spite of the number of retirements of flag officers during the last three years and the permission obtained a few weeks ago by the admiralty from the treasury for the additional nine new flag officers to the active list, the fact remains that the average age of all the officers promoted to the rank of rear admiral during the last year has been eighteen months older than prior to the war. That is to say, the British navy is now getting older admirals instead of younger ones, and under the present system even the most brilliant captain, no matter what his achievements, cannot become a rear admiral until all the captains above him have died, retired, or been promoted.

The case of Commodore Reginald Tyrwhitt is one in point. There is probably no officer of the navy who knows so much about the handling of destroyers. He commanded the fourth flotilla of destroyers from 1908 to 1910, the second flotilla from 1912 to 1914, and was then put in charge of all the destroyers of the grand fleet. He has done splendid work since the beginning of the war, and it is owing to his activities that there has been so little interruption by German submarines and destroyers of the constant passenger and war supply traffic across the channel between England and France. But he cannot become a rear admiral, no matter how many victories he may yet score, between now and the end of the war until more than sixty officers above him are either promoted, retired, or dead; and at the usual rate of promotion this will take at least two and a half years.

Another brilliant officer is Martin Nasmyth, who for feats to his credit since the beginning of the war has been promoted to a captaincy over about 800 senior lieutenants and commanders. But now that he is a captain he has under the present system no prospect whatsoever of becoming a rear admiral until ten or eleven years hence.

On board the British torpedo ship Vernon at Portsmouth there is a cabin devoted to what are technically known as toys. These consist of various working models and ingenious contrivances of one kind and another. Among the latter is an electrical aparatus by means of which words written on an instrument are reproduced on a similar instrument at the other end of the vessel. Many distinguished visitors have been invited to make a trial of the invention, and there is on show a book which records their efforts, usually a brief sentence, followed by the autograph of the person concerned. Among the most noteworthy of these is the following phrase: "Favoritism is the secret of efficiency." The signature below is that of Admiral of the Fleet Lord Fisher.

Yet in spite of the fact that he remains on record as the most masterful of all the naval officers who ever held office throughout many years as first sea lord of the admiralty he was never able to put his axiom into practice and to emancipate himself or the service from the fetish of seniority. By favoritism Lord Fisher, of course, meant the freedom of selection for promotion or command, irrespective of seniority.

The sensational Sivewright will case in the Court of Sessions at Edinburgh, in which the widowed Lady Sivewright is endeavoring to upset the last will and testament of her husband, Sir James Sivewright, who died last fall at a private asylum for the insane in Scotland, presents many strange features. The testamentary directions to which she takes exception exclude her in the most insulting terms from Tulliallan castle, in Fifeshire, of which she has been mistress until now, from the time that her husband purchased it from Lord Lansdowne on his return from South Africa immediately after the Boer war. The will bequeaths to her an annuity of $25,000 a year and leaves the bulk of his fortune elsewhere.

Lady Sivewright claims that her husband was mentally unbalanced when he signed the will, just three weeks before he was judicially committed to the insane asylum. This is denied by the executors of the will. The evidence which she has given in court certainly bears out her contention, for he seems to have become a prey to such terrible fits of passion against her that sometimes he would be unable to articulate, while on other occasions he would laugh and shriek and yell at her like a lunatic. She appears also to have repeatedly suffered bodily violence at his hands.

It is evident that the Scotch climate did not agree with him after his long sojourn in South Africa, for away back in 1900 he had the reputation in South Africa, and especially at Cape Town, of never having lost his temper, and in a pen sketch printed of him at that time it was added that this was one of the secrets of his "so extraordinarily happy married life."

His wife, whom he married in 1880, was the daughter of a small shopkeeper of the name of George Page, at Bloemfontein, and in her youth—she is now 63—must have been a very pretty woman.

Sir James was entirely a self-made man. His father was a stonemason at Fochabers, in Scotland, and was able by thrift to amass enough money to send his son to Aberdeen university. There James Sivewright in some way became interested in telegraphy, and by his twenty-first birthday had passed first in a stiff government examination for the government telegraph service. Some years later he was appointed manager of the Cape of Good Hope telegraph service. In that capacity he rendered incalculable benefit to Souh Africa and won high praise for the skill and daring he displayed in field telegraphy during the Zulu war.

It was Sir James, instead of Cecil Rhodes, who first conceived the idea of connecting Cape Town with Cairo, not by railroad, it is true, but by telegraph. This brought him into close contact with Rhodes, and he joined the latter's first cabinet in 1890, threw himself with almost feverish activity into the question of railroad extension to the Transvaal, and became the railroad king of South Africa. He used always to insist that the railroad was the greatest civilizing agent in Africa. Subsequently the two men parted.

WHAT CAN MILK SPREAD?

THIS is the season of the year when bad milk is most harmful. While most people in cities are now drinking pasteurized milk some of them are not. Most of the people in the villages, towns, and smaller cities are drinking raw milk.

Milk is about the only bond by which the people in the country and city are bound together from the standpoint of preventable disease. Through infected containers contagion is carried from the city to the country. Through infected milk contagion is carried to the city from the country.

In an effort to determine what proportion of the contagion was present in Massachusetts between 1910 and 1914 Dr. Kelley of the state board of health made a study of 240 epidemics. There were 6,000 cases in these epidemics, according to Dr. Kelley's estimate. During these four years there were 83,958 cases of contagion in the state. This disproportion leads Dr. Kelley to say: "The endemic or sporadic prevalence of these diseases is a vastly greater problem than their occasional epidemic occurrence."

Where there were but one or two or a few cases in a neighborhood and the disease speedily came under control no investigation was made of the method of spreading. While some of the work of the investigation of these 6,000 cases was carried out by the inspectors of the state board most of it was done by local boards of health. In Massachusetts there are many excellent local boards of health, but there are many others that are just as inefficient as the average local board of health in the middle west. Forty towns with an aggregate population of 50,134 reported that they had not had any contagion during the five year period; 136 towns and cities with an aggregate population of 2,703,000, or 80 per cent of the population of the state, reported that they had 76,596 cases of contagion, of which 2,973 were due to milk and 241 others were suspected of being due to milk. The estimate was that 5 per cent of the typhoid fever was milk borne.

There were 11,282 cases of typhoid with 1,425 deaths. Of these 553, with 37 deaths, were attributed to milk, and 135 others, with 8 deaths, were suspected of being milk borne. This is a low estimate in comparison with other estimates. The usual estimate is that from 10 to 25 per cent of the typhoid fever is due to milk.

In Chicago the typhoid rate at its worst was 175. Purification of the water supply cut it to somewhere about 15. A better control of the water supply, better care of typhoid generally and a partial pasteurization of its milk supply cut the typhoid rate from 15 to 5 between 1907 and 1916. Since the fall of 1916 the rate has been running in the vicinity of 1. This reduction of 80 per cent in the typhoid rate Health Commissioner Robertson attributes to pasteurization of all milk except that sold as certified milk.

It is probable that in a city where the water supply is pure and much of the milk is sold raw the milk supply is responsible for more than 50 per cent of the typhoid. In a smaller city and in the rural districts where the water supplies are usually polluted, it is possible that not more than 5 per cent of the typhoid is due to milk. Where pasteurization is universal and under good control it is probable that the milk supply is not responsible for 5 per cent of the typhoid.

In Massachusetts in the years in question 31,886 cases of diphtheria were recorded at health departments. In eleven of these it was reasonably certain that milk was the carrier of contagion. In forty-nine others it was suspected to be the cause. The conclusion arrived at by Kelley is that milk is not of great importance as a means of spreading diphtheria. If more attention were given people and less were given milk there would have been less diphtheria. Or, to put it better, if some of the money spent on protecting milk against infection by diphtheria bacilli had been spent on controlling cases, and especially carriers, there would have been less diphtheria. Controlled pasteurization is about the only precaution that we need take against milk borne diphtheria.

In the five years 31,012 cases and 981 deaths from scarlet fever were recorded. Of these cases 495 were due to milk and fifty-seven were suspected of being due to it. Kelley concludes that the transmission of scarlet fever through milk, while much more common than diphtheria, is of very small percentage significance. This conclusion is probably correct, though not certainly so.

In the first place, it is the exception for it to be definitely determined just where a given case of scarlet fever contracted the disease. In most cases they "just caught it somehow" or "there is lots of scarlet fever around" or "there's been a lot of it in our school this spring" or some other generalization suffices. In the second place we may have an exaggerated idea of the importance of certain symptoms of milk borne scarlet fever. For instance, we say that whenever scarlet fever flashes all over a neighborhood or a town within a week it is reasonably certain that milk is the spreader, which is true, but that does not make it impossible that milk borne scarlet fever may not have this characteristic.

In the five years there were 2,426 cases of septic sore throat reported. Of these 1,914 were proven to be from milk. Kelley concludes that septic sore throat is par excellence the milk borne disease, but its occurrence is fortunately relatively rare. When it does occur it is nearly always in epidemic form and is of more serious consequences. The latter part of this statement is open to some question. There is no certain way of diagnosing septic sore throat except by the fact that it occurs in epidemics. When Dr. Kelley discussed the subject last year before the Massachusetts Health Officers' association he told them how to tell septic sore throat.

When he got through talking this was what one had gotten from what he said: Whenever there is a wave of sore throat in a community get suspicious of septic sore throat and look into the milk supply. That is what one got from Dr. North's discussion of the same subject before the American Public Health association.

Both of these gentlemen have had large experience with septic sore throat. I have been through at least one epidemic of septic sore throat and I know that is the way things worked out in that epidemic. Within two years I have known of septic sore throat going through one family entirely unsuspected, although they were seen by the best of diagnosticians. One of them was operated on for supposed appendicitis in one of the best hospitals by one of the best surgeons. This is a statement of the facts. Rather widespread epidemics of septic sore throat are recognized. Small epidemics and individual cases are not. We do not know how much septic sore throat there is nor how much is milk borne.

Proper pasteurization is a remedy and the only remedy against septic sore throat. Epidemics are always controlled almost instantly when the milk is properly pasteurized. But a word of caution is necessary. The great Chicago epidemic was spread by pasteurized milk. The proof is that, the milk having been pasteurized, was infected by a man who canned the filled milk bottles. This man had septic sore throat. Certain members of his family also had had it.

Against these four diseases pasteurization is the only measure that is reasonably safe. It is essentially a safety first measure. Even the best certifying commissions have not succeeded in making certified milk fully safe against milk borne typhoid, scarlet fever, and diphtheria.

Kelley concludes that the menace of tuberculosis is the best justification for the supervision and control of milk supplies. Park and Krumweide concluded that at least one-third of all the tuberculosis in children under 5, and slightly less of that in children between 5 and 15, is due to bovine tubercle bacilli, or, in other words, to tuberculous milk.

The conclusion of the British royal commission was that milk was responsible for a large part of the human tuberculosis. The German royal commission came to the same general conclusion.

The percentage of milk cows that are tubercular varies from 1 to 50. It is rather generally understood that in old dairy districts about 25 per cent of the cows at pail are tuberculous. A tuberculous milk cow infects her milk even though the udder is healthy. We can assume that every large tank of milk, being, as it is, milk from a large number of cows, is infected with tubercle bacilli.

There are two methods of protecting a milk supply against tuberculosis—pasteurization and tuberculin testing. Pasteurization is more effective, all in all, than tuberculin testing. Two years ago the oldest and most dependable certifying milk commission in the United States fell down woefully on its tuberculin testing and permitted a large number of tuberculous cows to remain in a large dairy selling high priced milk. But this is the drawback to a policy of pasteurization. The percentage of tuberculous dairy cows increases rapidly unless proper measures for prevention are taken.

The increase in the cost of milk production is mounting rapidly. The farmers say they cannot make milk at a profit even at present prices. A part of their difficulty is due to the fact that they are trying to make milk with sick cows. The indications are that in the next generation the children of the poor and the moderately well off will be compelled to live on milk substitutes. However, the health officer can ease his conscience by requiring pasteurization as a safety measure.

The study by Dr. Kelley takes no account of summer complaint in relation to the milk supply. In the first place, summer complaint is not generally regarded as a communicable disease. In the second place, there is a good deal of discussion as to what is the proper proportion of the infant mortality rate that is chargeable to milk. To my mind there is no question that Levy proved in Richmond that flies spread infantile diarrhœa. By promptly sterilising diapers and keeping them under cover and away from flies he lowered the infant mortality rate of Richmond. Armstrong backed up his conclusions by a demonstration in New York City. Reports to the same effect come from Great Britain.

If flies carry diarrhœa it must be because they infect milk. That flies get into milk every one knows who has been on a diary farm or in a milk depot or around a pantry. Nor does it remedy the situation to strain them out. An ice cream maker at Peoria once told me "Flies in milk do no harm. We always skim them out."

To my mind infected and slightly spoiled milk is much the most important source of harm due to milk. Dr. Kelley did not take it into account because his study was one of the epidemics on record as such in the files of the Massachusetts board of health.

VACCINE SUSCEPTIBILITY.

C. C. C. writes: "Two years ago I had a case of typhoid fever, beginning ten days after the last dose of typhoid vaccine. I was informed by the state board of health that for about eight days after taking vaccine a person was unusually susceptible to typhoid. Then immunity sets in. I do not think that physicians generally know this and I am sure that the people do not. I think the fact should be given wide publicity that persons recently vaccinated should shun polluted water and milk and other sources of infection for a week or ten days. Three people in my town took typhoid fever soon after having the vaccine administered the same season as that in which I was sick.

REPEY.

Thanks for your letter. We are glad to give it wide publicity, although I am not so certain about it as was your informant. It is held by some that subsequent to the injection of vaccine there is a period of heightened susceptibility to typhoid. This period is supposed to last about a week. Equally good scientists and more of them hold that there is no evidence of a period of heightened susceptibility. I think they have the best of the argument. But certainly it is not a settled question.

Why not safety first? Why not do as you say—be very cautious about massive infection through drinking highly polluted water or polluted milk or otherwise for a week? Even if the theory is wrong you have not lost much.

BUILDING DANGER ORDERED REMEDIED.

Chicago, June 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—An old barn is standing in the rear of 3515 West Sixtieth place which is a menace to the safety of the children in the neighborhood, as it is liable to topple over any minute. Can this not be brought to the attention of the proper authorities? G. D. M.

The owner of building has been notified to repair or take down barn located at 3515 West Sixtieth place.

CHARLES BOSTROM,
Commissioner of Buildings.

ANNOYED BY CHICKENS.

Chicago, June 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—We are annoyed by my neighbor's chickens. He has his coop right alongside of our bedroom windows, and as soon as it's daylight they start and we can't sleep. The stench when it rains is unbearable. Cannot something be done? MRS. T. E.

The matter was investigated by an inspector from this department and a notice was served on the owner to remove all accumulations of chicken manure from coop, limewash inner surfaces of the coop, and abate nuisance of crowing roosters in the early morning.

JOHN DILL ROBERTSON,
Commissioner of Health.

NUISANCE WILL BE ABATED.

Chicago, June 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I wish to report the condition of the manure box of the dairy at 749 Wrightwood avenue. This box stands several inches away from the building. This entire side is open; there is a space of about three or four inches on the top where the lumber has rotted away, and there are open spaces between every connecting board. As a breeding place for flies and disease it is unequaled.

Will you kindly do something to remedy this condition? G. S.

Notice has been served on the owner to repair cover of manure receptacle on lot to abate nuisance of odor.

JOHN DILL ROBERTSON,
Commissioner of Health.

SHOULD HAVE RECEIVED TWO-THIRDS OF PROPERTY.

Chicago, June 18.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A daughter who is an artist paints oil paintings and gives them to her mother and father. The mother dies and the father marries again. The father dies, willing his daughter only $1 and her mother's one-half in the homestead. The father's one-half in the homestead and all personal property go to the second wife.

1. Can the second wife hold these paintings and everything that was the mother's?
2. How long can the second wife hold and live in the home? READER.

1. If your own mother left no will you (assuming there are no other children) were entitled to two-thirds of her personal property. You have no claim to the one-third that went to your father and that he left to his second wife.
2. We cannot answer without knowing the value, the solvency of the estate, amount of widow's award, etc.

OBSTRUCTING FIRE PLUGS.

Chicago, June 18.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Am informed that there is a law or ordinance prohibiting the parking of automobiles alongside of the curb of streets within fifteen feet or some other reasonable distance of water hydrants for fire protection purpose. If correct, why is this condition allowed to exist with respect to the building at 5323 Woodlawn avenue? W. F. B.

The ordinance provides: "No person shall in any manner obstruct the use of any fire hydrant, or place any material in front thereof, or within five feet from either side thereof, under a penalty of $10."

A RETURN TO SIMPLICITY NEEDED.

Chicago, June 21.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Standing out in bold relief from the many excellent editorials of THE DAILY TRIBUNE, the one entitled, "A Dinner, a Dollar, and Patriotic Scholar" carries a volume of concentrated common sense that should be freely imbibed by the public.

Truly, "we need espionage upon our appetites." We need a curb on our extravagant tastes, our proclivity to wastefulness. If the war reached no other object than getting the people back into simple ways of living, appreciating primitive habits and abandoning ostentatious display, it would accomplish much for the benefit of this country.

The cabinet women have adopted a sensible method of setting the fashion of simple dinners. It is hoped all society will do likewise, also inaugurate the wearing of simple cotton gowns for daily use, such as our grandmothers felt well dressed in. A working woman or girl, neatly garbed in simple, washable dresses, stout, broad toed, low heeled shoes, and simple hat, is more attractive than the monstrosities filling the streets at certain hours, dressed as if about to appear on the stage instead of going to some stuffy workroom. The time is ripe for teaching a sense of fitness and thrift, habits of living such as prevailed in pioneer days, habits that built the strength of this nation, making a clean, brave, intelligent people such as never had an equal. The old time integrity of the nation is rapidly disappearing and in its place is shoddy snobbishness and tawdry display.

History repeats itself, and it has always been that when a people reached an unseemly state of riotous living war, famine, or some kindred calamity has visited it to cleanse it of the evil. So now war will purify and make clean America, lend strength to the nation, and bring it to a more perfect state of sociological equilibrium, a model among nations, a peer in the world's history.

JEAN ROBERTS ALBERT.

TWO KINDS OF HOLDUP—OR ONE?

Burlington, Ia., June 20.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—A short time ago I purchased five cars of screenings from southern Illinois at $2.75 per ton at the mine. Last year I paid 90 cents for this same kind of coal. After allowing them 65 cents increase over last year's price, I find that I have been robbed of about $300 on the five cars.

Now, I am not going to cry about the loss of the money. Maybe they needed it to buy Liberty bonds with. But I would like to have you explain to me the difference between these fellows and that class of citizens who go out and get theirs with a short piece of lead pipe, and why a little of the same penalty might help straighten matters out.

THOMAS MORAN.

TAKING SOMETHING FORCED ON U. S.

Chicago, June 21.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Socialist Lloyd, in his recent letter to THE TRIBUNE, quotes Britten and Mason—precious birds!—in support of his contention that 75 per cent of the people don't want war. It isn't a question of wanting or not wanting war; it is a question of accepting war after it has been handed to us by a mailed fist in the solar plexus. BROWNELL HAYES.

HARDSHIPS OF CADETS.

Chicago, June 21.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—With the hope of avoiding similar mismanagement on future occasions in handling the high school cadets, I believe publicity should be given the bungle on the part of those managing arrangements for the cadets who went to Speedway park yesterday.

In the first place, cadets were told to report at school at 7:30 a. m., which means breakfast about 6:30 at home. They were told they were to be served lunch free at Speedway park, so most of the boys were not supplied with money. Using Englewood High as an example, the day's schedule was about as follows:

Arrived at school at 7:30 a. m.

Left for Grant park on motor truck at 8:45 a. m.

Left for Speedway on motor truck at 10 a. m.

Arrived at Speedway on motor truck at 1:15 p. m.

No lunch served; some of the boys fortunate enough to have money bought sandwiches. Over half the boys had to stand up all the way from school to Speedway.

About 2 p. m., during cadet maneuvers, it was found about twenty boys had fainted from lack of food and attention. These boys were set up against a barn or shed and were given light refreshment to revive them.

Left Speedway on motor trucks about 5:45 p. m. Arrived at school about 8 p. m., supperless, most of the boys standing all the way back (as out).

Hoping that with these facts before you you can wield your powerful influence for better provision and more careful planning for these patriotic boys on future occasions,

A GREAT SERVICE TO THE COUNTRY.

Urbana, Ill., June 20.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—You have done the country a great service in your Sunday editorial of June 10, "The Case Against Germany." If the whole country understood the situation and the people were really alive to its seriousness, one printing of this editorial would be enough. But I write to make the suggestion that you select a few quotations from those men who have shaped German thought and ambition for the last generation, set these quotations in prominent type, and reprint them day after day on the front page of THE TRIBUNE until the language and its meaning sink into the hearts and consciences of your readers. I believe in this way you would obtain results which could be achieved in no other way.

CONGRESS GIVING UP ITS POWERS.

Chicago, June 21.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Your editorial, "Don't Subsidize the Press," is good. Keep on writing these thoughts. The constant transferring of the powers of government from congress, the direct representatives of the people, to the president has been steadily going on to such an extent that the so-called Democratic administration of today practically represents nearly everything that the autocratic countries of the world do. Keep on writing editorials about the weakness of the cabinet. Such thoughts are absorbed by the great sober thinking public. You are doing a good work in this direction.

GERMANY'S NEED

By Maximilian Harden

Maximilian Harden, who has been called the "George Bernard Shaw of Germany," has been muzzled by his government more often than any writer in any of the belligerent countries. Of late, however, the censorship bars have been considerably lowered in the Teuton empire, and Harden may print in his famous weekly, Die Zukunft, most of what he thinks. The Berlin authorities are careful, however, to prevent, as far as they can, Harden's writings from getting beyond the empire's borders, in order to avoid "erroneous impressions abroad." The following remarkable article from Harden's pen, hitting powerfully at the autocratic form of government which President Wilson so bitterly arraigned in his Flag day speech, is printed exclusively for the first time in this country.

"OUR princes," said Lagarde once, "must not imagine that among their subjects there lives none equal to them!" He pointed out with rare clearness the fatality of such a notion of a monarchy. Parliamentary government is the solution of our internal problem. For a full decade it has been preached in these columns. Upon those in power our arguments made no impression. Meantime the inevitable has come to pass.

Hark back for a moment to the spring of 1907.

"In the German empire," I asked then, "fenced about by sky-high barriers shutting off all view to its neighbors? The spectacle of our internal strife might well induce our enemy to try his hand at crowding his inconvenient competitor to the wall before the favorable hour has passed.

"We Germans have a right to be proud of much that we have accomplished. Our farmers, workmen, soldiers, and business men all hold their own. Our technique, industry, and commerce are doing at least as well as those of other countries. In many fields we are achieving more, with smaller resources. Our army lieutenant is still the best. Our officials are industrious and honorable. But because this is so we do not have to conceal the fact that we are badly governed.

"The most important institutions of our state do not meet the requirements of the times. Our international affairs are so badly bungled that our hands are tied for years to come. Uncle Edward has seen to that. And we are partly to blame. A great combine of nations is closing a ring around us, hoping to prevent, without war, the expansion of this upstart empire. We must sit tight, keep quiet. But no bluffs should frighten us. A great empire cannot be governed from the cabinet chamber, through hand strappers. No provocation of foreign nations; cool caution; calm consideration of every decision into its minutest consequences; fearless adherence to that which has been recognized as imperative—such must be the basic principles of our policies. That is what we must work for; that and one other thing—the right of a mature nation to govern itself."

Ten years ago!

And what happened? The triple entente grew more firm from month to month. Our relations with every great power were—on the surface—as gentle as the gentlest lamb in a shepherd's ballad.

Then came the world crash.

Russia, France, the British empire, Japan, Italy, Belgium, two Serb states, Portugal, Roumania, and America—all against us; counting the colonial inhabitants, almost a billion souls.

Neutrals on three continents accuse us—openly or secretly—of brutal violation of international law. The republic of China (340,000,000 inhabitants) brusquely breaks off diplomatic relations with the German empire.

* *

CAN the government that was unable to avert such a lineup of opposition deem itself superior in statesmanship to a democracy? Torrents of blood have washed away all doubts. The people, who down to the humblest humpback tailor and the crippled maid were summoned to save the empire, have forgotten fear—will never again cower in child-like temerity. You may cheer or you may groan; whatever may be the issue of this war, behind it stands, rocklike, the certainty that Germany can be governed in future only by the will of her people.

Even today a prudently prepared democratic program would find a tremendous following.

If the dear folks now living in the privileged spheres escape with only the liberalization of the Prussian electoral system effected (altogether too much prated about), they may compare their good luck to that of the man who, having reached the highest rung of the scaffold ladder, hears that he is only sentenced to get a shave at once.

The upheaval that is on the march is of a different sort. This is no time for half measures. Make haste, you who counsel the princes. He who quickly grants what is necessary avoids the appearance of humiliating compulsion.

Giving life, home, belongings, the hope to have children and grandchildren, giving all for the empire and yet having no right to take a hand in the shaping of German destiny—that was yesterday.

From that night resurrection is dawning upon the fatherland's firmament.

We are told that internal reforms hamper the conduct of the war. The answer is that they pave the way to peace, provided they are voluntarily granted. The striving for a reconstruction of the national groundwork does not derail the empire; it lays the main track upon which the attainable goal may be swiftly attained.

A nation conscious of its strength, strong in its freedom, rejects arrogant efforts of outsiders to push it into an Eden. It will never allow them to force "happiness" upon it.

But we are spurred on by the call of mankind; we are driven by the vital essence of natural, necessary evolution.

Progress—because the enemy commands it? Never!

Nor must we, mind you, stand still because the enemy desires that we make headway.

* *

THE heads of the billion souls aligned against us regard with sinister glances our yearning for peace because they fear that the armament fever will keep on; that the German empire will not rest until, in a world unwilling or incapable of fighting a new war, it has surrounded a hundred million humans with all that which will serve that number: coal and ore, corn and cattle, cotton and timber, and raw materials for every branch of industry.

That would be domination over the continent—would bring every one within the treaty violator's reach into constant menace of life.

"Such a peace alone would pay for the German sacrifices" is the sentiment voiced in one of the many misleading utterances of the last few weeks. Here ways part—and worlds.

Is this, too, where war advocates and pacifists, militarists and politicians part? The executors of the Old Testament believe—even with gentle hearts—only in force; they see beyond the borders of their land nothing but malice and envy; they reject all hope in a change of human nature and shun no means, not even the ugliest, if these means justify the aim of defense (which inevitably must turn into attack if the outside pressure becomes too great).

Whatever is said against their theory they reject as shallow sophistry.

"The thing to do," they assert, "is to conquer, to take from the conquered whatever the fatherland needs, and then arm it, stronger than ever, against all revenge—or one is beaten and dies with honor. Whoever can see any other outcome is a fool or weakling."

Thus reasoned also the Spartans, who went out into battle against the Athenians for the freedom of the sea and in the tenth year of war had to accept peace and an alliance with the sea tyrant.

What became of Goethe's belief in man's evolution toward a higher, nobler plane if the thread of thought today still is spun on the same wheel as 430 B. C.

Peace must blossom forth from understanding with all neighbors and must be cemented by reason. It must allow every nation, even the smallest, to live free beside the free.

PORTUGAL

by Henri Lavedan

[Translated from L'Illustration, Paris.]

I TRUST there are none who will believe me naïve enough to feel that I have discovered Portugal, even though there are those who seem to doubt its very existence. But even of those who at least recognize it by name, who vaguely recall having heard of it in their early youth or in their student days, how many even of these, I say, could tell of all that it has done and is now doing for us; how many know the proportionate part that its conscience, its spirit, and its honor has played in the formidable drama now being staged over almost the entire world.

Even yet, and perhaps it is unfair to reproach them, there is more than one of our men shut into a tiny pocket at the front who is totally oblivious to the fact that this little nation, always our friend, has now become our ally, has hastened to offer and to bring to us her zeal, as well as her military forces. They are ignorant of the fact that Portugal's little army (and it is one not to be scorned!) is here on French soil, where it is preparing to pour out its blood generously in the cause of right and justice. For, strange and stupefying as this may seem, it is the truth.

Here is a people who have fairly hurled themselves into our arms, whose heart beats with ours, a young and noble republic ready and eager to receive from those fonts of artillery fire the baptism of military valor—she is giving her sons, the flower of her youth, and beside her present possessions she gives her hopes for the future as well as the patrimony of her past glory; in a word, she surrenders herself completely in the fullness of her love and allied devotion.

And yet only here and there is even her name mentioned. Circumlocution and artifice were necessary if one were bold enough to speak of her or if a simple expression of appreciation escaped them. To this very day Portugal has been interdicted by the press with a severity that is inexplicable. It has been alleged, it is true, that this measure was but a proof of solicitude and interest in the transportation of our ally's army, that this conspiracy of silence had as its only object to keep secret the mystery of the voyage. But why such discretion before and since in regard to these brother armies? Instead of the tender humility we should feel before them they are treated with the parsimonious regard accorded parents. What has been done since their landing to show them our appreciation and regard?

Nothing. Or at least not enough. Public feeling, let us add, is not to blame. The French heart is not at fault. It would like to have paid Portugal the homage of gratitude. But it was not permitted to, and it is this that has aroused its regret and astonishment. A cordial surprise on our part when we chance upon a Portuguese soldier does not suffice. He expects and deserves something more than a proper amount of curiosity, and I cannot see for the life of me what harm there would be in recognizing their presence among us in a more dignified and courteous manner.

In spite of our mutual sentiments and common desires no proper presentation has taken place; and it is only because they have been denied the means of doing it that the French and Parisian people have not better expressed to their comrades in this holy alliance all the friendship they bear toward them.

No, there has been no official attempt made to receive these troops who with willing hearts were pressed into service to hurl themselves along with us into the fiery furnace.

That this has not been done is an injustice which should be speedily repaired. It is a mistake, however you view it, and one which it is important to efface; a mistake of good national breeding, of civility, and of politics.

The Portuguese possesses all the qualities of a good soldier—endurance and vivacity, courage and sobriety. Energetic and loyal, he is devoted not only to persons but to ideals; to his chief, to his country, to liberty, to the cause which he is deliberately championing. He is a sure and steadfast friend. He has, furthermore, a very finely developed sense of pride. For that is one of the best ethical characteristics of the race. Pride is injected into everything they do—into love and hate, into their choice of conduct, into their manner of judging, into their purpose and accomplishment. This feeling so characteristic with them colors and gives constant elevation to their every resolve and deed.

ALL this has made Portugal an enemy to all kinds of sordidness and has inspired in her, as if she herself had been a victim, distaste of German methods. The Portuguese has always been jealous of his dignity; honor holds him—he has guarded the respect and nostalgia for the culture of a past that has never ceased to sustain him. Hence it was impossible that in this gigantic duel of brute force against the right of civilized nations, which alone merits the name of "divine right," that Portugal should not have aligned herself where her titles and legitimate hopes would naturally place her. For, though not condoling those lost splendors whose reflections still illumine, the people of Portugal have not renounced their idealistic ambitions. They know that a country's grandeur is not measured in miles; that its true area is in its soul, in the work mapped out, and that only the richness and depth and extent of its accomplished tasks can perpetuate its power.

It should be a joy, as well as a duty, for us to acclaim these ancient sons of Lusitania hastening from the depths of their serras to our aid and who are holding fast in the midst of this mêlée the purple and green flag of their young republic, just as Camoens held fast above the waves his poem on immortality.

For these warriors, too, will triumph against the tempest.

Long live the Portuguese soldier, who has chosen to write with his blood on the world's battlefield the Lusiads of right and independence.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

POETRY.

"Poems" (Scribner's), by Alan Seeger.

THE first Chicago number of "Others," the trade paper of the vers liberators, is yours for 15 cents. Alfred Kreymborg, the "Mushrooms" Poet, has been editing "Others" for New York and the literary suburbs—Chicago, San Francisco, St. Louis, et al.—but Chicago is now definitely on the free verse trade map. The Chicago Others even speaks of Alfred Kreymborg, who contributes a cluck on "Hen Being" as "An immigrant from the East River, New York." The Chicago Others includes all of the F. F. F. V.'s (if you were born in the south you know there's nobody like an F. F. V. Chicago can boast an even more exclusive order of the First Families of Free Verse), Carl Sandburg, Eunice Tietjens, William Saphier, Mary Aldis, Max Michelson, Sherwood Anderson, Alfred MacArthur, Mitchell Dawson, Marjorie Allen Seiffert, and Mark Turbyfill, who is the youngest member of the group, but certainly not the least of its poets. Eunice Tietjens' contributions are all to be found in her "Profiles From China" (Seymour), thus proving that it's an outworn convention that book publication follows publication in a magazine—though, perhaps, "Others" would call itself a sectional anthology. A note declares "Others will continue publication at 200 West South Water street, Chicago"—so evidently a branch of the business of freeing verse is established in our town.

Two thousand volumes of the Soldiers' library which the Public library has been collecting have been sent to the Naval Training school, and the Jackie boys are holding their hands out for more. There's never been so popular a traveling library since the first one went on its cheering way, evidently. The boys helped unpack the boxes of books and said "Vendibs on this"—or navalanguage for it—before the books had a chance to feel at home. Have you gone over your library yet and decided on the books that aren't absolutely essential to your literary happiness? And have you bought at least one new book that you think some soldier would like, and sent it on its way to the Soldiers' library? Wouldn't it be fun being one of those books and getting acquainted with this new America?

From Walter de la Mare's "Peacock Pie" (Holt), one of the most delightful of all volumes of childish rhyme, there comes this Dream Song. Walter de la Mare, by the way, is the oldest of the three poets to whom Rupert Brooke willed the royalties of all his books—Wilfrid Wilson Gibson and Lascelles Abercrombie are the other two. Mr. de la Mare came to this country last fall to get the Henry Howland memorial prize which Yale university conferred upon Rupert Brooke. "Peacock Pie," I might add, is an import from England. I heard of it a few years ago—with its lovely children's drawings by W. Heath Robinson. Here's the Dream Song:

  Sunlight, moonlight,
  Twilight, starlight—
Gloaming at the close of day,
  And an owl calling,
  Cool dews falling
In a wood of oak and may.

  Lantern-light, taper-light,
  Torchlight, no-light:
Darkness at the shut of day,
  And lions roaring,
  Their wrath pouring
In wild waste places far away.

  Elf-light, bat-light,
  Touchwood light, and toad light,
And the sea a shimmering gloom of gray,
  And a small face smiling
  In a dream's beguiling
In a world of wonders far away.

"Crimes of Charity" (Knopf) is Konrad Bercovici's violent arraignment of organized charity. Myself, I don't know enough about the internal workings of charitable organizations to know whether Mr. Bercovici is a zealot with visions or a misguided misunderstander. If for nothing more than the sincerity of his convictions the book is worth reading. He has been an investigator for the United Charities in New York, as well as a charity worker abroad.

Do you remember Constance Skinner, late of our town, a reviewer of things dramatic? I don't, but I've been assured that most of you will. She has written her first novel, "Good Morning, Rosemond" (Doubleday-Page). She is said to have been Richard Mansfield's favorite critic. She edited Mme. Modjeska's "Memories and Impressions." She was instrumental in helping to introduce Ibsen into our theatrical circles, and her own play, "David," was chosen to open the Outdoor theater at Carmel, Cal., in 1910. In 1913 she was awarded a prize by the London Bookman for one of her Indian poems, and she's been writing fiction and verse for the best of 'em since she stopped being a dramatic critic. A stage version of "Good Morning, Rosamond," is scheduled for an early production in New York. I'm sorry I never knew her.

"This Is the End" (Macmillan) is Stella Benson's equally charming second book. You must remember "I Pose" for its absolute uniqueness (if anything can be more than positively unique). There's a whimsy to her style that fills an ordinary grub tabloid compiler with envy. "This Is the End" seems paradoxically to be just the beginning of a certainly successful literary career.

Owen Johnson, who has been working on his new novel and sending back press dispatches from France, has returned to the home nest of the American eagle. In his "The Spirit of France" (Little-Brown) he was one of the first writers to give any specially dramatic picture of Gen. Joffre.

Two books added to the scholarly "How to Know Him" series (Bobbs-Merrill) are "Burns, How to Know Him," by W. A. Neilson, professor of English at Harvard, and "Matthew Arnold, How to Know Him," by Stuart P. Sherman, professor of English at the University of Illinois.

Capt. Irving Goff McCann, A. M., B. D., chaplain of the First infantry, I. N. G., has written a book on "our national military problem" called "With the National Guard on the Border" (Mosby). In it are the famous "Army Ten Commandments" which he paraphrased from the Bible and which have called down upon his head the wrath of the orthodox.

"Northern Breezes," published by the poet himself, John C. Wright of Harbor Springs, Mich., bears this designating label on its title page: "This is not a volume of 'free verse,' being one dollar and twenty-five cents per copy."

E. F. Benson has written a war novel after the American post-bellum literary pattern—a tale of love between enemies. "Michael" (Doran) is its name.

Lord Dunsany's new volume of "Plays of Gods and Men" (Luce) contains the famous "A Night at an Inn," "The Queen's Enemies," "The Tents of the Arabs," and "The Laughter of the Gods." Anent the grimmest laughing that the gods have ever done Lord Dunsany sent this word to Americans: "To some of you this may seem an unnecessary and wasteful quarrel, as other people's quarrels often are; but it comes to this—that though we are all killed, there will be songs again; but if we were to submit and so survive, there could be neither songs nor dreams nor any joyous free things any more."

Frances Hodgson Burnett, whose latest novel is "The White People" (Harpers), has gone to her new summer place on the Hudson near West Point, which she chose because she likes to look down the majestic Hudson while working.

TOMMY'S TRENCH DICTIONARY

by Arthur Guy Empey

The following are excerpts from "Tommy's Dictionary of the Trenches" in Sergt. Arthur Guy Empey's book, "Over the Top," copyright 1917 and published by G. P. Putnams' Sons. "Over the Top" bids fair to become one of the most popular of war books. The author is an American who went to England to volunteer after the sinking of the Lusitania and who fought for a year and a half until he fell wounded in "No Man's Land."

A

"All around traverse"—A machine gun so placed that its fire can be turned in any direction.

Allemand—A French term meaning "German." Tommy uses it because he thinks it is a swear word.

Allumettes—French term for what they sell Tommy as matches, the sulphurous fumes from which have been known to "gas" a whole platoon.

Ammo—Rifle ammunition. Used to add weight to Tommy's belt. He carries 120 pounds at all times, except when he buries it under the straw in his billet before going on a route march.

"Any complaints?"—A useless question asked by an inspecting officer when he makes the rounds of billets or Tommy's meals. A complaining Tommy generally lands on the crime sheet.

A. O. C.—Army ordnance corps. A department which deals out supplies to the troops. Its chief asset is the returning of requisitions because a comma is misplaced.

B

Bantams—Men under the standard army height of 5 feet 3 inches. They are in a separate organization called the Bantam battalion, and, although undersized, have the opinion that they can lick the whole German army.

Barndook—Tommy's nickname for his rifle. He uses it because it is harder to say and spell than "rifle."

Barrage—Concentrated shell fire on a sector of the German line. In the early days of the war when ammunition was defective it often landed on Tommy himself.

Bashed in—Smashed by a shell. Generally applied to a trench or dugout.

Batman—A man who volunteers to clean a noncommissioned officer's buttons, but who never volunteers for a trench raid. He ranks next to a worm.

Big boys—Large guns, generally eight inch or above.

Big push—The battle of the Somme.

Big Willie—Tommy's term for his personal friend, the kaiser.

Biscuit—A concoction of flour and water, baked until very hard. Its original use was for building purposes, but Tommy is supposed to eat it. Tommy is no coward, but he balks at this. Biscuits make excellent fuel and give no smoke.

Blighty—An East Indian term meaning "over the seas." Tommy has adopted it as a synonym for home.

Body snatcher—A sniper.

Bully beef—A kind of corned beef with tin around it. The unopened cans make excellent walls for dugouts.

Busted—Term applied when a noncommissioned officer is reduced by court martial.

C

Camel corps—Tommy's nickname for the infantry because they look live overloaded camels and probably because they also go eight days and longer without a drink—that is, of the real stuff.

Carry on—Resume. Keep on with what you are doing.

C. C. S.—Casualty clearing station. A place where doctors draw lots to see if Tommy is badly wounded enough to be sent to Blighty.

Challenge—A question, "Who goes there?" thrown at an unknown moving object by a sentry in the darkness, who hopes that said moving object will answer "Friend."

Char—A poisonous brew which Tommy calls tea.

"Chucking his weight about"—Self-important. Generally applied to a newly promoted noncommissioned officer or a recruit airing his knowledge.

Chum—An endearing word used by Tommy to his mate when he wants to borrow something or have a favor done.

Clicked it—Got killed; up against it; wounded.

Cole—Tommy's nickname for a penny. It buys one glass of French beer.

Compray—Tommy's French for "Do you understand?" Universally used in the trenches.

C. of E.—Church of England. This is stamped on Tommy's identification disk. He has to attend church parade whether or not he wants to go to heaven.

Crime sheet—A useless piece of paper on which is kept a record of Tommy's misdemeanors.

Cushy—Easy; "pretty soft."

D

D. C. M.—Distinguished conduct medal. A piece of bronze which a soldier gets for being foolish.

Der uffs—Deux oeufs. Tommy's French for "two eggs."

Dial—Another term of Tommy's for his map or face.

Draft—A contingent of new men sent as reinforcements for the trenches. Tommy takes special delight in scaring these men with tales of his own experiences which he has never had.

D. S. O.—Distinguished service order. Another piece of metal issued to officers for being brave. Tommy says it is mostly won in dugouts and calls it a "dugout service order."

Dud—A German shell or bomb which has not exploded on account of a defective fuse. Tommy is a great souvenir collector, so he gathers these "duds." Sometimes when he tries to unscrew the nose cap it sticks. Then in his hurry to confiscate it before an officer appears he doesn't hammer it just right—and the printer of the casualty list has to use a little more type.

Du pan—Tommy's French for bread.

E

Efficiency pay—Extra pay allowed by the government for long service. Tommy is very efficient if he manages to get it from the government.

Estaminet—A French public house, or saloon, where muddy water is sold for beer.

F

Fag—Cigaret. Something Tommy is always touching you for.

Field dressing—Bandages issued to soldiers for first aid when wounded. They use them for handkerchiefs and to clean their rifles.

Field punishment—Official name for spread-eagling a man on a limber wheel, two hours a day for twenty-one days. Tommy calls this punishment "crucifixion," especially if he has undergone it.

Fritz—A German.

Frost bite—A quick road to Blighty, which Tommy used very often until frost bite became a courts martial offense. Now he keeps his feet warm.

Fumigator—An infernal device at a hospital which cooks Tommy's uniform and returns it to him two sizes too small.

Funk hole—A dugout. A favorite spot for those of nervous disposition.

G

Gassed—A soldier who has been overcome by the fumes of German poison gas, or the hot air of a comrade.

Green envelope—An envelope of a green color issued to Tommy once a week. The contents will not be censored regimentally, but are liable to censor at base. On the outside of the envelope appears the following certificate, which Tommy must sign: "I swear on my honor that the contents of this envelope relate to nothing but private and family matters." After signing the certificate Tommy immediately writes about everything but family and private matters.

H

Holy Joe—Tommy's familiar but not necessarily irreverent name for the chaplain. He really has a great admiration for this officer, who, although not a fighting man, so often risks his life to save a wounded Tommy.

Housewife—A neat little package of needles, thread, extra shoelaces, and buttons. When a button comes off Tommy's trousers instead of going to his housewife he looks around for a nail.

Hun—Another term for a German, mostly used by war correspondents.

I

Identification disk—A little fiber disk which is worn around the neck by means of a string. On one side is stamped your name, rank, regimental number, and regiment, while on the other side is stamped your religion. If at any time Tommy is doubtful of his identity he looks at his disk to reassure himself.

"I'm sorry"—Tommy's apology. If he pokes your eye out with his bayonet he says, "I'm sorry," and the matter is ended so far as he is concerned.

Interpreter—A fat job with a "return ticket," held by a soldier who thinks he can speak a couple of languages. He questions prisoners as to the color of their grandmothers' eyes and why they joined the army. Just imagine asking a German "why" he joined the army.

Iron rations—A tin of bully beef, two biscuits, and a tin containing tea, sugar, and Oxo cubes. These are not supposed to be eaten until you die of starvation.

"It's good we have a navy"—One of Tommy's expressions when he is disgusted with the army and its work.

L

Lance corporal—An N. C. O. one grade above a private who wears a shoestring stripe on his arm and thinks the war should be run according to his ideas.

"Light duty"—What the doctor marks on the sick report opposite Tommy's name when he has doubts as to whether said Tommy is putting one over on him. Tommy usually is.

Listening post—Two or three men detailed to go out "in front" at night, to lie on the ground and listen for any undue activity in the German lines. It is nervous work, and when Tommy returns he generally writes for a box of a widely advertised nerve tonic.

"Lonely soldier"—A soldier who advertises himself as "lonely" through the medium of some English newspaper. If he is clever and diplomatic by this method he generally receives two or three parcels a week, but he must be careful not to write to two girls living on the same block or his parcel post mail will diminish.

"Lonely stab"—A girl who writes and sends parcels to Tommy. She has got his name from the "Lonely Soldier Column" of some newspaper.

M

Maxim—A type of machine gun which has been supplanted by the Vickers in order to make Tommy unlearn what he has been taught about the Maxim.

M. O.—Medical officer. A doctor specially detailed to tell Tommy that he is not sick.

M. and D.—What the doctor marks on the "sicker" or sick report when he thinks Tommy is faking sickness. It means medicine and duty.

Mercy kamerad—What Fritz says when he has had a bellyful of fighting and wants to surrender. Of late this has been quite a popular phrase with him, replacing the Hymn of Hate.

Mike and George—K. C. M. G. (Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.) An award for bravery in the field.

Military Cross—A badge of honor dished out to officers for bravery. Tommy insists they throw dice to see which is the bravest. The winner gets the medal.

Military Medal—A piece of junk issued to Tommy who has done something that is not exactly brave but still is not cowardly. When it is presented he takes it and goes back wondering why the army picks on him.

Minnenwerfer—A high power trench mortar shell of the Germans which makes no noise coming through the air. Tommy does not know it is near until it bites him; after that nothing worries him. Tommy nicknames them "Minnies."

N

Napoo Fini—Tommy's French for gone, through with, finished, disappeared.

Night Ops—Slang for night operations or maneuvers.

No Man's Land—The space between the hostile trenches called "No Man's Land" because no one owns it and no one wants to. In France you could not give it away.

N. C. O.—Noncommissioned officer. A person hated more than the Germans. Tommy says his stripes are issued out with the rations, and he ought to know.

No. 9—A pill the doctor gives you if you are suffering with corns or barber's itch or any disease at all. If none are in stock he gives you a No. 6 and a No. 3, or a No. 5 and a No. 4, anything to make nine.

O

"On your own"—Another famous or infamous phrase which means Tommy is allowed to do as he pleases. An officer generally puts Tommy "on his own" when he gets Tommy into a dangerous position and sees no way to extricate him.

Orderly corporal—A noncommissioned officer who takes the names of the sick every morning and who keeps his own candle burning after he has ordered "lights out" at night.

Orderly officer—An officer who, for a week, goes around and asks if there are "any complaints" and gives the name of the complaining soldier to the orderly sergeant for extra pack drill.

"Over the top"—A famous phrase of the trenches. It is generally the order for the men to charge the German lines. Nearly always it is accompanied by the Jonah wish, "With the best o' luck and give them hell."

P

Pay book—A little book in which is entered the amount of pay Tommy draws. In the back of same there is also a space for his "last will and testament"; this to remind Tommy that he is liable to be killed (as if he needed any reminder).

Periscope—A thing in the trenches which you look through. After looking through it you look over the top to really see something.

Physical torture—The nickname for physical training.

Poilu—French term for their private soldier. Tommy would use it, and sometimes does, but each time he pronounces it differently, so no one knows what he is talking about.

Provost sergeant—A sergeant detailed to oversee prisoners, their work, etc. Each prisoner solemnly swears that when he gets out of "clink" he is going to shoot this sergeant and when he does get out he buys him a drink.

Q

Queer—Tommy's term for being sick. The doctor immediately informs him there is nothing queer about him, and Tommy doesn't know whether to feel insulted or complimented.

R

Rapid fire—Means to stick your head "over the top" at night, aim at the moon, and empty your magazine. If there is no moon, aim at the spot where it should be.

Ration bag—A small, very small bag for carrying rations. Sometimes it is really useful for lugging souvenirs.

Red Cap—Tommy's nickname for a staff officer because he wears a red band around his cap.

R. P.—Regimental police. Men detailed in a battalion to annoy Tommy and to prevent him from doing what he most desires.

Reinforcements—A lot of new men sent out from England who think the war will be over a week after they enter the trenches.

"R. I. P."—In monk's highbrow, "Requiescat in pace," put on little wooden crosses over soldiers' graves. It means "Rest in peace," but Tommy says like as not it means "Rest in pieces," especially if the man under the cross has been sent west by a bomb or shell explosion.

R. C.—Roman Catholic. One of the advantages of being a R. C. is that "church parade" is not compulsory.

R. A. M. C.—Royal army medical corps. Tommy says it means "Rob All My Comrades."

Rum—A nectar of the gods issued in the early morning to Tommy.

Rum issue—A daily formation at which Tommy receives a spoonful of rum; that is if any is left over from the sergeants' mess.

S

Shag—Cigaret tobacco which an American can never learn to use. Even the mules object to the smell of it.

Suicide club—Nickname for bombers and machine gunners. (No misnomer.)

Swank—Putting on airs. Generally accredited to Yankees.

Terrier—A territorial or "Saturday night soldier." A regular despises a territorial, while a territorial looks down on "Kitchener's Mob." Kitchener's Mob has the utmost contempt for both of them.

Territorial—A peace time soldier with the same status as the American militiaman. Before the war they were called "Saturday night soldiers," but they soon proved themselves "every night soldiers."

The old man—Captain of a company. He is called "the old man" because generally his age is about 23.

Thumbs up—Tommy's expression, which means "everything is fine with me." Very seldom used during an intense bombardment.

Trench feet—A disease of the feet contracted in the trenches from exposure to extreme cold and wet. Tommy's greatest ambition is to contract this disease because it means Blighty for him.

Turpenite—A deadly chemical shell invented by an enthusiastic war correspondent suffering from brain storm. Companies and batteries were supposed to die standing up from its effects, but they refused to do this.

V

V. C.—Victoria Cross, or "Very Careless," as Tommy calls it. It is a bronze medal won by Tommy for being very careless with his life.

W

Waiting man—The cleanest man at guard mounting. He does not have to walk post; is supposed to wait on guard.

Windy—A nervous soldier, coward.

Wipers—Tommy's names for Ypres; sometimes he calls it "Yeeps."

Wiring party—A social affair for which Tommy receives invitations. It consists of going "over the top" at night and stretching barbed wire between stakes. A German machine gun generally takes the place of an orchestra.

AUTOMOBILES Conducted by SHEPPARD BUTLER MOTORCYCLES

To Guard Against Fire, Just Apply Common Sense

A variety of uncommonly terse and useful hints for the avoidance of automobile accidents of one kind and another is contained in "Safety for the Motorist," a little booklet just issued for free distribution by the insurance concerns affiliated with the Ætna organization. On the subject of fire—perhaps the gravest and least heeded danger faced by automobile owners—these suggestions are offered:

CARRY some approved hand fire extinguisher.

Keep your engine and pan clean. Cut a hole in the pan under the carburetor, so that if the carburetor floods the gasoline will drain out on to the road.

Have a shut-off installed in your gas line where it will be easy of access and keep it in use. Shut off the gas at night if you are in a garage that is heated by a stove.

Have overflow pipes on your carburetor if you have an eight or twelve-cylinder motor.

Keep the electric system in good condition, inspect it frequently, and keep all connections tight and clean.

Put a radiator thermometer on your radiator cap—this will show you if your motor is getting hot on account of carbon, loss of water, insufficient oil, breakage of fan belt, dragging brakes, tight bearings, or any other cause which will in time make trouble, and possibly start a fire.

Inspect water and oil supply frequently and keep fan belt tight.

Don't use too rich a mixture—carbon heats up the motor.

Don't allow your carburetor to get out of adjustment. If your motor starts to backfire, don't allow your car to keep on running. The trouble will not correct itself.

In case your motor will not start, don't keep flooding the carburetor. Prime the motor by putting gas in the petcocks. If this doesn't work, look for ignition trouble.

In case of fire under the hood shut off the gas and, if possible, start the motor. If the motor is running, speed it up, and the motor will soon drain the carburetor. If you have an extinguisher, squirt the fluid through the radiator, leaving the hood down. If you haven't an extinguisher, use dirt or blankets to smother the flame. If you can get the gasoline shut off the fire will not do much damage.

Install a sediment trap in the gas line; draw it off once a month. There probably is one on your car, only you have not noticed it.

Clean the strainer in the carburetor once a month; if you discover any gasoline leaks, see that they are taken care of at once.

If the gas tank is in the cowl or under the hood, be careful of leaky connections.

Don't heat your garage with a stove unless you shut off gas when you bring the car in.

Don't clean motor and other parts with gasoline and then start motor. Many fire are caused by using a brush with metal binding. If your car has a one wire system, the metal binding is liable to cause a ground or short circuit, and the spark so caused will set fire to the gas on brush and motor.

If your gasoline tank is on the rear end and exposed or hung low, use wood slats to guard it from breakage or damage.

Put sheet asbestos on the floor boards near the muffler or exhaust pipe.

If motor gets hot, find the cause at once.

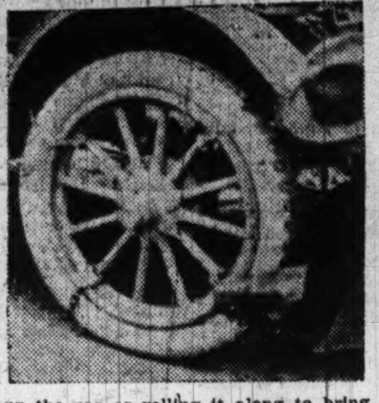
Don't fill your gasoline tank with the motor running, or with oil or gas lights burning.

Don't allow oily rags to collect in the garage.

The LITTLE THINGS THAT HELP

Just Snap 'Em On.

A Niagara Falls manufacturer offers a type of tire chain designed to be applied without the bother of jacking up the car or rolling it along to bring the device into place. Instead of a series of cross chains fastened to side chains, each cross chain is separate and is attached individually to a spoke. The fasteners are covered with leather to avoid marring paint on the wheels. The principal objection to an anti-skid device of this type—that a chain fixed in one place on the wheel subjects the tire to constant wear—is said to be obviated by the fact that the chains are smooth and round where they come in contact with the tread. The devices are packed in bags of eight, four to a wheel, and cost $3, $4, and $5, according to size.



Multum in Parvo.

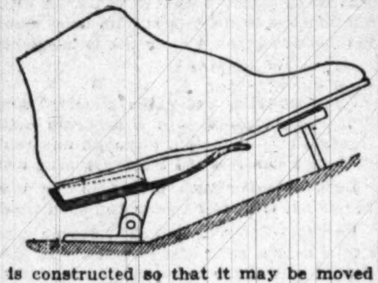
One of the newest of the many automobile camping outfits is that offered by a Chicago concern, comprising a complete equipment to be carried on the running board of the car. It includes a two deck bed said to be large enough for four people, two sets of woven wire bed springs, two mats for the beds, a table designed to serve six, two camp stools, a wall tent of army shelter duck, end poles, ridge pole, guy ropes, stakes, and pins. The outfit weighs approximately 125 pounds and when folded measures 11 by 18 by 48 inches.

For the Spare Wheel.

Thieves, dust, rain, and the weather generally are enemies to the well being of your spare wire wheel. You may now, if you desire, cover it completely with a carrier which locks on. This consists of a flexible cover for the tire and a pair of convex plates between which cover, tire, and wheel are clamped by the nut on the supporting spindle. Removing the nut releases the end plate and the wheel.

Foot Comfort.

A readily adjustable heel support for the foot which operates the accelerator is constructed so that it may be moved forward or backward. Its use is said to give a smooth action on the accelerator and prevent choking of the engine on rough roads, wearing of the heel of one's shoe, wearing holes in the floor mat, and wearying of the leg. It costs $1.25.



'Ware the Garageman!

Your garageman may seize your car now in Illinois if you don't pay your bills. This became a law last week when Gov. Lowden signed a bill giving garage owners right of lien on automobiles.

Planning Ozark Trail.

A convention to determine the units which shall finally comprise the contemplated Ozark Trail highway from St. Louis to the Mexican border will be held on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of this week at Amarillo, Tex. Senator Owen of Oklahoma has introduced a resolution in the United States senate providing for government coöperation in choosing the route, and under its terms a government representative went with the party which has just completed an inspection of the tentative trail through the Ozarks in Missouri, through Oklahoma from northeast to southwest, through the Panhandle of Texas, and across New Mexico.

Auto Deaths Increase.

The mortality from motor car accidents and injuries showed by far the largest increase in the percentage for any of the specified causes of accidental mortality last year, according to a report recently issued by the Metropolitan from statistics of 9,000,000 policyholders. The motor car accidents were responsible for three-fifths of the increase in the total accident rate in 1916. The rate last year was 8.8 per 100,000, as compared with 5.7 per 100,000 in 1915.

Explodes, Costs 10 Cents Per, and It's Mostly H_2O!

NUOLINE, a new substitute for gasoline, was tested at the West Side Y. M. C. A. automobile school in New York last week, with the heads of the Atkinson and Strobridge schools as observers.

M. Louis Clemont, the inventor, supervised the test, with the help of his associate, Robert Grogan, an assistant in the secretary of state's local automobile office. The gas was disconnected in an engine used for shop instruction and the vacuum tank drained and filled with nuoline.

To all appearances, it was reported, the new fuel did its work perfectly. The engine ran much smoother than with gasoline, and when the petcocks were opened the explosion was found to be quite as snappy as from gasoline, while the flame was blue instead of reddish, showing a more perfect combustion.

The engine ran until the vacuum tank was empty and a second trial showed the same results.

M. Clemont told the experimenters that nuoline is really three-fifths water and that the other ingredients are so cheap and unlimited in supply that the cost will be practically stationary. He thought, perhaps, if the price of coal keeps going skyward, it might make a cent or two difference in the price, but with a manufacturing cost of 2½ cents a gallon, not including overhead charges, it will be possible to sell the nuoline at 10 cents a gallon and leave a fair margin of profit.

Announcing — our new locatio

MOLINE KNIGHT

"3 stories high"—at 2247 Michigan Avenu

THIS is "The Building Our Friends Have Built." Give and ye shall receive has proved doubly true. To each Moline-Knight purchaser we have striven to render an unstinted service. Each has apparently been pleased. Many new friends have been directed our way. These "New Friends and Old" have brought us three blocks north from our one-story beginning near 26th St. Their good will has endowed us with the complete possession of three large floors in this building where, as our own landlords, we are masters of all we survey. With increased space and added facilities, from now on we shall be able to give proportionately greater service to these friends. They shall receive more for having given voice to their friendliness toward us.

A large, fully equipped Service Shop—a complete stock of extra parts—storage capacity for 250 cars—and a commodious Exhibition Room for the display of Moline-Knight cars in newest body designs—are matters of considerable pride.

A very complete Motorists' Accessory Department is also announced. With personal service of an unprejudiced calibre, we hope that all will find it convenient and economical to purchase their various supplies through this department.

June is our "house-warming" month. While the latch-string is ever out, a visit this month from our friends—their friends—and strangers too, would be most cordially welcomed

Lift Out Any Corn Please Try "Freezone"

Doesn't Hurt a Bit! Hard Corns, Soft Corns and Corns Between the Toes, Also Hardened Calluses, Just Shrivel and Peel Off With Fingers---Magic! Truly Magic!

Remarkable Discovery By Cincinnatian! A Few Drops Stop Corn Pain Instantly. Women Should Keep a Tiny Bottle on Dresser and Never Let Corns or Calluses Ache Twice—Millions Getting Rid of Corns

For a few cents you can obtain from any druggist a tiny bottle of the magical drug Freezone. This is the remarkable ether discovery made by a Cincinnati man which you have been reading so much about in the papers lately.

A few drops applied to a tender, aching corn or callus relieve the pain and soreness instantly; then you will see the corn or callus shrivel up and become so loose that it lifts out, root and all, with the fingers. It really does this! No humbug! No catch!

No pain or twinge of irritation is felt when applying Freezone or afterwards, and it does not inflame the surrounding skin or flesh.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes and hardened calluses loosen and lift off. It seems magical—It is magical! It works like a charm.

WOMEN! KEEP FREEZONE ON DRESSER! LISTEN!

When a corn starts aching, just touch on a drop of Freezone. It dries instantly. Put on your stockings and shoes and forget you ever had a corn. You will feel no pain or soreness. Walk, dance and wear tight shoes if you want to. Your corns won't hurt a bit. Try Freezone!

Genuine Freezone is sold by all druggists, in tiny bottle as here shown, each bottle packed in a sealed, round wood case—NO OTHER WAY.

Yes, Sir, They've Regular Parking Rules in Detroit

REMEMBER the dog pound back home, where they locked up your pet pup in durance vile and made you pay to get him back? Well, Detroit has an automobile pound.

Over in the Michigan metropolis they take life seriously, including the matter of parking motor cars. Machines are not supposed to stand more than an hour in the restricted downtown district, but some car owners haven't been paying attention, so Commissioner of Police James Couzens has revived an old idea and added one or two ingenious refinements.

Policemen walking beats are provided with blue chalk, with which they mark the time of day on the front tires of automobiles as they pull up at the curb. The figures are placed in the center of the tread, so that one revolution of the wheel will erase or blur them. A checking up process later on indicates which cars have stood longer than the prescribed hour, and policemen telephone to the vehicle pound, where two patrol trucks are always ready, with heavy tow ropes, to go after the offenders and tow them in. Then the owners have to pay $3 to free them.

In the pictures the one at the top shows a glimpse of the pound, a roped enclosure in Cadillac square. Below, at the left, is a victim "muzzled" with a heavy chain, and at right is Ex-Commissioner of Police Gillispie's new twin six. Yes, that was nabbed with the rest. The "commish" said he ran out of gas.

Business at the pound has been good. The trucks tow an average of six cars each to the calaboose every working hour, and a day's haul is usually about 100 cars.

Commissioner Couzens says the pound will continue in operation as long as motorists fail to obey the traffic laws.

Motor Notes

The latest arrival in the rapidly growing truck attachment field is the Phenix truck maker, described as a heavy duty attachment of 3,000 pounds capacity and built by a Chicago concern composed largely of men identified formerly with the Maxfer company. A ball bearing sprocket, designed to take strain from the rear shaft and avoid rear axle troubles, is announced as the distinctive feature of the device. The Ford chassis and power plant are used as the basis of the attachment.

A suit to recover $1,500,000 from the Reo Motor Car company on a charge of infringing a valve mechanism patent was decided in New York the other day in the company's favor and against William Barber, the plaintiff.

A new Jordan model has been received by O. G. Heffinger, the Chicago distributor, in the form of a sport roadster designed on low, rakish lines and offered in three color finishes—Mercedes red, Liberty blue, and Briarcliff green. At least those are the names the builder gives 'em.

INTRODUCING DETROIT'S AUTOMOBILE POUND

Lelands Quit Cadillac.

Henry M. Leland, president and founder of the Cadillac Motor Car company, and his son, W. C. Leland, vice president and general manager of the company, have resigned. Both father and son will end their duties with the Cadillac company on July 31 and will begin the manufacture of war airplanes for the United States. They expect to build on a huge scale.

Early in the war the elder Mr. Leland, one of the pioneers of the American automobile industry, visited England to study aviation needs and conferred with Lord Montague, Lord Sydingham, Sir Albert Stanley, and others. More recently he has been in constant conference with members of the council of national defense. He has expressed the opinion that at the present time there is not an aeroplane made in America that is fit to fly over Germany in war service.

Sells War Used Motors.

The Feldkraftwagengesellschaft, organized in Germany some time ago with the government's sanction for the disposal of war worn motor vehicles, has already begun operations. Sales are made through existing second hand dealers, who are carrying on an extensive advertising campaign in Scandinavian countries. They offer complete cars, separate engines for farm tractors, and oil engines, and supply photographs to prospective buyers.

The Experts Say---

The common wire fence of commerce often may prove the motorist's best friend in need. A piece of wire from such a fence may be used as a towing rope; it may be wrapped around the channel of the rim to protect it when you have to drive home on the rim; it may be wound around the leaves of a broken spring, or it will sometimes take the place of a lost bolt.

Don't leave tire chalk out of your tool kit. Some of it should be shaken into the shoe every time you change tubes. It helps the tube to settle into place and reduces friction between the tube and the shoe, thus prolonging the life of the tube.

When your engine misses and it seems impossible to find the cause it may be due to water in the carburetor. If you have made every other test you can think of, try draining the carburetor. Catch a little of its contents in your hand or some other receptacle. If water is present it will be repelled by the gasoline and form in easily seen globules.

The most common and ruinous abuse of the battery is to let it go dry. The battery loses water even under normal conditions, partly through slow evaporation, but chiefly through decomposition into its constituent gases, oxygen and hydrogen, by excessive charging. If your battery demands water filling more frequently than it should, or if the battery links heat to a temperature warmer than that of the hand, have your generator inspected and tested and the charging rate reduced.

Hold your hand over the breathing tube occasionally while the engine is running to see if air is passing out. If the breathing tube gets clogged it puts a back pressure on the pistons that reduces the power of the motor.

The popular idea that repaired or questionable tires are used to best advantage on the front wheels is a perilous one. The danger of a blowout when traveling twenty-five miles an hour or better is greatest if the blowout occurs on the front wheels. A serious accident seldom results from a rear tire blowout. Put your old tires on the rear wheels.

VESTA DOUBLE LIFE STORAGE BATTERY

It's Made For Your Car

IT doesn't matter what car you own—what make, type or capacity battery with which your car is equipped, there is a Vesta made especially for your car. And this Vesta is the same, wonderful battery, with all of the patented features, that has made it famous among owners the country over.

It has the Vesta Indestructible Isolators which lock the plates apart and prevent short circuits caused by the plates touching. The Impregnated Wooden Mats which prevent treeing, another cause of short circuits.

Titanium which precipitates all impurities in solution, keeping the battery at maximum efficiency.

Vesta sturdy construction throughout, which gives you double battery service.

It is very seldom necessary to make an adjustment on a Vesta Battery; however, when it is necessary adjustment is made on a basis of 18 months' service.

Your battery is going to give out some day—possibly sooner than you think. When it does replace it with a Vesta. For with all of its improvements, Vesta costs you no more. Drop in at any Vesta Service Station and get our liberal exchange offer.

Studebaker

ANNOUNCEMENT

THE increased cost of materials and labor may force us to make an advance in prices at any time without notice. But you may buy your new Studebaker car today and be assured that no sudden change in models will discount or depreciate the value of your purchase. There will be no change in Studebaker models this year.

Furthermore, your investment in a Studebaker car is protected and safe, and it is much more likely to appreciate in value than depreciate.

The sturdy quality, the splendid value, the proven dependability and durability of the present models will be continued.

Studebaker daily sales continue to show that the public is quick to recognize, and always to give its support to an honest, well made product, the value and service of which have been proven in actual performance.

Their power, their easy riding features, their freedom from trouble have made Studebaker cars leaders in every part of the country where automobiles are subjected to the hardest use.

The most recent proof of their durability is the performance of two Studebaker cars taken directly from a dealer's stock on the trip of the San Francisco Ad Club to the recent St. Louis convention.

Both these Studebaker cars came over the snow filled passes of the Rocky mountains, through seas of hub deep gumbo mud on the Western Plains and finished in perfect running condition.

Further evidence of Studebaker dependability is shown by the popularity of Studebaker cars in California, where people test and prove their cars by continuous service every day in the year and where there are more Studebakers registered than any car selling at over $500.

In Detroit, where 80% of all cars are made, where thousands of people are directly connected with the industry, where they know the materials and workmanship that go into cars and the organizations behind them there are more Studebakers registered than any other car selling at over $500.

The foregoing is proof that people who know cars from service rendered and people best equipped to judge automobile values prefer Studebakers.

There could be no better guide than this for you in purchasing your car.

More than 300,000 Studebaker cars in every part of the world have made good in the hands of their owners—as yours will make good for you.

Expert Tells How to Diagnose That Irritating Knock

By H. C. Brokaw.

[Principal West Side Y. M. C. A. Automobile School, New York.]

AUTOMOBILE engines often have a knock of some kind which annoys the driver. These noises vary from a barely distinguished click to a blow that may be heard twenty feet away.

A great many of the knocks do not do any harm—that is, they are not causing any damage to the engine parts; but there are some knocks which require immediate attention to prevent the demolition of the engine or seriously damaging it. Some of these are loose connecting rod bearing; cylinder loose on its base; lack of lubrication and consequent overheating, and a broken revolving or reciprocating member, which might tear things up if allowed to run. The spark advanced too far puts an excessive strain on the crank shaft and a short circuit in the ignition system does the same.

On the other hand, there is no immediate danger if there is a piston slap, though pretty noisy; nor is there when the oil pump gives a thump or loud click at the valve seating. But on general principles when there is a knock its cause should be ascertained at once and expert advice obtained as to whether it is dangerous. If so, it must be fixed before running further. If it is only a minor knock the repair can be left to a more convenient time.

So many of the knocks are only a matter of annoyance—that is, they do no more harm than to cause the driver unnecessary nerve jars and to spoil the pleasure of riding. But he will bother the various garage men and everybody else he can get to listen and then will not accept the assurance that the knock is not doing any harm.

As a matter of fact, there are knocks peculiar to certain makes of engines that the manufacturers have not seen fit to eliminate because they are not harmful. Among these is the so-called gas knock. Now, I do not know what a "gas knock" is, and I doubt if anbyody else does. But it is a common term for the kind of a knock which cannot be located anywhere and it is laid to some action of the gas.

Sometimes the knocks are hard to locate. One of our cars needed a new cam shaft gear to replace a worn one which produced a knock. It was put on, but when the engine was started it was found there was a worse knock than before. It took a long time to find that it was the new gear. It fitted tight on the shaft and had to be forced on. Without being noticeable, the forcing had cracked the hub and this cracked through the rim, so that two of the teeth were out of true and had spread enough to pound when that portion of the gear came into mesh.

Another knock difficult to locate is caused by sticking exhaust valves. One of the valve stems had been oiled and this had been allowed to burn to a nice sticky paste. Now, when the push rod opens the valve and starts down, the valve does not follow closely. The spring brings it down, of course, but more slowly than it should, because of the sticky stem, and when the stem and push rod meet there is a thump.

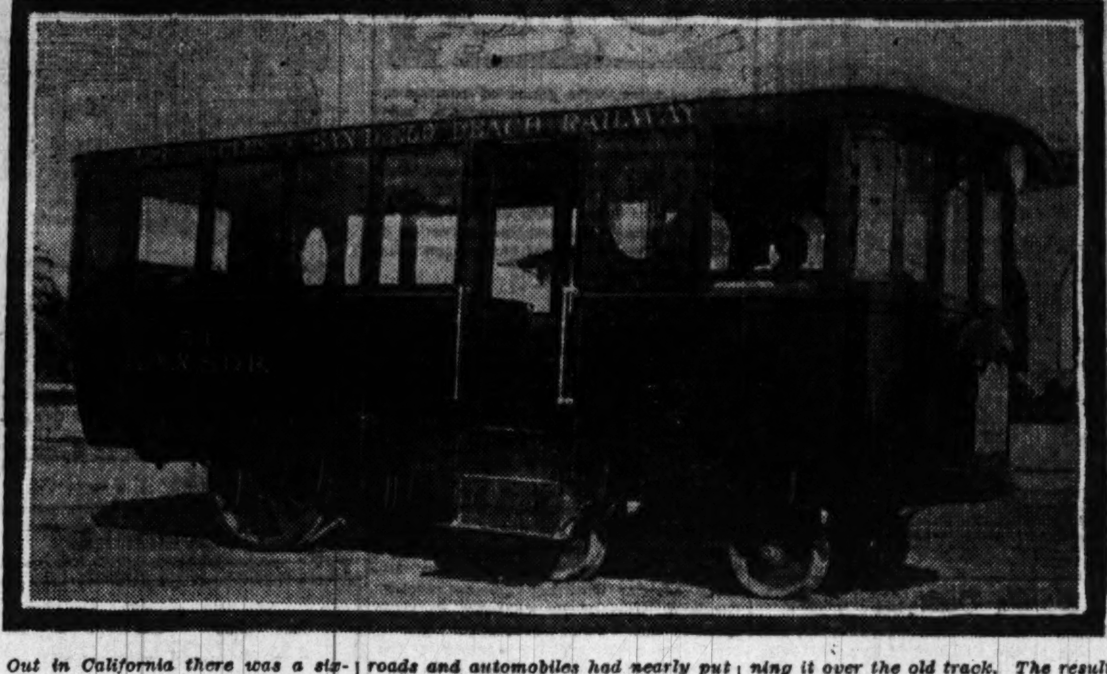
It is ordinary said that a lean mixture or an overadvanced spark will cause knocking. As a matter of fact, they do not do anything of the kind, but it is true that these things bring to our notice other faults, such as worn piston or cylinder wall and consequent side slap, or they magnify some other worn part so that it becomes audible. As a matter of fact, it is possible to advance the spark so far that it will try to reverse the engine and not have a particle of knock. And it is possible to have so lean a mixture that it will hardly run the engine without a knock, but if there is something else wrong it will bring that out.

Soldiers Free at Canadian Races.

Directors of the Hamilton, Ont., Jockey club have decided to admit all returned soldiers from the war free at their coming meeting and to pay the war tax on all admission tickets. The lower floor of the clubhouse on the members' lawn will be turned over free of charge to the Red Cross, which will open a tearoom in charge of girls.

NO SHOCK ABSORBERS NEEDED

This Automobile—Yes, That's What It Is—Is Mounted on Car Wheels and Runs on a Regular Track.



Out in California there was a sixteen mile stretch of railroad between San Diego and a place called La Jolla by the Sea that was financially sick—the railroad, not La Jolla. Good roads and automobiles had nearly put it out of business. There seemed to be nothing to do until some one conceived the idea of taking an automobile, setting it on car wheels, and running it over the old track. The result is pictured above, and they say it works fine. Thirty passengers can ride at once and distillate (cheaper than gasoline) is used as fuel.

Temple in Bankruptcy.

The Ralph Temple Automobile company, 2425 South Michigan avenue, of which Ralph Temple is president, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. The bankruptcy schedules show that the company owes $99,083.85, while the assets are given as worth $64,985.61. The company has been in the automobile sales business for nearly fifteen years. During the last two or three years, however, according to Mr. Newman, attorney for the company, sales fell off materially, and the company has been losing money.

Headed This Way.

Mrs. A. H. Woods of New York is preparing to leave on her fourth annual transcontinental drive by motor car. She will follow the Lincoln highway and attempt to set a time record on the trip, doing all of the driving herself.

Exhaust Echoes

The Buick Motor company is informing its dealers that prices will be increased in the near future, due to the increasing cost of materials and labor. The amount of increase has not yet been determined.

A Canadian road record fell before a Marmon last week, when W. M. Campbell and J. B. Cane of Toronto drove the 98.1 miles from Midland, Ont., to Toronto, in 2:28½. The best previous record was 3:35.

J. C. St. John, advertising manager of the Live Stock World, has been made western manager of the new Agrimotor Magazine, a publication designed to cover the automobile, truck, and tractor field as it applies to farmers.

The Saxon trail blazing roadster which is circling the boundaries of the United States left Seattle on Thursday for an attempt to cross the Cascade mountains over the Sunset highway. Snow six feet deep in Snoqualmie pass, near Summit, is reported to have prevented cars from traveling from Seattle to Spokane this year, and the route is not expected to be passable for tourists until some time in July. The drivers of the trail blazer opine, by telegraph, that the crossing will take two days if it is successful at all.

St. Louis, Omaha, Youngstown, O., and Phoenix, Ariz., have been awarded the prizes offered in the four divisions of the Packard salesman's contest known as the Lincoln Highway sweepstakes. St. Louis, in division A, sold 115 per cent of its quota; Omaha, in division B, 200 per cent; Youngstown, in division C, 300 per cent, and Phoenix, in division D, registered the highest mark of the contest by disposing of 350 per cent of its allotted number of cars. The contest started Feb. 22.

World's Greatest Combination of Beauty, Utility, Economy

This car registers the highest point ever reached in all-round motor car value.

No other achievement in the motor car industry ever affected you so vitally. None ever afforded you such a money saving opportunity.

Like compounded interest on money, the economies of our vast production have been accumulating until this record breaking value is now made possible.

Here it is—the greatest value in a car of such comfortable size since the inception of the automobile business.

Nothing less remarkable than this car could have caused a nation-wide demand of such magnitude.

See it and you desire to own it—drive it and you determine to own it.

This is the inevitable experience of thousands.

For it is lavish in beauty, refinements and exquisite finish. It is sumptuously proportioned and gives you an altogether new sensation of ease in riding.

Power, stamina and endurance in excess quantity are what the experts see in it, while the experienced car driver sees his dreams come true of a car of utility and economy combined with rare beauty.

Order yours now—every day brings increasing demand upon the factory—we cannot tell when the present production order will all have been sold.

The next production order is almost sure to be on a basis of higher costs.

This Combination Gives You the Strongest 1-Ton Truck on the Market

The Dearborn One-Ton Truck Unit attached to the Ford chassis forms a one-ton truck, equal in strength and durability to any truck of similar capacity. In service the Dearborn has proven that it is easily capable of carrying an overload of 50% safely, and operating at a cost of about one-half that of the ordinary 1-ton truck.

$350 and a FORD NEW or OLD makes a guaranteed FORD-DEARBORN One Ton Truck

The Dearborn Unit attaches securely and rigidly to the Ford chassis. Throughout the entire construction the most advanced mechanical improvements are used, making the Dearborn far superior to any similar attachment. The unit proper carries 80% of the load on the Dearborn Rear Axle, Heavy Springs and the Pruden Artillery Type Wheels with guaranteed hickory spokes and felloes. Other Dearborn "quality specifications" are Bock Heavy Duty Roller Bearings, Baldwin Roller Chains, Baldwin Steel Sprockets. Jack-Shaft and Back-Rod Hangers HOT riveted to the frame—not merely bolted.

The New Dearborn Universal Truck Unit will convert ANY CAR into a One or Two-Ton Dearborn Truck—price $400 to $500

MISCELLANEOUS. MISCELLANEOUS.

Howard H. Hays Was Right

HE knew what regular American business men wanted. He knew that they wanted all of the splendor of the Rockies without any bother about travel details and all at minimum expense.

The First 1917 Vacation Tour Left Chicago Last Saturday. The Magic Tickets Went Like Magic.

It seemed as though brain-weary, fagged-out men just picked up their families and themselves and said "take care of us for two weeks"; and that's what we did. They didn't have a minute's bother. Their luggage was cared for, their meals provided, their hotel accommodations were ordered and paid for. They will motor 400 miles in Yellowstone National Park, the new Rocky Mountain (Estes) National Park, Salt Lake City, Ogden Canyon and Denver.

They are seeing what you have been dreaming and reading about for years. They are dwelling for two weeks under the spell of glaciers and geysers.

And Howard H. Hays did it. He is the busiest courier in the world. Because he knows how to give people most pleasure at least cost to themselves in effort or cash.

Take a leaf out of his book. Join one of these

Select Vacation Tours Through "Two National Parks in Two Weeks," Leaving Chicago Every Saturday, and Priced at Cost

The tickets vary from $144.00 to $161.50. Send for Howard H. Hays cost-cutting vacation book—"Summer Tours", Free.

A MESSAGE TO STOCK SALESMEN AND ALL OTHER GOOD SALESMEN.
One of the oldest established motor car manufacturers in America—the first to introduce the popular priced car and whose product today is represented in every country in the world—with this year's output already overcontracted for, will, by reason of present conditions, offer to a limited number of good men a salesmen's opportunity rarely offered through newspaper columns by a leader of any industry. Within two weeks a number of salesmen will be selected to present an issue of this company which will make an instant appeal to the public. Experienced stock salesmen who we accept will be able to use their ability to state facts instead of illustrating fancies. Stock selling experience not essential; real sales ability first importance; intelligent cooperation given. Drawing accounts provided. Give age, full experience, phone. Address M 277, Tribune.

REAL ESTATE—SUMMER RESORTS.

For the Family Seeking a Most Attractive Location, or for the Sportsman, Two Beautiful Islands in Northern Wisconsin.

Two islands in Lake Kawaguesaga, about three miles from Minocqua, Oneida county, Wisconsin, are offered for sale for $3,000; $1,500 may remain on mortgage at 6 per cent if desired.

One island contains about 16 acres and the other has about 2½ acres with a deep channel between.

The larger island stands up high and commands a magnificent view. It has a fine variety of timber, including considerable pine. About 4 or 5 acres were cleared a few years ago for a building site, but not used.

Lake Kawaguesaga connects with Minocqua Lake, and this connects with Tomahawk Lake by the stream known as "Tomahawk Thoroughfare." There is no better fishing ground in Wisconsin, and the section is well supplied with a variety of game, including an abundance of deer.

The islands are only a night's ride from Chicago, either by the C., M. & St. Paul direct to Minocqua, or by the Chicago and Northwestern to Woodruff, less than two miles from Minocqua.

The pure water and bracing pine air of northern Wisconsin render this spot as healthful as any on earth.

E. C. STURDEVANT,
Oneida County Land and Abstract Co., Rhinelander, Wisconsin.

FOR SALE—TO CLOSE AN ESTATE, BEAUTIFUL summer home at Klinger Lake, 132 miles east of Chicago on the New York Central railroad; on elevated thickly wooded lake front, set back 150 ft., overlooking beautiful Klinger Lake, in the beauty spot of So. Michigan; good fishing, lake supplied by mineral springs, best of drinking water. There are several hundred cottages at Klinger Lake. Hotel and stores, beautiful drives in all directions; city of Sturgis only six miles distant. Large dancing pavilion at lake, and is a very popular resort. This summer home, however, is secluded enough for privacy.

House completely furnished, has four bedrooms, bath room, furnace and fireplace, large living room, large dining room, kitchen, back porch, very large front and side verandas entirely screened, hard and soft running water; has its own electric light and water plant, two story garage, room for two automobiles, and three sleeping rooms for servants overhead; boathouse, sail boat; also largest and fastest power launch on lake—the hull is a Wm. H. Hand design, seaworthy ocean going type; speed 22 to 25 miles per hour.

Cottage and everything pertaining not five years old, and used not to exceed 8 months. At present prices for building material and labor could not be duplicated for less than $11,000; will sell for $5,000.

Inquire Carl L. V. Exselsen, Suite 1403 Conway Bldg., 111 W. Washington-st., Chicago, Ill.

GROUND FLOOR

The New Orleans Great Northern Railway opens for farm settlement the immense acreage of the great lumber company lands along its lines in Mississippi and Louisiana.

Growing towns, churches, schools, lumber companies, shipbuilding, turpentine distilleries, pine oil, and paper mills have sprung up all along the line of the railroad, but timber being the chief asset, the land itself, regardless of its great agricultural worth, has been carried on the books at a mere nominal value.

As the timber is being cut and the stumps and discarded tree trunks and limbs in the logging field are being ground into pulp for pine oil, turpentine, and the manufacture of paper, an immense acreage of virgin land close in to the railroad, towns, factories, churches, and schools is being left for farm occupation.

Unless the railroad settles these lands with farmers it will fail to provide for a chief source of revenue when the timber is gone, and the railroad, with its future means of support materially at stake, will therefore afford every aid in the matter of prices, terms, and co-operation in obtaining settlers on the land.

Write Walter S. Ayres, industrial commissioner N. O. G. N. Ry., 864 McCormick Bldg., Chicago, Ill., how to obtain first hand a desirable farm out of this great body of cheap virgin land.

PROSPERITY and the Farmer.

IN ENGLAND THE FEAR and nervousness of the public brought business almost to a standstill in the first few weeks of the war. Then public spirited men started the cry, "BUSINESS AS USUAL," and in a short time the country responded so splendidly that "BUSINESS UNUSUAL" became the only fitting motto. All lines of business in England are now booming and the people have more money to spend than ever before.

CANADA'S EXPERIENCE IS even more valuable to the U. S., because of similarity of conditions. Canada's business was paralyzed by the suddenness of the war, but in a splendid reaction manufacturing showed in 1916 an increase of 43% over the preceding year.

IF THE EXPERIENCE OF ENGLAND and Canada is worth anything a greater period of prosperity than has ever been known lies before the U. S. There will be work for all, and at big wages. Food costs more, to be sure, but there will be lots more money with which to buy it. To become a food producer yourself would be a case of very good judgment. It is now the farmers' inning. The most prosperous time in the world's history is assured to the farmer for the next five years and perhaps a much longer period.

MICHIGAN IS THE PLACE to buy a farm. Do you know that this State raises about one-half of the beans produced in the U. S., and beans are a very important ration in the army? That it leads in the production of rye and also chickory? That it is second in production of small fruits, apples, dried peas, and potatoes, and third for all orchard fruit, sugar beets, buckwheat, etc.? All kinds of vegetables, grains, and grasses thrive here. In no state are the crops more diversified. The water, moreover, is excellent and plentiful and the climate healthy.

LET ME HELP YOU get a farm in Manistee, Mason, Wexford, Kalkaskia, or Antrim counties. Any one can buy by following my plan. My prices are from $15 to $25 per acre. Ten acres, $5 to $25 down; twenty acres, $10 to $50 down; forty acres, $25 to $100 down. Balance small monthly or yearly payments. There is also an insurance feature in connection with my contracts, so that if you should die after the land is partly paid for the land will be deeded to your wife or mother without further payments. You also have the free service of agricultural advisers whom I employ to show you the best methods of farming for our district.

WRITE FOR BOOKLET and full information about the lands, or call at my offices and talk it over and see stereopticon views and samples of 1916 crops. You should learn all about my proposition. Offices remain open Monday evenings and Saturday afternoons. The next PRIVATE CAR excursion to the lands occurs July 10th. Round trip from Chicago, including railroad fare, meals, and auto trip over the land, $12.95. Now is the time to see the growing crops and make your selection.

George Swigart, Owner,
1247 FIRST NATL. BANK BLDG., CHICAGO, ILL.

Perhaps you have sufficient money so that you would like to buy an improved farm? We have about fifty splendid improved farms located in Southern Michigan about 75 miles south of Grand Rapids, selected for their fine quality and cheapness in price. They range in size from 20 acres up to several hundred, and the prices are from $50 to $125 per acre, depending upon the improvements. Some of these farms can be purchased with live stock and farm machinery complete, and crops already in. There are no better farms in Illinois, Iowa, or Ohio than these and they can be bought at about half the price that similar farms are selling for in these states. Any one wanting a fine improved farm should not fail to investigate these before buying. Write for our improved farm list. Below is a sample:

80 FINE ACRES.

Good, rich, dark chocolate loam soil; land lies rolling; 60 acres under cultivation; 20 acres good hardwood timber; mostly maple and used for pasture; fencing good; new 8 room house, modern, complete. 7 ft. basement throughout; furnace, also nice bathroom, electric light, hot and cold water; modern as city home. Bank barn under construction; new chicken house and other outbuildings; young fruit orchard; ¼ mile from school, 8½ miles from city of 6,000; stone road; R. F. D., telephone. Ideal location; fine class of neighbors. Such a farm would bring $200 per acre in Illinois. Our price, $115 per acre. Part cash, balance in 5 years.

Texas.

FOR SALE—NEW FARM OPPORTUNITY IN ONE OF THE GREATEST STATES IN THE UNION. A new line of the Santa Fe is tapping a rich and fertile prairie section of Northwest Texas, near the Oklahoma line, where already many farmers have MADE GOOD in a big way with wheat, hogs, and live stock. Here, if you ACT NOW, you can get first choice—get in on the ground floor of a great opportunity. You can get in AHEAD of the railway—ahead of the people whom the railway will bring—ahead of those who act more slowly than you do. This is the chance of a lifetime for a man of moderate means. A certain number of thrifty, farseeing farmers can acquire good land at an astonishingly low figure and on long, easy terms. If you have confidence that a great railroad, like the Santa Fe, would only recommend what it considers a good thing, and because it wants to see new territory developed and wants newcomers to PROSPER AND PRODUCE—then write me TODAY for particulars about this district. Mild climate, social advantages, schools, churches, telephones, good roads. Everything there but enough men with their families. Will you be one of the fortunate first comers to reap the advantages of a section that has been minutely inspected by a Santa Fe agricultural agent and pronounced RIGHT? Write me NOW and let me send you a copy of the special illustrated circular we are getting out. C. L. SEAGRAVES, 1105 Railway Exchange, Chicago.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

I HAVE INVESTED IN PATENT RIGHTS, experimental work, dies, and other production and manufacturing items $16,000 in connection with a home and office [metal] specialty. Although financially interested in many other things [to me much larger and more important], I have given this specialty a small mail order test. Notwithstanding that I am a banker and not a merchandising man and although only small ads were inserted in two magazines, orders for this specialty have come in by mail from nearly every country in the world. Specialty can be made by any small metal working plant at 30c each to retail at $2. I am too busy to give this specialty the attention it has proven its merits. Therfore I will sell all patent rights, good will, operating mail order name, all inquiries, orders, and complete correspondence files—all for $5,000. I'm too busy to give time to brokers. If you are a principal and have the money this will appeal to you as an exceptionally attractive money making opportunity. Address J 141, Tribune.

JUDGE RIPS INTO TAX BOARD FOR SMALL GAS LEVY

Undervaluation Charge by Matchett in 1909 Assessment.

The board of equalization which levied the tax assessment of 1909 was declared "willful, unfair, and unjust" by Judge David F. Matchett of the Circuit court in an opinion in the case of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company against County Treasurer Henry Stuckart yesterday.

Judge Matchett said he believed the board "willfully, fraudulently, and intentionally undervalued most if not all the property of the gas company which it was its duty to assess."

He dissolved a temporary injunction which had been obtained by the company restraining the county treasurer from enforcing the full amount of the tax levy. The decision releases nearly $250,000 in taxes levied in 1909 which have been tied up pending the court proceedings.

Hot Roast of Board.

"This record as a whole," said Judge Matchett, "discloses either an utter failure on the part of the board of equalization to understand anything whatever of its duties as such board, or a willful intention upon its part to violate not only the constitutional provisions of the state of Illinois as to the levying of taxes, but a disregard of those moral principles which should control men in their dealings with each other, and particularly public officials, in duties which are imposed upon them by law.

"Without taking up in detail the acts and doings of the board which justified this conclusion, I will state that the conduct of the board was willful, unfair, and unjust—first, in that it arbitrarily—and, I think, fraudulently—failed to assess at all a very large part of the property which was subject to taxation at its hands, and, in the second place, I think it willfully and fraudulently and intentionally undervalued most, if not all, of the property which it was its duty to assess.

Wrong Without a Remedy.

"The court cannot make a new assessment, and if the court could grant the relief prayed for it would be injustice to taxpayers who have submitted their property to the board. A court of equity should not wrong many in order that relief may be granted to one person complaining. A mandamus proceeding would have been the proper course to compel a taxing body to properly assess property.

"It must always be a matter of regret when a court of chancery finds a wrong for which there is no remedy. The bill is dismissed for want of equity."

The Peoples Gas Light and Coke company filed its petition for an injunction to restrain the county treasurer from enforcing the collection of an assessment of $550,445 on its capital stock as assessed in 1909 by the board of equalization.

Board Member Surprised.

James J. McComb, a member of the board of equalization in 1909 and of the capital stock committee of the board which investigated gas company valuations, expressed surprise at Judge Matchett's strictures.

"We investigated the gas company's assets thoroughly," said Mr. McComb. "We raised the assessment over that of the previous year. The gas company protested at the time, and has been fighting against our assessment all these years since.

"I think that is an answer in itself to the question of our honesty. The gas company declared we overvalued its property. It seems ridiculous to say now that we undervalued it. If we had undervalued it as a favor to the company the company would not have started its legal battle."

STEAL AUTO AND 13 TIRES; BEAT THEIR OWNER

Automobile bandits held up Bohumil Pavel, a garage keeper at 5332 South Western avenue at the point of revolvers and stole an automobile and thirteen tires.

Three men found Pavel alone. They pretended they wanted to buy gasoline for their car, which, they said, was stalled near by. When Pavel brought out a can of gasoline the men covered him with revolvers. He resisted and was beaten into insensibility. The robbers left him lying on the floor, tossed thirteen tires into the back of a five passenger touring car, and drove away. The police were unable to follow their trail.

Hubert Lensch, 2324 Giddings street, a watchman, shot Frank Johnson, whom he found attempting to jimmy into a grocery at 323 South Racine avenue. Johnson, who received a scalp wound, was taken to the bridewell hospital.

Two men held up Thomas Murphy, a saloonkeeper at 3023 Archer avenue, and robbed the cash register of $40.

U. S. to Prepare Engineers for Mercantile Marine

In order to provide engineers for the new mercantile marine service the United States shipping board has authorized courses of instruction in marine engineering in certain technical colleges throughout the country.

For Chicago and surrounding territory the college designated is Armour Institute of Technology, Thirty-third and Federal streets. Registration will begin tomorrow. Any one desiring to take this course is urged to report on the above date, or not later than July 2, 1917.

Any man 19 years of age or over who can read and write English and has a knowledge of the rules of arithmetic is eligible to take the course.

Vaudeville and Naval Band and Dance for Soldiers

Company D, telegraph battalion, signal reserve corps, will give a dance for the benefit of the company mess in Medinah temple, Cass and Ohio streets, on June 30. The Great Lakes band will play and ten vaudeville acts will be given. Capt. L. B. Boylan is in charge of arrangements.

MILK OF ASTRAL KINDNESS TO SAVE DURAND CALVES

Woman Cattle Fancier Says Spirit of W. T. Stead Advises Her.

Mrs. Scott Durand declared yesterday that she is in constant communication with the spirit of William T. Stead, the distinguished journalist who perished on the Titanic. She asserted that he has visited her in the living room of her farm at Lake Bluff to converse with her and give her advice.

To the room, which has been converted into a studio, has also come the disembodied spirit of Raymond, the son of Sir Oliver Lodge, and others of more or less note.

They have warned her of plots to poison her herds, she declares, and many other things that she is reluctant to discuss.

Sees German Plot.

"Through my communications with the other world," she said, "I have obtained assurance that the Germans are endeavoring to destroy my herds and the herds of this country. They aim in time to kill all of the blooded cattle in this country so that our cattle will be of a poorer stock. The department of agriculture is overrun with German spies. Some, disguised as inspectors, visit cattle farms, carrying the virus of the hoof and mouth disease.

"If there is a possibility of the cattle recovering they kill them.

"The German secret service holds this country in the hollow of its hand. They have offices located throughout the country. These places are distinguished by a peculiar shade of blue curtains. There is one of these places in Lake Bluff. I have seen several in Chicago. I have been assured that this marking indicates an office of the German secret service system.

"Beautiful Experience."

"Not only have I received information relating to national issues but I have also been advised as to my personal affairs. My experience has been so beautiful and strange and new that I do not like to discuss it. My views are my own. But the truth is so wonderful and I have been so helped by it that I feel selfish in withholding any of my experiences.

"Mr. Stead has come to me when newspapers were about to print stories that would hurt me and has been instrumental in having them suppressed. He has told me how he has done it by directing the mind of the editors to some big story that has come in at the last moment."

NEW REPORTER GETS HER ESCORT INTO SAD MIXUP

She is a new reporter and the other night she was telling her escort on their way to a dance how exciting it was, when they saw a patrol wagon and she insisted on following it.

When it drew up before the residence of Earle B. Doty, 6341 Kimbark avenue, she asked a lot of questions of the policemen and borrowed her escort's notebook to write the answers in. He waited patiently while she went upstairs and saw the scene of the burglar's crime. She made him stand around a half hour waiting for her to phone the story in, and then she was too excited to go to the dance and made him take her home.

The police found the young man's notebook on the telephone stand and trailed him down. The fact that there were many addresses of people in university circles in it they thought very significant. When they asked him where he was at 9 o'clock that particular night he had to find the girl reporter to establish his alibi.

It took two hours to locate her and another hour for her to get to the Woodlawn station.

City Fathers Take Junket Around Lake Calumet

The council committee on harbors, wharves, and bridges made a tour of the district around Lake Calumet yesterday to investigate the advisability of a proposed harbor ordinance. The South End Business Men's association acted as host.

The ordinance contemplates a channel to Lake Michigan which will permit lake steamers to dock at municipally owned piers. To enable the city to construct this channel it is proposed to offer to shore owners a strip of made land in exchange for their riparian rights.

After its tour of inspection the council committee sat down to a lake perch dinner at Joe Dvorak's boathouse, where short addresses were made upon the proposed channel and docks.

League Asks Removal of Fisher as Traction Lawyer

The Municipal Ownership league wants Walter L. Fisher removed as special traction attorney for the local transportation committee of the city council.

"Whereas," reads a resolution passed by the league at a meeting in the Unity building yesterday, "Mr. Fisher in his efforts to pass the traction bills through the last legislature represented the traction interests instead of the interests of the citizens of Chicago, we respectfully demand that the local transportation committee of the council dispense with his services."

Brothers Give Kitchens to U. of C. Ambulances

Three trailer kitchens have been added to the equipment of the University of Chicago Ambulance corps. These kitchens are all equipped with thermo attachments. They are the gift of Samuel Price of 6129 Greenwood avenue and his brother, Robert, 5520 Cornell avenue. Two more trailers have been promised by persons who do not wish their names used.

The corps will be mustered into the federal medical service beginning tomorrow.

They will leave for the east for final training before going to France.

Youth Missing from Cullom Avenue Home

William Bender, 4947 Cullom avenue, disappeared from his home last Sunday. He has not been heard from since. He is 20 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighs 150 pounds, and has brown hair

2,619,439 Answers to Tribune "Want Ads"

A total of 2,619,439 letters—2,619,439 answers to Tribune "Want Ads" —were handed across The Tribune Want Ad Counter to Tribune Advertisers during 1916. That was an average of over 50,000 every week, more than 17 letters every minute in every 8-hour business day.

And bear in mind that this tremendous total of replies did not come from the use of large display advertisements but from the modest "Want Ads" that occupy but little space and only cost a trifle. Nor does this total of over two million and a half replies represent all the answers that Tribune "Want Ads" brought. It's only part of them. It's only those that came addressed to box numbers in The Tribune office. The others that were mailed direct to advertisers would make at least as many more.

The amount of business done last year through these small "Want Ads" is almost beyond computation. It runs into millions upon millions of dollars. Every minute of every working day had its quota of results. The businesses of every different kind that were disposed of, the houses and apartments by the thousands that were rented, the houses and apartments, stores and factories, city lots and farms and ranches that were sold, the automobiles that were sold, the rooms that were rented, the household goods disposed of, the good positions found—the scores on scores of different kinds of business deals brought to successful consummation by Tribune "Want Ads" make up a total volume almost impossible for the mind to grasp.

Your share in this great business, running into millions upon millions, is waiting for you. The "Want Ad" dividends this year will be even greater than they were last year, because the circulation of The Tribune is so much greater than it was last year. Let Tribune "Want Ads" solve your problems. Let them help you pile up profits. There's hardly a human want they cannot help you fill.
